RETIREMENT AGE FOR SENATORS AND JUDGES PREDICTED

Ottawa, April 1 — (CP) Members of the Senate, labelled by one of their own members as "the highest paid pensioners in Canada," learned today that the appointments to the Upper Chamber soon may cease.

Possibility that in future Senators might have to retire at a certain age was advanced by Senator Wishart Robertson.

The government leader in the Chamber did not indicate the proposed retirement age, but it was learned later that it may be the same age at which members of the Supreme Court of Canada retire.

Later Senator John T. Haig threw down a challenge of fire on his head when he labelled members of the Chamber "the highest class and the highest paid pensioners in Canada."

"He made the remark during debate on a resolution to appoint 12 members to a proposed Commons - Senate committee on old age pensions.

The Progressive Conservative Senate leader added that he meant no insult to his colleagues — but it did not quell the storm that sprung up about him.

Senator Norman Lambert (L-Ontario) asserted that Senator Haig had given a description "not merely because he knew it would catch the headlines in newspapers.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, April 1 (CP)—Synopsis: Although March went out like a lamb over Southern Ontario it was a tight squeeze. On this first day of April a developing storm over Michigan State is moving steadily eastward and the storm centre will cross Southern Ontario this afternoon. In advance of the storm, rain is spreading across the lower lakes while snow is spreading over Georgian Bay and Southern Kirkland Lake toward the Haliburton region. In its wake the storm is likely be falls of between two and four inches and with high winds expected there will be some drifting.

The storm centre will be east of the province tonight and northwestern winds will bring drier and colder air down to the province. Minimum temperatures tonight will be in the low 20s over Southern Ontario and will range from five to 20 above in the northern sections.

Sunday is expected to be generally sunny by afternoon with temperatures just above normal. This means maximums between 40 and 45 degrees over the Great lakes regions and between 30 and 35 in Northern Ontario.

C.B.C. ACTIVITIES TO BE PROBED BY COMMITTEE

Will Deal With All Phases of Corporation

Ottawa, April 1 (CP)—Activities of the CBC, alternately praised and criticized in the Commons Friday, will be investigated during the current session by a 25-man committee of the Commons.

A resolution providing for appointment of the committee was moved by Revenue minister McCann, who promised to submit for the publicly-owned corporation.

Dr. McCann said he thought it was a good thing for a committee representative of all parties in the Commons, to study the affairs of a corporation subject only to the over-all jurisdiction of Parliament.

He mentioned the financial difficulties being experienced by the CBC and said the committee would probably want to study the corporation's last financial report. The report said that unless revenues were increased some services would have to be curtailed.

Possibly, he said, the committee would decide to deal with problems of immediate concern and then continue until after the Royal Commission on arts and science makes a report. He expected the commission's report within a few months.

Murder Charge Laid Against John R. Hooper

Hull, Que., April 1 (CP) John Ralph Hooper, 25-year-old son of a well-to-do Ottawa family, was formerly charged today with murder in the hand-towel slaying of Gertrude Marion Davis.

Coroner's jury named Hooper Friday night as "criminally-responsible" for the slaying of the comely Ottawa girl, whose nude body was found Wednesday in the bush with a hand towel knotted tightly around her throat.

The knotted towel and the 10, as reported by the news agency, said:

"After the war the Vatican espionage service was joined with the United States organization, the counter intelligence corps. Both services were concentrated mainly against the People's (communist) democracies which they wanted to liquidate.

"To carry out this policy, the Vatican had the diplomatic services in the various states and monasteries, which received exact instructions."

Red Chinese Assault On Hainair 'Fails'

San Francisco, April 1 (AP)—A broadcast by the Chinese nationalist radio in Formosa claimed that a communist Chinese assault today on Hainan Island "failed."

The broadcast, heard here, asserted more than 30 communist junks were sunk and some 3,000 reds killed. Remnants of the invasion flotilla fled northward, it said, pursued by Nationalist gunboats.

Missing Actress Safe and Sound, Says She Was Kidnapped as in Play

Paris, April 1—(AP) — Nicole Berlie, pretty young French actress, was reported safe and sound with a story that she had been kidnapped—just like in the play, "Blandish" in which she has been starring.

She disappeared Wednesday night during an intermission of the play, scantily clad as required by the role she has in the play about American gangsters.

The girl came into a Paris precinct station Thursday afternoon. She had been taken off by a man who left her in a hotel here, Police said. She said she had wandered in the forest for hours and that "purely by chance" she ran into a newspaper man in a hotel Friday night who brought her back to Paris.

Police planned to question her further. They said they were inclined to believe the whole business was a publicity stunt.

The police said, however, that Nicole, the married wife of Jean-Marc Tennberg, leading man in the play, was real, and had no connection with Nicole's disappearance. Police said he took poison Friday in a moment of discouragement. Tenberg was described as out of danger at the hospital where he was taken.

No Change in Decision Board of Education Issues Statement Regarding Tenders For New Elementary School

Editors Note: By resolution at a special meeting of the Board of Education on Thursday, the chairman and the secretary of the Board were directed to arrange for the publishing of the following statement:

* * *

The Board of Education is greatly concerned because the citizens of Belleville are not fully aware of all the facts involved in the Board's attempts to initiate work on the proposed elementary school building to be constructed on MacDonald Avenue.

Many initial steps have to be taken before actual construction of any school building. These include preparation of tentative plans and estimates which must be approved by the Department of Education, after which tentative approval of debenture issue must be secured from City Council and the Ontario Municipal Board. Nearly six months elapse from the time plans are given first and second readings to the by-law to provide for debentures amounting to $300,000.

Tenders were called for and officially closed February 23, 1950 at 5 p.m. At a special meeting of the Board, February 24, tenders were opened and the following were presented:

Contracting Firm	General Bid	Additions & Sub-Contracts	Total Bid
McFarland Construction Co.	$143,709.96	$75,565.00	$219,274.96
St. Lawrence Contracting Co.	167,183.00	75,732.00	242,915.00
Bradford Hoshal	167,299.00	73,456.00	240,755.00
Hardy	168,711.00	75,394.00	244,105.00
Andre	169,169.00	75,357.00	244,526.00
Hughson	170,737.00	74,417.50	245,148.50
Hill-Clark-Francis	$83,574.00	75,868.00	259,442.00

Fried — (This tender was not according to instruction and was not considered.)

To the above figures must be added approximately $50,000 representing equipment, land development and landscaping, architect's fee and temporary financing. These additional items explain the board's request for $250,000.

Below Original Estimate

It should be noted here that the final amount asked for is several thousand dollars below the original $300,000 estimate and which was approved by City Council at first and second readings of the debenture by-law.

When the above listed tenders were opened and read before the members of the board that body felt that the sum was not very close, the lowest tender probably contained an error. The board's architect was of the opinion that it would be impossible to construct the building to the required specification at the lowest price submitted.

The matter deferred by the board to a later date, and in the meantime the lowest tenderer permitted to the architect that an error of $14,400 had been made, and a detailed revision of the figures. When this information was presented to the board, the members arrived at the conclusion that the low tender was invalidated and that it should be considered firm. By a unanimous motion, the board it was decided to award the contract to the next lowest tender, the St. Lawrence Contracting Company.

Expert advice since secured has confirmed the board's opinion that the decision made was the only one possible and practical under the circumstances.

HOWE FORECASTS EXPORT INCREASE TO UNITED STATES

Predicts a Drop To Other Countries

Ottawa, April 1. (CP)—Trade Minister Howe, expressing confidence in Canada's ability to deal with trade problems, told the Commons Friday he foresees a 1950 increase in exports to the United States, but a drop in trade with other countries.

Generally, said Mr. Howe, "I think we can expect to continue to have a good market for staple products which Canada traditionally exports, such as wheat, flour, meats, lumber, pulp and paper."

"These markets seem to be in excellent condition and we do not expect any particular difficulty there.

"Canadian manufacturers, however, find it easier to sell their manufactured goods in the United States than in Europe. I believe that exports to Europe of manufactured goods will depend largely on the amount of effort that is put into selling."

Spokesmen for opposition parties said they were not inclined to share Mr. Howe's optimistic outlook.

British Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) wanted to know what the government was doing to encourage imports from the United Kingdom. He said the British were willing to balance trade with other countries to obtain goods Canada could sell more to the U.K. if she bought more British goods.

Cambridge Wins Annual Boat Race From Oxford

London, April 1 (CP) — Cambridge today beat Oxford in the annual University Boat Race over the 4 1-2 mile course from Putney to Mortlake, London.

Cambridge, the more experienced and heavier crew, started 11-4 favorites and won by 1 1-2 lengths after establishing an early lead.

The "light blues" time of 20 minutes and 15 seconds was well under the record set in the seven three seconds—but it was a fast time considering the strong tide and fresh west wind that handicapped both crews early in the race.

Cambridge, who have won all but 10 of the past-war races, led Oxford pushed about two or three feet in front in first mile, where they met the full force of the waves Cambridge soon caught up and made its bigger gain through the cold war. He said his group had intelligence reports from inside Russia telling of mobilization for total war.

Trucker Sought After Two Young Girls Hit, Killed

Children on Way to Church When Struck on Highway

Toronto, April 1 — (CP) City and suburban police today were searching for the driver of a heavy motortruck which struck and killed two children on their way to church.

Lorine Watson, 13, and her niece, Barbara Jones, 5, were on their way to a Friday evening Lenten service at St. Eugene's North York township when hit by the truck.

The Watson girl was killed instantly and the younger child died three-quarters of an hour later after being admitted to the Hospital for Sick Children.

Police said the driver of the truck failed to stop at the scene. Acting on information of an eyewitness they questioned two men but cleared both of them.

The witness to the accident was Ernest Berry, who was driving behind the truck. He said the truck was going between 40 and 45 miles an hour when it struck the girls and appeared to be a sack flew across the road."

Turned Truck

Berry said when his car got to the scene he saw the children's bodies and he took off in pursuit of the truck. When he reached the crest of the hill however the truck was not in sight, he testified.

Meantime the accident had been discovered by the father of the elder girl, Charles Watson, driving along in his tow-truck. He found his own daughter dead at the side of the road and the younger girl barely breathing.

Watson announced he was posting $100 reward for information leading to arrest of the driver.

Police said they had chased a truck on the Weston road, in the same vicinity, but lost it after getting the licence number.

The girls walked along the road which has no sidewalks at that time of day Wednesday and Friday during Lent to the church services. Mrs. Jones, mother of one girl and sister of the other, said that "if the driver feels half as sad as we do he'll give himself up. Perhaps now we'll get some street lights up here."

ROYAL ASSENT GIVEN 26 BILLS IN LEGISLATURE

Toronto, April 1 (CP)—It will cost a little less to go to movies and other places of amusement in Ontario as a result of the approval by the Ontario legislature of the government's bill reducing roughly from 20 to 15 per cent by the bill given royal assent Friday, the measure is effective today.

The tax was reduced on the express understanding that the reduction must be passed on to customers. Night clubs, cabarets and other establishments where elaborate entertainment is presented however will cost more. Food and drink bills at such places will be taxed 15 per cent up to maximum tax of $1. Formerly the tax maximum was 40 cents.

Chief Justice R. S. Robertson, acting in absence of Lieutenant-Governor Ray Lawson, gave royal assent to 26 bills. Among the others are bills to establish an Ontario Racing Commission and to dissolve an injunction restraining the Kalamazoo Vegetable Parchment Company from pulluting the Spanish River at Espanola by waste disposal.

Wants More Timber Than Steel Used In U.K. Homes to Save Dollars

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, April 1 — (CP) Ernest Marples, a consistent critic of the government's housing policy, has renewed his call for more timber for homes.

The 42-year-old member of parliament, regarded as possible ministerial material if the Conservatives come to power, told the House of Commons Britain should use more timber and less steel in building houses.

"We have this anomalous position," he said in a housing debate "that we are using substitute materials here which would fetch two dollars if sold in the United States than the timber it replaces would fetch here."

Imports comes from a working-class family in Manchester. He started business as a builder with £20 (56$) borrowed capital and became financially independent in 10 years. He now heads one of Britain's largest civil engineering firms.

Describing a "personal experience" in building houses, Marples members his specifications called for steel instead of timber for certain purposes.

"For that particular type of shuttering I had to use steel because it was technically possible and not because it was economic in the first place.

"The ton of steel I used in substitution for timber, and saving it bought three tons of timber in Canada if it had been sold in Canada.

In a letter to the independent Times, Marples added:

"To force contractors to use steel which in the circumstances produces from eight Canadian purchasers £30 worth of timbers and saves £2 worth of timber at £16 worth of dollars a ton shows a rigidity which must lead to economic suicide."

DEMOTE POLICE OFFICER

Toronto, April 1 — (CP) — The Toronto Police Commission Friday announced the demotion of Inspector George Sargent to rank of sergeant, and te promotion of Sergeants of Sergeants of Detectives George Elliott. The commission gave no reasons for the reactions except that the demotion was "disciplinary action."

Members of the family today tendered Mr. Duvall a birthday party honoring him on his 100th birthday. Congratulations were received by Mr. Duvall from The King and Queen.

Born of French and English stock in the Camden East district northeast of Napanee on April 1, 1850, the grizled veteran of the Northwest Rebellion still recalls the forced march through the wilderness from the head of the lakes to Fort Gary, now Winnipeg, after going up the lakes by boat.

It was still several years before Canada was to have its first transcontinental railway and just three years after Confederation.

Lost Leg In Accident

"I never got a scratch during the rebellion," the century old Mr. Duvall states. But he was not so fortunate in civilian life. When he was about 40 years of age he was working in the woods in the Lindsay district when he was struck on the leg with an axe of a co-worker. Gangrene set in and he lost his leg to the hip. Since then he has used a crutch.

Youngest member of a family of eighteen children, Mr. Duvall lost his father when he was but nine years of age. He was then forced to earn a living in the woodlands working to help provide for his mother.

At ten years of age he assisted threshing crews—and at the same time learned to chew and to smoke. His pipe is now his closest companion and it is his claim that tobacco has done him little harm physically.

Recalls First Railroad

Although he was but a mere slip of a boy, Mr. Duvall can recall when the first railroad between Montreal and Toronto was built in 1856. He had his first train ride when the family moved to Lindsay district from Camden East. He was then in his early teens.

Twice married Mr. Duvall is the father of 18 children, nine girls and an equal number of sons. Since the death of his second wife last April, he has lived with his old son, John Duvall, in Hillcrest.

Sulphur matches were still unknown when Mr. Duvall was a boy. Fire was kindled with the use of flints, or carrying coals from the neighbors.

Expert At Basket Weaving

Handicapped by the loss of his leg while working in the bush Mr. Duvall was forced to go into other occupation. He became adept at the manufacture of baskets and wickerware and it is only in recent years that he has given up this work. He moved to Belleville from Galt, Ont.

Mr. Duvall is not strange to Mr. Duvall. Better than half a century ago he lived here for two years in the Dundas street area. At that time what is now known as the Upper Bridge was known as McCormick's Bridge.

One hundred winters have not lessened Mr. Duvall's zest for living. He is up every morning at 6.30 and is always keen for his meals. And contrary to most elderly people he doesn't like to get to bed at night.

Enjoys Card Playing

He likes to play cards with Euchre being his favorite game. He is a keen player and according to his daughter-in-law when he catches any players reneging they get told about it.

Last summer he visited the Duvall homestead at Camden East for the first time since he left it 90 years ago. Surroundings had changed vastly but the old house still remained. When the car rounded the last turn in the road he said, "There's the house there."

Mr. Duvall has 51 grandchildren. "What about great grandchildren?" he was asked. "I don't know," was the reply, "I can't count them."

DEMOTE POLICE OFFICER

Members of the family today tendered Mr. Duvall a birthday party honoring him on his 100th birthday. Congratulations were received by Mr. Duvall from The King and Queen.

Born of French and English stock in the Camden East district northeast of Napanee on April 1, 1850, the grizled veteran of the Northwest Rebellion still recalls the forced march through the wilderness from the head of the lakes to Fort Gary, now Winnipeg, after going up the lakes by boat.

It was still several years before Canada was to have its first transcontinental railway and just three years after Confederation.

Lost Leg In Accident

"I never got a scratch during the rebellion," the century old Mr. Duvall said, but he was not so fortunate in civilian life. When he was about 40 years of age he was working in the woods in the Lindsay district when he was struck on the knee and leg by one of a co-worker. Gangrene set in and he lost his leg to the hip. Since then he has used a crutch.

Youngest member of a family of eighteen children, Mr. Duvall lost his father when he was but nine years of age. He was then forced to accept the responsibility of working to help provide for his mother.

At ten years of age he assisted threshing crews—and at the same time learned to chew and to smoke. His pipe is now his closest companion and it is his claim that tobacco has done him little harm physically.

Recalls First Railroad

Although he was but a mere slip of a boy, Mr. Duvall can recall when the first railroad between Montreal and Toronto was built in 1856. He had his first train ride when the family moved to Lindsay district from Camden East. He was then in his early teens.

Twice married Mr. Duvall is the father of 18 children, nine girls and an equal number of sons. Since the death of his second wife last April, he has lived with his old son, John Duvall, in Hillcrest.

Sulphur matches were until unknown when Mr. Duvall was a boy. Fire was kindled with the use of flints, or carrying coals from the neighbors.

Expert At Basket Weaving

Handicapped by the loss of his leg while working in the bush Mr. Duvall was forced to go into other occupation. He became adept at the manufacture of baskets and wickerware and it is only in recent years that he has given up this work. He moved to Belleville from Galt, Ont.

Mr. Duvall has not strange to Mr. Duvall. Better than half a century ago he lived here for two years in the Dundas street area. At that time what is now known as the Upper Bridge was known as McCormick's Bridge.

One hundred winters have not lessened Mr. Duvall's zest for living. He is up every morning at 6.30 and is always keen for his meals. And contrary to most elderly people he doesn't like to get to bed at night.

Enjoys Card Playing

He likes to play cards with Euchre being his favorite game. He is a keen player and according to his daughter-in-law when he catches any players reneging they get told about it.

Last summer he visited the Duvall homestead at Camden East for the first time since he left it 90 years ago. Surroundings had changed vastly but the old house still remained. When the car rounded the last turn in the road he said, "There's the house there."

Mr. Duvall has 51 grandchildren. "What about great grandchildren?" he was asked. "I don't know," was the reply. "I can't count them."

Men's Club Enjoys Social Evening

Another large attendance was recorded at the regular weekly meeting of Christ Church Men's club, Tuesday evening in Christ Church parish hall.

After a period of business matters the chair was given over to Rev. J. Grant Sparling for an interesting short talk on "History of the Psalms."

During the balance of the evening the members engaged in recreation consisting of a variety of games, when bowling, carpet bowling, cribbage and bridge.

HASTINGS IN ERIN

By LAVONIA STOCKELBACH

Going on from places to people we have been honored by the names M'Clure, Herschel, Faraday and Wollaston for the North-Westgen territory.

British exploration in the North is a brilliant tale of courageous and enthusiastic men, To find a North-West passage to China and even to India was their aim and among them we find the names of John Cook, Davis, Frobisher and Franklin. It is told of Franklin that having spent the years between ten and twelve at a school in St. Ives in Huntingdonshire he went for a walk one day with a school friend to look at the sea. It was a twelve-mile walk.

That walk, that view of the sea determined him to be a sailor. The story of his life, his cheerfulness in time of danger, his deep religious feelings, his remarkable seamanship, his scientific achievements in Tasmania, on up to his tragic end, reveal the grandeur to which a human being can rise.

McCLURE:

On his last expedition to find a North-West passage and no tidings coming from him, a plan of search was organized and M'Clure was one of those in command of a ship for that purpose. M'Clure was born in the South of Ireland, the son of a captain and was educated by his godfather in Aldermey for the army but he preferred the Navy. From 1838 to 1839 he served on the Canadian Lakes and at forty-one joined the first Franklin search expedition. On the second expedition he was in command of the "Investigator" and completed the work of discovering the N-W Passage. But, heroic Franklin had died. After the wreck of his ship "Begged his men fell down and died M'Clure walked."

M'Clure passed the winter thirty miles from Barrow Strait which he could see from a hill nearby, and the story of his many hairbreadth escapes make good selling. The bay on the north shore of Banks Land was named the Bay of M'Clure's Mercy and a now called Mercy Bay and not far from it is Cape M'Clure. When he returned to England he was knighted and a tidy sum of money granted to him and his crew.

As Pepys advised his nephew to be "as covetous as you can of observing everything" we find that M'Clure did just that. He saw and listed the flowers and the birds. He speaks of the Arctic anemone and poppy, the saxifrage, the ground willow and reindeer moss and a number of others. It is arresting the number of flowers to be found up in the Arctic circle and when in Alaska I was assured that one could sit and watch them grow. It is not absolutely necessary to believe this but one can expect much of those long hours of summer sunlight. A Scotch lady, Isobel W. Hutchison has written attractively and very accurately about the flowers there.

warm intelligence, once seen, can never be forgotten, the beauty of her soul, once felt, dreams with a radiance that time can never dim.

She was one the first to break down the prejudice against women working outside the home. Her mother was a rather tiresome person who thought of her daughter only in that light and would not permit her to be given any other education. Nevertheless, in the long run, that turned out to be a blessing for not only did she stand beside her brother helping him in his astronomical work but it was owing to her thrift and household care that he was not harassed by the rankling vexations of money matters.

Her mother did permit her to learn millinery and dressmaking but she also helped in all the work of the house until she was about two, when her brother came back from England to take her with him.

As Protestants their parents had to leave their homeland of Moravia, where their father was a musician. Neither brother nor sister had much education but he taught himself mathematics and his father taught him music. When he was nineteen his father was able to send a student abroad, ever the country of distressed and displaced persons. It was hoped that he would be helped financially by his music and after suffering dreadful privations he got a good post as organist in Bath, and in a few years he was able to go back to Hanover to get his sister Caroline. It is one of the most beautiful brother-sister stories that I know. Hours of hard work by both of them in the daytime until the sister helping him and preparing the meals.

Their nights were spent "sweeping the heavens" and one can be thankful for the optimisty nights of England that thus enabled them to catch up with their sleep. As he lived on to his eighties and she to her nineties they must have worked hard.

Again, that great philanthropist George III helped a career and Herschel was appointed his private astronomer with a small enough salary to be sure, but with the allowance the king made to Caroline, enough for them to live and continue their work. An encouraging family story of great generations one of which accomplished something.

The brother and sister live in life and had a son, who also had a stirring scientific career. He was appointed to study law but on reading Dr. Wollaston was influenced to turn to scientific pursuits. His discoveries make a long list and one trifling thing will be remembered of him, the terms positive and negative for photographic images. It is said of him that "his was a life full of the serenity of the sage and the docile innocence of the child."

FARADAY:

Michael Faraday, son of a blacksmith, found life an errand boy in a book shop and while there learned to know books. Inspired by a lecture on the Philosophy Davy he began to take an interest in science and became a noted man in the two branches of chemistry and physics. His technical ability is away beyond me but these few paragraphs we can all understand.

"There is an absolute distinction between religious and ordinary action. Nevertheless, in the long run, that turned out to be a blessing for not only did she stand beside her brother helping him in his astronomical work but it was owing to her thrift and household care that he was not harassed by the rankling vexations of money matters.

Her mother did permit her to learn millinery and dressmaking but she also helped in all the work of the house until she was about two, when her brother came back from England to take her with him.

As Protestants their parents had to leave their homeland of Moravia, where their father was a musician. Neither brother nor sister had much education but he taught himself mathematics and his father taught him music. When he was nineteen his father was able to send a student abroad, ever the country of distressed and displaced persons. It was hoped that he would be helped financially by his music and after suffering dreadful privations he got a good post as organist in Bath, and in a few years he was able to go back to Hanover to get his sister Caroline. It is one of the most beautiful brother-sister stories that I know. Hours of hard work by both of them in the daytime until the sister helping him and preparing the meals.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

ANT EATER

At mention of the word "Woodpecker," we immediately picture a bird clinging to a tree trunk. But one member of the family behaves differently. When spring sun melts the snow from the open country, Flickers return to our parks, where they set more like Robins searching for worms than like Woodpeckers. They are combing the ground for ants and ants' eggs, which they pick up with their long, sticky tongues. There, too, they find caterpillars, beetles, grasshoppers and crickets. Once we have noticed the appearance, voice, and behaviour of this familiar bird, it is simple to identify ever afterwards. About three inches longer than a Robin, it is mostly brown. Yellow under the wings and at the sides of the tail have suggested its names Golden-winged, and yellow-shafted Woodpecker. But a big white patch at the end of the back is the most noticeable thing about the plumage, especially when we see the Flicker in its characteristic, deeply undulating flight. A close view shows that the greyish-white underparts are covered with large spots, there is a scarlet crescent on the back of the head, and a smaller, sharper black mark across the breast. As is proper, only males wear a black moustache.

The extremely loud voice of a Flicker is unmistakable. It has a large vocabulary is confusing. "Flick", "wick-a-wick", "wake-up, wake-up" have given it some of its names, and it also whistles, or screams, "wick-a-wick" "quit-it, quit-it", and various other words.

In spite of the fact that much time is spent on the ground, the Flicker likes tall trees in which to make a home. Apple trees are favorites, but even big boxes sometimes are an attraction. It was not until telephone poles stretched across the prairie provinces that the Northern Flicker was found that far west. This great carpenter chisels out a cavity, generally about ten feet up, but often much higher, as another name, High Holer, indicates. Here five to ten white eggs are laid. An experiment once proved that Mrs. Flicker is so anxious to have the right number in the incubator that she will lay up to seventy-one if an egg a day is taken from her. Holes carved out by this bird are later on much sought after by those more inventive unable to do their own excavating.

TWO TEACHERS FIRED

Baltimore, March 21—(AP) Two city school teachers who refused to sign a mandatory loyalty oath have been fired. The school board voted unanimously Thursday to dismiss them. The teachers, Mrs. Helen E. Baker and Miss Vera Shank, said they declined to take the oath on principle. WESTERN EUROPE'S DIET

Western Europe is said now to have an adequate diet. at is a far step from the days following the Second Great r when countless throngs in Europe were underfed, left the backwash of the cruel inhumanity of Hitler and sism. Food is a good omen as underfed peoples are apt to ing towards a fatalistic and anarchial view of life.

On this project United States has expended already e billion dollars to revive the spirit and feed the bodies the hundreds of thousands who were left at the mercy starvation through the Nazi principle of inhumanity to n.

Soviet Russia has had nothing to do with the scheme revive and help the people of Central Europe, Moscow posing the scheme on the contention that the plan was disguised plan to control the destiny of Europe "by erican capitalistic imperialism." That nation, Russia, st now view with a sense of frustration how successful plan has been.

SOUNDS OF RUNNING WATER

There is now heard in the land the sound of running ter, characteristic of spring. At no season is the sound so quent, meaning so much to the listener. That which was and now has now become or is becoming water which ll fill to brim and streams and great rivers, all flowing rd towards the sea.

Water is something in nature of which there is the greatest abundance and such it might well be for without this earth would be a lifeless ball whirling in space. ter can be rough or cruel and yet it serves life as only ter can and the soil also does.

It is the great essential of life, found in so many forms ich can make and mould a world.

In the chemistry of this world water remains the most ntiful compound, it is composed of gases, oxygen which e life and hydrogen of which the world has taken new life with its mention in connection with the making of bomb.

The poet sings of the "sound of many waters," a figure speech which indicates how valuable this ever-present ter is on earth. It is heard everywhere and is known to ry son of man. It is heard in endless variations, it is rd in the splash of the swimmer and is heard in the ase of the water tap and in myriad sounds of nature.

What sound can be more familiar to man than that ch is like "a draught of vintage" to thirsty man? o who are near it are familiar with it as they are with sightless air. That same combination of elements of ygen and oxygen is not only rain or snow or ice, as decide upon the season, but it is also steam which propels ghty engines hauling endless trains of freight.

Water joins the nations and divides them. It flows und the world and those particles of water seem flowing ed in a mysterious manner here in combination been rywhere in the great wide earth.

The voice of the waters tells that spring is here. It is very spirit of release from bondage, it seems free and li obedient to the will of its master nature.

At this very moment the water which has been ice now re-creating water through deep winter is on way to or has already arrived at its destination in a , in which it plays a role in the great chemical laboraty of life of nature helping to "make all things new." It is the great world about us which is so soon to burst into new life of another year.

MAD FINNS KEEP THEIR FREEDOM

In an article in the Atlantic Monthly Mr. David L. hn writes of a visit to Finland. And as he was leaving. nased at what he had seen and heard, he said to his Finnish friends seeing him off: "You Finns are absolutely mad, carry on as you do against impossible odds." Of course are mad," one of them replied. "We believe that those om the gods would preserve they first make mad."

Mr. Cohn found the 4,000,000 Finns, literally under e guns of 200,000,000 Russians, filled with a passion for edom, ready to fight for it and if necessary die for it, and rying on with courage and hard work as though the ndians were a thousand miles away. — Ottawa Journal

Nationalist Govt. Blamed For Racial Disturbances

By OLIVER WALKER

Voted into power by a narrow margin on a policy of "apartheid" (separateness) —which critics say approaches the Nazi Nationalist government of Dr. D. F. Malan is looked upon by many as the cause of the disturbances giving South Africa the name of a police state. Since the proclamation after 18 months of sporadic outbreaks is officially described as "tranquility."

Hundreds of lives have been lost and millions of dollars' worth of property damage caused in clashes between Africans and Indians and, sporadically, both these races and Europeans. The causes are rooted deep in the history of South Africa: A determination to maintain the political dominance of a white minority of 2,300,000 over a non-white majority of 8,000,000—750,000 Africans, 1,000,000 coloreds, 280,000 Asiatics—and efforts to maintain 19th century economic and race relations as between white and black in every sphere of life.

The immediate cause of the riots—the most serious was the 1949 Durban outbreak in which more than 140 persons died—is the presence of nearly 2,000,000 Africans in the big cities who have been drawn there by a demand for cheap labor; a mixed revolution in secondary industry stimulated by the war and the impoverishment of the overcrowded, eroded native reserves. A constant irritant is the government's policy of apartheid.

Promised Solution

By "apartheid" the Nationalists promised a solution of South Africa's racial problems. Africans, native blacks, would be permitted to enter towns and cities on temporary permits as migrant laborers. Their "national home" would be reserves where they would have increasing degrees of control and opportunity under a central all-white government.

Asiatics, chiefly Indians in fact, were termed an "unassimilable element." They are driven by repatriation to "an irreducible minimum." The colored race, except in the Cape province, would be removed from the common voters' rolls, a democratic privilege they had enjoyed since 1854, and given separate and qualified representation by three white members of Parliament in the House of Assembly.

Colored Spurn Offer

Few Indians—most are third- and fourth-generation families born in South Africa—availed themselves of the proffered government assistance to go back to India or Pakistan. The colored peoples spurned the government's proposals.

Mass police raids on hostels and compounds followed Africans conforming to the multiplicity of by-laws have acquired the nature of raids into enemy territory.

The Malan government has been criticized by newspapers for its racial policy. Recently the Johannesburg Sunday Express published a cartoon showing its lives in a hut being attacked by a man with a flyswatter.

At the door of the hut was Dr. Malan inviting two natives —representing the protectorates —to enter.

Over the cartoon was the caption: "Won't you come in?"

Government reaction was swift. Three members of the newspaper's staff were charged with promoting hostility between Europeans and natives and were fined £50 each.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE STEP OF FAITH

One who has mastered the language of confidence does not stand still. Neither does he look behind nor hesitate. He takes steps ahead and each one of those steps is one of faith. Faith in himself, faith in fellowman, and in God.

So long as that tiny hand of the child is held firmly in hand of its father, there is no fear. A higher Power than any among men holds the hand of us all, and if we hold tight enough we need to have no fear, for it is written of that Power, I am with you always." Not alone do we need a personal faith but a world faith, under God, without which we become mere stumblers.

Without a world and a genuine faith in the free institutions that are ours and in the government, under which we live, all can easily be lost to us. All free governments have been won through faith and all success and happiness, as well.

We can not always see our way ahead. Our vision may be temporarily forged, but the step of faith we make is certain to bring us into the clear. Why does the investigator, scientist, or inventor, go on and on? Because he has faith in his final triumph.

It may cost billions to gain the confidence and trust of other nations as well as their good will, but it will be worth it. But by exchange, we gain their faith in our good intentions and in our security for universal peace throughout the world. But this is a goal to take a lot of faith on the part of every human being, for the whole world.

We can never go bankrupt so long as we have faith. It will take us safely to "journey's end." And every time we exercise this faith in us, we gain in strength. Often it may be only a step at a time—but if it's ahead, we need not worry as to any outcome.

Fur-Swathed Porkers Brave the Antarctic

Durban, South Africa, (CP) — Twenty-seven African pigs have been promised fur coats and first-class accommodation when they arrive at South Georgia, the Antarctic whaling base.

The pigs left Durban in the supply ship Salvor Bay recently and their offspring are required as a change from whale meat for the families of the magistrate, wireless operator and customs officer on the island.

An attempt was made previously to breed pigs imported from Scotland but they all died of swine fever before the 1,800-mile journey ended.

Officers of the Polar Maid said that a fresh supply, of pigs in breeding condition, was to have been ordered in Britain, but the Scottish source was overlooked and the pigs were bought in South Africa instead.

Mr. Allan Cheeseman, chief of the Salvor Bay, who has returned here to reside. Of late he has been employed in a drug store in Prescott.

Spring Work In the Garden

It will soon be time to tidy up the flower garden. Dead stems of perennials in the borders should be cut off at the base and dead annual plants pulled up by the roots. A light spring dressing may be made, but go carefully so that tips of bulbs just below the surface of the soil are not damaged. As the weather becomes warmer, a more thorough raking to light chickweed seedlings may be done.

In the rose garden some of the outer covering on the bushes should now be removed. As soon as weather gets warm, and the remainder of the mulch at intervals of a few days. It is a mistake to uncover the bushes too early as the stems may be injured by drying winds before the roots have begun to grow. Any dead wood can be delayed until the leaf buds show signs of growth. All damaged wood should be cut out and stems pruned to a good strong bud.

Spring Care of Lawns

A little extra attention to the garden lawn in the early spring will often improve its appearance without much work. As soon as it is reasonably dry from winter snows, it should be well raked with a bamboo or flexible steel grass rake. A spring tooth harrow be avoided as it is too drastic a treatment and tends to tear up the roots. Delay the raking if the ground is found to be so soft that footmarks are noticeable; high heels in particular will leave depressions which may remain all summer.

Rolling is not as essential as many people think, and is necessary only in those regions where heaving results from the action of frost. Although rolling is not usually harmful on light soils, it tends to heavy soils to compact, a condition detrimental to the growth of grass. A more effective and desirable method of smoothing small depressions in the lawn is top-dressing.

Early spring is a good time to fertilize. Only a small proportion of poor lawns is low soil fertility. Since grass is constantly growing and producing new leaves, a sufficient fertilizer supply is important. It is important that the fertilizer be spread evenly. It is a good plan to divide it into small parts and to spread each half lengthwise over the entire lawn, in opposite directions. The lawn should be watered after the first application and the fertilizer should be thoroughly watered in immediately after the second application of the fertilizer.

OXYGEN WANT IN THE HEART MUSCLE

The heart is practically all muscle—a hollow muscle, an involuntary muscle that does a lot of work and does it well without any "regulation" or interference on your part—does its work as well as that other hollow involuntary muscle which chiefly composes the stomach and intestine does you have enough sense to avoid interfering with it—using laxatives, enemas etc., to "regulate" it. In medical language the heart muscle is the myocardium.

In medical terminology oxygen want is anoxia, deficient supply of oxygen to the tissues. Every functioning cell in the tissues, organs or glands must receive its quota of oxygen, a regular supply of oxygen delivered in or by the blood every second. If for the oxygen supply is much restricted or cut off for a few seconds the cells degenerate or die, and then everything depends on whether the cells can be restored after restoration of the oxygen supply.

Perhaps anoxia is considered in the medical profession today is the theory—nobody knows positively about it—that the attack or paroxysm of heart-pang or heart-pain (angina pectoris) is a temporary anoxia of a portion of the myocardium, deficient supply of oxygen to the heart muscle. We can only conjecture that this temporary oxygen want of the heart muscle is due to constriction or say spasmodic contraction of branches of the coronary artery supply blood to the heart itself. These arteries distributing the blood to the sola or great artery just beyond the valves that guard the heart itself in appearance resemble a crown and so they were named the words for crown—coronary arteries.

Constriction or spasmodic contraction of the cornary arteries or branch may occur from over exertion or over excitement but emotional excitement of one kind or another seems to have a bad effect on the attack. The great Dr. John Hunter subject to angina, said: "My life is at the mercy of any rascal who chooses to annoy and lose me," and Hunter actually did turn up his toes in a fit of anger.

It was a little before my time but it does seem to me that Dr. Hunter, like a Mr. Dooley, said, I don't want to annoy them—say a Mr. Roosevelt, who was subject to or in training for angina pectoris, was altogether too selfconfident. A distinguished surgeon doesn't warrant a demand that everybody give way and let the poor fellow annoy and tease them as much as he likes. Rather if imposed on by an individual or individual such reform of habits of life may be necessary or necessary to protect against such emotional excitement.

By way of prevention of angina aside from the adoption of the simple life, I'll quote a statement made by a distinguished cardiologist (heard disease specialist) in an address before a medical society, on Optimism in Medicine: "It's my belief that patients with coronary insufficiency can carry on practically normal lives for many years with the assistance of glyceryl trinitrate" (otherwise known as nitroglycerin) "used not during attacks . . . but prophylactically."

In the C.N.D. booklet (for copy send twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope), which deals with heart and artery diseases, I say that every sufferer from angina (pectoris dolor) should always carry a few tablets of nitroglycerin, and I tell how to use them—but don't complain to me if your druggist refuses to sell nitroglycerin tablets without your physician's prescription. The druggist has the law behind, him. I can see no good reason why your physician or any physician who knows you should refuse to give you such a prescription that is, if you are troubled by a moron.

A nitroglycerin tablet dissolved in the mouth is effective in a minute or less—it relaxes spasm or constriction of the coronary artery and permits a supply of oxygen to reach the heart muscle cells immediately. I don't believe the use of nitroglycerin by a patient of ordinary intelligence ever does any harm.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

How About This Men?

When men go through the change of life, must they always get hot flashes as the women do? F. L.

Answer—If they were a case and wouldn't believe it if a man assured me his trouble was change of life. For that matter there's no illness or disturbance of health that can be so attributed to women. Only a minority of women at the menopause have hot flashes. Most women have a good health then as before or after the menopause. So what?

Apology to the Japanese

Having lived in Japan as a missionary for nearly a decade I beg to inform you that foot bindings is not a case and custom in Japan—it was an old custom in China.— (R. L. E.)

Answer—Thank you. You are right. I offer my apology to the Japanese for referring to what this practice well known to be a Chinese custom.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

"When that Aprille with his shoures soote
The droghte of March hath perced to the roote,
And bathed every veyne in swich licour
Of which vertu engendred is the flour.
So quiketh hem Nature in hir corages—
Thanne longen folk to goon on pilgrimages"

That is the opening of Geoffrey Chaucer's Canterbury Tales written more than 500 years ago by a war veteran, was following the time honored patronage of John 'o Gaunt.

Old, old stuff: old beautiful stuff with which the great poet even in Canada. For the sweet showers of April there as now, now as then, stir us to goon on pilgrimages. And despite the fact that the Canterbury pilgrim for the most part is a month behind England's, the pilgrimages will have begun the very first day of April in our sunshine. The highways will be filled once more with folk longing to goon on pilgrimages in search of another shrine of Canterbury.

We think of the modern traffic as something new, something that has grown up with the motor car. But the instinct to hit up and down with the first coming of spring must be as old as life itself. All over the world once more, today, two thousands years ago, when spring was coming, men were beginning to put their legs to bear them went from Calais to Rome or from Warsaw to Constantinople. And they went at least as far as the hillside to gather flowers. And the old men strayed as far as the next village to see their sons two or three days. And only the old ones stayed home admiring the pot.

"What about you?"

Well ladies and gentlemen here is April again!

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

DON'T STAY IN REVERSE

How is your imagination working? Is it working for you or against you? A neurotic pattern? The great geniuses in the world have been people of imagination. In fact it is imagination which makes one a genius. Columbus, Evangelie in art, Shakespeare in literature, Edison in science, all people who grew out of the lush and wholesome imagination.

But a neurotic is a person whose imagination has, for some reason, got in reverse. He is in a rut and he cannot even get it into neutral let alone get it into forward and thus start moving ahead. The neurotic has plenty of imagination. No not after the model of genius. Not after the model of genius. Not after the model of genius.

C.B.C. ACTIVITIES

On Television he said the CBC is going ahead with the construction of production studios in Montreal and Toronto. These centres would provide TV programs for other centres.

As for, he said, private firms were not acted on the government suggestion that they band together to make joint applications for TV licences.

Other speakers in the debate included John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre); M. J. Coldwell, CCF Leader, Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC-McLeod) and W. Chester S. McClure (PC-Queens).

Mr. Diefenbaker said the government should allow private enterprise to move into the field of television. Under government policy television was becoming "a semi-monopoly" for the central provinces. The people on the prairies also wanted television.

He called for elimination of the $2.50 annual licence fee for radio receiving sets and reiterated a request that an independent body outside of the CBC be established to control all radio matters in Canada.

Mr. Diefenbaker, Mr. Coldwell and Mr. Hansell all complimented the CBC on the quality of news-casts.

Mr. Coldwell said he also wished to compliment the CBC on its Wednesday night programs. He listened to CBC programs whenever he could.

Deserves Credit

The CBC deserved credit for raising the standards of music appreciation in Canada and for the assistance and training it was giving to young Canadian artists.

He thought it was remarkable that the CBC, with its limited resources, had been able to retain the services of such outstanding actors as those who had taken part in CBC dramas.

Mr. Coldwell said he thought the Canadian Association of broadcasters was a "closely-knit combination." If the Combines Investigation Act was amended as it should be, the C.A.B. would come within its scope. He had copies of the Association's rate structure and all its rates, for stations of equal power, were standardized.

He said he wanted to criticize the CBC for allowing some private stations to increase their power to as much as 50,000 watts.

Mr. Hansell said the CBC officials had done a good job in many respects. They had kept the air clean in Canada. They had avoided sensationalism.

The Social Credit party had opposed the principle of the corporation being the creature of radio in Canada, while at the same time being the competitor of private stations.

RETIREMENT AGE

Senator A. W. Roebuck (L—Ontario) said the remark was unfortunate. Perhaps what Senator Haig had meant was that senators had achieved a certain security, and did not have to concern itself particularly about obtaining bread and butter.

If for a moment, added Senator Roebuck, he had any inclination to believe that senators were nothing more than "pensioners" he would resign at once and offer his place to some one else.

His thoughts, in part, were echoed by Senator T. A. Crerar (L—Manitoba) who said that if he could believe that "pensioner" was the proper term for the senators, then he would not sit in his seat for "five minutes."

The Senate had been created by the Fathers of Confederation. Indeed, there would not have been any Confederation if the Senate had not been written into the constitution.

He believed Senator Haig was as much concerned with upholding the dignity of the house as any other member and by describing the senators as "pensioners" he was ill-advised.

Senator Robertson made his retirement age disclosures in a statement replying to a question by Senator W. H. Dennis (PC—Nova Scotia) who had asked several days ago whether the chamber was satisfied with the news of Senator Haig.

Not Concerned With Headlines

Senator Robertson said he was not so concerned with the headlines the Senate was getting as the kind of work it gets done. He realized that much of the chamber's work was "tedious and unspectacular."

He was certain that if the chamber's work was of news value, "the press will be keen to note, report and print the facts, as developments of recent weeks have clearly demonstrated.

"Our major concern should be to do what we should do, and what we do, we do well."

A government source later gave some idea of how the retirement proposal may work. Members of the Senate and perhaps even members of the Commons, on appointment, would contribute to a pension fund.

On leaving the chamber, they would receive payments based on contributions, to which may be added additional payments from the federal treasury.

Changes May Be Made

As to the Senate's future, Senator Robertson said: "I have not the slightest doubt that, in due course, changes may be made in our constitution."

"For sending consideration may be given to a compulsory retiring age for future appointees to the Senate as well as to the superior courts of the provinces.

"This, and possibly other proposals may well be considered by the responsible authorities, but it is my considered opinion that the Senate of Canada will, in some form, continue indefinitely to be a part of our Parliament institutions."

Defending the work of the Senate, Senator Robertson said it had been constituted for the express purpose of protecting racial, religious or geographical minorities in the country against the possible action of a transient majority in the Commons.

Tribute to Good Sense

"It is a tribute to the good sense of the people of Canada which has characterized all governments that have contended that it has not been necessary for the Senate to exercise its power . . .

But should the occasion arise, Senator Robertson was certain that "any encroachment of the rights of the minorities in Canada, on the part of any government, would be firmly resisted in this chamber."

He believed that only a small minority was agitating for abolition of the Senate and that the Canadian people were in the future be left to a one-chamber parliament.

The Senate could safely conclude that no matter what reforms may be made there will be a second chamber of the Canadian parliament would remain intact.

Reasons Varied

With this worry cleared away, the Senate should then consider at least four types of services it should render.

The Chamber, for instance, should undertake a special inquiry each session into "some outstanding problem with which the Canadian people are faced."

This had been done in the past, in the case of income tax, immigration and human rights. The next inquiry probably should cover the future position of Canada's international trade.

An investigation should be made into governmental expenditures. This, so far, has been "far from sufficient."

"The reason for our shortcomings in this request have been stated," said Senator Robertson, "but have been partly due to the fact that the estimates were not tabled in parliament in the past as early as they have this year."

The Senate Divorce committee was doing good work, but it was "tedious and unspectacular work." Although not reported to the newspapers, the work was being done well and thoroughly and Senator Robertson believed "it will continue for a long time yet as long as that responsibility rests on our shoulders."

As to detailed study of legislation, this was being done by standing committees to a great extent and therefore did not attract as much attention as it should. The study were carried out by the main body of the Senate.

The standing committees, however, were doing good work.

"Whether or not the newspapers appreciate it — and say so — is another matter entirely."

ROYAL ASSENT

Approve Estimates

The legislature approved estimates of the Labor department during a morning sitting, and spent the afternoon on estimates of the Department of Education. Although Premier Frost had hoped to finish the estimates Friday, last day of the old fiscal year, the House did not get past the first item of education estimates. Estimates of five other departments remain to be considered, probably next Wednesday.

The fact that estimates weren't passed before the end of the fiscal year was not considered important. It has happened in previous years and when estimates for the past year are concerned a routine bill has been passed to straighten out the accounting procedure, permitting technical borrowing.

A. A. MacLeod, leader of the two-man Labor - Progressive group, will be first speaker Monday when the budget debate is resumed. Premier Frost hopes to complete the budget debate Monday, and to resume the agricultural debate on second reading of the new labor code Tuesday. The legislature is expected to prorogue on Thursday in time for the members to return home for Easter.

HOWE FORECASTS

Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) said Canadian trade should not be tied too closely to the U.S. The government might consider bilateral trade deals which would exchange Canadian farm products for British farm machinery.

Produces Same Surplus

J. A. Ross (PC—Souris) suggested the government keep in mind that the U.S. produced many of the same surplus commodities as did Canada, especially in the field of agriculture.

The debate, which will not be resumed until after the Easter recess, was on Mr. Howe's departmental estimates for 1950-51.

Mr. Howe told members of his recent trip to Europe and said he was confident the continent soon would have free convertibility of exchange, a logical first step towards global convertibility. Europe was becoming less and less dependent on Marshall Aid.

Howard Green (PC—Vancouver-Quadra) asked if the European convertibility would include the pound sterling.

"Yes," said Mr. Howe, "it is bound that it will."

"The pound people are not fully in agreement, but they seem to be coming into line. It is hardly workable without the pound. You might take the off-hand view that this will mean an European bloc that will affect trade with America adversely. I do not agree with that view."

Orders Substantial

Railroad equipment—The great increase in demand has been filled and the industry now is falling back more and more on domestic orders, which still are substantial.

Machine tools—This industry, too, is "fairly well dependent" on domestic demand, where there will be an active year.

Constructions—1950 will be the greatest building year the country has ever experienced, with increase in value over 1949 from $3,200,000,000 in 1949 to $3,600,000,000.

Value of gross national production—Expected to rise from $16,000,000,000 to $16,300,000,000.

Wages and domestic demand—Wages expected to be slightly higher and domestic demand expected to be good.

Dealing with question of trade with the United States and other countries, Mr. Howe said he expects Canadian exports to the U.S. to "raise substantially" and imports from that country to "fall."

He noted that exports to U.S. during the first two months of the year had gone up $38,000,000 while imports had declined $15,000,000, bettering the country's trade balance with the U.S. by $53,000,000.

Expects Trend to Continue

He expected that trend to continue for the remainder of the year. Reason for this expectation was an anticipated increase in exports of petroleum and iron ore.

He could not measure the probable decline of exports to the United Kingdom. In the first two months of the year, exports to the U.K. had slipped $20,000,000, due almost entirely to lower shipments of wheat which committed because Canada could not get available supplies in the eastern seaboard. These shipments now would go in April and May.

Canada expected to increase imports from the U.K. and to close "appreciably" the trading gap between the two countries.

The day of the seller's market were over. Every market now was a buyer's market. Canadian exports had to meet tough competition. But the Canadian price structure was such that Canada could meet that competition in the U.S. or in Europe.

Deals With Outlook

Mr. Howe dealt with the market outlook for various Canadian products and said his forecasts were based on the assumption that Canadians will show the same initiative and energy they had shown in the past, that relations between management and labor will continue to be good.

These were his forecasts for the year:

WHEAT—The Canadian product was preferred in every country of the world and he had "no particular worry" about being able to dispose of Canada's wheat crop.

LUMBER—The industry is booked to capacity and has sufficient orders to keep it running for the remainder of the year.

PULP—The pulp market was sot in 1949, but now has strengthened and the industry is at full capacity, with indications that it will continue at this pace.

MINING—Gold production is increasing with metal prices, particularly of lead, are falling. However, prices generally are still highly satisfactory and metal mining throughout 1950 will make the same contribution to export trade as it did in 1949.

FISH—Markets for fish are likely to absorb Canadian production.

SHIPBUILDING—This industry will be "down" in 1950. Demand for shipping is not as brisk as it was immediately after the war.

PROPAGANDA BUILD-UP TO MAY 28

In Berlin's Potsdammer platz, where the U. S., British and Soviet zones meet in Berlin, East German Communists have erected this wooden tank, which bears the inscription "made in U.S.A." Behind it is a caricature bust of West German Socialist leader Kurt Schumacher, who recently requested the western Allies, to employ tanks if necessary to protect west Berlin from the threatened march of 500,000 Communist youth on May 28. The poster describes Communist activities of the East German youth.

Something Nice For Lunch Boxes

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 30 (AP)— At this time of the year Mother has to go some to find new treats for those daily school lunches.

Sandwiches are ingvitable but tasty new fillngs can be devised which will tempt Junior look forward to his noon-day meal.

Sandwich Fillings

Vegetables — sliced tomatoes and cucumbers; shredded lettuce with chopped onion or cheese; grated carrot with orange juice or honey; chopped onion with peanut butter; celery and apple chopped To each of these add dressing and salt and pepper as needed.

Fruit— mashed banana with peanut butter.

Meat and fish— cooked meat finely chopped or sliced; fish flakes; fish with pickle relish syrup or salad dressing to moisten.

A thermos of hot soup also is a welcome addition to the school lunch. Soups may be completed by cookies for dessert.

Gingerbread also is a lead.

Ingredients: 2 1-4 cups flour; 1-4 cup wheat germ (if desired); 1-2 teaspoon salt; 1-2 teaspoon ginger; 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon; 2-4 teaspoon soda; one teaspoon salt; 3-5 cup molasses; four tablespoons softened fat; 1 1-2 cup buttermilk; 1-2 cup seedless raisins (may be omitted); one egg (if omitted use a little more liquid.)

Mix and sift dry ingredients, add raisins which have been washed and floured.

Make a hole in the middle of mixture, pour in molasses, melted fat and boiling water (beaten eggs is used). Mix quickly. Four into buttered pan of muffin-tins, bake in moderately slow oven about 30 minutes (individual servings 25 to 30 minutes).

Health department officials say that eggs are a valuable source of protein and iron and are rich in some of the vitamins, Medium size eggs often are a good buy. They contain almost as much food values as the higher priced large eggs.

In these days of high prices housewives should organize a food-buying schedule, accounting the lower cost, higher food value foods at the expense of the high cost, low food value items.

MARIO . . . In his distinctive feature about Food . . . What's Cooking?

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

Not many women face the task of preparing breakfast for lumberjacks each morning. If they did they'd have to compete with the genius of the Spokane, Washington, restaurant, which serves its lumberjack breakfast of a meal-a-ham steak, all the fried potatoes and all the toast you can eat and all the coffee you can drink for $1.46.

Most breakfast eaters are not only satisfied with a monotonous breakfast; they insist upon it. The new cramped minutes most people allow for the morning meal aren't conducive to experimentation. You want to see the same fried egg facing the same gray year in and year out.

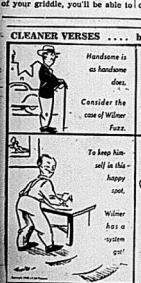
But Sunday mornings usually give birth to a hunger—and a new and sometimes substantial dishes. Corn griddle cakes with maple syrup will satisfy those who want more to eat and a little conservative variety.

Obey the implacable rule of always making griddle cakes on a griddle, not a frying pan. If you own the new little gadget which registers the thermometer of your griddle, you'll be able to judge when it reaches the hot temperature, 425 degrees, necessary for light griddle cakes.

The simple syrup or corn syrup or honey should be really hot to keep the griddle cakes from turning cold at the table.

CORN GRIDDLE CAKES

Sift, then measure, 2 cups all-purpose flour. Then sift together the flour, 3 tablespoons double-acting baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt and 3 tablespoon sugar.



Cut in 4 tablespoons of shortening, using 2 knives or pastry blender, until particles of shortening resemble coarse meal.

Combine 1 1-2 cup of milk and 1 slightly beaten egg yolk. Add milk and 1 cup whole kernel canned corn to dry ingredients, stirring only until combined.

Beat egg white until stiff. Fold egg white into batter, that is, bring mixing spoon down to center of bowl, over to sides and up. Repeat until white is completely folded in.

Drop batter onto hot greased griddle, allowing approximately 1-4 cup of batter for each pancake. Brown on both sides.

Hobby Fair at Q.A. School Sponsored by H.&S. Assoc. Attended by Large Number

As in the past, all roads led to Rome, so last evening, all corridors and halls of Queen Alexandra school pointed the way to the gala event in progress, the Hobby Fair, and not only did they advertise that fact, but they also demonstrated by gorgeously colored Easter eggs, posters and Peter Rabbits, that Easter was just around the corner. Large pots of artificial Easter lillies occupied the wide window ledges, and golden daffodils graced many a nook and corner.

In the large auditorium, enhanced by a backdrop of dark blue curtains, the stage had become a tropical Island, where huge palm leaves waved in the breezes, invited by the White Elephant table with its simulated grass skirts of narrow-textured fringes of dark blue streamers, along whose upper edge ran a series of white bull's eyepatches, while centering the table, was the large cardboard elephant, with a manner of articles, from pepper and salts to silver dessert vases, picture frames, jewellery, plants, records, and pretty china ornaments, these by another table groaned with its load of games, jig-saw puzzles, and books.

Down the side of the auditorium, decorated in mauve and yellow, was the candy table with Easter bunnies, and little baskets of yellow and purple, filled to over-flowing with all sorts of delicious confections, cream, chocolate drops, and boxes of an assortment of the various kinds.

Fine Snack Bar

Directly across the auditorium was the "Snack Bar", gorgeous in its yellow daffodil flowers, and drapes tied back with little twisted bands of mauve and yellow and between the drapes, a lovely valance bearing on its surface red-breasted robins whose nests were filled with colored eggs, an Easter motif prettily executed by Mrs. George Faulkner. Here, the hungry might relieve their pangs by daintily wrapped sandwiches, and "the cup that cheers."

Across the hall could be seen the children's hobbies. Ranged around the room on long, low tables were the exhibits, consisting of string hammocks, sewing cabinets, scrap books, woven table mats, four-engine aeroplanes, and the smaller moth plane, all showing the true style of the knife, sandpaper, and varnish. Among the many fine exhibits was that of the wood work by the Handcraft class, which demonstrated oval shaped trays with woven reed sides; splendidly made magazine racks; a sewing basket; book ends; smoking sets, and delicately executed wall plaques. There was also shelf shelves, plasticene modelling, dressed dolls, wooden doll trunks, realistic-looking soap swans. Many pictures in Easter colors hung around the walls. These were carefully done and showed the use of colours to best a medium.

Hobbies On Exhibition

In an adjoining room the parents' hobbies were on exhibition, demonstrating manufacture of rugs, crocheted table cloths, dress smocking and some beautifully tailored saw work. This showed a Chinese smoking cabinet, built in square shape with tiny doors on two sides, so very delicate one wonders at the patience needed in its execution. A lovely wall bracket depicting a Japanese tea garden, replete with carriages, and having intricate designs of birds, little figures, with fans, swans swimming on a placid lake

Fine Performance In Play Given by Tabernacle YPU

Last evening an especially fine portrayal of the three-act comedy drama, "The Closed Door" by the Tabernacle Young People was presented in the Sunday School room of the church, by the following cast: Grandma Emerson, Rosemary Hunter; John, her son, Don Charlton; Clara John's wife, Shirley Taylor; Martin, John's son, Ron Osmond; Beth, John's daughter, Grace Firth; Mary, the maid, Vivian CoCon; Neal, the chauffeur, Roger Cornell; Mrs. Allen, the cook, Pat Kellett; Lita Hargrave, a reporter, Dorothy Wylie; and Andrew Moore, the state political boss, John Irwin.

The curtain rose, scene enterd around the person of Grandma Emerson, the head of the family, both while living and after death, bringing them through many trying circumstances to the happy conclusion where the villain, Andrew Moore fades from the picture, and John gives up his governorship to become a co-partner with his son Martin in the running of the small but powerful newspaper. The various parts were well done, with Miss Rosemary Hunter being outstanding as Grandma, Don Charlton as John, Ron Ormond as Martin, and John Irwin as Andrew Moore.

Special mention should be accorded regarding the fine lighting effects by Roger Cornell, which added so much to the scenic beauty, the charming living room, assembled by Leo Bradley.

Educating Workers in Safety Rules Best Insurance Against Accidents In Industry States Engineer

Trenton—(Special)— Approximately sixty, plant managers and foremen, attended the meeting of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, held at the Dutch Mill Inn, Thursday night. The entire meeting, which was sponsored by the Belleville-Trenton section of Central Ontario Division of the I.A.P.A., was arranged to convey the importance of accident prevention throughout the local industries.

Mr. H. J. Rivest of Northern Electric, Belleville, acted as chairman in the absence of A. W. Thompson who was unable to attend, due to illness and introduced the speaker Mr. T. A. Lister, Safety Engineer for the Canadian General Electric in Peterborough.

Two Sides To Work

In his speech entitled "Making It Work". Mr. Lister pointed out that there were two sides to accident prevention work, the humanitarian side and the economic side. "When an accident occurs management loses," said Mr. Lister, "not only in dollars. The workman loses, sometimes even his life. Nobody gains. Accidents are just losses all the way down the line. It makes no difference whether your firm is large or small, you cannot afford to have accidents."

Speaking on the economical side of accidents, Mr. Lister said that in 1949, according to a report issued by the I.A.P.A., the direct cost of accidents amounted to a slightly over $19,023,350. This sum was paid out by the Compensation Board, and Mr. Lister added that it did not give a true picture of the losses sustained through accidents.

It has been computed that there is also an indirect loss to industry through accidents in a ratio of 4 to 1 so that, in addition to the figures given out by the Compensation Board, industry and also the consumer has to foot a bill for $76,000,000 in indirect costs, making a total of an estimated $95,000,000 for accidents which occurred in Ontario during 1949.

High Cost of Accidents

"Everyone today is bewailing the high cost of living," said Mr. Lister, "and without a doubt the tremendous increase in accident costs during the past two years has played a part in speeding the cost of the articles we buy because accident cost is merely passed on to a degree, by the industries in which the accident occurs." "In calculating accident cost we can not overlook the price paid by an injured workman. Any man who is temporarily disabled by an industrial accident is paid 75 per cent of his wages during the period in which he is unable to work. In other words, he loses one week's pay in four. Very few workmen today can afford such a loss.

"To more serious accidents such as the loss of an eye or an arm or a leg, a pension is paid. But what sum of money can compensate a man for such a loss? Who amongst us here tonight would sell his two good eyes, arms or legs for $1,666 a year for life? No man in his right senses."

Mr. Lister pointed out that experience in the past has shown accidents could not be eliminated by severe penalties to workmen who violate safety rules. Neither could they be stopped by merely supplying safety equipment and telling the workmen to wear and use it. "One of the first changes I would suggest," said Mr. Lister, "is that you no longer try to run your safety program as a one man show."

Appoint Good Safety Men

"You have, amongst you workmen, many who can, with a little selling, become hard working, sincere, safety representatives, and I would urge you to make use of them. The foreman of today is a busy man. Much too busy to expect to be able to operate a full safety program by himself and so if he requires help who should be more able to help him than the men of his own department."

Mr. Lister said that the misuse of goggles and guards was a continual headache to the safety man in every plant. As a remedy for this, he suggested the forming of a safety committee, made up of the workers, for the purpose of safety checking Mr. Lister was of the opinion that there was no quicker way to educate a group than to place them on a committee and let them help in working on the safety program in that particular plant.

Interest the Workers

In closing Mr. Lister said "the key to the whole situation is education-safety education, and the better way of educating our workers can be found than by giving them a job to do on safety and they will with your help, make the safety program work."

Mr. Grenville C. Riley thanked the speaker for his address. Representing the Benedict-Proctor, Mr. Riley was responsible for the arranging of the meeting and the efficient way in which the program was conducted.

It is felt that a series of these meetings held throughout Ontario will help prevent accidents which could possibly be prevented.

Opposition Moves To Have Education Com. Abolished

Toronto, April 1. (CP)—The brisket debate of the Ontario Legislature's present sitting Friday saw the C.C.F. opposition make a move which would in effect abolish the royal commission on education, the commission, appointed in 1945, has yet to submit its main report.

The motion, put forward by C. H. Millard (CCF-York West), would reduce from $50,000 to $1 the amount set out in the estimates to cover the commission's expenses this year. At adjournment the motion was still being debated.

Mr. Frost said the motion amounted to telling the commission members: "Here's your hat. Get out of here."

C.C.F. Leader E. B. Jolliffe said the impression was growing "and I think with reason, that if this commission cannot report now it has no value."

Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver said what the commission did in the first three years after it was appointed now would be "obsolete".

"The whole situation in relation to this commission and its inability to report is becoming a farce," he added.

Could Resign

Mr. Frost said that if the commission was dissatisfied with the attitude of the government it would resign.

Mr. Jolliffe said removal of the commission's appropriation would be an incentive for it to bring in a report.

The debate became heated and T. L. Patrick (PC—Middlesex North), chairman of the committee of Supply, several times ordered members to sit down.

As Mr. Porter repeatedly interrupted Mr. Millard, Mr. Jolliffe said that if the cabinet ministers would be heckled during their speeches if the Education Minister did not allow Mr. Millard to finish. As Mr. Porter continued to speak, C.C.F. members kept up a continuous desk thumping that drowned out his words.

Don't Need to Implement

Premier Frost earlier in the debate told the legislature the government does not feel obliged to implement any part of the commission's report.

P.C. IN FEDERAL BY-ELECTION

George Hees is the Progressive Conservative candidate in the May 15 Toronto Broadview federal election. The voting was made necessary by the death of T. L. Church, a Progressive Conservative. Opposing Mr. Hees in the balloting are Ruth Radford, Liberal nominee, and Prof. Geo. Grube, C.C.F. candidate. — (CP Photo.)

The government was hopeful the report would be broad enough to set a course "for generations to come", Mr. Frost said. It was not, however, "abdicating our responsibility or our right to govern." The government itself would decide what would be done about implementing the report.

"Don't think for one moment that we are going to stand still and wait for the report of this commission," the premier added.

Mr. Millard said the government had made sweeping changes in organization of schools, the system of examinations, teacher supply and "the whole question of construction and maintenance of schools" without reference to the commission which was studying these problems.

Education Minister Porter said: "That's right".

Mr. Millard: "You are abandoning the royal commission's recommendations in this matter?"

Mr. Porter: "Conceded."

FRANKFORD

...louses Flooded ...s Cold Creek ...oes on Rampage

Frankford.— Ordinarily, Cold Creek is a shallow little stream that just babbles on its way without disturbing anything or anybody. However, once a year, it goes on a real rampage, and this year has been no exception. An ice jam back of Canadian Canners completely blocked the course of the creek on Tuesday afternoon, diverting the swollen waters over Murray Street, and down across the fair grounds. A dozen houses along Murray Street were flooded out as water ran into one door and out the other.

The flood extended down to South Trent Street and Highway 33, completely surrounding several places of business and private dwellings.

Chases Garage, Embury's La Fontaine Press and Wannamaker's Garage were all victimized by the rising waters. Andy Clements was forced to vacate his home on South Trent Street, as water came up into his living room. Harry Bowman's dwelling was completely surrounded by water, as were several others.

Crossed Highway

The diverted waterway crossed Highway 33 in two places almost a hundred feet wide, at a depth of over two feet, and flowing very swiftly. Cars crossing the two raging streams did so with some difficulty. Had a car been unfortunate enough to stall in the middle of one of the streams, it would have been swept across the road and over the river bank in a matter of minutes, as the force of the current was sufficient to sway a car considerably.

Employees of the Bata Shoe Company were advised over the company public address system to cross at Glen Miller, and come up to Frankford on the East side of the river.

Canners Lose Wood

The Canadian Canners Factory lost a great deal of valuable lumber and wood supplies as the waters swirled across the factory yard, and rose into their store-room.

It was well along in the evening before the water level was lowered as the ice jamb in the creek was dynamited. Frankford-ites declare that this is the highest they have ever seen the water in the south part of the town, although the centre of Frankford has been subject of much higher water on at least two occasions as the Trent River overflowed its banks.

Oscar Peterson Billed as No. 1 Canadian Pianist Plays in NY

BY FAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, April 1—(CP)—The applause of jive-conscious patrons rang through bop city the last few days in appreciation of the playing of Oscar Peterson, billed as Canada's No. 1 pianist.

The Montreal-born Negro has just completes a two-week engagement at this night spot on Broadway.

Peterson, who says his father started teaching him to play the piano when he was only five, didn't rely exclusively on jazz to win the customers' plaudits.

"I've experimented with some semi-classical compositions of my own and two of them, 'Concerto for Tri' and 'Bolero in Black,' turned out to be the most popular numbers," he said in an interview.

A mountain of a man—he stands 6 feet 1½ inches and weighs 285 pounds — Peterson discussed his musical career while he ate an appropriately hunky steak.

Mutical Taste

"I like both classical and jazz music; one serves as a remedy or balance for the other. "After the year of modern music, it's nice to go back and hear classical works."

At Bop City, where he was playing his first engagement in the United States, he headed a trio including two American musicians, Major Holley on base and Charles Smith on drums. In Canada, he leads a three-man aggregation, including Austin Roberts on base and Clarence Jones on drums.

Peterson came to New York from a six-week engagement in Toronto and has made concert tours across Canada.

He is married and has two small daughters, Lynn, aged 2 and Sharon, who will be a year old in a few weeks.

Top Choices

Asked to pick his choices as to the top players in the "Bop" category, he named Dizzy Gillespie and Miss Davis on trumpet; Charlie Parker on alto-saxophone; Hank Jones on piano; Ray Brown on base and Max Roach on drums.

As for "corny" music, his selections were the George Shearing quintet, the King Cole trio, and Claude Thornhill "for big sands."

Parliament At a Glance

(By The Canadian Press)

Trade Minister Howe said he foresees an increase in exports to the United States in 1950, but a drop to other countries.

Members debated a motion to establish a permanent committee to review CBC operations.

Senator J. T. Haig, Progressive Conservative leader, described senators as the "highest paid pensioners in Canada."

Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader, predicted reforms will be made in the upper chamber.

Monday:

The Commons will consider private members' legislation. The Senate will not sit.

Mayor Badanai Against Secession From Ontario

Fort William, April 1 (CP) — Mayor Hubert Badanai said Friday he is "definitely against" secession from Ontario. He said he feels the move is impossible.

"We don't need another province any more than a dog needs two tails. We have already too many provinces in Canada."

He hastened to explain, however, that he didn't believe this part of the province was receiving "its just due."

"The proposal . . just hasn't any sense at all. There is not enough population. It would settle a terrific burden on the people here," he said.

Formation of a new province to take in Northern Ontario was advocated at a public meeting by ex-alderman Hubert Limbrick.

The Fort William Mayor said "only a few politicians" would gain by the move. The chance of a threat of secession inducing residents of Eastern Ontario to take greater notice of the northwest was slight.

Mayor Badanai said he favors union with Manitoba, however. The area "would have received more consideration" if it had been part of Manitoba originally. The proposal suggested such a merger as an alternative to secession.

"We probably would have been the manufacturing centre of Manitoba," he said.

LAY PLANS FOR MEETING

Toronto, April 1. (CP)—Two committees of the Ontario Liberal Association will meet today to lay plans for a leadership convention, possibly in May. The leadership committee will convene to consider a list of possible candidates for the position left vacant by the resignation of Farquhar Oliver last May.

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

The fancy bids of Chuck A. Bluff are never true. Not any. He lumps to show me tricks enough. But never has that many.

There came a pair of partnership hands like these:

SOUTH	NORTH
♠K Q J 5	♠A 5
♥J 8 6 4	♥K 5 3
♦A 9 3	♦10 8 6 2
♣A K	♣J 8 4

The bids went like this:

South	North
1 S	2 H
4 H	4 NT
6 H	Pass

The contract went down one trick with the loss of a trump and a diamond. The pair thought they got a bad break. Except that I insist that north did not have enough for a slam try.

When an expert pair is this close to a slam they may like to gamble for it. If they acknowledge it is a gamble, the argument is settled. Then it is not a question of rule bids.

But for south to place the blame on north is something else again. The north slam probe was based on what south promised with the second round jump. Was this jump justified?

An opening bidder promises two tricks. A responder shows three. A jumper shows tricks enough for game. It takes ten tricks for game in a major suit. Did south see ten tricks?

The south hand has a count of six. They are five high cards (aces kings, queens) and a shortcard in clubs. If north shows only three, south does not see a total of ten tricks in the pair.

Therefore, the south jump misinformed north. It promised seven tricks in a hand that held only six. For this reason, if there was any criticism it is against the south jump to four hearts.

Absalap Gogoot would yell his head off saying bridge is not as accurate as this. Or as scientific. Some live and never learn.

SLIGHT RECESSION

Toronto, April 1 (CP)— Seven-year-old Billy Broderick, a leukemia patient at the Hospital for Sick Children, made international news recently when doctors treated his condition with the new drug, acth. Brought back from Mount Albert, Ont., for a periodic checkup, he may be in for another treatment with the drug. A slight recession in previous progress is suspected.

The Rev. Gordon A. Sisco, M.A., D.D. secretary of the General Council of the United Church of Canada, who has been nominated for the office of Moderator of the United Church. Dr. Sisco has just returned from Geneva, Switzerland, where he attended the executive meeting of the World Council of Churches. GASOLINE UP

Stories From The Bible

Elijah

Editor's Note: This is the last of a series of studies from the Old Testament. The next condensed from addresses by Hoston Harte for the new book, "In Jars." Illustrations by Guy Rowe is also from the book.

And Ahab reigned over Israel: and he served Baal, and did more to promote the Lord to anger than all the kings of Israel before him.

And Elijah said unto Ahab, As the God of Israel liveth, before whom I stand, there shall not be rain these years, but according to my word. And word of the Lord came unto him, saying, Get thee hence, and hide thyself by the brook Cherith that is before Jordan. And it shall be, that thou shalt drink of the brook; and I have commanded the ravens to feed thee there. So he went, and he dwelt by the brook Cherith. And the ravens brought him bread and flesh, and he drank of the brook. And after a while the brook dried up, because there had been no rain.

And the word of the Lord came unto him saying, Get thee to Zarephath: I have commanded a widow woman there to sustain thee. And when he came to the gate of the city, the woman was there gathering sticks; and he said, Bring me a morsel of bread. And she said, I have but an handful of meal, and a little oil; and I am gathering sticks that I may dress it for me and for my son, that we may eat it and die. And Elijah said, The meal shall not waste, neither shall the oil fail, until the day that the Lord sendeth rain. And she did according to the saying of Elijah: and she, and he, and her house, did eat many days.

And the son of the woman fell sick: and his sickness was so sore there was no breath left in him. And Elijah took him out of her bosom, and laid him upon his bed. And he cried, O Lord, let this child's soul come into him again. And the Lord heard the voice of Elijah; and the soul of the child came into him again and he revived. And the woman said to Elijah, Now I know that thou art a man of God and that the word of the Lord in thy mouth is truth.

And after many days the word of the Lord came to Elijah, saying, Go, shew thyself unto Ahab; and I will send rain upon the earth. And when Ahab saw Elijah, Ahab said unto him, Art thou he that troubleth Israel And he answered, I have not troubled Israel, but thou and thy house, in that ye have forsaken the commandments of the Lord. Now therefore send, and gather to me unto mount Carmel the prophets of Baal.

So Ahab gathered the prophets unto mount Carmel. And Elijah said unto the people, How long halt ye between two opinions? if the Lord be God, follow Him: but if Baal, then follow him. And the people answered him not a word.

Then said Elijah, I only remain a prophet of the Lord; but Baal's prophets are four hundred and fifty men. Therefore give us two bullocks; and let them choose one bullock, and cut it in pieces, and lay it on the wood, and put no fire under: and I will dress the other bullock, and lay it on the wood, and put no fire under: and call ye on the name of your gods, and I will call on the name of the Lord: and the God that answereth by fire, let him be God.

And the prophet of Baal took the bullock, and dressed it, and called on the name of Baal from morning until noon. But there was no voice that answered. And Elijah mocked them, and said, Cry aloud: for he is a god; either he is talking, or he is on a journey or he sleepeth and must be awaked. And they cried aloud, and cut themselves, till the blood gushed out upon them. And there was neither voice, nor any that regarded.

And Elijah said unto the people, come near unto me. And he repaired the altar of the Lord that was broken down, and put the wood in order, and cut the bullock in pieces, and laid him on the wood. And at the time of the evening sacrifice, Elijah said, Lord God of Abraham, let it be known this day that Thou are God in Israel, and that I have done all these things at Thy word. Then the fire of the Lord fell, and consumed the sacrifice. And the people fell on their faces, and said The Lord, He is the God; the Lord He is the God. And Elijah said unto them, Take the prophets of Baal. And Elijah brought them down to the brook Kishon, and slew them there.

And Elijah went to the top of Carmel, and cast himself upon the earth, and said to his servant, Go look toward the sea. And he looked and said, There is nothing. And he said, Go again seven times. And at the seventh time he said, Behold there ariseth a little cloud out of the sea, like a man's hand. And he said, Go up, say unto Ahab, Prepare the chariot, and get thee down, that the rain stop thee not. And in the meanwhile the heaven was black with clouds, and there was a great rain. And Ahab rode to Jezreel. And the hand of the Lord was on Elijah, and he ran before Ahab to the entrance of Jezreel.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Tonight the scene of hockey conflict changes. The Battle of the Stanley Cup gladiators switches from the Detroit amphitheatre to the Maple Leaf Gardens. After what happened in the first two games of the blood, sweat and jeers series, Coach Dan Kaese can expect almost anything to transpire when the caste in this third act of the slug-'em-and-bleed-'em drama will be the same, but the audience out front will have changed, but plenty.

* * *

The Leafs will have the moral advantage of the home-towld crowd and what a reception they'll get, especially Captain Teeder Kennedy the outstanding figure of the series thus far. The Leaf's captain along with injured Gordie Howe of the Redwings have been the spotlight actors in this turbulent tertrif frame-busting drama, and tonight's act may furnish additional color to the already highly-tinted series. Over forty penalties have been handed out to the teams in two games, and both squads are well on the way to establish spother National Hockey League playoff record.

* * *

The swashbuckling, shin-busting, frame-racking, nerve-shaking type of hocker-handed out thus far by the Leafs and the Wings, has given the game plenty of publicity, and a certain type of fans have revelled in the gore-spilling, fist-swinging action. But while hockey like any sport where physical contact is necessary, is a rugged game, there are limits. After all, there are plenty of brawns in the series of battle they like the old adage of fisticuffs spicing their hockey, are not exactly fond of armed shinny garnished with attempted mayhem, medieval tactics of bludgeoning the opposition into submission.

* * *

It seems that while President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League, after investigating the circumstances surrounding the unfortunate injury to Howe incident are neither forgetting nor forgiving and anything short of deprivation of limbs, body etc. that happens to any Leaf, with emphasis on Teeder Kennedy, would simply balance the wheels of justice.

* * *

However, in any case it is not hockey, it is not the type that fans want, which by dint of seasonal ability to make the playoff spots, should dish up to those who brough the medium of the box office, furnish the wherewithall for their salaries and the money. We can readily understand a player or in any sport, after being struck accidentally or deliberately, with the head of conflict turn on the fiogpen, usually after a blow or two has been struck, the participants cool off and the incident is forgotten. But this carrying a grudge through a game, days, with bench-flailes, fisticuffs in the air and declaring open warfare on all and sundry who wear the uniform of the opposition, is taking matters too far.

* * *

In the second game in the series, when the eyes of the hockey world were centred on Teeder Kennedy, in particular and the Detroit team in general, all appeared to be serene, that is for 39 minutes. Then it started. The pent-up feelings burst their bonds, and the "retribution" action started. You know how it ended! It smeared a black, difficult mark on hockey, for the Wings had the game safely tucked away behind a 3-goal lead. Naturally, the Leafs were not taking anything lying down, unless forced to. No red-blooded team would do that.

* * *

In any event, the Kennedy-Howe affair in a season that has probably produced more "publicity" incidents than any other, has resulted in a far greater use of printer's ink on sports and front pages, than any other athletic occurrence of the year. And if Detroit Olympia and Maple Leaf Gardens had twice the customer capacity, the pasteboards would still be at a premium. To paraphrase a famous statement, never in the history of hockey conflict has a few done so much to attract the attention of so many. What tonight has in store for the faithful is bit difficult to conjecture. As we said before the Leafs are in their backyard which represents, or should represent one strike on Detroit. Whether the Red Wing McCoys will insist on carrying the feud to the Toronto Hatfields or play the style of hockey Stanley Cup playoffs should produce, remains to be seen.

Our opinion is that both teams will skate out three to night and play hockey. The game is an important one for the series is tied at one victory each. But, if the Howe incident still rankles in the Red Wing bosoms, and they insist on a continuance of the hockey chop suey, there's not the slightest doubt they will be accommodated. Let's hope it is not that way.

Art. Wright, local baseball hurler, leaves for Hamilton next month where he will try out with the Hamilton Cardinals of the Pony Baseball League . . . Joe Nolan shoves off for Peterborough April 15th where he will play lacrosse this summer for "Red" Creighton's seniors, and possibly hockey next winter in a "Petes" uniform . . . XYZ—Individual teams cannot affiliate with the Ontario Amateur Softball Association, and we doubt if the OASA will make any special dispensations. However you may try. Write Secretary Frank Fowler, 676 Maple Avenue, Hamilton, Ont. . . . To Jack Ogilvy, Wellington, Ont.—Don't give the old unk any arguments, bub. In the good old days over there hockey players chewed raw cobblers fresh from the Gore, swished a beaker or two of ancient apple juice, fresh from ye oldy barrel, were department store catalogues for shin - pads, and shovelled the snow off the ice back of Homer Stewart's best-building emporium, they had hockey teams, what is. But you not so young squirts, went 'em one better . . . You did win a title, they tell me . . . in the old days, the best old "Beef", "Flathead", "Grapple", "Dutch", the "Unk", "Mickey" (Sieen, that is), and the rest of the grey - thatchers could do, was be a "bridesmaid". They were never a "bride" as far as a title was concerned . . . However we'll go into further detail on that in Monday's column . . .

Science vs Nature

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

(Noted sportsman, author and creator of Solunar Tables)

On February 2nd of each year, members of the Slumbering Lodge of Quarryville, Pennsylvania, observe their traditional annual ritual. Donning ancient top-hats or sombreros and armed with staffs, the group spreads out over nearby fields searching for groundhog dens.

The first member to sight a groundhog announces his find with a loud yell. Then the group gathers for the report of their leader, the Hibernating Governor From the observance of Mr. Groundhog's actions, he then issues his formal predictions of the state of the weather for the next six weeks.

The theory, as you know, is this: if Mr. Groundhog sees his shadow he will retire to his den for another six weeks of sleep. If the day be cloudy, so that he casts no shadow, then spring is just around the corner.

Ancient Roman Tradition

The tradition of Groundhog Day originated with the ancient Romans. Later, the date February 2nd was observed by the Roman Catholic Church as Candlemas Day.

The early Scots had a rhyme that went: "If Candlemas is fair and clear, there'll be two winters in the year." Many Europeans forecast the length of the winter by the behavior of the hedgehog on Candlemas Day.

Scientists, of course take no stock whatever in Groundhog Day. The idea that weather for six weeks to come can be forecast by observing the behavior of an animal simply does not hold water. They reject animal behavior as folk lore and legend, with no place in the formation of weather predictions.

Wildlife Often Forecasts

It seems to be part and parcel of human nature that we scan all things which we do not understand. Scientists may try to discredit the warnings of the creatures of the wild, but the farmer the fisherman, and the woodsman have learned that fish, birds, insects, reptiles and animals are correct in their forecasts more often than not.

Commercial fishermen off Nova Scotia have learned that when seals leap clear of the water, evidently in play, they can expect storms in the near future. The seals have been right in their predictions too often to ignore their warnings.

Anyone residing along the north Atlantic seaboard can tell you that when the seagulls fly far inland you can expect foul weather. Not squalls or showers but heavy weather of serious proportions. Smallboat wouldn't dream of ignoring the warnings of the seagulls.

Farmers have all manner of beliefs to help them foretell the weather—morning dew on the grass, mist in the notch of a mountain, the color of a sunset or a sunrise, the behavior of birds and animals, all carry their messages.

Fish, too, will tell you, well in advance when to prepare for storms. Their predictions often will be days ahead of recognized methods.

Reason For Behavior

In the summer of 1936 the trout and bass of central Pennsylvania declared a bumper year. There was no evident reason for their behavior. Temperatures, barometric readings and trends, wind directions and velocities all were favorable.

From what we knew of condition analysis the fishing should have been good. Despite all this not a single fish would respond to our best efforts.

Four days later, two and one-half days before the weather men told us of it, we experienced one of the worst storms that has hit that area in fifty years. The floods did untold damage to life and property. Those who had heeded nature's warnings at least had time to make what preparations they could.

Quite a few scientists who, to judge from their writings, certainly are not woodsmen have done their best to discredit the Solunar Theory. Every now and then one of them launches a fresh attack on the unreliability of the Solunar Tables.

Those old wives' tales, they call them, and they label me at a nature faker who should be exposed and suppressed. There is no scientific basis for the Solunar Tables, they say, therefore, they are of no value and at best a matter of mere guesswork.

Offsetting these few critics, whose numbers, I am happy to say, seem to be dwindling, are thousands of hunters and fishermen who have found them a sure thing track of the daily Solunar Periods pay rich dividends in sport.

The Solunar Theory is not a natural law, say the scientists. A natural law operates continuously day after day, year after year. The Solunar Tables, they tell you, do not.

Respond To Promptings

Again they are wrong. A trained observer, thoroughly versed in the workings of the Solunar Theory, can show you quite readily that wildlife responds to the promptings of a Solunar Period always, not just once in a while.

To be sure, this response varies in intensity, depending upon conditions, but it is there if you know where and how to look for it.

Any farmer or outdoorsman will tell you that a flock of migrating birds knows far more about what is to expect from the weather than does the weather man who gives you the daily forecasts.

As a matter, I know several farmers, older men with the gift of keen observation, who are seldom wrong in their prognostications. They base their judgments entirely on what nature tells them and their accuracy is often incredible. Show me the professional weather man who has the same record.

Of course the woodchuck sometimes is wrong in foretelling the length of a winter. He sees his shadow and proceeds to hand out information which proves to be incorrect. Frankly, I have yet to see the scientists who knows all the answers.

Sports Shorts From Britain

London — (CP) — Husky Tommy Jamieson of Toronto, starring this season on Brighton Tiger's defence, is the 1950 rookie of the year in British hockey.

The 21-year-old six-footer polled 3,365 votes from Ice Hockey World readers in a contest conducted by a local weekly.

Runner-up was defenceman Milt Schmidt of Kindersley, Sask., and Harringay Racers who drew 2,238 votes.

Next in line came winger Louis Preste of Sudbury, Ont., and Wembley Monarchs, Keith Woodall of Elmira Ont., Streatham goalie; Ted Garnette, Winnipeg winger of Nottingham Panthers; Ken Dargeval, Fort William, Ont. goalie for Earls Court Rangers; Toronto winger Bill Armstrong, Ayr Amber Ranger; Arna Mook, Winnipeg centre playing for the Panthers; Larry Dunville, Pass Lake, Ont., defenceman who plays for Rangers; and Mike Yashkowski, Winnipeg, who patrols right wing for Streatham.

Bert Mobley, Derby County and England right back, and Frank Brett, youthful Stoke City inside forward, have been selected by the Football Association to join the soccer team which will tour Canada this summer.

A man who wears a special foot played rugger for Pontypool Park against England this season. He was 30-year-old fly half Tom Gray who had part of his right foot shot off during Normandy landings about D-Day.

He no longer could run or kick. But the attachment of a special metal cleat and boot made him one of the finest kickers in British rugger.

It is unusual for a rugger player to win his international cap after he is 30. None worked harder for it than Gray.

The film reviews the British heavyweight boxing champion's leading battles showing Bruce in action against Freddie Mills, Joe Baksi, Lee Savold and Len Harvey.

The Doncaster boy's pet punches are shown by slow motion and stopped action photography. He is the similarity betweeg the right-hand clouts that knocked out Mills and Oma.

Toronto, April 1 (CP)—A stern warning of drastic action to prevent violence which may bring disrepute to the game of hockey hung over Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs today.

The warning came from President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League as the scene of action in the deadlocked best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final between the two teams swung to Toronto for the third game tonight.

In a 400-word statement issued Friday night, Mr. Campbell proposed two steps to stop players from taking matters into their own hands and from fueling over "real and imaginary" grievances after the first two games of the series at Detroit where the Leafs won the opener 5-0 and the Wings the second 3-1:

1. "... I have decided that the standby referees assigned to tonight's game will act as a linesman instead of watching from the stands. In this way he will be immediately available on the ice for consultation by the referee-in-charge, and under the rules he will have full authority to act on the strength of any observations made by the linesman."

2. "I have given instructions to the referee that any penalized player who fails to proceed promptly to the penalty box when ordered will receive an additional misconduct penalty regardless of whether he is the captain or alternate captain."

Calls Conference

The president called a conference for today of officials and the two teams — Tommy Ivan, coach of the Red Wings and Clarence (Hap) Day of the Maple Leafs — at which possible misunderstandings will be cleared up.

His statement said he would warn: "If these steps do not produce the desired results, more drastic action will be taken to ensure that real hockey will be played for the remainder of this series"

Mr. Campbell said he did not want to amplify his statement. However, he did make it clear that the standby referee — one usually sits in the stands, in Stanley Cup playoffs in case he is needed—will act solely in the capacity of a linesman on the ice. But the referee-in-charge's decision to summon his choice will be able to consult the linesman when he deems it necessary.

The statement gave a hint of the form of punishment for players who fail to heed the warning: "I have instructed the officials that any recurrence of these incidents is to be dealt with to the full extent provided for in the rules, and it will be followed up by very substantial fines and suspensions if necessary."

In the series opener, the Wings lost star right winger Gordon Howe for the balance of the season when he hit the boards and received a broken nose and other injuries. There were claims that centre Ted Kennedy of the Leafs was responsible although Mr. Campbell at a press conference in Detroit said that no Toronto player was to blame.

Wild Donnybrook

In the second game, a wild donnybrook broke out near the end of the second period and there was another fight in the third. The president took note of this by saying that "the stick swinging which took place in Thursday night's game in particular, has no place in the game at any time."

The two teams spent the night quietly far from the scene of tonight's action. The Red Wings were in Hamilton where they will be quartered until after the fourth game of the series in Toronto next Tuesday night. The Leafs were at their pre-season training headquarters at St. Catharines where held a brief skating workout Friday. Both teams will come to Toronto just before game time.

Kennedy, who injured his leg when he crashed into his own goal post in the opener, was excused from the Leaf workout but is expected to play. It is likely, too, that defenceman Jimmy Thomson will be back in action. He was unable to finish Thursday night's game in Detroit after he received a five stitch wound when hit over the head by Detroit defenceman Leo Reise.

At Hamilton, Ivan did not list Reise among the probables but although he had a four-stitch gash in his head as the outcome of the fight, Reise, a rugged competitor, on the injured list, is likely to play.

No Intentional Attack

Ivan also took note of Toronto newspaper stories which said the Red Wings deliberately went after Kennedy in the second game. "There was no intentional attack on the part of the Detroit players," he said. "I pleaded with my players before the game to cut the puck at necessary and avoid penalties." The Toronto accounts said Kennedy was attacked as a result of the fight and the deliberating Kennedy responsible for the Howe injury.

Probable starting lineups tonight:

Detroit: Goal, Lumley; defence Kelly, Stewart; centre, Abel; wings, Carveth, Lindsay.

Montgomery Girls Have Game Lead Over Montreal

(By the Canadian Press)

Toronto - Montgomery Maids came from behind in the last half to defeat Montreal Olympics 42-38 at Toronto Friday night in the first game of their Eastern Canada Senior Women's Basketball Final. The Olympics, from the Point St. Charles Athletic association, had led 20-18 at the halfway mark. The second game will be played in Toronto tonight.

After half time Toronto gained a lead that never was lower lost. The maids finished the third with a score of 30-28 then pooled away in the last quarter to outscore Montreal 14-5.

Duncan Stewart MacCorquodale, Montreal Irish-English and Scottish soccer circles before coming to Canada, died at Kingston Friday. From 1897 to 1902 he played with some of the first division teams. He was captain of the Port Glasgow Athletic Club team in 1901 when it captured the Scottish Junior Association trophy. A resident of Kingston since 1903, he was a former member of the Canadian Shipbuilding and Engineering company prior to retirement in 1949.

George Fazio led Ed Furgol by threestrokes Friday at the half way mark in the $10,000 Canadian Open opening April 4. There has been too much revolving attacks on referees, and rioting in the past, said the general.

X-rays disclosed Friday that Ralph Kiner, Pittsburgh Pirate slugger, is suffering from a severe wrist sprain and may not be ready to play opening day. Kiner sprained his right wrist in a collision at first base during an exhibition game March 14.

Hal Newhouser may learn tomorrow whether or not he will be pitching arm. Detroit Tigers' southpaw will undergo a series of x-rays of his upper arm and shoulder. Pain which has permitted Newhouser to pitch only two innings in spring exhibition games is centred in his left shoulder.

Zipping through a snowstorm, Colin Stewart of Dartmouth covered the 2,200-yard course from Norway Mountain at Dillon, Colo., in two minutes, 9.5 seconds Friday to win the downhill race opening the United States National College ski tournament.

Marjorie Jackson, an 18-year-old Australian, broke the 100 yards in 10.7 seconds Thursday night to equal the women's world mark she shared with Fanny Blankers Koen of Holland by one-tenth of a second.

John Marshall, a sleek package of swimming dynamite from Australia, knocked off two world records in 1 single race Friday night at New Haven, Conn., in the world's 220-yard free stroke in the United States A. A. U. championships for his second individual record. Marshall ripped through the 200-metre free style in 2:04.6 and the 220-yard in 2:03.5, both faster than anyone ever swam the distances before. Joe Verdeur of Philadelphia hovered another world standard when he was timed in 2:38.5 for the 200-metre breast stroke.

The Professional Golfer's Association of the United States said Friday night of Chicago that much of its headline tournament stars will be missing from the opening ovation and form their own group. The player revolt, apparently aimed against P.G.A. operation of tournaments, has been boiling for months. Leaders are Skinker pix Open last January. Tom Crane, P.G.A. executive - secretary said.

Rocky Graziano Earns Draw With Tony Janiro

New York, April 1 — (AP) — Rocky Graziano still is the magic man of the ring, but it's pretty tough on some of the dynamite may have gone out of golden boy's right-hand bombs.

The former middleweight champion slammed his mighty right time and again at handsome Tony Janiro Friday night but not once could he bring down the game, comeback kid from Youngstown, O.

At the end of 10 rounds of brawling in Madison Square Garden, Rocky, a 5-to-12 favorite, had to settle for a draw with his 22-year-old rival. Janiro took the first half of the fight and Rocky captured most of the rounds in the final half.

"I couldn't get off," said the crestfallen New Yorker. "The kid takes a good punch but I never saw him right. What I need is a couple of more fights to loosen me up."

"I thought I beat him," said Janiro, the reformed playboy from Jersey. "I'm sure I won the last round in the third round and it pained me when I used it."

Herman Taylor, not what Harry Markson, director of the Metropolitan Boxing Writers' Club, would like to put on when the circus pulls out of the Garden in April.

Rocky, making his first fighting appearance in the ring in four years, pulled in the biggest boxing crowd (16,983 cash customers) and richest gate ($61,000) at a $10 top of the winter season here.

Pirates Spending Lavishly to Get Winning Team

Phoenix, Ariz., April 1—(AP)—No club in organized ball is spending more money more lavishly than the well-heeled Pittsburgh Pirates in their efforts to give their loyal fans a winner in the National League.

Yet, up to now, all they have to show for their efforts are some husky, heavy-eating youngsters who might come through within the next hour or the next year, a flock of set-backs in exhibition games this spring, and Ralph Kiner.

Manger Billy Meyer has no active hope of doing any better than sixth place in the approaching race unless a couple of his most promising rookies arrive in a big way.

Billy's feeling is that the post-war rookie crop is overdue. He has cut loose his old-timers, men like Dixie Walker and Hip Sewell and Fritz Ostermueller, in the blood expectation that he might be the one to land a youthful prize or two.

Badly in need of pitching, Meyer hopes he has a winner in 21-year-old Bill MacDonald, a bonus right-hander who set a 13-11 record with New Orleans last year and struck out 137, second highest in the southern association. The youngster has shown poise and control.

Mel Queen, who has been batting around for some years, returns to the Pirates with a remarkable minor league record last season, but has been troubled by a sore arm. With Indianapolis, Queen led the American Association with an earned run average of 2.57 won 22 while losing only nine and struck out the most batters, 178.

Two Infield Prospects

There are two great infield prospects. First is his affectionate as Dale Coogan, a big 19-year-old first baseman. Dan O'Connell is battling for the third-base job with Stan Rojek. Last year he hit .314 and knocked in 107 runs. His competition, however, is rugged. Nanny Fernandez, once with the Braves, is back in the big time after having been voted the most valuable player in the American Association last year. Also, there is Pete Castiglione, a good fielder with a bullet arm who was said held the job last year.

Stan Rojek and Danny Murtaugh, veteran, are back to claim the shortstop and second-base assignments respectively. The invaluable Kiner is, of course, the heart and soul of Meyer's club. In addition to stroking 54 home-runs last season, Kiner also batted .313 together with 127 runs batted in. His outfield teammate, Wally Westlake, hit .302 with 19 runs with a .282 mark, which made the club a good one-two wallop.

NOVEL IDEA

Hamilton, April 1 (CP) —Alderman Russ Brinke has a novel idea for improving muddy east-end streets that turn into rivers becoming mired. He intends to propose at the next council meeting that asphalt, gravel, or even emergency flying fields, be laid on the roads.

Training Camp Briefs

St. Petersburg, Fla., April — (AP)—Boston Red Sox, please note: Joe Dimaggio, outfielder with the New York Yankees, is a healthy ballplayer once again. And Joe's but is healthy, too. During the first month of spring training the Yankee Clipper at a .483 pace, netting 17 hits in 37 trips to plate. Joe really is beginning to roll of late, having slapped three-for-three singles, as he scored twice in a 7-2 decision to the Boston Braves Friday.

Phoenix, Ariz., April 1—(AP) — Larry Jansen, mainstay of New York Giants' pitching staff, is looking better each game, but the strong righthander still is off his 1949 form, Jansen was sent to the mound for the fifth time Friday, against the Pittsburgh Pirates. He looked a little freer with the delivery and was more effective. The Pirates, however, banged him for seven hits and five runs in seven innings.

Tucson, Ariz., April 1 — (AP) — Outfielder Allie Clark feels he's the forgotten man on the Cleveland Indians' roster this spring. So Allii has been using his bat to remind manager Lou Boudreau he's around. Clark is hitting .473. Big Luke Easter, Clark's right field rival, continued to make things tough for Allie, however by slamming a triple Friday while Dub and Bill in 62 times at bat, an average of .323.

Lakeland, Fla., April 1 — (AP) — Catcher Aaron Robinson promises to hit 20 home runs for the Detroit Tigers this season. At least one of them, says Robbin, has got to be in St. Louis. In five years in the American League Robinson has hit 50 homers—connecting in every park except St. Louis where the left field range is by no means extreme.

Montreal Jrs. Awarded Series With Halifax

Halifax, April 1, (CP)—Montreal Junior Canadiens, with the Eastern Canada Memorial Cup championship behind them, have a week to play before the series Friday night after they swamped Halifax St. Mary's 10-1 in the second game of the best-of-three series.

Canadiens will meet the Ontario champions in the Eastern Canada finals. The Ontario crown will be decided in a three game series starting today at Toronto between Toronto Combines and Guelph Biltmores.

The heavier and more experienced visitors came up an 11-3 win in the first game Wednesday night and following Friday night's pasting the Haligonians reconeded the series. The Saints had planned to go into a third game at Montreal if they won or held Canadiens to a small score in the second game.

Four goals in the first period, two more in the middle stanza and two in the finale erased any hopes Maritimers might have had of saving the Dominion Cup.

Canadiens first line of Art Rose, Bill Goold and Dickie Moore found the points. Rose and Goold each had three goals and three assists while Moore picked up five assists.

Teammate Herb English picked up two assists and Morrissette also scored one for Montreal.

Bonus Does More Harm Than Good Says Kellner

By JACK HAND

West Palm Beach, Fla., April 1 — (AP) — Alex Kellner, the Philadelphia A's 20-game winning rookie of 1949, thinks a bonus does more harm than good.

"You miss a lot if you come up too fast," said Kellner. "Coming up the hard way makes you appreciate being here."

Kellner ought to know. Nobody paid him a bonus for signing. No big league club had to keep him on its bench because he was a big name. The husky southpaw came up through the minor league setup.

Few counted Kellner a regular last spring. Manager Connie Mack didn't. Not until Phil Marchildon of Penetanguishene, Ont., came up with a sore arm, did he get his shot.

"One man's bad luck is a break for another," he said. "It was too bad but that's the way things work. I relieved Marchildon his first two starts. Next time around I took his turn."

Kellner was 16 when he was signed by a Cincinnati scout in his home town of Tucson. He had 13-8 for Tucson for the first year and 11-7 at Muskogee in 1942. Then came the draft. Kellner in naval training stations followed by service duty in the Southwest Pacific. In 1947 he left the navy, had an 11-9 year with Birmingham and 7-7 with Toledo before he caught his contract for $12,000.

Four 'Duck Eggs' Registered in Bowling League

Frankford—Frankford Bowling League saw action Thursday night in Trenton, and for the first time this season, four teams registered clean sweeps. The Happy Gang moved into fourth place by virtue of their three-game win over the Uniques, who have dropped their last eight games in a row. The Merry Men, currently in their worst glump of the season, dropped seven more points to the Greenhorns, and tumbled from third place to sixth. The Skylarks Aristocrats took seven from the league leading Top Hatters. This is the first time during the season that the Top Hatters have failed to take any points in a night's bowling. Thursday night's results definitely decided four places in the standings, namely first, second, seventh and eighth. The other four teams are still battling for the three remaining positions.

Highlight of the evening came when Gus Scaletta, proprietor of the alleys presented a "loving cup" to Top Hatters on behalf of the Aristocrats. These two teams have come up against some of the most original stunts and gags in the history of bowling. The ironclad part of it all is Scaletta's their season's bowling and nonsense each team has taken fifteen points. It looks as if it will be left until the playoffs to determine who is in their own private little feud.

Canadiens Confident of Win In 2nd Game of Cup Semi-Final

Montreal, April 1 — (CP) — Montreal Canadiens are confident they will even their best-of-seven semi-final series for the Stanley Cup with New York Rangers tonight.

They played bad hockey Wednesday night," said coach Dick Irvin, "but it has to be right tonight because we just couldn't be any worse." The Habitants won the first encounter to the Rangers 3-1 at New York.

On the other hand, officials of the New York club were reported to have developed a pattern of play that will beat the Canadiens.

Again they plan to concentrate on stopping Maurice (The Rocket) Richard and three forwards—Pentti Lund, Doc Raleigh and Ed Slowinski— will be assigned to this task. The Rangers kept a sharp eye of the Rocket in their first clash and succeeded in keeping the puck away from the sharpshooter.

Meanwhile, Irvin said he hopes that Billy Reay, who Thursday would be in the line-up for the Canadiens, may who spent more time off the ice with injuries than any other Habitant this season, will be ready for the opener.

However, nothing could be decided until the last minute tonight when the club physician will look over Reay's foot which he cut during practice last week.

Riopelle is Out

Another line-up prospect is Hal Laycoe who missed the first game because of a broken nose. But again the medico will decide just before game time.

Lach injured it in practice session Friday because the Montreal Forum was being used for a radio show. The Habitants feel they cannot lose the game if they want to keep in step with the hustling blue shirts. The third clash will be in New York Sunday with the remainder of the series in Montreal because Madison Square Garden will be a hockey circus.

The Rangers arrive in Montreal during the morning with a full complement of sporty writers. Jack McLeod, a rookie winger, did not make the trip because of a twisted knee suffered in Friday's practice.

Fisticuffing for him will be Jean Paul Lamirande who played the season with New Haven Ramblers of the A.H.L. Emile (The Cat) Francis is added to the New York squad as spare goalie.

State College, Penn., April 1—(AP)—Bob Higgins, retired Pennsylvania football coach, was nominated about 1:30 today to would be in the line-up for the Canadiens. He may who spent more time off the ice with injuries than any other Habitant this season, will be ready for the opener.

However, nothing could be decided until the last minute tonight when the club physician will look over Reay's foot which he cut during practice last week.

Riopelle is Out

Another line-up prospect is Hal Laycoe who missed the first game because of a broken nose. But again the medico will decide just before game time.

Lach injured it in practice session Friday because the Montreal Forum was being used for a radio show. The Habitants feel they cannot lose the game if they want to keep in step with the hustling blue shirts. The third clash will be in New York Sunday with the remainder of the series in Montreal because Madison Square Garden will be a hockey circus.

TAKING CARE OF OUTBOARD MOTORS—

To avoid some real headaches this Summer be certain to remove the outboard motor from your boat when loading it onto a trailer. The weight of the motor, vibration and transporting it will loosen the screws holding the transom and cause the boat to leak. It is only a moment's work to remove the motor for transportation in the car itself.

Because some of the oil mixed with outboard fuel reaches the tops of the cylinders a little attention to spark plugs at regular intervals pays off. Clean them well and inspect for broken porcelains. A feeler gauge is not expensive and insures the gap being exactly the distance recommended for that particular motor.

Brest, France, Apr. 1 (Reuters) —Tear-gas grenades were used here today to disperse strikers who stoned police after demonstrating against unloading of the freighter Capitaine Lecoley by dockers belonging to a private firm. Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, April 1 — (AP) — Everybody has two businesses—their own and the movie business.

This is an old Hollywood saying. It expresses the common belief that everyone likes to kibitz on Hollywood.

Well, what's wrong with the movie business?

Here are some points which I feel have put the movie industry in its present predicament:

1. Theatre prices are too high for most family budgets.

2. Re-releases of old pictures not advertised as such, have soured theatregoers. Only the best old pictures should be brought back, and clearly labelled.

3. Double features have been badly handled. They should be arranged for a well-rounded entertainment. Instead, we see such bills as "The Heiress" with "All the King's Men", two long and heavy films.

4. Theatres make little effort to get customers in at the beginning of a picture. Coming in during the middle can ruin even the best picture for movie fans.

5. Producers are too often caught in cycles. Instead of trying new things, they imitate what has been successful.

6. Producers have too often placed star values above story values.

7. Misbehaving personalities have often been rewarded with stardom and contracts, with the resulting bad publicity.

8. Public relations have been generally shortsighted. Hollywood has always been more concerned with selling stars and pictures rather than itself.

9. Producers have too often underestimated their audience. In catering to the young trade, they have lost a large part of their older fans.

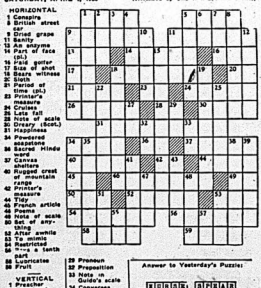
Pop was smoking and thinking to himself, saying, High ho time marches on, and I stay put.



Where do you want to be for land sakes? ma said and pop said I want to be on top of the world just where I was in my rosy prime,as when I was a young fellow with most of my birthdays still ahead of me.

And I heard another case over the radio, just to prove that life may just be beginning, regardless of age. This was the case of a man of 69 who retired from bizness but just to keep active he married a woman of 30 and just recently he was blessed with twins, ma said.

Now I see everything in a new lite, pop said. It's easy enough to bound fallwards when you have a clear field, but when obstacles loh up in your path, such as twins, you have to bound upwards as well as fallwards. MARMORA

St. Andrew's Glee Club Celebrates Fourth Anniversary

Marmora—The Glee Club of St. Andrew's United Church held their March meeting and also the fourth anniversary of the organization at the home of Mrs. H. W. Sabine on Wednesday afternoon. There was an attendance of 13 and Mrs. Annie Lowery was acting president, since the death of the former president, Mrs. Mary Thomson. Mrs. Lowery has carried on and at the meeting was officially elected president, with Mrs. G. D. Young as honorary president. The resignation of Mrs. H. Campion as treasurer was received with regret, and Mrs. Charles Sopha was elected in her place.

A number of very fine readings were given by Mrs. C. Sopha, Mrs. F. R. Wells, Mrs. H. W. Sabine, Mrs. Robert Bonter, (later two readings were read by Mrs. Thomas Potts), Mrs. F. Litt and Mrs. G. D. Young

Mrs. Fred Bonter, who has recently returned from spending the winter in Florida, presented the members with a little souvenir of her trip. A fine singsong was enjoyed and the program ended with the singing of "Happy Birthday."

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mesdames Young, Wells, and G. Sabine.

The members spent a jolly tea hour wearing their new Easter bonnets. Mrs. Gano blew out the four candles on the cake, and each found a favor in her piece. The Rev. G. D. Young, who dropped in for a cup of tea, read the fortunes. The April meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Garth Sabine.

Farm Forum

FOXBORO

On Monday evening Foxboro Farm Forum entertained Brookdale Forum at a pot-luck supper in the Marsh Hill schoolhouse. About fifty people enjoyed a bounteous meal. Mr. Murney Reynolds was chairman for the evening.

Agricultural representative A. O. Dalrymple was present and spoke on the soil conservation and drainage field day held recently at Heberdown Farm near Brooklyn, Ont. Mr. Frank Tummon Heldman for the Hastings County Federation of Agriculture showed a film taken at Heberdown Farm on that day.

Colonel Roscoe Vanderwates spoke on soil conservation dealing mostly with the Moira River and problems it presents.

Frank Tummon also presented three interesting films. One taken of the Leslie Bell Singers, one dealing with fires and how they should be dealt with, and "Indian Life in Skeena, B.C."

Mr. Reynolds asked the forum secretary, Mrs. Vernon Harry to come forward and Mrs. Harry Coulter presented her with a gift from the Forum as a token of appreciation of the work done during the season.

Mr. Morley Sine of Brookdale Forum, spoke briefly and moved a vote of thanks to Foxboro Forum for the hospitality shown which was seconded by Mr. George Brown.

Another meeting will be held on April 3rd. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Murney Reynolds.

Dude College

By Oren Arnold

"Why, uh, sort of square, Dr. Vest. Roped up, with a rifle beside it—any thing to tie on. Heavy too. Had to fasten it on her saddle horn. But she didn't mean no harm, I reckon, even is she is a student. She's a right pretty girl."

"Oh, no Tip! I'm sure not. I, uh—well, to tell you the truth, we're pretty puzzled about it, and well, I like to ride so—"

"Tip grinned. "I'll tell Doc! You girls come your car, if you want to. I c'n have another head saddled up quicker'n a owl c'n hoot!"

Down trail shorse 10 minutes later, Wesley told himself that he was being foolish again. Why had he acted on impulse to follow Lona Montoya a second time? What business was this of his? True, the secret cache in Rainbow Canyon needed explaining but—

He refused to consider it all "none of his business." Too many mysterious things had come to his attention of late. As a matter of fact, he had encountered them again. They still didn't forestall had they held a mounting importance in his mind, individually and collectively.

To the group of unexplained events now was the addition of Lona Montoya—that, also, was a mystery. It had no logical relationship with Lona's strange doings, or with Andre Girardeau's spouting Lona in clandestine fashion, or with Andre's apparent love making to Ronica, or with the five Americanized Japanese Ronica had helped capture in strange gun battle. These things had no earthly connection at all, that he could see.

And yet, strange incidents have a habit of collecting in a fellow's mind; they just seemed to congregate in Wesley's consciousness, to be mulled them around there.

Before he left his friend Tip he had, with careful casualness, borrowed Tip's pistol and his rifle as well. Tip had jeshed him, but was explained that Lona Montoya liked to shoot and they just might get in some exciting cracking at jack rabbits and gophers and prairie marmots.

He took the rifle from its saddle scabbard now to inspect it. It was a powerful thing which Tip used to get deer and bear to fall. Wes saw that it was loaded. A quiac flip of the wrist and he could have it in action.

The pistol was a type more familiar to him. It was a new high-powered automatic, shooting .22 calibre long-rifle shells. The cartridge clip in the handle held ten rounds but the barrel was empty. Holding the handle in his left hand, he jerked back the carriage with his right thumb and forefinger thus pumping the first cartridge into chamber, ready to fire. Only a slight trigger squeeze was necessary now. He flipped the little safety lever into shape, and reholstered.

He had no idea what he expected to do with these guns. He had just wanted them. Something told him that the secret cache in Rainbow had been put there by men who would kill on the slightest provocation.

The fact that the United States Army was known to be planning bombing tests in that area, and that a landing field had been set aside on the desert for temporary army use, all seemed to add up to something. Maybe, with that cache of clothing and canteens and guns, that powerful two-way radio outfit.

He didn't draw any pat conclusions. He just rode on. Soon he had to be extra cautious lest he ride too fast and overtake Lona. If Lona were riding with a bulky box tied to her saddle, she wouldn't be riding very fast, he reflected. And what, come to think of it, was in her box? Something to add to the secret cache? What would it be?

Plain curiosity, driven by a mounting sense of responsibility in view of all that he knew, caused Wesley finally to plan a definite spying attempt on Lona. Again, said he, he would hide his horse before entering the canyon, then conceal himself and watch for her on foot. When she left the canyon cave, and when any other person with her them departed he would go again to the cave and investigate. He felt this was the very least he should do. And the safest.

He had no more than reached that decision, however, when a motion caught his eye.

The motion was not on the ground, not amid the Spanish daggers or the mesquite trees or the cacti or the rocks, but was an extraordinary, jet black spot that lifted up into the sky itself. He reined his horse in automatically.

"An autogiro!" he [illegible]

"One of the new border patrol planes!"

He stared at the fantastic thing. Hovering near the ground, manoeuring like some gigantic hummingbird dipping into this blossom and that, the ship dropped to earth a half mile ahead, stayed a minute or two, rose almost straight up, then dropped down near him.

This time though it did not touch earth. Apparently the two men in it recognized him, for they just waved a greeting and lifted on away, in queer horizontal propeller whirring. He thought one of the occupants was Inspector Starr of the Border Patrol whom Ronica Bailey had helped capture five Japanese a few weeks ago.

He stared at the plane in awe for some five minutes—and when he turned down the Rainbow Canyon trail again he saw Lona Montoya riding back toward him.

The sudden turn of events found Wesley unprepared. He wasn't at all sure what to make of the autogiro's presence. He guessed, though, that it had settled down first near Lona Montoya herself—it could land on and take off from a flat space not much bigger than a back yard—and then had dropped down to where the fliers had identified him.

He knew the ship was a new unit in the equipment of the United States Border Patrol. Now he saw Lona riding back up the trail toward him and he could only surmise that the plane had caused her to turn back.

She was still several hundred yards away so he rode slowly on toward the pretty Mexican girl. She recognized him in a moment and spurred her horse.

"Wesleo!" she cried out happily when she neared him. "You are out riding too!" Her smile was bright.

"Yes! I—I thought I might do a little shooting. Jackrabbit or coyote maybe. Haven't seen anything though. I like to ride in early morning." He hoped his explanation didn't sound as lame to her as it did to him.

"I come out often to paint and sketch. But today I just ride. You saw the autogiro?"

"Yes."

"They stop near me to ask if I have seen any aliens—imagine, Wesleo! If I see any estanjeros I would faint!"

He smiled with her. But he had appraised her equipment, too. She had a gun, and small saddle packs, and canteen and rope. Yes there was definitely no large package such as the horse would her said she carried He wondered if she had already been to the Rainbow Canyon cache and left her parcel. But, no, she couldn't possibly have had time.

"I weel shoot some with you no?"

She said it so sweetly so engagingly that no man could have declined. They dismounted and dropped reins. Morning sun was a spotlight now that shone on the Rainbow Canyon cache's exit. Together they fired first pistols and then the rifle he carried, walking to inspect the results of each shot. It was fun, really; fun for any man thus to do large practice in the zestful autumn morning with a beautiful girl.

Very conscious of her presence (as any man as shy as Wesley York would be), he studied her face when she was shooting, studied it closely and in minute detail. It occurred to him that she didn't appear as Latin as most Mexican senoritas.

A Mexican is, theoretically, half Spanish and half Indian; many are just touched with the Indian blood. In every case, however, they have a definite skin hue and a racial something about their eyes.

It seemed to Wesley, now, that Lona lacked these subtle but significant things. Trained to observe details and weigh them in his work as an archaeologist, he began to wonder why Lona was an exception in her national heritage.

When they had exhausted most of their shells Lona suggested they sit for a while and talk. She found a niche big enough for two in a granite boulder and invited him to join her. Of necessity, he sat close.

"Your home you said is near Vera Cruz, Lona?" He asked then.

"Yes. An old, old rancho, Wesleo. You would love it!"

"Surely. A rancho—in old Mexico! It's romantic to think about"

She laughed low and musically. "I like romantic-minded men, Wesleo."

"Mexico is a beautiful country, no es verdad?" He lapsed into Spanish,

"Si, senor! Usted habla Espanol!"

"Some," he smiled. "Let's speak it together; I need the practice.

They talked at length. Lona, oddly enough, lost a bit of her vivacious manner and she appeared to concentrate on their words. Wesley's first Spanish lah was the purest of Castilian, but presently he shifted to the several Mexican dialects that he knew. Mexican folk do speak differently in different states, just as English is spoken differently in London, New York, Atlanta and Albuquerque; the idiom of one place may be hardly recognizable in another.

But Wesley York was a scholar. Reared in the Southwest, he had specialized in Spanish, and because his archaeological studies had taken him often to the ancient ruins in Yucatan, Campeche, Calpas and other Mexican states, he had become intimate with the dialects in almost every section. In truth, few Americans knew Mexico better than young Wesley York.

FUMES FATAL TO COUPLE

Toronto, Apr. 1 (CP)—A middle aged couple was found dead at home Friday. The victims, Mr. and Mrs. Maithy Fairplay, are believed to have died from the effects of cooking gas although there are no gas appliances in the home.

POLICE CELLS FILLED

Toronto, Apr. 1 (CP) — Police cells were filled to capacity today as 120 persons were arrested in another "black Friday" night. There were 61 charged with drunkenness, four for shoplifting, three for housebreaking, two for attempted shopbreaking, 24 for liquor violations, and four for vagrancy.

1950 Navigation Season Opens At Sarnia Harbor

(By The Canadian Press)

The first ship of the 1950 navigation season put into Sarnia harbor Friday but ice held up other ship movements on the Great Lakes.

Sarnia's first ship was the imperial oil tanker Cobourg which arrived at 2.20 p.m. after leaving Thursday morning for Windsor with a cargo of gasoline. Captain C. J. Sloane of the Cobourg thus won the traditional pair of white gloves from Sarnia's Chamber of Commerce.

At Montreal port officials now expect the first ocean vessel to arrive between April 14 and April 21. The government icebreaker N.B. McLean Friday completed its job for another year when it arrived at Montreal's Laurier pier.

The tug James Whalen encountered a severe "setback" in icebreaking in Thunder Bay, Port Arthur officials said. The tug cut a channel to her ice about 30 miles from Buffalo harbor in its attempt to open navigation there. Capt. Henry Walton reported the ice was from 4 to 10 feet thick.

Two Policemen Wounded in Fight With Bandits

Lansing, Mich., April 1. (AP) —Two policemen were shot and wounded and two others injured by fiying glass in a gun battle with bandits at a supermarket here Friday night.

The gunfire occurred when the policemen answered a burglar alarm set off by the store manager under the noses of two holdup men.

The officers arrived so quickly the robbers had to flee empty-handed.

Condition of one wounded officer, Robert Beleu, was critical. Two employees of the market basket supermarket said the holdup men accosted them as they were locking up and leaving the market by the back door. They were forced at gunpoint to walk around the building and in the front door. Manager Ronce Lease said he managed to sound the burglar alarm as he went past the door.

MONTHLY REPORT ON LIVING COSTS EXPECTED SOON

Ottawa, April 3. (CP)—Canadians soon will learn if the 1950 trend of the country's cost-of-living is likely to be up or down.

They will be given a good indication of the trend within a few days when the bureau of statistics issues its monthly report on living costs.

The report will show if prices are continuing the upward movement that boosted the cost-of-living index for the first of this year by six-tenths of a point to 181.6 at the end of January, after returning to the downward movement in the latter part of last year.

Food prices, responsible for the January climb, are expected to be a key factor in the new index since food makes up the largest single group in the computation. It accounts for 31 per cent of the over-all index.

It is not yet known if rents will be reflected in the new index. The rent survey is now in the midst of its regular quarterly survey of rent prices but may not have it completed in time for inclusion 'until the following index.

Accused in Mental Hospital for Eight Years is Freed

Montreal, April 3—(CP)—Rodolphe Brunet, 45, who has spent the last eight years in the mental section of Montreal's Bordeaux Jail, today was acquitted of a charge of attempting to murder his wife in 1942 and left for Sudbury with a brother-in-law.

Brunet was arrested May 27, 1942, for attacking his wife with a hammer and was charged with attempted murder but was found mentally unable to stand trial and committed to the jail hospital.

Dr. Antonio Lamarre, medical director of the jail's mental wing, testified he had examined Brunet many times in the last four years and had found him normal.

Brunet's brother-in-law, A. Bisaillon, told the court he would take Brunet to Sudbury and be responsible for him in which the presiding judge, Mr. Justice Wilfrid Lazure, agreed.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, April 3 — (CP) — Synopsis: The storm which spread in rain and snow over western areas of the province Sunday evening stagnated over night. The consensus today is that rain, mold air and night time cooling caused extensive areas of snow to freeze which reduced visibility to near zero this morning. The fog is expected to lift this forenoon and most of the fizzle will be over by this afternoon.

The following lull in the weather will be short and then another storm is shaping up over Colorado. This is expected to spread snow and rain as the storm takes regions on Tuesday. In the Georgian Bay and Haliburton regions the precipitation will likely begin as snow and change to rain later in the day. At present a close estimate is impossible but indications are that snow will reach as far north as the southern Algonquin Lake regions and that falls in the northern Bay area will be fairly heavy.

Mother Waits Long With Sick Child For Plane to Land

Toronto, April 3 (CP)— An anxious mother, Mrs. Rose Kenny of Kapuskasing, Ont., waited all day old sick baby on her lap Sunday at Toronto Trans-Canada Airlines plane circled the city for 45 minutes waiting for the weather to clear so it could land.

For a time it appeared that the plane would have to go to Buffalo, but at 10.30 p.m. pilot Dave Tribe brought the big ship in and a waiting taxi took Mrs. Kenny and Robert to the Hospital for sick children.

Pilot in $400 War Surplus Plane Has 'Time' With Scant Geography

Istel, a 24-year-old Parisian, a pilot of two weeks, wasn't kidding when he admitted his map knowledge was slim.

Istel then took off for Portland. Instead he landed at McChord Field near Tacoma, Wash. It's a hedge-hop by most pilot's figuring. He stayed there Saturday night. He left there Sunday morning for Portland. But he landed in Olympia, Wash., another hedge hop southward.

Later Sunday he started again for Portland. He stayed aloft a little longer that time—and landed at Salem. Only 47 miles south of Portland.

Eventually—he hopes — Istel expects to reach New York City, sell his airplane, or what's left of it, and take a ship or airliner to France.

Istel planned to fly while on a business trip to Canada. He started a month ago to take lessons. His pilot's licence is two weeks old.

Calcutta, April 3 (AP)— Engine trouble today forced the flying Bixbys—Dianna and Bob —to return here, two hours after they took in their attempt to break the late Bill Odom's world-circling record.

Trouble in the right engine of the Bixby's twin-engined British Mosquito bomber had cut short their scheduled flight across Red China to Tokyo. They landed here at 8.31 a.m., GMT (4.31 a.m. EST).

They still had a chance to beat Odom's 1947 mark of 73 hours, five minutes and 11 seconds—if they could get the engine repaired and leave within three or four hours.

Four Hours Behind

The Bixby's had been shooting at 66 hour round the world flight. Four hours here put them four hours behind schedule. The husband-and-wife team left San Francisco at 9.03 a.m., EST, Saturday.

The Bixby's first reached Calcutta, beyond the halfway mark in their flight at 6.11 a.m., GMT (11.11 a.m. EST). They reported the Hustress II and took off after slightly more than one hour at 7.24 a.m., GMT (2.24 a.m. EST).

But just one hour out they were forced to turn back.

The Bixbys, who said they were making the record attempt for the fun of it, took off from Karachi airport at 6.35 a.m. (9.05 p.m. EST Sunday) for Calcutta. They made the 1,350-mile hop in three hours and 33 minutes.

They planned to fly their silver and red "Huntress II" directly across China to Tokyo, with another stop between the Japanese capital and San Francisco, at Midway Island.

The 27-year-old blonde Mrs. Bixby and her 36-year-old husband operated a charter cargo airplanes at Santa Paula, Calif., left San Francisco at 9.03 A.M. EST) Saturday. They aim to crack Odom's record of 73 hours, five minutes and 11 seconds.

To do it they set up a schedule calling for a total elapsed time from San Francisco to San Francisco, of 66 hours and five minutes.

Their plane called for them to make Calcutta in 37 hours and 30 minutes. Their actual elapsed time on landing was 40 hours and seven minutes.

The program for the British bomber Mrs. Bixby bought in 1949 in Miami for $4,500 called for three times refuel at new stops.

Calcutta-Tokyo, 3,204 miles, 9 hours 10 minutes; Tokyo-Midway, 3,543 miles, 7 hours 15 minutes; Midway, San Francisco, 3,205 miles, 8 hours 10 minutes.

Five-foot-two Dianna, mother of a seven-month old baby girl, brought the craft across the Atlantic from Newark, to Paris. Husband Bob did the piloting to Cairo and Dianna was at the controls again to Karachi.

Truman Notifies Federal Officials Ignore Subpoenas

Key West, Fla., April 3—(AP)—President Truman today formally notified Senator Millard Tydings (Dem.-Md.) that he has ordered federal officials to ignore subpoenas asking them to surrender loyalty files of accused state department employees.

The president had ever complied with an order of the legislative branch directing the executive branch to produce confidential documents the disclosure of which was considered by the president to be contrary to the public interest, Truman told Tydings.

Tydings is chairman of a Senate Foreign Relations Sub-Committee investigating charges by Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.) that the state department is overrun with Communists and Communist sympathizers.

The president refused a request from Tydings for the loyalty files. Tydings countered by serving subpoenas on State Secretary Acheson, Attorney-General McGrath, Civil Service Chairman Harry B. Mitchell of the civil Service Commission, asking for the files.

Truman said:

"The disclosure of these files would seriously prejudice the future effectiveness and usefulness of the personnel security investigation as an investigative agency; the embarrassment, and in some cases danger, to those who have given confidential information cannot be over-emphasized."

COULD GET LIFE TERM

Toronto, April 3 (CP)— Attorney-General Porter said today he will prosecute a truck driver struck and killed two young girls in suburban North York on Friday night be sentenced to life if convicted of manslaughter.

Mr. Porter answered a question in the legislature by W. H. Temple (CCF-High Park).

System of Rationing Food By Points in Britain May End Soon Says Newspaper

London, April 3—(CP)—British housewives were bravely today for a change in the points system of food rationing.

Hopes that grocers may no longer face wholesale cut-and-counting coupons on certain commodities were raised by a front-page story in the Labor Daily Herald.

The newspaper said the system of rationing food by points "is expected to end soon."

Under the points system, housewives receive 24 points a month. These are spent largely on such scarce types of canned goods as fruit, salmon and meat.

Points rationing is a separate from rationing of such basic foods as fresh meat, butter and tea. Whether these will go the points system, it looks as though housewives will have to put up with ration books for a long time to come.

Food Minister Maurice Webb, speaking Sunday night in his parliamentary constituency of Bradford, Yorkshire, said Britain's food position does not justify the abolition of controls and rationing in the foreseeable future.

Food Position Easier

"The food position is easier," he said, "but it is not true to say that our stores and reserves of food are so vast as to arouse serious embarrassment."

By "embarrassment" Webb obviously had in mind newspaper reports that Britain's increasing supply of food may make it necessary for the government to increase some rations or substitute foods and, therefore perhaps an increase in food prices.

The new food minister concerned that no changes in the ration will be announced shortly before Easter—"some rations are going up, some are coming down."

On the points system, he said:

"The points system has been made in the points scheme—when I get agreement of my colleagues in the cabinet—and I am sure the country as a whole will be very satisfied with my solution of the problem."

Webb said some increases in farm prices will be announced in the budget statement Wednesday by Chancellor of the Exchequer Stafford Cripps, but "they are fair and reasonable and I see no purpose at present in trying to make life too difficult for you."

TRAPPED IN SLEEP

Lubbock, Tex., April 3—(AP) —Three persons trapped in their sleep died early Sunday in a burning trailer house. An exploding stove apparently caused the fire, investigators said.

CLAIMS RUSS TRY BACTERIOLOGICAL WARFARE TEST

Sees Russia Year Ahead Of U.S. With H-Bomb

Montreal, April 3. (CP)—Kenneth de Courcy editor of the British Monthly Intelligence Digest, said Sunday night that the Russians are making large-scale experiments in bacteriological warfare.

The editor, who correctly predicted the Russians would set off their first atomic blast in 1949, said in an interview that he received information on the experiments from "a highly reliable" Russian source. He added that the experiments were started in January by the Russian general staff and that political prisoners were used as guinea pigs.

"The source from which we received this information has proved reliable in the past. Many events with great reliability for the last 12 years," de Courcy added.

His Intelligence Digest, a monthly private information service, claims to have highly-placed intelligence informants in several countries.

He said his informants agreed with Dr. Harold Urey of the Atomic Energy Commission that "Russia is at least one year ahead of the U.S. in the development of the H Bomb."

CANADA LOSING ATOMIC RACE SAYS SCIENTIST

Dr. Cook Says More Money, Men Needed

Ottawa, April 3 — (CP) — One of Canada's top atomic scientists, in an unusual speech today suggested Canada is in danger of falling behind in the world's atomic race and will do so unless she puts up more scientists and money.

In an address prepared for delivery before the Ottawa Rotary Club, Dr. L. G. Cook, head of the chemistry branch of the research division at the Chalk River atomic project, flatly predicted that the children of the present generation of Canadians "almost certainly will be involved in a war in which atomic bombs are used."

Has Atomic Bonfire

He said Chalk River's one radioactive pile, based on the heavy water principle, "has been uneconomically successful" in enabling Chalk River to make radioisotopes (radioactive atoms) for use in concentrated form.

In fact the "simplest and finest little atomic furnace" in the "productive pile or reactor — is burning merrily" at Chalk River.

"The United States, Britain, France and certainly Russia are operating similar atomic fires, Norway, Sweden and Australia are planning to do so, too.

"Some people who do not understand the simple facts (of nuclear energy) and who believe there must be a secret to be guarded are consequently trying to prevent scientists in their countries from discussing their work frankly and publicly with other scientists and with the citizens whom it vitally concerns.

Will Involve Children

"You may be involved in a war in which atomic bombs are used. Your children and grandchildren will be. As citizens of a democracy you must know the details of these developments, must assist your government to make wise decisions in a precarious world

Rush Vaccine To Health Centres In Glasgow

Glasgow, April 3 (Reuters) — Planes from London today rushed enough vaccine to immunize people in Glasgow and West Scotland to help check an outbreak of smallpox.

Thousands were flocking to public health centres in the infected area. The disease already has attacked 70 people. Eighty-six thousand people have already been vaccinated in the west and southwest of Scotland.

No new cases have been reported in the last 24 hours. More than 20,000 people have been vaccinated in Glasgow.

Glasgow health authorities said there was no need to close theatres but advised citizens to avoid crowds.

The disease was brought to the city by a Lascar seaman aboard a British liner.

New Canadian U-Ore Detector Might be Safeguard Against H-Bomb

London, April 3 (CP) — A uranium ore detector so sensitive it might stray as a "magic eye" in atomic bombs, which will probably be too heavy to be carried in planes.

The heart of the device is a crystal which is made more effective in picking up atomic rays than geiger counters, the standard radium prospecting instrument. The Canadian scientists described the device as containing bearing rocks were located by the detector in Northern Canada last summer.

"It was found possible to detect substantial deposits of uranium at distances of several hundred feet," the article said.

The article, which carried convincingly the feasibility of using this method for radio-active prospecting from the air.

Citizens Asked To Hunt Killer Of Young Girls

Reward for Information Leading to Arrest $2,500

Toronto, April 3 — (CP) — Citizens were asked today to help police track down the driver of a truck that killed two little girls on their way to church.

At the same time, reward money rose to $2,500 with the announcement in the Ontario Legislature that the provincial government will offer an additional $500.

Norman Ingram, chairman of the police committee of suburban North York, asked the public to report "any fact" that may lead police to the driver blamed for the death Friday night of Lorraine Watson, 14, and her niece, Barbara Jones, 6.

Ingram said citizens should consider it their duty to report "any clue, no matter how slight." He added:

"A fact by itself may seem insignificant. But placed together with other information it may lead to the arrest of the guilty party."

"Get this story out with, or have it on your radio, and leave the rest of your life," the chief said.

Chief Makes Appeal

The chief made his appeal in a four-column, large-type newspaper ad by-line and illustrated with a picture of him pointing an accusing finger, on the front page of the Telegram. He wrote:

"You that driver, I say: Give yourself up, man . . . in just a few minutes, you can rid yourself of the fear of being caught that will walk with you for every second of your life.

"For I tell you now: Every police officer in the country has been alerted and is looking for you. You will walk with terror so long as you live.

"I don't think you're a criminal. I think you are a man who, through unfortunate circumstances, has been hurled into a heartbreaking tragedy. Your son was a natural instinct to run, to hide in fear.

"Now I say to you: give yourself up, man. If you have a heart, if you have a conscience, if you know children, you will give yourself up."

STRIKE DEADLINE SET BY WORKERS AT FORD PLANT

Windsor, April 3 (CP)—Local 200 of the United Automobile Workers union (CCL-CIO) has set April 12 as the deadline for a strike against the Ford Motor Company in its dispute over pensions demands.

A union statement said that 8,000 of the 11,000 members of the local attended the closed meeting Sunday and that 83 per cent of those present favored the strike action. It added that the proposed deadline was set after a show-of-hands vote showed "only two hands in opposition."

The statement said union have been at odds for a year over the pension demand for a $100-a-month company-paid retirement pension for workers at age 65 after 25 years' service. The company offered $55 and the company's figure was supported by a majority report of a conciliation board, with a minority report favoring the union.

Company officials said Sunday night there would be no immediate statement.

BAY ICE NEARLY READY TO MOVE OUT

Continuing mild weather and brisk westerly winds should start the main body of ice in the Bay of Quinte in this immediate area moving to wherever it goes, according to veteran observers here.

The Moira River is clear of ice and open water is apparent for some distance south of the C.P.R. bridge near Victoria Park. An open channel extends from the bay bridge to a point east of the government dock but a solid ice-field still exists west of the bridge.

The ice-field is discolored and appears to be in a disintegrating stage. A filtration plant official is of the opinion that the field is dangerous for pedestrians and vehicles.

Youngsters Edit And Print Weekly In Fonthill

Fonthill, Apr. 3—(CP)—A pair of ambitious youngsters have parlayed their spare time and toy printing press into one of Canada's fastest growing weekly papers—on a capital investment of $5.47.

Work and profits of the Fonthill Bugle in this town of 1,200 persons seven miles south of St. Catharines are shared by Robin Barron and Jim Casson, both 11, co-editors of this village's first paper.

Three months ago Robin's mother lent the boys enough money to buy paper hectograph solution for making page forms and four cookie pans for a press bed.

The boys were in business. Sixty copies were printed in the first week's run, at three cents a copy went fast. The press run was increased to 70, then to 100. Last week's count was 110 and it didn't near meet the demand.

Advertising space is snapped up by local merchants. The front page usually carries a boyhood story by one of the boys on village life or personal adventure. Inside pages are crowded with stories of school, sport, club activities and with personals.

Sometimes things don't work out just the way the boys would like them. Recently this apology by the editors appeared:

"Education week and the flu made last week and this week pretty busy for us editors. If we have neglected to put in any want ads or to sell ads we are sorry and will see that they are run next week.

And they were.

ADMITS GUILT

Convicted arsonist Nicholas Verna, 26, has admitted to police that he set the fire at the Belle Vista private sanitorium, Philadelphia, Pa., in which nine inmates died. Verna, a former inmate, is looking after the club's annual Easter Seal campaign.

Sea Cadets Hold Church Parade

On Sunday five officers and 33 cadets from R.C.S.C. "Quinte" held their first church parade of the year. The parade was led by Sub-Lieut. G. Turner, the Ship's executive officer, with Sub-Lieut. H. Kessler in charge of the band. Sub-Lieut. R. Sager and R. Boyce were the parade divisional officers.

The cadets paraded from their ship on South Front Street, up to Bridge Street and across to Coleman and thence to Christ Church, where they were welcomed by Rev. G. Sparling. After the service they paraded back to their ship for refreshments. The ship's canteen committee under the direction of Petty Officer Richards and Leading Seaman Newton soon had a plentiful supply of hot dogs and the traditional Navy Kye ready for their appreciative shipmates.

Before the cadets were dismissed they were congratulated on their fine showing, by the ship's commanding officer, who stated that the cadets had been a credit to their ship, he also expressed his appreciation to Rev. G. Sparling on behalf of the officers and cadets.

Seek to Find Widow of Man Who Left Estate

Hamilton, April 3. (CP)—The mystery of the whereabouts of Mrs. Arthur H. Jacques, wife of a retired Hamilton banker, who died on Feb. 13, without leaving a will to cover his $22,000 estate, may be near solution. It was learned today that a woman, claiming to be Mrs. Jacques, is living in Toronto.

After the death of Mr. Jacques, the trust company administering the estate advertised for relatives and five cousins responded. It was known that Mr. Jacques was married but the whereabouts of his wife remained a mystery until last week.

The trust master of the Supreme Court will decide those entitled to the proceeds of the estate.

One of the claimants in an affidavit said that Mrs. Jacques, born Elizabeth Clarke in Port Hope, was married to Mr. Jacques for 30 years. The couple moved to Detroit in 1914 and Mrs. Jacques returned home alone in 1936. Since then nothing had been heard of the wife.

Another of the claimants even contended that Mr. Jacques had told her that his wife was dead.

Senator's Charges Against Lattimore Hotly Denied

A senate foreign relation subcommittee arranged a behind-closed-doors meeting to discuss getting access to the data which McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican, had indicated he is not willing to give the group.

In advance of the session, Senator Theodore Green (Dem R.I.), acting chairman of the inquiry committee, talked about the idea of a subpoena if McCarthy refuses to take the investigators into his confidence after a formal request for the material.

The committee has subpoenaed out now trying to force the Federal Bureau of Investigation and other government agencies to let it see confidential loyalty files. An iron twist of the investigation McCarthy gave his information to the F.B.I. and withheld it from the committee, but has insisted the committee see the F.B.I. files which presumably would include his papers.

McCarthy has charged that Lattimore, an American expert on far eastern affairs, is Russia's top spy in the State Department and the United States. In a Senate speech Tuesday McCarthy said he could produce proof to back up his contentions.

Lattimore flew into New York Saturday from a United Nations mission in Afghanistan. He told a press conference then that McCarthy is "mistaken" and that there is no truth in his accusations.

Lattimore, director of a school of international relations at Johns Hopkins University, is scheduled to go before the inquiry committee tomorrow to make a formal reply to McCarthy.

At his press conference Saturday, Lattimore accused McCarthy of making "an obviously political attack" on the State Department.

"I am not and never have been a member of the Communist party or a communist sympathizer, or affiliated or associated with the Communist party . . ."

Matthew Halton Called 'Biased' By Members

Ottawa, April 3—(CP)—Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC—MacLeod) said Friday night in the Commons he believes that Matthew Halton, London commentator for the CBC, is "biased" and a "Socialist."

He made the statement after A. L. Smith (PC—Calgary West) had interjected during a radio debate that Mr. Halton is the "greatest character assassin on the air."

The discussion occurred while Mr. Hansell was complimenting the CBC for its newscasts. He said some American commentators liked to dig up a lot of dirt and spill it into the ears of the American people. The CBC was to be complimented on their attempt to keep the airwaves clean.

"They do not stand for slander and such things: Character, assassination is not tolerated," said Mr. Hansell.

Mr. Smith—"Did you ever listen to Matthew Halton?"

Mr. Hansell: "I have heard him, but frankly I dislike him. He is particularly to listen to him."

Mr. Smith: "The greatest character assassin on the air."

Mr. Hansell: "I will let that stand at my honorable friends has stated it. I am not going to take that statement, but since he has done so I am not going to contradict it. I have not heard him; I have done that sort of thing because I do not tune in to hear what he says."

"Frankly, I think he is biased. There is no question in my mind but that the gentleman is a Socialist and his commentaries are thereby colored. That is why I do not listen to him.

Angus MacInnis (CCF—Vancouver East): "Does that not apply to all speakers?"

Flying Fruit Dish

London, April 3 (Reuters)— The meteorological office was busy Sunday with telephone calls from people who claimed to have seen a "pear-shaped object high in the sky. An air ministry official said if the object was pear shaped, it could not have been a flying saucer. But it might have been helpfully, have been a flying fruit dish.

OPENING MIGHTY FOR NAVIGATION

In Saukville, Wis., floods caused highways to become lakes which then froze solid. Not having ice-breaking ships to open up the streets for navigation, the town converted trucks into something resembling amphibious snowplows. Here is one in action pushing huge blocks of ice from the road. — Central Press Canadian.

Freighter Bucks Ice

Buffalo, N.Y., April 3—(AP)— A freighter from Detroit was ramming stubbornly through the Lake Erie ice today at a speed equal to a half-mile an hour.

The James Watt left Detroit Thursday afternoon, carrying a crew of 35 and a load of scrap iron on a voyage normally taking 22 hours. It is fighting to be the first ship arriving here this season.

Walton said current procedure was to back down about 500 to 800 feet, order all engines ahead full speed and ram the ice. He said the ice, about six inches thick, wouldn't be too serious a block if westerly winds had not layered it at this end of the lake.

LOOK FELLAS . . .

We've often kidded around about used cars in our advertisements so that we might give you a laugh. But here's a time to be serious. The people of Belleville have always been considered good sportsmen and lovers of fair play. This is proven by your grand support of all sporting events which take place in this city. You've always taken the part of the underdog and cheered the loser.

Unfortunately at this time of year, we seem to lose this sense of fair play when the pickerel come up the Moira River to spawn. Every year there occurs on the banks of our fair river a veritable slaughter wherein pure creating more pickerel, are mercilessly speared by certain unthinking individuals who imagine they're getting something for nothing.

Well, fellas, you're not fair to the fish and you're not fair to yourselves. If you saw a mother dog, who had just given birth to a litter of puppies, jabbed with a spear, you would probably thrash the offender within an inch of his life. It is even worse to spear pickerel because they will each lay about 80,000 eggs and even under favorable conditions only about 12 or so turn out to be mature fish, and so you are also unfair to yourselves as you are depriving yourself of good future fishing.

Some foolish people will agree that the price of food is high and a free meal is a free meal. If this is your reason for spearing pickerel, please feel free to come up to our office and we will gladly pay you for the price of a good fish dinner with all the trimmings.

REMEMBER:—
ONLY MEAN PEOPLE SPEAR SPAWNING FISH.

THE SCHOOL CONTRACT

The Board of Education in its statement to the public in Saturday's edition of this newspaper said, "The Board can find no acceptable reason for altering its decision to the awarding of this (school) contract" and also that the Board has invited the whole Council to meet with it to give further consideration to the passing of a by-law to provide for borrowing money by the issue and sale of debentures.

We believe the Board would have been well advised had it said nothing about having made a decision in regard to the contract. It is better to enter a joint meeting with an open mind, and a readiness to hear what the other side has to say. Everyone wants to see this problem disposed of to the best interests of the public, but to give the impression that one side only is right is not the easy way to reach an amicable and quick settlement. Especially is this true since the Council has already voted against the Board's request for a by-law to supply funds for the project.

To say that "expert advice" confirmed the Board's opinion that the decision on the contract was the proper one under the circumstances, is merely side-stepping the issue. It was the Board's duty to obtain the lowest tender at a considerable saving of money to the taxpayer. As we stated on a former occasion failure to do this was an infringement of the principle regarding the acceptance of tenders. Thus, when a tender is submitted by a responsible firm, and it is the lowest of several, there should be no question of its acceptance. To do otherwise is to flout a precedent which cannot be explained with sufficient logic to be acceptable.

The Board in its statement on Saturday said that the architect felt the school could not be built at the figure submitted by the lowest tender. We ask — why should the Board and the architect be concerned whether the contractor could build the school at his figure? It be made an error then that was his hard luck. Further, by pointing out to him that he had made a possible mistake, and giving him an opportunity to suggest a revision of figures, then invalidating him because he did so, placed the Board in an untenable position.

Under the circumstances and if there are no legal obstacles we believe the Board would do well to reverse its decision and accept the lowest tender, providing the contractor is agreeable. Such a move would go a long way to maintain good-will between the Board and Council if they are to meet soon to settle this vexatious dispute.

GOOD HEALTH FOR NATIVES IN NORTH

Health and Welfare tells of the war-against disease and death among Indians and Eskimos which goes on more efficiently and effectively within the Arctic Circle as new epidemics break out. Whatever the disease may be, be it measles, poliomyelitis or diphtheria, treatment is rushed to the spot as soon as reported.

The magazine says, "Science has replaced the medicine man. But although it has eased, it has not entirely replaced the witchdoctor, especially in this primitive sphere of the efforts of Indian Health Services. Canoe, riverboat, dog team and snowshoes combine with motor, train and plane, plus an indomitable spirit to bring health to Canada's first inhabitants."

The marks of progress include the services for the controlled presentation of the many ills to which man is heir. Smallpox which used to sweep from tribe to tribe was the first of the maladies to fall before the progress of modern medicine in the north.

The greatest scourge of today remains tuberculosis, which is up to thirty times as deadly among the native population than among the white communities. But progress has been marked even in this fight and the death-rate from TB is now falling as rapidly as within the population as a whole."

Modern medicine is tireless in its search for diseases to conquer. Medical and dental teams tour the north, nutritional surveys are made and all curable cases are immediately admitted to an institution. Immunization of every child who can be reached is the aim in the fight against diphtheria, whooping cough, typhoidlike diseases and smallpox.

With medicine and modern science goes education which is reaching greater numbers yearly among the native population. They are being taught to protect themselves against disease and to avoid illness and its spread. This gospel of health is making its way through the Arctic lands. The white population feels its responsibility to spread the message of good health. The success which these efforts are meeting is encouraging.

APRIL

April, like the lass whose hair
Curled upon her forehead,
When she's not a shade too fair,
When she's not she's horrid.

April's smiles are fair to see,
April's tantrums frightful.
She can harsh as winter be
Or as May, delightful.

Blend of charmer and of shrew,
This there is no doubting,
Just as moody people do,
Often she'll sit pouting.

When her gentle side she shows
No one could be kinder,
But no lover ever knows
In what mood he'll find her.

NIGHT-HOUR BOOK SHOPS

Second-hand book shops have always had a fascination for me, as undoubtedly they have for thousands of others. The interesting bow humble there are always treasures hidden away, there, awaiting an alert eye and mind. The late Mitchell Kennerly once wrote a most interesting article about his "I'm cent book shelf," made up of books that he had picked up at second-hand book shops. I have many such in my collection.

Browsing in a second-hand book shop can be made a thrilling, fill-in occupation, and become a pleasant, enriching minor hobby. Even the E. V. Lucases forty years ago wrote his most interesting books and just such a shop, which he called "Over Bemerton's." Bemerton was the name of the shop, and Lucas's character had a room above it. In his book he points out how the great English statesman Gladstone, often a customer there who said: "The time for second-hand book shops is after one's work; the reading one's work. I should like to stroll round this way after the House rose, even in the small hours of morning and spend a quarter of an hour by your shelves."

The town in which I live happily has many shops like Bemerton's, and I have often dropped in after daytime work, silently within them, often emerging with some fortuitous treasure that has kept me up into the "wee sma' hours." I have found, for a book that still had its one dollar mark up at the first leaf. I envied that lucky chap who once got it at the nominal price. It took years to find a copy that I could afford. I later presented it to Dartmouth College. It was Melville's "Moby Dick!" Now an American classic.

Many an interesting, hair-raising and enriching library has helped to swell these second-hand book shops—and glory be to those who keep them open at midnight, when daytime workers can give them a visit. Many a reprimand has been received by a father of a late dinner arrival, because of these intriguing shops! But only a lover of books can understand and take such a reprimand in humility.

Said Charles Lamb: "There is more reason for saying grace before the House rose, even in the small

DOES IT MAKE ANY DIFFERENCE?

Sometimes as we listen to the preacher we get the idea that religion is a lot of fancy theories. We deal with realities—if we can call them realities—which have no connection with life. What the preacher says may be true but what difference does it make?

Religion never really gets anywhere until it begins to speak to us as individuals. Tom, Dick, and Harry religion is the only true religion. The God who notes the fall of a sparrow knows and knows us so well that the very hairs of our heads are numbered. He alone is worthy of worship.

Someone has said that the heart of religion is in its personal pronouns. Take the personal pronouns out of religion and you have philosophy. Keep the personal pronouns out of the Christian gospel and you have what makes the New Testament a gospel (or good news) evaporate and fade away. The fundamental teaching of our faith is that God cares, and that He cares so much for humanity in general but for you and me in particular.

God, from the philosophical standpoint, is the object of man's contemplation and speculation; from the religious standpoint He is the Father who has redeemed us from ourselves and our sins through Christ.

SHANGHAI GESTURE

This year, the Jewish Passover and the Christian Holy Week come at the same time, and this quirk of the calendar put me in mind of a story I heard in Shanghai a year and last February from an American soldier with stationed there.

The yarn concerns itself with a lad named Danny Bronstein who was stationed at Camp Shelby, Mississippi, in 1943 and was sent to Camp Barkley, Texas, where a medical unit was training for overseas duty.

One night during an after-taps bull session, the talk got around to religion, and one of the GI's said to Danny, "Give it to me straight. If you could be born again and have your choice would you want to be a Jew?"

Danny answered, "I was more curiosity than meanness in the question, so he gave a straight answer. "I'd still want to be a Jew," he said. "It's pretty fine religion, and we've had it pretty close to a lot of people who believe in it."

"You people really stick together, don't you?" said the corporal.

"Even rats stick together when they're in the same trap," Danny.

"Is that a comparison?" said the sergeant sarcastically.

"Don't put words in my mouth," said Danny. "I didn't say Jews were rats. All I'm saying is that everybody sticks together when they're in a tight spot."

The sergeant thought it over. "I get what you mean," he said, "and for once I'll let you get off. I always had you pegged as one of the wise guys."

"That makes it even," said the boy from New York. "I always had you pegged as one of the good Baptists."

The sergeant looked startled for a second, then grinned and stuck out his hand. "That was a pretty little joke on me to-day," he said. "Let's shake and forget it."

In 1945, after the war, Danny's medical unit was stationed in Shanghai, and not long after he ran across what was a DP camp filled with Jews who had escaped the China from Europe.

A few days before Passover, Danny told the sergeant that some of the Jewish boys in the outfit would like to observe the sixty traditional way, and asked whether it could be all right if they invited the DP's.

The DP's are outside Army jurisdiction," the friend, "but as for the boys in the outfit, I'm so glad to hear they're interested in the Old Man. What do you figure they'll need?"

Danny said they'd require a fairly large room, certain cooking utensils, and the ingredients of matzoths, the unleavened Passover bread.

"I don't think I can get you a hall," said the sergeant, "but maybe I can get you a plane hangar."

On Passover mornings, the Jewish soldiers went to the hangar to start their preparations, and by noon, 200 DP's had arrived, walked in with 200 DP's.

"The old Army can't have the authority to get them turned loose," he said, "but I figure it'll be much talking and cooking had to be done, and so he made a deal with the head of the camp to lend them to us as kitchen help."

Well, as I heard it in Shanghai, the DP's were so happy they kissed the sergeant's feet, literally cry or pray, and most of them stayed with the boys for all three days of the evening, shortly after the festivities began, almost every man in the outfit was celebrating in the top-brass to KP's stopped in to help the Jewish boys celebrate.

Naturally, the visitors were shy at first, but after a bit of everybody's wine they loosened up and even went through the motions of the ceremonies. Most of the soldiers are during the next few days a lot of the wrote to their folks and girl friends about the good time they had had.

On Sunday, by way of returning the courtesy, the Jewish soldiers attended the company's Easter services—and chances are a lot of them wrote home about the moving ceremony they had witnessed.

I guess it boils down to this: We people let their hair and prejudices down. It's possible for Passover and Easter to overlap, as sometimes, the assistance of the calendar.

Mackenzie's Column:

Red War Against Religion in East Being Stepped up

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The red war against religion is being stepped up in Eastern Europe.

We return to this subject because it is a vital aspect of the Russian crusade to communize the world. Success or failure of the communist offensive may hinge largely on this issue.

The high-ranking Catholic churchmen have gone on trial in Prague, charged with high treason and spying for the Vatican. A Communist paper in Rome says this indicates that the last of the faithful Roman Catholic leaders in Czechoslovakia "are about to be suppressed."

Bishop Gerald Ignatius Interna-tional of Court of Justice at The Hague has been put on trial in the satellites — Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria — most recently. The International Court of Justice in the United Nations and answer charges of violation of the Human Rights provisions of their peace treaties. These charges were brought by the United States and Britain, and were based on the trial of Cardinal Mindszenty in Hungary and the trials of other high churchmen in Romania and Bulgaria.

Of course there is no method of compelling the three satellites to answer the charges, and they may refuse to comply. However, The Hague decision will help focus world attention on the anti-religious activities in a Soviet-dominated areas.

Why this drive against religion? It's essential that we know the answer to that because atheism is one of the principal tenets of communism.

The red ism cannot tolerate religion because the latter condemns the sweeping violations of human rights which communism is building.

The Red Line

The basic attitude towards religion was made quite clear by Lenin in 1909. In a pamphlet paper "Komsomolskaya Pravda," organ of the Youth Organization of "Komsomol." Lenin was a member of the organization wrote the following to Gorki:

"I intend to marry a girl who is not a member of the Komsomol, and I am not sure she would marry in church. Please tell me whether I can remain a member."

The newspaper published a reply that a church marriage would not be a direct violation of Komsomol statutes and would be an unprincipled action only in going to communist morals. It added:

"But, of course, religious beliefs are deeply alien to our convictions and basically opposed to the Soviet conception of education."

There is no longer any doubt that communism is out to kill all religions. Hitler undertook the same job, but he failed in the end—as religion interfered with his schemes. The communists stole the idea from communism.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

In many Canadian communities, the taxi business is unique in that it appears to be doing well despite the anti-social convenience of its owners and operators. Yet the taxi business is one of the few urban and transportation systems serving the public. Railroads, airlines, shipping lines and bus companies are subjected to such control by the public and governmental agencies that they are obliged to engage in business only of proven capacity to operate them.

The public should not expect taxi drivers to be saints, nor even taxi drivers to be business men. But the public has the right to expect that those who manage taxicab businesses shall be fit persons to be a certain standard as business men.

Not having to live up to any schedule, such as railways and airlines do, taxicabs as a means of public transportation work to a very flexible program. They are always on the job, always ready to respond to pick-up calls from the pedestrians. Others proceeds, between trips, to officially designated "stands" where they public can find them—at hotels, railroad stations and at theatres and other places of entertainment. The taxi is therefore evidently a lively taxi service at hand for the every householder and phones for a taxi, the service is often highly unreliable.

Because confusion offered whenever a taxi is late or, which is not infrequent, fails to show up at all, are easily concocted. They got the wrong address. Or they get the right address by accident. It is a business in which mistakes are made easily and handily.

It may be the taxi business prefers the cruising and the down-town "stand" trade. It is a comfortable sort of catch-as-catch-can business. It is much less trouble than making appointments and having to keep them. That requires management. But the taxi business too often is one which appears to lack competent managers.

WHAT TO DO ABOUT RINGWORM

Although the fungi which cause ringworm are not highly resistant to acid to life, they do cause stubborn diseases of the skin of various parts of the body. When it became known that a comparatively harmless simple acid cure for disease it seemed that cure should be a simple matter. Experience has proved the contrary.

The mere fact that a drug may readily destroy fungous growth or bacterial growth—in a test tube or culture—is no reason in itself why it should successfully treat a disease caused by organisms (germs, bacteria, fungi) involved. If the various disease-causing organisms would wither up and die in the body as they do outside expedient of squirting some antiseptic or germicide on them, we would have few deaths from infectious diseases to account for further research in this field.

An antiseptic or germicide can have but little effect upon germs it can not reach. Dousing an infected area of the skin with an antiseptic or germicide is somewhat similar to a rain storm in a city. They few germs which have already lodged beneath the superficial layer of the skin are mechanically unaffected by drugs applied to the overlying surface.

Ringworm, however, affects only the superficial layers of the skin. Many cures for ringworm have shown that powerful germicides and antiseptics themselves, do not cure the disease.

As a matter of fact, ringworm is often complicated by injury to the skin through the use of powerful remedies. Some powerful remedies advertised to the public as the "answer" to the ringworm problem, have succeeded in bringing the victim to the doctor as a result of injury to the skin and more persistant than the original complaint.

Recently the application of strong, skin-destroying remedies has given way to the use of drugs containing an acid which the skin normally manufactures, about. It has been found that the optimum amount of this acid which successfully combats ringworm of the body and of the skin, has been curative without damaging or irritating the skin.

The use of his drug is known to every physician who treats diseases of the skin. I do not mention the name of the drug because I do not wish to encourage self-prescribing. Further, the drug is so well known in the medical profession that it is unnecessary to write to me about it.

This drug is applicable both to ringworm of the body and of the

Editor,
Intelligencer,

Of the United Empire Loyalists who arrived in Belleville there was Captain John Walden Myers. He served during the Revolutionary War 1776-83 as an intelligence officer, going about the country gathering information for the benefit of the officer in command, and sometimes came into the firing line. He commissioned a Captain in the British army in 1812, and in 1816 he was made a Freemason in the City of Quebec, receiving his master degree in the capital city of that province.

When he settled in Belleville with the other Loyalists, he took part in the formation of a Masonic Lodge in the City of Kingston, Provincial Grand Lodge. Myers had some misunderstanding respecting to be made Masons walked on Belleville to Kingston to apply to the Provincial Grand Lodge for a dispensation for a Masonic Lodge in Myers Creek, and he and his fellow members walked back to Belleville, which was then known as Myers Creek.

There are now one thousand Freemasons in the Province of Ontario. The Lodge was first named Thurlow Lodge and met in the tavern kept by the late John Simpson who was also a United Empire Loyalist. The tavern was burned down in the early part of 1813, destroying the Charter of the Lodge. A new Charter was obtained and a new name given to the Lodge, "Hiram's," the number four on the Provincial list. The name Moira was adopted in honor of a young nobleman who was in the Revolutionary War who was also a Mason, namely, the Earl of Moira.

The Earl of Moira afterward became Prince Regent, Grand Master Masonic Lodge of England, the King being actual Grand Master. The Earl of Moira subsequently was created the Marquis of Hastings and made Viceroy of India. He was an Irishman and came from the North of Ireland. Ireland. The name of his title is not only still preserved in one of the Belleville Lodges, but is also preserved in the name of the river that runs through it, namely, Lodge No. 4 Masonic Lodge in the City of Lon England and Moira River.

The late Captain John Walden Myers was a friend and brother Mason of the late Captain John Walden Myers died in 1821 and left a bequest of £12,000. In his lifetime he built at Belleville the first house erected in Front Street, now Bridge Street. Upper Canada and stood on the brow of the hill overlooking the Bay. James St., and was taken down in 1876.

It was also erected the first industry in what is now Belleville, namely, a flour mill and saw mill River and produced much of the lumber for the homes of Myers Creek, now Belleville. A son-in-law of Captain John Walden Myers, namely, John S. Bleecker was the founder of the Town of Trenton. Ladies' Night At Y's Men's Club Much Enjoyed

It was not good enough merely to be satisfied with a successful personality the one goal in life should be personality triumphant, stated Dr. Philip Pincoffs of Toronto, who was the guest speaker of the annual Ladies' Night of the Y's Men's Club of the Y.M.C.A. Dr. Duncan also made a clear distinction between happiness and joy indicating that the latter was the goal to be desired. Happiness he stated was something from the outside whereas joy was created from within as a part of the whole being. The thanks of the audience to the speaker for his humorous presentation and sound reasoning were expressed by W. R. Richardson and William Holway. A. Ross Booth made the introductions.

A. C. Hunter of Toronto Regional Director of Y'sdom, spoke with wit and a challenge as afforded every Y'man to be of service for the YMCA and the community. He was introduced by Gordon H. Trill. In the course of the Regional Director's remarks he called the executive to the front for an induction office.

Besides the president Gerald B. Hyde who was elected to serve a second term were the following: L. R. Buck, past president; Rev. Roger C. Amos, vice president; A. Ross Booth, Secretary; J. Bryson Leslie, Treasurer; and Directors: Roy Best, Al. J. Davis, Earle G. Mason, Gordon Trill and Donald G. Williams.

Reviews Years Work

In his presidential address Y's-man Hyde reviewed the accomplishments of the past year. The weekly programs he said much had been accomplished, in addition to outstanding spectacs, highlight programs included the municipal night with civic officials present and the visit of the Peterborough Club.

Money raising projects were particularly noteworthy not only for the fact that they provided nearly $2,500 for support of Y.M.C.A. directed activities but they also provided exceptional entertainment and service to the community. The annual Radio Auction and the visit of the Canadiens hockey team were outstanding in this regard.

In work projects the renovation of the auditorium, fitting up the Craft room, supplying targets for Camp tag day, providing workers for the Red Feather Community Chest campaign, purchase of canoe for camp, the "Y" membership counselling, the sponsorship of the Father and Son banquet and the purchase of a piano for the Y.M.C.A. were a few of the accomplishments. The club is also providing bowling and assisting the Y.M.C.A. in serving local members of the Institute for the Blind.

Extends Beyond Community

Interest of the club has extended beyond the local community President Hyde stated as indicated through World Service support for Y.M.C.A. work and other appeals for youth through the United Nations and International Y'sdom.

Featuring the club's social programs the president referred to the Christmas party, the president's birthday party, the annual ladies' night, the visit to Moira Lake Camp, and the Lawn Bowling party.

Concluding his remarks President Hyde issued two challenges. A club of 50 would by members in 1950 and committees functioning as working forces in the club were his request.

Head table guests included the president and Miss Margaret McLean, Dr. Philip Duncan, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hunter, Rev. and Mrs. Don C. Amos, Rev. and Mrs. Oscar E. Wagar, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. J. Bryson Leslie, Mr. and Mrs. A. Ross Booth, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Buck, Mr. Willis Hutchison and Miss Ruth Brintnell.

Visitors Welcomed

These guests and special guests as representing the various service clubs and the board of Directors of the Y.M.C.A. were appropriately introduced by Y'man Robbie Clarke. The latter guests were Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Mott, Mr. J. Ryan, Miss Dorothy Strudwick, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Franklin, Mr. and Mrs. Norman C. Edwards and Mr. and Mrs. T. Caton. The appreciation of the guests was expressed by Mr. Mott.

A beautiful lamp and a framed scroll of appreciation for his invaluable service to the club was presented to Wing Commander Frank Nichols who along with his merited promotion has been transferred to Ottawa.

Photographs were presented to the club executive by the president. The ladies were recipients of corsages and beautiful and varied jewelry pieces. The evening was concluded with dancing.

Friends Honor 25th Anniversary With Pleasing Gifts

A delightful time was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Bishop, Earl Street, Saturday when their many friends gathered to honor them on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary, which occurred on March 31st.

The rooms were charmingly decorated with white wedding bells and white streamers, while the lace-covered table was centred with a beautifully decorated wedding cake, topped by a tiny bride and groom, made by a friend of the family, Miss Rita Foster. This was flanked by silver candles in silver holders presented to Mr. and Mrs. Bishop, by their son, Donald.

The evening was spent in cards with the winners being, Mrs. K. Young and Mrs. J. Milligan, Mr. C. Finnigan, and Mr. Jack Faulkner.

Following the toast to the bride by Mr. "Cy" Young, to which the bridegroom responded, Mr. Harold Trapnell read the address, and Miss Edna Faulkner, on behalf of the assembled friends, presented the bride and bridegroom with a lovely silver basket filled with dark red roses, and Miss Rita Faulkner, a silver coffee pot matching in design, the silver tea service which the bridegroom had presented to his bride, in honor of their 25 years of happiness together.

Birthday Party Featured by Gift Of China Tea Service

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Doxtator recently opened their spacious home for a birthday party in honor of their friend and neighbor, Mrs. Joseph F. Huff.

The 45 or more guests felt honored to show their esteem for Mrs. Huff by sharing this enjoyable evening with her.

Soon after the arrival of the guest, Mrs. Fred Barlow called the gathering to attention after which she voiced the sentiments of those present. Then Mrs. Huff was presented with a china tea service as well as other gifts and cards.

After unwrapping her gifts, Mrs. Huff graciously thanked all those who had made this such a memorable day for her.

The remainder of the evening was spent in a social time after which refreshments were served.

As the guests departed, they expressed their wishes that Mrs. Huff would enjoy many more birthdays and many years of good health and happiness.

Beautiful Veiled Hat

By ALICE ALDEN

Beautiful veils in lovely colors, interesting weaves and with whimsical touches, are a starring role in the newest series of spring millinery. Chanda does it with one of her typically neat little numbers, replete with color. It is a suit hat, a pink babiburnal fedora bound in cerise grosgrain. A filmy cloud of Shetland veil, beautifully spotted with a violet entwined in its meshes, is drawn smoothly over the face.

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

When a Solomon debutante finds a husky-haired brave who sets her primitive heart afluttter, she rushes at once to the nearest oven. There she begins to bake for her boy friend piles of the sweetest cookies and the richest cakes she ever learned at mamma's clay oven. She promotes herself with pastry.

Civilized romance generally doesn't depend so completely on the outcome of a layer cake. But the ability of any housewife to produce warm home-baker desserts is an incalculable asset which men, women and children have always acknowledged.

Maple glazed doughnuts depend for their tenderness on a light dough that isn't handled in touch. Like pie or biscuit dough, you should roll it lightly so that it can be cut in uniformity thick pieces. The question of what to do with the ecstacies of the doughnuts is best answered by frying them without further handling which can only toughen them.

Remember to use hot, clean fat in a deep saucepan for frying doughnuts. If the doughnuts sink and do not rise to the surface in a few moments, it means your fat is not hot enough. Use a fat thermometer for best results.

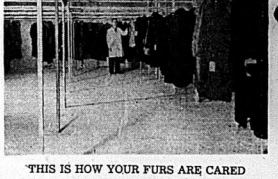
Maple Glazed Doughnuts

Measure, after sifting, 3 3-4 cups all-purpose flour. Sift measured flour with 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon powdered mace, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon and 1 teaspoon salt.

Cream 3 tablespoons shortening with the back of a spoon until smooth. Gradually add 1 cup granulated sugar, beating until light. Add 2 eggs, one at a time, beating well after each egg. Beat light and fluffy.

Combine 1 cup milk with 1-2 teaspoon vanilla. Add the flour and milk mixtures alternately to the egg mixture, stirring until smooth. Roll mixture out on a well floured board until 1-2 inch thick.

Cut with a doughnut cutter. Fry in deep fat heated to 375 degrees. Fry 3 to 5 minutes, turning once. Fry doughnuts centres until brown on both sides. Drain on absorbent paper.



To make maple glaze: Heat 2 tablespoons maple syrup and 1 tablespoon butter until butter melts. Remove from fire. Add 1 teaspoon maple extract. Gradually add 1 1-4 cups sifted confectioner's sugar, beating until smooth. Spread on doughnuts.

Maple glaze may be omitted and doughnuts rolled in powdered sugar.

SWEET PEAS IN YOUR GARDEN

With wings of gentle flush o'er delicate white,
And taper fingers catching at all things
To bind them all about with tiny wings."

This lovely annual will repay the care you give it with gorgeous bloom. There is a wide range of solid, striped and mottled colours and all are delightfully scented.

While Fall planting gives good results there is an old notion which says Sweet Peas should be planted on Good Friday. This simply means as soon as the ground thaws because the plants grow best in cool, moist weather. Earlier bloom can be attained by planting in a flat 24" long by 12" wide and set in a house window. This will hold about 100 plants in paper pots or a double row fifty feet long if planted one foot apart.

A simple method to insure seed germination is to nick the seed opposite the growing point then place in a half inch of moist sand. They will germinate in a week and can then be planted in small pots to grow. Supporting is necessary and the ideal method is illustrated. The soil should be well prepared using well decayed manure. Avoid acid soil and give the ground a liberal dressing of lime which should be mixed with loam and humus to a depth of 18" to two feet.

Mulch the ground well in dry weather with decayed leaves or straw, cut commonly and pick the blooms continuously. If plant lice appear spray the plants with a nicotine solution.

Dude College

Several times he looked at us, almost as if in enquiry, but in a moment she shifted back to English.

"No, no," she smiled again. "Is better I speak English and learn it as it perfectly. It is more difficult than Spanish, and I want to be known. Otherwise—you proctors shall make it hard for me at college, eh?"

If you promise to speak Spanish when I visit your home. Lona would put some day go with me to the ranch of Chicen Itza, in beautiful old Sinaloa! Just sightsee."

"Would love it; I have been there many time, Wesley, but—"

"You have? Buenos! Hagame usted el favor de—"

"Yes! But to go with you —oh Weslee-ee-e!"

She said that last with such fervor as to startle him. Obviously she wanted very much to avoid further Spanish conversation; and besides, she had made a statement that—

His thoughts were interrupted here because Lona had actually snuggled closer to him! And in all his life few if any women had been snuggled close Wesley Yoh.

Already sitting very close to him, she had made a slight movement to get even closer. Her soft shoulder wiggled his, and she snuggled just a little—not intimately, with a knowing look at all at once he was conscious of her as a real flesh-and-blood girl.

Glanced at her costume. She wore a riding outfit consisting of turquoise-green jodhpurs and a crimson shift. Boots were short cowboy style, and strong. She had a belt of hand-tooled leather concha linked with rawhide strings and a pistol holster belt over her hips. She was definitely pretty.

"Weslee, we could be friends, yes?"

"Of course, Lona. I—uh, wish every one to—to—uh—"

He realized he wasn't going very smoothly, but then he was ill at ease. He had come out snooping, not courting, and the mystery surrounding her had been enhanced. She had flatly stripped herself in discussing the famous ruin of Chicen Itza, which is not in-the state of Sinaloa at all; and she, a self-avowed Mexican had shied off her own language after muffing common dialects and idiomatic phrases.

He'll at once she broke up his thoughts again; indeed, she loss, but the sentimental, the fact that his newly discovered resting place was suddenly consumed.

Andra arrived to find four trucks there, and several other men talking to Ronnie and her dad.

"We heard you aimed to rebuild out of this red sandstone Mr. Bailey," one man, obviously a rancher, was saying. "So we just thought we'd give a little of it over to you fo our spare time, like."

"Thank you," he said, "I appreciate your offer, but I'll be glad to pay you gentlemen whatever you wish for your work, and—"

"Hold on! I didn't say it clear, I reckon sir. We didn't come here hunting pay. We—well, the fact is Mr. Bailey, we was trying to be neighbourly. Now out here in the southwest, when a man gits burnt out why we all mostly pitch in and help rebuild him, see? It don't take hardly no time and wons that away. No sir, we couldn't take no pay."

Mr. Bailey just stared. Ronica, who had been with him, made a gesture as if to touch the rancher tenderly and her eyes suddenly were misty.

"We know you got enough money and all that," the rancher went on, "but that ain't it, Mr. Bailey. Fact is, people sort have comin' to like you and Miss Ronica. You got five cowboys on your pay roll. They told around what sort you was. Now, out here—"

"Thank you," Thomas U. Bailey sort of rumbled that. His voice wouldn't behave very well. "I can't say that in New York . . . I can't buy that any where in God's world, gentlemen! . . .—I—I want to shake you hands."

The scene apparently touched Andra strangely also.

When he had looked approvingly at plans for a large roughly drawn for the new ranch home, he took Ronnie in his car and drove the eight miles in to town with her. As he parked at Wilson's Indian Trading Post he turned to the girl at his side.

"Ronnie," said he, "I can't very well back in rocks to build with, but I want you to know that I feel just like those ranch men. And I can show a little of my feeling. Now you have said that the new house will be furnished with authentic Spanish and Indian things—no come in!"

They went in the store—which was more like a museum, in truth—and Fred Wilson in person came to shake hands and invite them to look around. Ronica was fingering some brand new Navajo rugs, but Andre turned suddenly to a huge drum that stood near.

The drum was large, as Indian tom-toms go. This one was Apache made, Mr. Wilson said. It was two feet across and nearly three feet high, a barrel-shaped thing with heavy rawhide stretched and laced over each end and painted with Indian designs. With the accompanying drumstick Andre thumped out a crude oom-pom, oom-oom. The tone was deep, commanding. Suddenly Andre brightened.

"Remember the business associate I introduced you to down in Guaymas, Mexico? Do you Ronnie? The man named Pico?"

"Yes. Why?"

"He'd love this. He has a new hacienda on the edge of town, big home like yours will be. He asked me to keep an eye open for real Indian things. If you also like it we can order two."

"Oh, he all means get it for him, Andre, You are so thoughtful!"

He purchased the drum —$35. And then he moved to the jewelry case. Wilson, a picturesque gray-haired gentleman who had expert knowledge of Indian crafts and artistry, showed him hand-wrought bracelets and rings of silver set with turquoise, with petrified wood, with tourmaline and all manner of native semi-precious stones. He purchased the prettiest ring and bracelet set for Ronica.

When he observed which Navajo rugs Ronica admired most, Andre ordered them for her, and then they discovered a great arm chair made skillfully of the light but astonishingly strong ribs from sahuaro cactus, Andre ordered that especially for Mr. Bailey.

Ronnie looked up at him. "You are just too generous, Andre. I know dad will love you for it, though."

She wandered down the store to inspect a collection of Mexican and Indian dolls hanging there, and kindly Mr. Wilson smiled at Andre and said confidentially, "She's a very lovely miss, isn't she?"

Andre acknowledged the compliment by nodding. "The 'Miss' is temporary however. I shall change that in a day or two, Wilson. I know how to pick 'em? Eh Wilson?"

His open conceit seemed almost to have a nasty smirk to it, as that Wilson looked up in surprise. But the storekeeper just repeated courteously, "a very lovely girl."

Mrs. W. Elliott Gives Travelogue Talk On Florida Trip

Madoc Junction, Apr. 3 — Last Friday afternoon, Mrs. Walter Elliott and mother, Mrs. W. Preston, of Stirling, by request of the teacher, Miss E. Chidmer, visited the school here. Mrs. Elliott gave a very interesting talk on her recent trip to Florida, during January and February, which was greatly enjoyed by the pupils.

The devotional period was in keeping with the Lenten season with Mrs. J. Bribbin taking the Scripture reading.

During the business part of the meeting arrangements were made for a cooking school to be held sometime in May. As is customary each year a donation will be given to the Hospital Auxiliary to provide comforts for indigent patients in the local hospital.

Mrs. C. Templer introduced Miss Helen Sulman who gave four humorous readings which were much enjoyed.

Mrs. P. Townley's group served refreshments.

SISTERS ALL

News that Queen Mary is about to offer her beautiful needlepoint rug for auction in the U.S., to help the dollar shortage in Britain, is just another indication of the leadership which a nation's First Family can give its people. The Queen has worked on this masterpiece for eight years, it is said to be one of her most prized personal possessions . . . No, Queen Mary does not fritter her time away — she is always busy with some work in the interests of other people.

How many of us, at over 80 years of age, or under 80 for that matter, spend time in some worthwhile project? It's so easy to sit back and let the world go by. Wasted hours, idle hands, bored brains—these are the big liabilities of life. They clog the channels to achievement and block progress, like twitch grass in a garden.

A best man passed on a amusing bit of philosophy over the bridge table the other night. Referring to a recent wedding, he said that half an hour before the church ceremony, his bridegroom began to break under nervous strain . . . "Cheer up, old pal," said the best man, "the ceremony's not going to be tough." To which the quivering groom replied, "But Cliff, it's not the ceremony I'm nervous about, I think I'll enjoy that. Right now, it's the permanency of the whole thing that gives me the willies."

There's nothing like dropping in on China Town after an afternoon movie for a feast of chicken chow mein, sweet and sour spare ribs, chicken livers and pineapple—all polished off with chop sticks and Chinese tea. One little spot close to Elizabeth Street in Toronto is a favorite of Chinese and Chinese food connoisseurs alike . . . Its scrubbed floors are clean as clean can be, and the Chinese waiters in their white coats are likeable and friendly.

Here, there are no line-ups. People eat in a leisurely way. It is a delightful refuge from the self-serve rush and the impending hungry mass of restaurant hoppers. In this corner of China town you eat your meal next a Chinese laundryman or perhaps near a whole Chinese family celebrating an anniversary. Maybe the editor of the Chinese Times will drop in or the Chinese Consul.

But there are Canadians too—for China Town is a popular eating place for university professors and professors students, stage actors, the radio and press crowd just the other day we saw a familiar celebrity enjoying the plainness and the friendliness of this small Chinese chow house. He was the distinguished Canadian playwright, Robertson Davies himself.

Out of the way places, like China Town, are the haunts of the artists, the writers, the literary geniuses, the scientists—the big and little people who refuse to submit to routine, the ordinary the cold assembly lines of this age. These people look upon cooking as an art. They prefer to enjoy that art in plain, simple quiet surroundings far from the fury of Main Street.

The guest speaker of the evening was Mrs. Laing of the Children's Aid Society who gave an interesting account of their work in Prince Edward County.

Mrs. R. Minaker, former teacher in Consecon school, was called to the front and suitably presented with a gift from the pupils.

The guests were then invited into the high school room for refreshments. A vote of thanks was moved to all the Consecon teachers for their hospitality.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

y this off-again on-again romance worth while?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 36 years old and divorced, and have been going for three years with a man of 34 who has never been married.

He sees me only weekends and special holidays. He has never taken me to his own home, but I have met his mother, and have been at the homes of his married brother and sisters.

His mother is not very well, and his father is dead, so that he is the main support of the family. After his father died two years ago he told me that he would be the last one to leave home. He has two sisters and one brother younger than himself who are all single.

What I want to know is, should I wait for him or is he just wasting my time? We have broken off at least six times and he has always come back. I am old enough now to know what I want, and I never cared for anyone as I do for him. But do you think he ever intends to marry me?

E. D.

Dear E.D.:

It is perfectly possible that this man has the kind of exaggerated conscience which makes him believe he should continue to support his younger sisters and brother until they marry and leave someone else to look out for them. At the same time, it is pretty hard on a woman like yourself to have to wait indefinitely to find out whether it is his conscience or his lack of desire to marry you which is holding him back.

I think you will have to decide whether your feeling for him is such that you prefer to do this waiting rather than break off permanently with him and go on your way.

You will end up being a nervous wreck of yourself, however, if you keep on breaking off and then making up. If you break up again, I advise you to make it for good. If you do feel you want to wait a while longer, however, resolve to be patient, and stop bickering with him.

When the widow or widower marries again

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Is it proper for a widow or a widower of less than a year's time to be married in church even if they are marrying some one who has never been married before? Should they accept invitations to dinners or parties of any kind given in honor of their coming wedding?

I would think they should have a more quiet wedding, especially if they have children, as in this case.

M. P.

Dear M.P.:

As a rule, when a person is being married for the second time, it is in better taste to do it quietly. Dinners and other parties to celebrate a coming marriage are usually reserved for young people who have never been married before. Even in the case of a wedding between older people who are marrying for the first time, it is usually a little more appropriate, not to make too much fuss about it.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beekman

Making the best of an unpleasant situation

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

1. My younger sister is to be married shortly, and she has asked me to take, in her wedding, the part our mother would have taken had she lived. My sister has been reared by an aunt, but this aunt has absolutely refused to take any part in any of the wedding preparations. Therefore, since this unpleasantness exists, could I properly issue the invitations in my name? If you say that I may, what wording would be appropriate? I am married, live many miles from my hometown, and some of the guests who will be invited I know well as a child, but I haven't seen them for many years. The wedding is to be small and informal, and my sister would like to have a wedding breakfast following the ceremony, for this small group of guests. For this breakfast she has been offered the use of a small hall connected to her church.

2. About this breakfast. Would it be proper to serve it buffet style? If it is, what is the proper place for the bride and groom?

3. At an informal reception of this kind could we dispense with the receiving-line, since those to whom guests are all close friends of the bride and groom?

We'd be so grateful for any suggestions you'll give us! Thank you.

P. H.

1. This is a sweet and appealing request your sister has made to you, and of course you must do everything possible to make the day a happy and memorable one for her and her bridegroom. First, however no matter what the reason for the "unpleasantness" between your aunt and your sister, I seriously urge you to urge your sister to explain every plan, straightforwardly and as devotedly as she possibly can under the circumstances, to her aunt who has generously shared her home with her during these years. You must bring every possible influence on her to be considerate and loyal, to do everything possible to bring about a reconciliation, even at the last minute. Your aunt must be told when the wedding is to be, must be invited to attend — and if she does doesn't do this, you as older sister, as niece, and as hostess of the wedding, should.

Your notes of invitation might read somewhat like this:

Dear Ruth,

My sister Frances and George Griggs are to be married on Saturday, (date), in Grace Church, at twelve o'clock, and we all hope that you and Phil will come to the church for the ceremony afterward to a simple wedding breakfast in the small hall adjoining the church. It's to be a small, informal wedding, and we hope you two dear friends will tell us you'll be there.

Dearest greetings from Fred and me, and we're looking forward to seeing you on the tenth.

Devotedly,

2. By all means plan to have the easy informality of buffet service. It's not necessary to have a bride's table, not customary with such informality.

3. Please have a receiving-line, a short, informal one. This will not only register that the wedding is "sponsored" by you, but also gives a dramatic beginning to the festivities, before the breakfast. You, as hostess, stand first in the line; next, if possible, the groom's mother; next, the groom and at his right, the bride; then her attendant, or first, maid of honor, then bridesmaids. This gives charm and dignity to the occasion, and shouldn't be omitted because all the guests are intimate friends of the bride and groom. (If your aunt changes her mind about participating, invite her to stand first in the line, and you might stand next to her.)

Casual to Go Anywhere

By PRUNELLA WOOD

The fabric is news in this Spring 1950 dress designed by Claire McCardell, who consistently gets out fashion bulletins on her models, of themselves.

It is a new linen-like rayon weave cloth, treated to be wrinkle resistant, and good-looking in the usual expectancy of colors for linen.

Fashion Flashes

THE WAR between fruit and flower trimming for new Spring hats goes merrily on its way, leaving the field open for the ribbon-trimmed model. Natural shantung baku makes a pretty bonnet with a softly curved, forward-posed brim, with a big cluster bow of picot-edged green taffeta ribbon as trimming.

THERE'S NEWS in the lingerie world, what with the introduction of permanent pleating for slips. Nylon tricot is used for a slip that is made completely of permanent pleating. It is belted and bordered with nylon lace and closes with a tiny pearl-button-fastened placket.

INCREASING in beauty and charm all the time are half-size fashions. A beauty, in navy or black silk taffeta, has a simple, closing and is done on soft shirt-flared silhouette with step-in waist line. One side of the bodice is worked in shell tucks, balanced by similar detail on the opposite side of the skirt.

INDISPENSABLE to the well-rounded wardrobe of the busy woman is the well-handled silk suit. White window-pane checks on navy blue taffeta makes a pretty suit. The jacket top has a rolled collar and flat triangular pockets bordered with bias strips of the fabric. Self buttons and fairly full skirt.

NOT SO MANY full-length coats about for Spring, but those on order are very smart. Navy blue wool jersey, cut on slender lines, makes a handsome coat. A deep, rounded cape collar is lined in red wool jersey, and there is red lining, too, for the big catch pocket that juts out on one hip.

NEW HANDLING gives additional interest and appael to fox. Pearl platinum fox, spaced with bands of matching silk crepe, makes a fitted tunic coat that is very attractive.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Eyeful of beauty

If you have eyes of pleasing contour— neither too round nor too long—and if there is charm and warmth of coloring, you are lucky. If you haven't, there is sparkling beauty that you can create. After all, expression counts most. You can talk with your eyes. They can beckon the best feller to come hither. They can suggest suspicion, coldness or contempt. Better see that they behave nicely. Other people read them at a glance.

When you can't read a name in the phone book, you must do something about your eyes.

Take care of them, be good to them, and they will be good to you. The way some of us abuse our eyes is a crying shame—and crying is the right word. We read and sew in a dim light. Because of vanity, many of us put off wearing glasses. The result is eyestrain, and eyestrain brings horrid by-products— nervousness, headaches, squint lines, lemon-ade dispositions.

You should bathe your eyes as well as protect them. So says the eye specialist. Use warm water, then cold. Have your druggist supply you with a standard eye lotion. Use it when your hard-working blinkers are tired, or when they have been subjected to dust. If you apply it with an eye cup, use fresh lotion each time.

We hear a good deal of talk about eye exercises. Interviewing a specialist on that subject, your reporter was told that normal eyes need no rest rather than more work. He warns us not to think that we can correct defects of the optic mechanism by exercise. They call for professional attention instead of self treatment.

Imperfections in the size and shape of the eyes may result in nearsightedness or farsightedness, as the case may be. When these conditions are not corrected, the eye endeavors to adjust itself; by so doing it subjects its various structures to strain. By expressing discomfort, the eyes are appealing for help that usually can be had when proper glasses are prescribed.

Ottimes eyestrain may give rise to no painful symptoms other than weakened vision. If the day comes when you have difficulty in threading a needle or reading a name in the telephone book, it is high time for you to take the matter in hand, consult a medical man who specializes in treatment of the eyes, if he says you are due to wear specs, don't argue the subject. Get them and wear them. They will not only give you better sight, but they may provide you with a rosier view of life in general, as poor vision often has a deplorable effect upon the nervous system.

Deputy Minister Has Full Powers To Sign Forms

Ottawa, April 3 (CP)-- Revenue Minister McCann need no longer fear that he will suffer from winter's cramp. The Ontario Supreme Court ruled Saturday that a deputy minister is, a government department has full powers to sign departmental forms and notices.

The judgment upheld an appeal by the Crown against the acquittal some weeks ago of Jack Morris of Hurdman's Bridge, Ont. on a charge of failing to supply additional information to the income tax department.

Morris had been acquitted on a technicality when he successfully pleaded that the form asking for the additional information had been signed by the deputy minister, instead of the minister of the revenue department.

Government officials said that had the judgment stood, cabinet minister would have to spend almost all their time signing forms.

AWAIT VERDICT IN CARIBBEAN DISPUTES

The organization of American States, meeting April 5, will act on recommendations of a five-nation investigating committee which accuses Guatemala, Cuba and the Dominican Republic of plots, conspiracies and attempted invasions which have kept the Caribbean area in turmoil for three years. The committee discounts counter-charges by the Dominion Republic against Haiti, which is the complaining nation.

Liberal Party Convention Has Been Postponed

Toronto, April 3—(CP)— The management committee of the Ontario Liberal Association decided Saturday to postpone, for the present, its party convention to choose a successor to Farquhar Oliver, member of the legislative for Grey South, who resigned the party leadership last October. Mr. Oliver continues to lead the party in the legislature.

When Mr. Oliver announced his desire to resign the post it was believed a party convention would be held in April or May but the committee, meeting in closed session, was understood to have decided that a convention would not be held until next autumn.

A leadership committee which is canvassing the field for possible candidates was instructed to continue its work. So far only one candidate has announced he will seek the leadership—C. C. Calder, member of the legislature for London. The committee was reported Sunday night to have about 10 names on its list of possible candidates. Two federal ministers have been mentioned in this connection. Health Minister Martin, of Windsor, and Citizenship Minister, Harris, of Markdale, Ont.

One Dead, Eight Injured in $1,000,000 Fire

Wilmington, Del., April 3 — (AP) — A fire, probably the worst in the history of this city, swept through an entire city block and portions of another Sunday. Fire officials estimated the damage at $1,000,000.

One death and eight injuries were attributed to the general alarm fire, which destroyed the mammoth lumber yard of the Wilmington Sash and Door Company, where the flames originated. A total of 18 homes in the area were either damaged or destroyed.

Virtually every piece of fire apparatus in Northern Delaware, supplemented by companies from nearby Pennsylvania communities, was thrown into the battle which seemed almost hopeless by beyond the best efforts of hundreds of fire-fighters in its early stages.

Benedictines Still Protest Allied Bombing

By GEORGE.BRIA

Cassino, Italy, April 3 (AP)—"The Germans were never here." Five years after the war the black-cowled Benedictines of Monte-Cassino still bitterly protest that the Allied bombing of their abbey was unjustified.

The monks are doubly resentful. They claim that the wartime "Voice of America" broadcast promises that the abbey, high on a hill dominating the Cassino battlefield, would be rebuilt with United States aid.

"All we've received from America is about $7,000...contributed by Benedictine orders after the war," said youthful Father Girolamo, who briskly shows visitors the fast moving reconstruction now going on, largely through Italian government assistance.

Father Girolamo said the "constant question" of visitors is "were the Germans here?"

"We'll insist forever that the Germans were not in the abbey because that's the truth, Father Girolamo said. "The secret German position was a munitions depoit in a cave 50 metres (100 feet) away. A couple of German tanks occasionally moved on the road near the abbey walls."

Founded in 529

The Monastery, founded by St. Benedictine in 529, was destroyed three times by war and earthquake before the allied bombardment pulverized it March 15, 1944. Ten monks were there at the time but none was hurt. Italian refugees were less fortunate. Several hundred were killed.

The monks claim the Germans moved into the abbey after the bombing and fortified the ruins. The hill was captured in May 1944, by Gen. Wladislaw Anders' Polish troops, 1,080 of whom now lie in a military cemetery on the slope facing the abbey.

If a visitor is amazed at the reconstruction job already done, Father Girolamo warns him that appearances are deceptive. Walls of church, monastery and refectory are standing again, but the monk points out: "It's only a shell."

Take Another 10 Years

It may take another 10 years, he said, to rebuild the interior of the buildings whose treasures made the abbey one of the artistic wonders of the world.

If little American aid has gone to the abbey, much, on the other hand, has gone into rebuilding the town of Cassino in the valley below. Largely through the European recovery program the ruins of war are fading and the town is rising again.

Acting Mayor Pietro Malatesta estimated 40 percent of Cassino is rebuilt and 17,000 of the original 25,000 inhabitants are back in town.

Five thousand British troops who died in the Battle of Cassino and the surrounding area are buried in a huge cemetery on the outskirts of town. American dead lie at Nettuno cemetery near Anzio.

Would Involve Company Officers Says Official

Ottawa, April 3—(CP)—W. J. Turnbull, deputy postmaster-general, said Sunday night that the post office considered officers of companies denied use of the mails to be "part of the whole set-up."

He was commenting on a news dispatch from Toronto Saturday that at least 82 persons in Toronto had been denied use of the mails by a special order of Postmaster-General Rinfret. The Toronto report said the mail ban "has been inflicted upon business men who have never tried to sell a share of stock either in Canada or the United States."

Mr. Turnbull, who confirmed a week ago that use of the mails has been denied to 12 Toronto concerns, said there have been no new developments in the situation.

"This is just the same thing I confirmed a week ago," said Mr. Turnbull. He added that he did not know offhand how many individuals connected with the companies would be affected.

Mr. Turnbull said it was quite possible that mail ban effected a number of officers of the companies involved "who did not personally attempt to sell shares of stock in either Canada or the United States, but they are part of the same set-up."

The mail ban was extended under a section of the Post Office Act which gives authority for such a ban where there is reason to suspect the mails are being used to extract money by misrepresentation.

The ban simply means that no mail will be delivered to the addresses of the firms concerned.

Stanley Knowles, C.C.F. member of parliament for Winipeg North Centre, has placed on the Commons order paper a motion seeking the names and addresses of all persons and associations or companies in Canada denied use of the mails at present. The motion also asks the reason and authority for such denial in each case.

It is expected that the question will be answered in the House some time this week.

U.S. Undertakes to Prevent 'Dollar-Gap' Crisis When Marshall Plan Aid Halts in '52

LOSES $3,639.00 AND WAS IT EASY

Key West, Fla., April 3. (AP) —The United States government, spurred on by President Truman's orders, undertook today to find a way to prevent a drastic "dollar-gap" crisis when Marshall Plan Aid to countries abroad halts in 1952.

Key figure in this latest diplomatic-economic maneuvre is scholarly Gordon Gray, who is leaving his post as secretary of the army to undertake the assignment as special assistant to the President.

Gray will work at his new task until he leaves it in September to become president at the University of North Carolina. He is to be succeeded in the army department by Budget Director Frank Pace, Jr.

Gray's problem, under presidential direction, is to find some way in which foreign countries can obtain the necessary dollars or "hard currency" to pay for American exports.

At present, under the Foreign Assistance program, the U.S. is virtually making up the difference between what it exports—about $16,000,000,000 annually—and what it imports, about $10,-000,000,000, by providing about $5,000,000,000 in United States grants to democratic Allies.

Marshall Plan Aid

What worries the President is what will happen when the European Recovery Program comes to an end in June 1952.

In lieu of direct aid, Gray's problem is to find a way to build up foreign buying power by pointing the way to:

1. Increased exports to the United States in the form of merchandise.

2. Increased foreign services such as shipping, tourist attractions and insurance.

3. Increased United States private investments abroad, particularly under the "point-four" program for technical assistance to under-developed areas.

In a letter to Gray Sunday, President Truman said "the task you are undertaking is one of major importance to this country."

He warned that the aid now stimulating foreign recovery is aimed at strengthening the economies of free countries "against communist subversion or aggression."

CHILD DIES ON TRAIN ON WAY TO HOSPITAL

Hallettsport, Apr. 3 (CP)—Four year old Rita Derache died Saturday night while being brought to hospital here by train from her home at Otter Lake, 40 miles south.

Her father, Honore Derache, said the girl complained of severe pains in her stomach shortly after eating a second helping of dessert at supper.

Dr. H. A. Dunning, who met the train, said death was due to natural causes, apparently from convulsions.

Wartime Treason Convict Vanishes From Boat at Sea

And the tall, sabre-scarred 51-year-old Theodore Donay of Detroit, is reported missing from his home since Wednesday.

These coincidences were pieced together today by authorities investigating the disappearance of a man who rented a boat here Saturday and never returned.

Constable K. McDavid and Ray Dodge, boat rental dock attendant, had identified as Associated Press wirephoto of Donay as his mysterious patron. A wallet left as security for the rental vessel contained a driver's licence issued to Donay, McDavid said.

Several hours after the man was due to return with the boat, a search was started in waters surrounding this island 20 miles off Los Angeles Harbor. McDavid said the boat had its running lights on but the lantern was off when he found eight miles northeast of Avalon. The boat contained only a suitcase containing some clothing, he said.

Drifting Vessel Found

The drifting vessel was found about 125 miles away from Point Arguello, where coastguardsmen reported seeing a surfaced submarine at 6:30 a.m. Sunday. The Navy said no American submarines were in the area at the time.

McDavid said officers had noted the coincidence of the two events, but there was "no concrete evidence" they were connected in any way.

McDavid said a torn half of a printed form found in the man's hotel room here contained the following words:

"Delivery over the counter in Berlin or by parcel post in Berlin to the Russian zone from stocks in Berlin by parcel post from New York:

Donay, born in Germany, was the first man in the history of the United States to be convicted of misprison (concealment) of treason. He was accused of failing to report the presence by parcel in 1942 of an escaped Nazi flier, Hans Peter Krug. He was convicted there in 1943 and sentenced to six and a half years.

Sisters Fib About Ages Once Too Often, Then They're Alarmed

Chicago, Apr. 3 (AP) — Two conscience-stricken sisters called the Chicago census operator Sunday and confessed they fibbed to an enumerator about their ages.

The sisters told George H. Seward that for many years each had been posting as 11 years younger then she really is. The lie has been repeated so many times, they confided, that they didn't really think when they repeated it to the census taker who called on them Saturday.

When they learned of the heavy penalties involved in lying to the census taker, the sisters telephoned Seward to ask his forgiveness.

Iron Horse Going Way of Horse And Buggy

By HARRY W. BALL

Weirton, W.Va., April 3—(AP) —The iron horse is going the way of the horse and buggy.

There, one-time puffing giants of the rails are being taken apart piecemeal, and the pieces transported by swaying cranes for feeding into the molten maws of the steel furnaces.

It's part of the pattern of the diesel era. More and more oil-fuelled locomotives are pulling the rail traffic. A proportionate number of discarded coal-burners are going back into the steel mills as scrap.

Don't however, get the idea it's an overnight conversion. There still are an estimated 29,000 steam locomotives in service on United States railroads. One prediction is that most of them will be retired during the next decade.

Since the program was started four months ago, Weirton Steel has put 127 iron horses to the torch, and more are on hand waiting to be scrapped.

Each of the locomotives yields an average of around 350,000 pounds of scrap iron, Weirton officials explained.

"While some railroads are scrapping only worked-out engines," the magazine said, "instances are reported of large engines scheduled to be cut up soon that were built in the early 1900s—not a long life in comparison with most locomotives."

Alarm Mistaken For Worship Call, School Destroyed

Avonmore, April 3 (CP)— A church bell normally used as a fire alarm proved ineffective Sunday when fire of unknown origin destroyed the Newington Public School, about six miles southwest of here and 15 miles northeast of Cornwall.

Residents mistook the church bell alarm for the first call to worship. Damage to the school was estimated at $40,000.

Jean Rupert, who lives near the school discovered the fire about 15 minutes before the regular morning church service was scheduled to start. He telephoned Avonmore, then rushed to the church to sound the alarm, but "nothing happened as the people thought it was the regular church service."

By the time church-goers arrived at the scene the two-room frame structure was blazing. A bucket brigade, hampered by a shortage of water which had to be drawn from nearby wells, was unable to make headway but was able to save nearby buildings. About 20 tons of coal in the school were also destroyed.

Willfred S. Laport, supervising principal for the district, said there will be no school this week for the school's 28 pupils. However, he hoped some arrangement could be made for after the Easter holiday.

WINCHELL RECEIVES AWARD

New York, April 3— (AP)— Walter Winchell Sunday night received the New York City Cancer Committee's award for "outstanding work in the educational campaign to control cancer." The newspaper columnist and radio commentator, treasurer of the Damon Runyon Memorial Fund, took the occasion to present a $250,000 cheque from the fund to the committee.

Probe Ocean Bed For Millions In Spanish Galleon

Tobermory, Scotland, April 3— (CP)—A stone's throw off a little jetty in this fishing village in the Atlantic-washed western isles two Royal Navy vessels bob up and down in a sheltered channel.

Every day navy divers are dropping 60 feet below the surfaces of the ocean to the firm sandy seabed.

Floundering over the sand, in the queer light of powerful mercury vapor lamps, they are thrusting sharp-pointed steel rods into the sand, hoping to make a discovery beyond the dreams of the most fanciful schoolboy.—

They hope to find a fabulous treasure of doubloons, ducats, pieces of eight, gold plate and gems worth £30,000,000.

Sunk 350 Years Ago

The treasure is said to be in a Spanish galleon, Dugue de Florencia, which sank in Tobermory Bay 350 years ago.

So far the divers have located the galleon, sunk in the rout of the Spanish Armada, and are digging it out of 15 feet of mud and sand.

Some time this week they hope to get inside the vessel to search for the treasure.

The co-operation of the navy in this romantic quest is at the request of Lt.-Commander 47-year-old clan chieftain, the Duke of Argyll.

If the treasure is found, it will belong to the duke, who inherited salvage rights granted generations ago by William Rufus, King of England.

Dukes of Argyll have spent much during the centuries in their efforts to raise the treasure. In the 17th century a diver found a parchment which indicated there was £30,000,000 of cash on board.

The ill-fated galleon arrived off Tobermory after the Spanish Armada had been defeated by Sir Francis Drake. Trouble developed between the ship's officers and local chieftains, and the ship was blown up in the bay.

Royal Navy divers reported last week that they found the vessel's timbers, African oak, still as hard as iron.

The part of the galleon which has been unearthed appears to be the poop—and it is under the captain's cabin. It is the poop that the treasure is reported to be hidden.

Taipei, Formosa, April 3 (AP) —Nationalist China today hailed its greatest victory of 1950 —the smashing Saturday of a Chinese Communist invading force of more than 7,500 on Hainan Island off south China.

Thousands joined a massive parade at Hsihoo, capital of Hainan, town of firecrackers were set off. Red prisoners were marched through the streets.

"We have destroyed the communist dream of conquering Hainan," said Gen. Li Yang-Ching, chief of staff for Hainan.

The Nationalists said 5,000 Reds were killed and more than 2,500 were captured.

It was the second Red attempt in six days to land a force on the big island, separated by 10 miles of water from Lulchow peninsula. The Nationalists said they "completely annihilated" 4,000 Red invaders March 28.

Some Red survivors tried to escape Sunday but Nationalist warships reported they sank the fleeing junks. Five hundred more Reds surrendered on Hainan.

Nationalist dispatches usually flaunt the silver lining and ignore the dark clouds. But even allowing for exaggeration, the double victory gave them something to crow about.

On the dark side, the Reds undoubtedly can mass far stronger invasions. Their two attempts have the look of "feelers."

And in a fleet of nearly 100 modern power boats unvittlingly supplied by the United Nations, the Reds have the means of a strong invasion fleet.

Bank Robber In Japan Takes Lives of Six

Tokyo, April 3 (AP)— A bank robber Sunday murdered six persons with a sword after looting the Mifuku Bank of Hokkaido of 300,000 yen (about $2,200), the newspaper Asahi reported.

The robber broke into the bank and forced a watchman to take him to an official's home. At gunpoint he made the official and his wife accompany him to the bank and open the vault.

Then he took the couple to another official's home, made the two bankers and their wives and two small children lie on the floor, and gave them knockout hypodermics. When they were groggy, he calmly slashed their throats.

FIREMEN RESCUE CHILD

Whitby, Apr. 3 (CP) — Mary Ann Hardy, 9, was rescued by firemen Sunday after being mired in the mud near a creek for more than half an hour while gathering pussy-willows.

Strange 'Body' Found in Morgue Of Funeral Home

Dayton, O., Apr. 3 (AP) — A strange "body" turned up in the morgue of a Dayton funeral home.

Guy Magetti, operator of the funeral home, called police and told them there was a "dead man" in the morgue he knew nothing about. When police arrived, he led them to a hearse in the garage.

They opened up a rubber bag used by morticians. Aaron E. Talley, 40, clad in underwear, blinked his eyes and asked:

"Where am I?"

Ontario Not Going To "Play Santa" To Municipalities

Toronto, April 3. (CP)—Ontario is not going to "play Santa Claus" to the municipalities under the Dominion-Provincial Housing program, a provincial government town-planning consultant said Friday.

"If houses are to be built, the municipalities are going to have to contribute," A. E. K. Bunnell told the conference on industrial promotion of Ontario. "If there are any losses they are also going to have to contribute."

Under the plan, the federal government makes available 75 per cent of the cost of housing projects. The province contributes the rest.

Another speaker warned the industrial development planners—representing 110 Ontario municipalities—not to let the glamor of new industry to obscure the need for development of existing businesses.

Said Thomas J. Brady, business development manager of the Royal Bank of Canada: "By helping industry to acquire new products to manufacture, municipalities can obtain the same effect of building their communities as they can be obtaining new industries."

Bill to Keep Espanola Mill In Operation

Toronto, April 3 — (CP) — Royal ..ent was given Friday in the Ontario Legislature to a bill which has the effect of keeping the Espanola Paper Mill in operation.

The bill disolves an injunction restraining the Kalamazoo vegetable Parchment Company from dumping mill waste in the Spanish River at Espanola, 50 miles west of Sunbury. The injunction was to have been effective April 4 and company officials said it might force them to close the mill, main industry in the town of more than 3,000 population.

Chief Justice R. S. Robertson of Ontario gave royal accent to the bill in the absence of Lieutenant-Governor Ray Lawson, who is on his way to Europe for a visit to Great Britain and The Netherlands.

The injunction was obtained by a group of Spanish River camp and resort owners who sought to force the company to stop dumping waste materials or to treat the materials in a way that would render them harmless to fish and vegetation in the river. The company announced recently that it has taken steps to reduce pollution and that study of the problem is continuing.

17 Deer Found Dead, Not Shot, Cause is Probed

Niagara Falls, Ont., April 3. — (CP) — Game conservation officer Roy Muma said Saturday that the deer slaughter on Navy Island, in the middle of the Niagara River, was not due to bullets.

Accompanied by provincial and mounted police, Muma visited the island Friday, and observed 17 dead deer. One doe died in full view of the investigating party 20 minutes after it had been running in the big flock.

Muma forwarded two carcasses to the Department of Lands and Forests laboratory for tests to determine the cause of death.

"The deer were definitely not shot," he said. "They died from some cause such as the present time we do not know."

How Adjutant-General Solved Unwitting Violation Of Regulations, Saved Officer

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

It was none less than the adjutant-general at British general headquarters in France who unraveled for me this drama of the First World War.

The story grew out of the rigid military regulation that no member of the fighting forces could be visited by his wife in the war theatre. This rule was absolute, and disobedience meant court martial.

The regulations, however, left an opening for a strange deviation. While a man couldn't have his own wife with him in the war theatre, there wasn't anything to stop him from having a girl friend when he was off duty in a quiet area.

Our story hinges on this conflict of ideas. It involves a young English officer, whom we shall designate merely as captain Bob and his lovely wife. The couple occupied a firm place in London society.

Innocent Woman

They found separation hard to bear. So it wasn't surprising that finally Mrs. Bob, in her innocence about the rules of war, should finally get what she thought was the wonderful idea of making a surprise visit to her man.

Through one of the relief organizations she wangled a trip to Amiens on the Somme, where her husband was stationed.

The captain was flabbergasted. He hurried to give his wife a lover's welcome, with never a word about a violation of regulations which was heading him straight for a court martial.

It was a second honeymoon which lasted for several days. Then he started Mrs. Bob back to London and faced the music.

The captain was court martialed, found guilty and sentenced to be cashiered. The records of the trial were sent to the adjutant-general at headquarters for review, and here is what he told me about subsequent events.

That Was No Lady

"It was an absolute tragedy. Here was a grand officer, and one of the finest chaps in the whole army, cashiered — condemned to be thrown out of the service with blackened name.

"And all this, damnit, because it was his own wife who was with him in Amiens. If it had been any other woman in the world he would have been in the clear. It just didn't make sense.

"I studied for hours trying to find a loophole in that conviction, but it seemed airtight. However, I got my answer, I rushed over to my desk, grabbed a pen and wrote across the verdict:

"No evidence produced to show that the lady in question was Captain Bob's wife, Case quashed."

Seven Fatalities In East Canada During Weekend

(By the Canadian Press)

Seven lives were lost in scattered mishaps in eastern Canada this weekend, five in Ontario and two in Quebec.

Traffic accidents accounted for three of the victims while two persons were killed by trains. One child drowned and burns claimed another person.

Seven-year-old Ronald Zufelt was killed at Toronto when he fell from a moving train. Police believe the young lad had been playing on top of a box car when the train started to move, throwing him to the ground.

Nikola Jovanovic, 25-year-old displaced person, committed suicide at Alvinston, Ont., by lying on the railway tracks and allowing a train to run over him.

At Thetford Mines, Que., Alain Poulin, 5, drowned in the Beaucourt River when he tried to retrieve a book that had fallen onto the soft ice which gave way under his weight.

Peter Pessl, 39, an invalid, died at Kitchener from burns received when lighter fluid he had spilled on his clothing caught fire. It is believed that live ashes from his cigaret ignited the fluid. He had been confined to his room with a heart condition.

At Quebec, Mrs. Vincent McNinight died from injuries received in a two-automobile collision and at Ottawa, two-year-old Allan Murtagh was killed when a dairy truck ran over him.

Thirty-Four Officers, Teachers Hold Meeting In Rose-Lowery Hall

Frankford, Apr. 3—Thirty-four officers and teachers of the Frankford United Church Sunday School gathered in the Rose-Lowery hall Wednesday evening for their regular quarterly business and discussion meeting. A responsive reading was followed by the Scripture and comments, "Jerusalem Loved and Lamented", by Mrs. Halsall.

Superintendent G. S. Martin then called on the Rev. MacEachern for a few words. Mr. MacEachern spoke briefly, stressing the importance of the Sunday School work. The meeting was then opened for business. Ray Scott read the minutes of the last quarterly meeting in November, and two succeeding sub-executive meetings held in December and March.

Among the various items of business, was the prospect of forming a reference library for the Sunday School. This was passed, and a committee set up to investigate and suggest suitable books. Several other items of business were brought into discussion, including visual aids for teaching. A special Sunday School meeting will be held on Easter Sunday in the church, in place of the regular classes. A committee has been formed to make arrangements for the formation of a C.G.I.T. group.

Following the business discussion, teachers retired in departmental groups for discussion concerning teaching methods and class activities. The teachers and officers reassembled in the hall for refreshments which were served by the ladies.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

MEMO TO THE PICTON SPORTS SCRIBES

We note you are wondering what has become of the Prince Edward County Hockey League Trophy. If our memory can take us back to the swashbuckling days of 1938-39 we might aid you.

Let's see. It might be secreted behind Log No. 6, Section two of Hirch. Cooper's sawmill pile in Bloomfield. It could be wrapped up in a coil of sucker mesh down Milford way. Pete Cole may have it hidden in his barn in the Gaastle forgion. Jack Yanover may have parked it—and forgiten — behind a barrel of soda in the City Hotel here. Perhaps MacDonald may be using it as a pitcher on the morning hounds at Lakeland, Norm. Mallet may have borrowed the bauble for use as a ladle for dishing out seed. Ken Church could have pinched the pewter and taken it overseas for a shaving mug for the missing "Indian". The Wright brothers may have impounded the silverware and are using it to feed tidbits to Belgian stallions. Art. Storms may have given it to lame Jack's rank and smelled it into use as a tobacconsaure for the troops at dawn. In fact it could be anywhere, but one place.

* * *

You won't find it in Wellington. There's no point in searching "Prick's" premises, never delving through the dusty bins of Hoar and Lytle's where "Beef" MacDonald once held sway. "Flathead" Gibson, the fellow who "spotted behind the anvil in his pop's blacksmith's shop, nor does the mug grace the shelves of Godfrey Dyson's Pool and "Cosmetic Emporium." Lance Noble didn't find any concessions in the thing in Keane's dispensary, nor did Danny Greenfield walk in to bath cool-aid after a hot afternoon's forays in West Lake. Bill "Gaspipe" Noble didn't use the gadget as a bootlonere while garbed in his customary sartorial splendor.

Homer Stewart and Ford Murphy refrained from figuratively shaking hands over the trophy. "Stretch" Ayer and "Grease-Ball" Harris didn't use it as a space gas tank on their silverado Chevrolet hybrid. Nor was it used as a beaker to convey the juice of the apple from musty barrels to thirsty gullets. It wasn't big enough.

* * *

All of which recalls those boisterous rollicking days of the Golden Age of sport when Tweedle-Dee and Tweedle-Dum hockey nights in Prince Edward. The days when Wellington, Bloomfield, Milford, Consecon, Picton, Rossmore and other "squads from the sticks" matched their puck calisthenics against those of such "metropolitan meccas" as Picton's Important Citizens, Rossmore, Roly Rorke's Blackhairs, Tuxis Boys, and other squads.

* * *

Albert Hare's ice igloo, which creaked at the joints, even those during the "bust" days, was the scene when local county teams clashed. Every hockey night was a sell-out. People would come in line, many carrying chairs. Outside, the mezzanine, the "gods" bolged with howling, cheering fans. They came from all parts of the county regardless of weather. Cutters, single and double, and even sleighs, and sleighs filled with fans picked their way through drifted blizzard and sidewalk. On more than one occasion, local Wellington fans, their sleighs stuck hopelessly in the drifts a few miles outside of Picton, trudged bravely through zero weather to cheer their "Iron Dukes" on when Milford, Waupoos, Demorestville, Bloomfield, Cressy, Crofton and as far away as Mountain View came there fans to view the struggles.

* * *

It was not National League Hockey, by any stretch of the imagination, nor did the boys of those days wear equipment worth $200. Before the league settled down to proper organization, the puck-chasing gladiators were nondescript sights. Sweaters of all hues covered the only body protection, a mild "dasher". No bulging shoulder-boarding heavy-duty pads were evident. There wasn't a department store catalogue within ten miles of the town, officially that is, except on home visits when all were present accreted beneath the gaudy stockings of the players in a shin-pad role. A few of the oldtimers of those days, whose bald pates were the cheer of a cue-ball, donned toques, whether from pride or wisdom, we do not know.

* * *

But it was slam-bang, rip-roaring hockey. None of this glorified basketball on ice that is evident today. Nor was it power-puff style. There were fights and plenty of them! And for every spot of fisticuffing on the ice, you could count at least three among the spectators. They took their hockey seriously in those days and many a fuel of financial lettuce, not to mention a cord of wood or two, the old Dobbin, found hands. On one occasion one assembly at a farm hung on a goal, but the next morning all was hunkydorey.

* * *

And away back in those days when old cider was sold to be the national beverage, the sinister form of professionalism reared its ugly head. But only once. The Rogers Hardware team, league champions of the year, accepted a challenge of an all-star team. The champs won 8-2. And now it can be told. In the darkness of a secluded corner, money changed hands. Icy sweat stood out on the brow of the All-star manager as he handed over the lucre. He vilained ten years in the local hoosegow. And the prospect wasn't bright, even if Pete Cole had the finest bail, complete with bangles and bobbles, in the district. Furtively he passed over $1.00 to each player, grabbed his hat, dashed from the rink and spent the next two weeks ice-fishing off Waupoos.

Yep, those were the days of the roaring thirties. Rivalry was keen, but not bitter, nor was it carried to extremes. Only the core of Picton, Bloomfield, Wellington, Milford and other teams remember the fists at times, but nobody thought anything of it. The boys had plenty to spare.

Good fellows all, were the puckists of those days. We recall the Haddow brothers; the Cole brothers; the Ayer boys; the Noble brothers although Willis was never a Mormon; the terrific defence of Ken Church and Jack Cole; the Welsh brothers, "Peckin and Jack"; the Reids, MacDonald, the Dalnards and the Thompsons, the Abbots, Gibsons, Cy. Welsh, Jack Bray, Bill Dalnard who used to fight a phantom horace himself, and heave an incoming forward into the balcony with a backhander that would rock a steam boat. Tony Young, who always admitted he was the best goalkeeper in the league, the late Roly Rorke, the fiery Platfords and Phillips, the Dafoes, Ken Hepburn, Bert Reid, Bert Bolton, a man mountain if ever there was one. (he body-checked us one night and when we came to we found ourselves nearing Consecon atop a Trenton-bound bus), "Shadow" Reid of Wellington whose weakness was blondes. The opposition would park a beauty near Shadow's net, and practically score at will; and many others.

Throughout this era of county hockey, the red - shirted Iron Dukes of Wellington, never won the title. Bridesmaids on several occasions, yes, but never a bride. Now, we are informed, the 1949-50 edition of the Dukes have defeated the best in the county and taken unto themselves the championship. The young squirts did a right tasty job, something the oldtimers couldn't or didn't do, but, shucks, hockey was different in "them thar days, podner". We wouldn't mind betting that if "Beef" MacDonald, "Dutch", George Noble, "Flathead" Gibson, Danny Greenfield, Jakey Steen, and the rest of the old brigade were given a diet of prune pills, vitamins, spare parts such as arms and legs, a month's training in Florida, Bill Dunham and Teeder,Kennedy and four insurance policies, they could whip the bejabers out of these 1950 Iron Dukes.

Hockey's Greatest Trade Pays Off as Bentley Leads Leafs To 2-0 Victory Over Detroit

Toronto, April 3 (CP) —Hockey's most famous trade paid Toronto Maple Leafs another dividend Saturday when they defeated Detroit Red Wings 2-0, to take a lead of 2-1 in games in their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final. The fourth game will be played here Tuesday night.

Key man in the victory was centre Max Bentley, who scored one goal and set the other, while turning in a terrific job of forechecking. Also prominent in the win were veteran goalie Turk Broda, with his second shut-out in three games, and Joe Klukay, the 27-year-old left-winger from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., who scored the other goal.

Bentley, the spidery 150-pounder from Delisle, Sask., joined Leafs in November, 1947, in the celebrated 5-for-2 trade with Chicago Black Hawks. He's been carrying the trading prowess of Leafs' managing director Conn Smythe over since. Smythe gave up a forward line and two defencemen to get the dipsy-doodling playmaker and Cy Thomas, who didn't fit into Leaf plans and was later released.

Bentley helped the Leafs to two Stanley Cup triumphs, third second and third in a row, and has piled up three assists and a goal in the Leafs' present rush to a fourth Stanley Cup in succession.

Both Toronto goals came in the second period before a crowd of 14,365. Bentley unleashed through the Detroit defence for a shot that was deflected by Gus Lumley. The rebound went to blond Ray Timgren who snapped a pass to Klukay. The latter then scored two goals in the first game at Detroit, Leafs blasted a high shot into an open corner of the Detroit goal.

The insurance goal came 20 seconds before the second period ended. Timgren carried the puck up to one side of the Detroit defence and slid a pass to Bentley, who rifled a shot between Lumley's legs.

The game was a sharp contrast to the two previous encounters at Detroit. The opener last Tuesday, when Leafs won 5-0, and Detroit's great forward Gordie Howe was injured, 22 penalties were handed out including a misconduct and four majors. Thursday's game, won 3-1 by Detroit, was also rough with 20 penalties.

But Saturday night referee Bill Chadwick clamped down early. He called three minor penalties in the first period and the penalty box was deserted the rest of the night as the well-handled contest provided a great exhibition of clean hockey.

Broda handled only 17 shots compared to 31 drilled at Lumley, but Broda, at his best when his chips are down, saved on at least three seemingly sure-fire goals.

Scotty Mair Scores Four as Marlies Win

Ottawa, Apr. 3 (CP).—Toronto Marlboros today appeared headed for an easy victory in their Eastern Canada junior hockey playoff series in the Allan Cup playoffs unless Cornwall Calumets show more than they did in the opening game.

The Marlboros took the opening game in a breeze, winning 7-1 to leave no doubt of their superiority in that game at least. The second game of the best-of-seven series will be played in Toronto tonight.

About 6,500 fans saw the Calumets wilt under the powerful Marlboro attack, led by right-winger Scotty Mair with four goals and a pair of assists.

The Marlboros had little difficulty running up a 4-0 lead in the first period. They got their only goals with the Calumets in the middle frame and hammered in two more without a reply in the final period.

The survivor of this series will advance into the Eastern Canada final with either Sherbrooke Saints or Sydney Millionaires for the right to meet the Western Canada champions for the Allan Cup.

Johnson continued the Marlies assault in the middle period when he beat Gordie Buckley from a close in at the 1:55 mark. Two minute later Henri came up with the lone Cornwall goal on an unassisted effort.

Mair took over again in the final period and Marlies were awarded with less than a minute separating them.

Guelph Biltmores Score Easy Win Over Combines

Toronto, April 3—(CP)—Guelph Biltmores and Porcupine Combines battled at Coliseum here in the second game of the eastern Canada Junior Hockey semi-final with Guelph one-game up after winning the series opener 7-3 here Saturday.

The third game of the best-of-seven series will be at Guelph Wednesday as Ontario's northern and southern champions fight for the right to meet Montreal Canadiens in the eastern finals.

Biltmores, possibly suffering a let-down after their surprise victory over Wembley Spitfires for the O.H.A. crown, appeared to have difficulty with the fast pace of the lighter and close-checking Porcupines.

Guelph marksmen were Herb Dickenson with two, Don Oberholtzer, Frank Rudnagis, Kelly Ron Plumb and Vic DiMarco. Porcupine scorers were Gerry Lalelle and Darrel McLaughlin with two apiece and Don Irwin.

Dickenson got the crowd of 7,400 each team counted once in the first period. Lalelle took the lead 5-4 in the second and they split another pair in the final 20 minutes.

The helter-skelter rushing and checking of the northerners appeared to disrupt the Biltmores and although scoring in hockey fundamentals, Guelph was bicked by the lack of organization in Porcupine attack and defence.

Goalie Bill Herrington of Porcupines was the busiest man on the ice and only poor shooting by Guelph and close defence by his teammates prevented Biltmores from running up a higher count.

Indians Could Repeat Pennant Triumph of '48

By GAYLE TALBOT

They appear to be packed with sufficient talent, both old and new, to win the American League flag, or at least to finish no worse than second. Yet the team's closest followers have a strange lack of confidence in manager Lou Boudreau's array of veteran stars and hustling youngsters.

They say there are too many "ifs". The club might repeat its 1948 pennant triumph if both boudreau and second-baseman Joe Gordon return to their best form, and if third-baseman Ken Keltner, who hobbled on a leg last season, is able to play regularly.

They might squeak through it the big Negro rookie Luke Easter, really turns the ball a ride and gives promise of doing, and if the great Bob Feller starts well and runs up one of his 20-game strings.

Though they suffered a collective batting slump last season and not little help from their 1948 World Series pitching hero, Gene Bearden, the Indians still were able to finish second by one and were a powerful factor right to the last, despite their third-place finish.

Lou surely is justified in hoping they can do this season, no matter what Easter does. The team's collective average last year was only .260, and leftfielder Dale Mitchell was the only regular to club above .300.

Last year Gordon, one of the greatest fielding second basemen of them all, fell off from a .280 average and 32 home runs in the pennant year to .251 and 20 round tripe. Boudreau feels from a tremendous .335 to .284, Keltner from .297 and 31 homers to .232 and eight as he appeared in only 90 games.

Mickey Vernon, whose .291 batting mark was a comparative bright spot last year, will continue at first base. Jim Hegan again is set to handle the bulk of the catching.

Bob Lemon, who racked up 22 victories against 10 losses last year, had tookit terrific this spring. Mike Garcia, who posted a great 14-5 mark while appearing in 41 games in his rookie year, also can be counted upon.

Gene Bearden has been working desperately to win back the form which made him the toast of the '48 play-off and World Series.

MARINES DEFEATED

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., April 3 —(CP)—Sault Ste. Marie Algos won their third straight Ontario Intermediate "A" basketball championship by whipping Peterborough Marines 60-54 Saturday night. Almost 2,000 fans watched the Algos win their second straight game from the fighting Marines. Algos took the best of seven series 4-2 and will meet Stratford Packers in the provincial finals starting Wednesday night at Stratford. The winner will play Toronto Marlies for the Ontario championship.

This is a season of changing weather. It's grey and cold one day—warm and sunny the next, with snow melting into grimy slush on the roads. Red Hot Rangers Expect To Take Series With Canadiens In Four Straight Games

By AL COLLETTI
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, April 3 (CP) — Sentti Lund, the good-looking Finnish-born left winger, was the man of the hour today as a joyous band of New York Rangers headed for Montreal, needing but one more victory to advance to the Stanley Cup finals—something they haven't been able to do in a decade.

The 24-year-old Lund, only in his third year as a professional, scored three goals Sunday night to lead the eager Rangers to an easy 4-1 victory over the Canadiens.

It was the third straight Ranger triumph over the Canadiens in the best-of-seven semi-final cup playoffs and the second in as many nights. New York came from behind with two goals in the last 10 minutes of play at Montreal Saturday night to edge the Flying Frenchmen 3-2.

Coach Dick Irvin's men now face the tremendous task of winning four straight to qualify for the finals against the winner of the Detroit-Toronto series. And they must do it without the services of their great defensive star, Kenny Reardon, who suffered a dislocated shoulder in the final 15 seconds of the Montreal game and is out for the remainder of the playoffs.

The series shifts to Montreal Tuesday night. If the fifth, sixth and seventh games are necessary, they too will be played there since the circus moves into the Madison Square Garden home of the Rangers the week end no ice will be available.

Win Big One Saturday

In polishing off Montreal during the weekend it was Lund and his able linemates, Don Raleigh and Ed Slowinski, that made the big difference. The Canadiens had nothing equal to the brilliance of this trio, which has accounted for seven of the 10 Ranger goals in the series.

"The big" one for the Rangers to win was Saturday night's affair at the Forum. Behind 2-1 in the 12 minutes of the third period, they got a break when defenseman Doug Harvey and centre Kenny Mosdell drew penalties within a few seconds of each other. Buddy O'Connor drove in a partially-screened shot while Montreal was two men shy to knot the count at 2-2.

At 13:34 just as the Canadiens regained full strength Slowinski fired home the winning goal on a combination play with Lund and defenceman Gus Kyle. The Canadiens had gone ahead 2-0 in the first 10 minutes of the opening session on goals by Floyd Curry and Norm Dussault. Lund got one back for the Rangers at 10:10.

Sunday night a near-sellout crowd of 15,215 at the Garden saw an entirely different type of game. With the pressure on the Canadiens, the Rangers refused to budge in their stern play. They were never behind.

Lund, besides scoring three goals played a tremendous defensive game in "shadowing" Maurice (The Rocket) Richard, who again was blanked. He hasn't been able to garner as much as an assist in the series thus far. But he did have bad luck Sunday night. Three of his shots hit on or near the goal-posts but wouldn't go in.

Head Playoff Scoring

Slowinski got a goal and two assists and Raleigh three assists. Besides his three-goal start Lund notched an assist on the second Ranger goal to give him four points for the night. He now has four goals and three assists for seven points — more than any other player in the playoffs.

The Rangers started their march to their third victory at 7:13 of the first period. Lund whipped in a Raleigh-Slowinski relay from outside the crease. A little more than two minutes later Bert Hirschfeld, a rookie from Montreal's farm at Cincinnati, evened the score when he swooped in and lifted Gerry McNeil's re-bound over goalie Chuck Rayner's head.

Two of the Rangers' next three goals came while Montreal was short-handed. Curry was in the penalty box when Slowinski converted a Raleigh-Lund relay after a face - off in Montreal territory in the 15th minute of the opening frame.

Montreal went all out in the middle period when the Canadiens forced Rayner to make 13 saves.

Lund got his second goal at 14:20 of the middle session on a 10-foot shot that bounced off Durnan's pads. He completed the scoring in the second minute of the final session while Mosdell of the Canadiens was in the penalty box.

After the game in the dressing room, Lund jubilantly exclaimed: "I had three good shots on goal, and they all went in."

Toronto Girls Take Eastern Cage Title

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto Montgomery Maids took the Eastern Canada Senior Girls' Basketball Championship Saturday night with a hard-fought 34-28 victory over Montreal Olympics.

The Maids carried a 13-point lead into the second game of the total-point series after a 44-31 win over the Olympics Friday night, thus winning the round by 78-56.

The Olympics, from the Point St. Charles Athletic Association, played brilliant ball but couldn't match the well-polished passing plays of the Toronto girls.

Montgomery Maids will meet the Western Canada champions, either Vancouver Ellers or Winnipeg for the Dominion championship. Toronto led from the first whistle, outplaying their opposition in every quarter.

Britions spent almost £50,000,-000 ($155,000) on all current races betting on football pools in 1949 —an average of about £1 for every man, woman and child. Douglas Jay, financial secretary to the treasury, said Saturday the government had collected £14,-808,102 in taxes on pools last year.

Olympia and a near-record crowd of 50,518 customers celebrated the return of racing to New York Saturday, with Fred Hooper's speedy star winning the $30,450 Paumonok handicap. For Olympia and jockey Eddie Arcaro, it was a triumphant return to Jamaica where last spring they swept everything in sight.

The winner was timed in 1:10 4-5 and returned $6.60, $4.60 and $3.10. Jamaica's record opening day crowd was 56,115 in 1946.

The Hollywood Baseball Club startled the fans and probably the baseball world Saturday when the stars took the field wearing shorts. Manager Fred Haney declared the idea and said it was no April Fool joke. Appearing in the abbreviated garb similar to a pair of basketball pants and a light, short-sleeve shirt, the stars drew raised eyebrows and a generous share of ribbing from their rivals in the Pacific Coast League, Portland Beavers.

Fleet Argo lived up to the first part of his name Saturday by zipping home first in track record time to head a field of 11 including two Kentucky Derby nominees, in the $7,500 Laurel stakes for three-year-olds at Laurel, Md.

The D. K. Kerr, Jr., colorbearer surprised a crowd of 21,826 by coming home half a length in front of the favorite, Mrs. James Carson's kinsman. R. M. Wood's High Frequency was third.

Fleet Argo paid $18.80 to win.

Tony Galento, one-time heavyweight boxing contender, "boxed" three rounds with Teddy, a 550-pound bear, Saturday night, and was knocked down twice. Galento hit the canvas for counts of six and seven in the second round. The bear, a veteran of the sportsman's show circuit and an old hand at boxing humans, wore a muzzle and regular boxing gloves. Galento wore a ferocious grimace.

Six pacing and trotting horses valued at about $15,000 and including the well-known Amber Gratton, were lost in a fire that destroyed a large barn at the Community Park, Exeter, Ont., Saturday night. One horse was saved. Owned by Thomas Yeakey of Crediton, Amber Gratton was sold to be valued at $5,000.

A meeting will be held within the next ten days to consider organization of an independent Northern Ontario hockey league, Lloyd Roubell of Kitchener, originator of the move, said Sunday. Roubell recently began a campaign to line up western Ontario teams in a new association because of what he called continued dissatisfaction in the handling of the Ontario Hockey Association.

E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, who plays out of St. Andrews, Ill., pulled himself together on the back nine Sunday to post a one-under-par 71, and win the Wilmington (N.C.) open golf tournament by two strokes. Second with 73 for 282 was George Fazio, Washington pro.

Victory in the $10,000 tournament was worth $2,000 to Harrison, 1940 Canadian open printer, and shot him up from the 15th to ninth on the year's money list with $3,894. Fazio's $1,400 boosted him to $4,888 and seventh place.

Attorney General J. Howard McGrath Saturday handed Congress two bills to smash at organized gambling—which has been called the United States underworld's biggest source of revenue. One would bar interstate transmission of gambling information on horse races, football, baseball or any other sporting event. The other aims to halt shipment of slot machines to states which outlaw them.

Harry H. Roberts, 77, formerly a noted cricket player, died Saturday. For many years he wrote a cricket column under the by-line "Mid-On" for the old Toronto Mail and Empire. He was the first cricket player in Toronto to score a century in first-class cricket.

Stanley (The Wizard) Mathewsf, renowned Blackpool soccer star, has decided to take his place on an English all-star team to tour Canada this summer rather than join the Stoke City club in England compete for the world cup, it was reported Sunday.

In answer to four no-trump, six clubs was the signal for showing two aces and no kings. In reaching for a slam, South knew they were a trick short in the count and a jack short in the suit.

Opening lead from west was club deuce, indicating a fourth suit. South won with ace. Dummy led a club. Spade king put this south in. A club ruff by dummy. Diamond ace put south in. Dummy ruffed a club.

Heart ace cashed a trump. Heart four dummy ruffed. Then top dummy spades were led. South stuffed two diamonds on them. Last ruffed a diamond from dummy. South overtrumped and still had trump king for another trick.

Opponents only trick was the last one with east trump queen. It was cleverly planned. For which north was duly complimentary.

Another table got the same result. But there the partner said: "You should let me play such hands. I could probably make seven."

There are such persons who live to a ripe old age. But not if they continue to play bridge.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, April 3 — (AP)— What is the movie business doing to meet the threat of television

A good deal, I have found. The ostrich attitude toward T. V., which prevailed in Hollywood two years ago, has disappeared. The movie minds are no longer saying: "Video can't hurt us." They know it can.

The industry's activity on T.V. is headed by two men—Edward Cheyfitz for the producers (Motion Picture Productions Association) and Nathan Halpern for the theatre owners (Theatre Owners of America.)

These two young men believe movies can meet the challenge of T.V. only by some vast new element that will stimulate great public interest.

Cheyfitz believes the new element could be third-dimensional films, which would lend depth to figures on the screen, making them seem almost in person.

Counter Attack

Halpern believes the best way to fight T.V. is by using the new medium itself via theatre television.

"I think radio's impact on the movie business would have been greater, if the movies hadn't been undergoing a evolution," he told me. "Talkies came in at about the same time as radio. Thus the novelty of sound in theatres arrived at the same time as sound in the home."

What could theatre T.V. offer that people could not get at home? Here are some of the items Halpern suggested:

1. Television of Broadway first nights or performances of stage hits, like "South Pacific". This would appeal to the adult audience, which has been partly lost by movies.

2. Presentation of world series baseball, championship fights, political events and other top news events. This has already been attempted in theatres.

3. Television of ballets, opera and concerts.

City Players Win 6 RD Badminton Championships

Featured by the brilliant play of Chris Lockyer, Belleville members of the No. 6 Repair Depot RCAF Badminton Club made a clean sweep of the main events in the club championships held at the station Saturday night.

Lockyer won the men's singles defeating Flying Officer Tom Barry 15-9, 15-7 finals. He teamed with Squadron Leader Jock Tache to annex the men's doubles. In partnership with Mrs. Marion Salisbury, Lockyer shared the mixed doubles title and to climax the evening's play won the Senator W. A. Fraser trophy for the highest aggregate score.

In the ladies division Mrs. K. Smith and Mrs. Marion Salisbury turned in outstanding performances. Mrs. Salisbury reached the ladies singles finals going down before Mrs. Smith in three hard-fought sets. She partnered with Mrs. Mary Motl to win the ladies doubles, and was the "other half" of the Chris Lockyer combination which won the mixed doubles.

Mrs. Smith lady champion, was awarded the trophy given by Mayor Ken Couch of Trenton for the ladies highest aggregate score.

The championship tournament under the expert supervision of Squadron Leader Jock Tache, was a pronounced success, and eliminated a season of enjoyable play. Squadron leader Tache president of the club deserves and was given well-merited credit for his activities both during the season and the tournament. Over 45 members took part in the tourney play which started Friday evening and continued through to the finals on Saturday night.

Montreal, Apr. 3 (CP)—Frank (King) Clancy, National Hockey League veteran-turned-coach is fast developing the reputation of a raconteur at the hands of sports writers.

Some of the columnists had a keen rivalry was apparent all evening.

Miss Lois Byers rolled the ladies' high single and triple for the visitors with scores of 663 and 241. In the men's division Ross Wilson took high single honors with 245 with Vic Lord accounting for the high triple with 622.

Bessie Smith scored both highs for the Belleville ladies' rinks with scores of 264 and 700. Don Walker grabbed the men's honors with 301 and 744.

The teams:

Following the games the visitors were entertained by the Belleville team.

field day with anecdotes about the Cincinnati Mohawks' mentor after accompanying him to New York for the Canadiens-Rangers playoffs.

Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll quotes Clancy on the time Cincinnati won its first American Hockey League game under the ex-referee's leadership. It seems Goalie Gerry McNeil was knocked out of action early in the game against Indianapolis and Clancy told forward Eddie Dorohoy to get in there with McNeil's pads. In the final period Cincy was leading 6-5 and playing defensively.

"They didn't get a shot on our net in the last eight minutes of play and you should have seen Dorohoy," said Clancy. "He's really nonchalant. He's resting the stick up against one of the goal posts, he's got one glove parked on the top of the net and he's picking his nose.

Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson quotes Clancy on another: "We were playing in Springfield one night and who do I spot sitting in the penalty box but Eddie Shore, the Springfield manager. So I rushed across the ice to the box. Shore said: 'Why don't you get back to your bench?'

"I told him I'd go back as soon as he got out of the penalty box. So he got out, but the next thing I heard an announcement over the public address: 'Clancy is fined $100 for going on the ice'. Shore himself made the announcement, there never was such a fine."

Answer to Saturday's Puzzle

Little Benny's Note Book

I need my dime to buy a false mustash at the Novelty and Trick Shop, and this afternoon I looked out the front window and saw the fellows talking and arguing around the letter box, and I hurry up put on my false mustash and pop's old house sweter and went out and started to walk down to the letter box, thinking I'll go rite by them without saying anything, and see if they know who it is.

And I went passed them with the false mustash hiding my mouth and pop's sweter hiding the rest of me pretty near down to my knees and none of them even waved at me, and I thawt, Oh boy they didn't even reckonize me.

And I terned around and went back, saying, High fellows.

Holey smokes it's Benny, Puds Simkins said, and Glasses Magee said, Well what's you know about that, it was him all the time.

And the other fellows all looked surprized and claimed they thawt I was somebody they didn't know and Sid Hunt said Benny, G, you're just the very guy to go down and ask Mr. Slattery for our hard baseballs.

Meening the cop standing down at the corner and Glasses Magee said, Sure, Benny, that's a swell idea. Mr. Slattery picked the ball up when it rolled around the corner, and he's wailing down there to see what we intend to do about it, because it agenst the law to play hard baseball in the street, so you're the very guy to go down there and ask him for it and tell him you're somebody's unkle or something and he wont reckonize you.

Oh yea? I said. Like fun, nothing doing. You knew darn well who I was all the time, and if anybody elts wants to try it I'll lend them the mustash and the sweter too. So who wants to volunteer? I said.

JUNGLE WARFARE IN FRENCH INDO-CHINA

As Washington officials considered military and economic aid to French Indo-China, jungle clashes between government and Communist forces continue. He doesn't want his accusations put in the same class as those of Senator McCarthy of the U.S. but Lord Vansittart, above, British Conservative diplomat, claims that Communists are entrenched in important positions of public service in the United Kingdom. He urged a campaign against Communism by every man "of sense and good will." — Central Press Canadian.

son of the United States evoked. But he told reporters just before any direct confirmation or denial of the story at The Hague, leaving by plane for the United States; that he had refused Shinwell's request to sign a joint official statement which evidently dealt with Strachey's status.

Strachey Assailed

Strachey, recently shifted from the food ministry to the post of war minister, has been assailed by a portion of the British Press which claims he never has disavowed his pro-communist writings of the 1930s. Strachey has denied ever being a communist and said he was on record as far back as 1940 as being in "fundamental disagreement" with the communists.

Well-informed American sources in The Hague said secret information had been withheld from British people because of Strachey's position. The embargo was eased, these sources said, because Shinwell agreed Saturday night to have top secrets bypass Strachey.

Says Report "Silly"

Shinwell told reporters at London's Northolt airport Sunday night the report was a "silly story".

"Mr. Strachey was never mentioned in any discussion," he added. "Why should he be?"

Questioned later, a defence ministry spokesman said Shinwell had no comment to make on the report of the U.S. defence secretary's refusal to sign a joint statement at The Hague.

Johnson told reporters Shinwell met him Sunday morning with a statement he wanted Johnson to issue with him.

"I concurred in the first sentence (of the statement)," Johnson said, "but further than that I was not prepared to go."

Asked by reporters what was in the statement, Johnson said it is paid tribute to what Shinwell had done for American, British and Canadian co-operation. He did not elaborate.

It appeared to reporters that Johnson, in the heat of questioning from newsmen, had made a slip of the tongue and had meant to say the statement paid tribute to Strachey. He left soon after by plane and there was no opportunity to recheck.

Asked if he had placed any restrictions on information given to Shinwell as defence ministers, Johnson said: "I have no concern with what Shinwell does with the information."

Meeting Expected

Later however it was learned that a meeting is expected today between the union and the union's negotiating committee.

Local 200 is the largest single unit of the U.A.W. in Canada. It went on strike against the Ford company in 1945, the strike lasting 99 days.

Besides the $100 pension the union seeks company paid social security, medical and health benefits, increased night differential rates, additional paid statutory holidays and amendments covering grievance and seniority clauses in the existing contract. A similar pensions demand against the Chrysler Company of Canada now is before an Ontario conciliation board.

Windsor altogether has more than 15,000 auto workers and about 4,000 have been laid off at the Chrysler plant since early in February because of the strikes since Jan. 15 at the United States Chrysler Corporation.

MONTHLY REPORT

Expect Rents Up

Increases in allowable rent ceilings of 18 to 22 per cent for unheated and heated dwellings respectively, announced during the fall session of parliament, went into general effect Feb. 1 and are expected to boost the rent sub-index above 125.0 when the survey is completed.

The cost-of-living index level of 161.8 at the end of January compared with 161.0 in December and the all-time high of 162.8 in July last year.

The Canadian price increase for January compared with a drop of 0.4 per cent in United States consumer prices for mid-December to mid-January. In the U.S. all major living items declined except rent and fuel, electricity and refrigeration. In direct contrast to Canada, food prices in the U.S. led the downward movement with a drop of 0.7 per sent.

May be Any Color

After sifting through a welter of varying descriptions given by witnesses, police said they believe the truck, first described as green or red or blue, may be any color.

They are satisfied, however, that it was a stake-body vehicle that struck down the little girl in the gathering darkness and escaped pursuit by the driver of a private automobile in a network of sideroads on the northwest outskirts of the city.

the words "Canada" or "Maple" on its doors.

More than 1,000 telephone calls, messages and telegrams came in from many parts of the province to city and suburban police during the weekend. Tips concerned trucks in Kapuskasing, Whitby, Windsor, St. Catharines, Powassan and Toronto have been run down, Brampton, the nearby Holland Marsh vegetable — growing area and elsewhere and police checked them all. Drivers were questioned at Cobourg and Burks Falls and released.

"It's an outside possibility that the truck we're looking for could have travelled 400 miles in the meantime," said Chief Bisebrough. "But provincial police are checking just the same. We won't pass up a bet."

Over the weekend detectives were on duty long hours checking all district service stations and garages, while citizens swamped Toronto and suburban police with telephone calls.

Must Petition for Walks

With mounting criticism over the fact there are no street lights on the section where the accident occurred, also without sidewalks, Frederick Bogart of North York said that street lights and sidewalks be placed only after a petition to the township council.

Various CCF members of the Legislature from Toronto and York ridings joined in demanding an end to hit-and-run accidents and William Temple CCF member for Dovercourt here said he would raise the matter in the Legislature today in the hope the government would "put teeth" into the law to punish hit-run drivers.

Ontario Attorney-General Dana Porter said penalties imposed on conviction of hit-and-run drivers are up to the court trying the case. Such penalties are prescribed in the criminal code, a federal act, and the provincial government has nothing to do with such penalties.

AVERAGE INCOME DOWN

Washington, April 3 — (AP)— Despite remarkable strides toward economic stability since the end of the war, Europe's average individual income today is only $423, less than one-third of what it is in the United States. Figures on Europe's financial conditions were given to a House of Representatives appropriations subcommittee by Paul G. Hoffman, head of the economic co-operation administration.

New Hearing Device Has No Receiver Button in Ear
Chicago, Ill.—Deafened people are hailing a new device that gives them clear hearing without making them wear a receiver button in the ear. They now enjoy songs, sermons, friendly companionship and business contacts with no self-conscious feeling that people are looking at any button hanging on their ear. With the new almost invisible Phanton-ola device you can now put away free yourself not only from deafness, but from even the appearance of deafness. The makers of Beltone, Dept. 40, 1450 W. 19th. Street, Chicago 8, Ill., are so proud of their achievement they will gladly send you their free brochure (in plain wrapper) and explain how you can test this amazing device in the privacy of your own home without risking a penny. Write Beltone today.

Overnight Rain Causes Flooding Of Roads, Cellars

Cooler Weather Expected To Relieve the Situation

Toronto, April 4. (CP)—Floods brought on by overnight rain hit several Southern Ontario communities today. Cool weather, accompanied by frost, is expected to relieve the situation.

Waterloo, Galt, Brampton and Orono reported flooding of stores and low-level residential areas near riverbanks. At Waterloo, damage caused by flood-swollen Laurel Creek was estimated at "thousands of dollars".

A subway under a railway at north of Palmerston in the Stratford area was undermined . Traffic between Palmerston and Durham was suspended.

London, Ont.—Despite rising waters, no meeting of the flood committee of the Thames Valley Authority is scheduled, Secretary Dr. J. Cameron Wilson, chairman of the T.V.A. said today.

He gave credit to the newly-constructed Wildwood dam, built for taking the water in orderly fashion past there and helping to prevent the flow from going in London, where the south branch of the river forms in from Ingersoll.

The Whirl Creek at Mitchell was at its full flood but reached the peak before 8 a.m. and between that time and about 11.30 a.m. the water level had gone down eight inches.

Wellesley—A warning siren at 6 a.m. brought out all able-bodied citizens who had to fill and pile sand-bags at Wellesley dam when the waters of raging Nith River reached a crest of about five feet above normal. The water did go over the top for a short time, but by 8 a.m. the danger subsided as the water began to fall.

Robert Warren, one of the trustees of the dam, said the rising water did not carry away a bit of the dam but had not damaged it seriously. Though the water still is high Mr. Warren reported it has dropped considerably since this morning. Quick action in placing sandbags had enabled the bank to hold, he said.

Stratford — High flood waters in low-lying areas along the C.N.R. Palmerston - Mount Forest line today undermined the railroad's viaduct a mile south of Palmerston and blocked the Canadian National's traffic, probably for three days.

Reports to the C.N.R. here said that Thursday's flood waters did damage early this morning while a 12-foot section collapsed. Rail traffic has been suspended until the chasm spanned by the bridge can be filled in to permit the structure.

Repairs to the line here is cancelled but express and mail will be handled by C.N.R. trucks on highways. Normal schedules call for one train per day along the line.

FROST CONCERNED OVER MOUNTING COSTS OF GOVT.

Toronto, April 4. (CP)—Concern over mounting costs of government was the keynote as the Ontario legislature concluded budget debate Monday. The traditional routine of a non-confidence motion to go into committee of supply, was passed by a vote of 47 to 27, with the C.C.F. Liberal and Labor-Progressive members voting solidly against the government.

The session which started Feb. 16 is expected to end Thursday, with eight sittings are likely tonight and Wednesday. The legislature this week has also been opening at 11 a.m.

Premier Frost said Monday he would not attempt to answer all the criticism of the opposition members, but he expressed concern at the rapid rise in government expenditures. He said that it was with this thought in mind that he had called together administrative heads of all departments to discuss the matter.

"A dollar saved soundly is better than a dollar gained by additional taxation," said Premier Frost. It was a matter of getting the best value for the money spent, but he pointed out that the government had been able to

A-War Likely Within Lifetime Canada's Children

Ottawa, April 4 (CP) —Canada today faced a blunt warning that she—in common with the rest of the world—faces atomic warfare within the lifetime of her children.

The warning was voiced Monday by Dr. L. G. Cook, one of Canada's leading atomic scientists and chemist, in a talk at a big Chalk River atomic project.

The young earnest scientist also told Ottawa's Rotary Club that there is "no atomic secret" and secrecy was not only impossible, but could be fatal.

While he spoke former Minister Claxton spoke from the latest meeting of the Atlantic pact Defence Committee in Paris. Claxton said this country is "completely satisfied" with existing arrangements for exchange of military information with the U.K. and the U.S.

Mr. Claxton, speaking in the Commons a few hours after his return from Europe, denied press reports from Canada he had said she wanted satisfied with messages of information. Existing arrangements "leave nothing to be desired."

MAY BE TORONTO MAN

Midland, Ont., April 4. (CP)—Possibility that the skeleton found at Severn Bridge near here Saturday may be the remains of a missing Toronto man is being investigated by Provincial Police. They are investigating any connection with the disappearance of Herbert Baker, 77, who was last seen in August, 1945, when he visited Rev. Harry Martin at Bala and started out alone and afoot down the railway tracks towards Severn Falls, about 11 miles from here.

HAS RECEIVED CHARTER

Montreal, April 3 — (CP) — A rebel local of the United Textile Workers of America (A.F.L.-T.L.C.) has received a charter from the rival Textile Workers Union (C.I.O.-C.C.C.) but a U. T. W. official said the move worried him "very little."

SIX FIREFIGHTERS ARE OVERCOME AT MONTREAL

More Than 200 Families Flee Homes in Fire Area

Montreal, Apr. 4 —(CP)—Six firemen were overcome by smoke late Monday night in a spectacular blaze which at time caused an estimated $200,000 damage to a six-storey grain elevator and a grain warehouse on downtown Young Street.

Grain poured into the streets as firefighters shot streams of water into the billowing flames. Although the blaze was reported under control three hours after the first alarm at 11:45 p.m. EST., scores of firemen remained at the scene to prevent a fire outbreak.

The fire apparently broke out in the three-storey warehouse of the Montreal Terminals Ltd. and quickly spread to the wooden grain elevator fronting the building.

Destroyed in the blaze were an estimated 20,000 bushels of grain and considerable amount of machinery.

Bixbys Will Fly Out to 'Frisco

Calcutta, April 4—(AP)—The globe-circling Bixby's — stopped by engine trouble in their attempt to break the round-the-world flight record held by the late Bill Odom — were going to fly on to San Francisco anyhow.

The aerial husband-and-wife team, Bob and Dianna, hid their disappointment behind philosophical shrugs after they were told it would be several days before a replacement engine flown here for the needed repairs on their twin-engine mosquito, The Heather Bee.

They had completed more than half their trip — 11,858 miles — when they were forced to turn here to Calcutta's Dum Dum air field Monday morning. And they were right on the schedule they had set for Bill Odom's 1947 speed record of 73 hours.

The Bixbys' engine trouble came along the engine trouble started when the engine's supercharger impeller was up 4,000 feet. Gaskets in the cooling system of the left engine burst and the engine overheated with anti-freeze fluid.

The Bixbys' plane landed back at Dumdum, Dianna was near tears. But Bob consoled her with the promise that "we can try again".

They are the most disappointed couple in the world," Bob said. Everything was going smoothly until this, it was no fault of the mosquito, but we don't forget it."

Meanwhile, operators of charter cargo planes at Santa Paula, California, and Tokyo, Japan, across China, then to Midway Island, and on to San Francisco.

Navy Plans New Dives to See If Ancient Hulk Contains Treasure

Tobermory, Island of Mull, Scotland, April 4 —(Reuters)—Excitement gripped this rugged Scottish island today as the Royal Navy planned new dives to see if an ancient hulk located in Tobermory Bay last week is the fabulous £30,000,000 ($93,000,000) Spanish treasure galleon, Duque de Florencia.

The navy divers' discovery of wrought-iron timber in the hull of the bay has given substance to the often scorned ideas that Tobermory waters conceal wealth greater than a king's ransom in doubloons, pieces of eight, gold and silver jewels.

Local sceptics will be convinced of the treasure when they see it, but some of the divers of the two naval craft on the job appear convinced that they have found the 350-year-old wreck of the Florencia's grave.

Whether they will also find the treasure is the bigger question.

For the Florencia was reputed to have been blown up here shortly after the battle in which Sir Francis Drake defeated the Spanish Armada. Her violent end was the result of trouble between her officers and local Scottish chieftains.

Navy progress to date was contained in a laconic signal to the admiralty:

"Have located relic of wooden ship about 50 feet long and about 20 feet wide."

The king's sailors deal neither in doubloons nor jewels, and Cmdr. Reay Parkinson, in charge of operations, would not commit himself further.

"All I can say at the moment is we have discovered the remains of a wooden ship and that we are working on the site. The question of identification must await further discoveries and research," he said.

But divers under his command were optimistic.

The present operations are the climax to a treasure hunt which has lured people to the island of Mull for hundreds of years.

The navy has been searching for nearly two months on a contract between the admiralty and the Duke of Argyll. The duke holds the salvage rights in Tobermory Bay and is entitled to any treasure discovered. He will pay the cost of salvage.

Plot to Assassinate Nehru Is Smashed, 14 Hindus Held

Bombay, April 4—(AP)—Government officials indicated today they had smashed a plot to assassinate Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru with the arrest of 14 leaders of Hindu extremist organizations.

Some of those arrested had been held in the investigation of the slaying in 1948 of Mohandas Ghandi, India's man of peace and close associate of Nehru.

Among those taken into custody after the Monday bloodbath in Calcutta Measures Act were an official Hindu inspector and several others reported to have been collecting arms to carry out the plot.

Also failed was V. D. Savarkar, Hindu leader who was once acquitted of charges of conspiracy in murder Gandhi. Police also arrested editors of two newspapers in Poona charged with inciting anti-Muslim hatred.

The plot was believed to have been hatched out of extremist exasperation at Nehru's refusal to heed demands for war against neighboring Pakistan because of reported mistreatment of Hindus in Pakistan's east Bengal section.

The arrests were made as Nehru conferred in New Delhi with Pakistan's prime minister Liaquat Alikhan on ways of ending the bloody Hindu-Moslem flare-up. Reports whose bloody violence has threatened the peace between the two countries.

Many of those caught in the roundup are members of the Hindu Mahasabha organization which is bitterly opposed to the Pacifist policies of Nehru.

Wife and Six Children Saved From Asphyxiation by Timely Arrival of Husband From Work

The timely arrival of a father returning from a night watchman's job saved his wife and family of six children from possible death by asphyxiation from leaking coal gas fumes from the furnace overcame several members of the family.

Overcome from the gas fumes escaping from the furnace were Mrs. George Weeks, 26 Wilkins Street, and her two sons, Jack, 15, and Eddie, age five. Firemen were forced to use the inhalator in reviving the victims. All of the three are still suffering from the effects of the gas.

Mr. Weeks, a night guard at the nearby Northern Electric plant, had checked off work at eight o'clock and three minutes later was home.

He entered the house expecting to find the family awake but there was no sound. Mr. Weeks said he found his wife lying on the bathroom floor unconscious. The eldest son was unconscious on the hallway floor where he had fallen as he attempted to get to a door and open it.

Telephoned Department

Questioned by her husband as to what the trouble was Mrs. Weeks was just able to gasp out that the family had been overcome by coal gas. Mr. Weeks called the Northern Electric plant and telephoned the fire department.

They were fortunate that I did not have two or three miles to return from work," stated Mr. Weeks today. "Fifteen or twenty minutes later may have been too late." Mr. Weeks said that he had not smelled gas when he entered the house.

By a coincidence three of the Weeks' children were unaffected by the gas. These were Margaret, 18, Dorothy, 1 1-2 years, and Donald, age four months. Another son, Kenneth, age 9, was visiting at the time.

Mr. Weeks was unable to explain the reason for the coal gas in the house. The furnace had never troubled in this manner before. The furnace was a new one installed only last summer. Investigation showed the furnace had been properly checked, he stated.

Wartime Traitor Is Recorded as Possible Suicide

Los Angeles, April 4 (AP)—The sheriff's office today listed the puzzling disappearance of a convicted wartime traitor as a possible suicide.

Theodore Donay, 51, a Detroit importer who served 6 1-2 years in prison for failing to reveal the whereabouts of a suspected spy on escaped Nazi flier, vanished Saturday from Catalina Island The Nazi flier was Hans Peter Krug, who escaped from a Canadian Prison Camp.

Donay's disappearance took a dramatic twist as it coincided with the sighting of a mysterious submarine in Southern California coastal waters.

However, authorities said they had no concrete evidence by which to tie the two events together. Found at sea Sunday was the 18-foot motorboat the German-born Donay had rented from an Avalon dock. The boat was empty save for a suitcase full of clothing.

"I am living under the constant fear of deportation through the Detroit immigration authorities . . . the outlook for my future is a very dark one . . .

"Goodbye to you, America and thank you so very much for all the good things you did for me. Theodore Donay."

DAY-LONG BATTLE KEEPS PIPE-LINE POT BOILING

Three Recorded Votes Taken on Two Bills

Ottawa, April 4 — (CP) — A day-long, flag-'em-out battle, interspersed with three recorded votes and plenty of legal argument, kept the pipe-line pot boiling in the Commons Monday.

A brisk debate swirled once again around two private bills for incorporation of two companies seeking the right to build gas and oil pipe lines from the Alberta oil fields to the lush industrial markets of the British Columbia coast.

C. C. F. and Progressive Conservative members, backed by a scattering of Liberals, have fought the bills since their inception. They fear that the pipe lines will be routed through United States territory and that Canada's resources will at first fall on this fuel. They want a Canadian route.

The private members' day—the period set aside for study of private legislation — but as the votes were counted in the three recorded divisions they fell along party lines.

The first thrust came while the Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Limited bill to incorporate Prairie Transmission Limited, introduced by Ralph Maybank (L — Winnipeg South Centre)who is sponsoring the second bill, Incorporating Alberta Natural Gas Company, moved that the debate be adjourned. He explained that debate on the Alberta natural gas bill was almost concluded and it would have more chance of passing second reading if discussed at this time.

Progressive Conservatives objected and forced a vote. Mr. Maybank's motion carried by a count of 130 to 49.

Then, with debate scarcely under way on the Alberta natural gas bill, Henri Courtenanche — (PC — Labelle) moved that this debate be adjourned.

Western Powers Organize General Staff in Berlin

Will be Prepared to Meet 'Putsch' Tactics from East

Berlin, April 4 — (CP) — The Western Powers in Berlin have organized an Allied General Staff to spring into action in any emergency.

This was disclosed in an interview today by Maj.-Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, U.S. Commandant in the divided city.

In some respects the new Anglo-American-French staff resembles wartime SHAEF — Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Expeditionary Force. There is no over-all commander but the post is reserved for such appointment in the event of genuine aggression.

Taylor said there had always been a need for such a general staff and that the attitude of the East-German Communists had stepped up its organization.

Would Assist Police

He said the staff's primary task is to plan the suppression of any "Putsch" tactics that might be forthcoming from the east. The staff came into being after the Communists threatened to use a youth march of 500,000 East Germans to storm the city May 27-30, and spread disorder and fear. Since then the Communists have taken a milder tone in their plans for the end of next month.

West Berlin police are controlled by the Western Allies. Any Communist violence, but a force of 7,500 American, British and French troops stand behind them ready to be called if things get out of control.

There are 9,000 armed police available in the three sectors with a total population of 2,200,000. The Soviet sector, with a population of almost 1,000,000, has 5,000 armed police estimated at more than 15,000.

New Westminister, B.C., April 4 (CP)— A bullet ripped through a banker's chest Monday in a holdup attempt—New Westminster's "bank job" in 40 peaceful years.

Subdued by two passersby, 30-year-old Alvin Roy Le Tour of Vancouver was arrested by police and held without bail.

Mrs. Giddings found the jewels in their red box lying between the screen door and front door today as she let her pet dog out in the morning.

The jewels were reported missing Monday following an auction at household furniture in the home. It was thought someone intending the sale had slipped into the bedroom and taken the box.

Mrs. Giddings is the widow of Harry Giddings, well-known racehorse trainer who died recently.

Rain was welcomed by farmers on behalf of the province and reached as far north as the Sudbury-North Bay line. It will turn colder in the lower Great Lakes area on Wednesday where maximum temperatures will be around the 40 degree mark.

TRANS-ATLANTIC SERVICE IN RED FOR FIVE YEARS

Ottawa, April 4 — (CP) — The overall financial outlook for the Trans-Canada Air Lines system is "hopeful" but on Atlantic operations Canada's government air line expects to be in the red for the next five years.

The five-year deficit prediction was made to the Commons railways committee Monday night by Trade Minister Howe. He said the only way to stop it immediately was to cut the service, but recommended that the trans-ocean flight should continue to be built up and the deficit fought. The total deficit for 1949 which produced the biggest proportion of T.C.A.'s 1949 deficit of $4,317,593, had not progressed financially in five years "it may be fair for the committee to decide if the service should be cut."

The committee ranged over the whole field of T.C.A. operations. Under questioning by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, Gordon Fulton, (C.C.F.-Loops) and other members, it touched on the Canadian Pacific

Oakville, Ont., April 4 —(CP) —The mysterious disappearance of $18,000 worth of jewels from the home of Mrs. Estelle Giddings and the mysterious return of them 12 hours later has police puzzled.

Mrs. Giddings found the jewels in their red box lying between the screen door and front door today as she let her pet dog out in the morning.

The jewels were reported missing Monday following an auction of household furniture in the home. It was thought someone attending the sale had slipped into the bedroom and taken the box.

Change in US Regulations for Aliens In Transit Affects Canadians Little

Ottawa, April 4 — (CP) — A change in United States regulations for aliens in transit through that country will have little significance for Canadians, a U.S. embassy official said today.

Under the changed regulations, aliens in transit through the U.S. will be allowed only 29 days to complete their passage instead of the 60 days permitted them for some years.

However, it will not apply to Canadians leaving Canada for other countries and passing through the U.S. on the way, the official said.

Predicts Greater Use of Synthetic Textiles for Men

Don't look now, but there is a strong possibility that men as well as women will be clad in form-fitting rayon clothing within the next five years.

That is the prediction of Peter W. Webb, general sales manager Courtaulds (Canada) Ltd., Cornwall, who addressed the Rotary Club here on Monday.

Winter garments are traditionally associated with warmth, he said, but "tradition or not, you are going to be dressed in rayon suits you men, and your wives, too. You'll complain bitterly for a while and then you'll humbly admit that you like to buy trousers suits for little more than the price of one. You'll like all the qualities of the rayon suit and keeping up with the Jones will be easier for you'll be able to afford three suits each year instead of one."

Clothing Getting Lighter

Heavy textures are, for the normal climate of Canada of the past, he claimed. Even woollens are getting lighter in weight to suit the demands. The armed services have shown that too warm clothing is harmful to active people causes serious sweating, and it is drying out the wool itself causes excessive cooling and starts the coughs and sneezes.

Women have adopted light-weight dresses, Mr. Webb said, some are wearing rayon suits and skirts, cashmere hose and wool maroccins. She is wearing, he claimed, lightweight active sports lures, stylish and of low cost. Her habits are now as warm and more cool less as some people think.

A man's trouser legs inefficient as they are, now provide 20 percent more warmth than a woman's stockings, but rayon suits are the light underwear. She claims she is cold indoors but rarely out of doors and that she goes on goes the fur coat and carriage boots and heavy mug-fitting garments and don't hesitate to put on a sweater when needed.

Baggy Knees Inefficient

With all its attendant eye appeal, Mr. Webb said, form-fitting garments are more efficient protection than the open baggy suits which men prefer. A lesson from the distaff side is recommended.

He dismissed the "bugaboo" that "we'll all get pneumonia by trying to look cute." He claimed that a dry rayon fabric of equal thickness by weight will let one lose heat but it will cause no greater drop of skin or body temperature than will dry wool.

He paid tribute to the Deacon Brothers Ltd., which, he said, "has put courage behind its understanding that clothing can still be good-looking and stylish whilst being useful in keeping you warm."

In his opening remarks, Mr. Webb described in detail the process of manufacture of rayon from the spruce tree to the finished garment. He was introduced by President Fred Deacon with thanks of the club expressed by Rotarian McLean Halp.

During the business session of the luncheon, Rotarian John Buchan "baby" member of the club was presented with his official button. Guests included Alderman Bruce Lattimer, Reg. Hinchey, Ben Yanover, Rotarians Smith, Gerald Parr and Al Parr of Trenton, Dr. A. Boothe, pathologist of the Belleville General Hospital and others.

H.&P.E. Regt. To Hold Reunion Late in Fall

World War II veterans of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will hold their 1950 reunion in Belleville during Thanksgiving weekend, it was decided by Association executive members at a special reseting held Sunday afternoon in the local armories.

It was expected that approximately 1,000 of the H. and P. E. veterans of the last war would attend the reunion. The last reunion was held in Peterborough. Angus Duffy of Belleville is president of the Association, while Robt. Scott, also of this city, is secretary treasurer and was named chairman of the general committee to plan for the reunion.

A complete regiment history of the 2nd World War will be compiled by Major Angus Mowatt of Picton. It is expected it will take about two years to compete the history.

Split Into Zones

It was decided to split the Association into zones with headquarters at various centres in Central Ontario. The Toronto-Oshawa district will be affiliated with the Asoro Club of Toronto, while the district east of Oshawa to Cobourg and north to Lakefield, exclusive of Bancroft, will be affiliated with the Duffy Club of Peterborough. The Napanee-Kingston — Gananoque district will have headquarters at the Navigelo Club of Kingston and the district from Picton to Belleville to the Quebec border will be affiliated with the Lammonie Club of Gananoque.

The Regiment Association now has a scholarship fund of approximately $3,000 to provide university scholarships for children of regiment veterans killed overseas. There are now 21 children eligible for the scholarships. Mr. Spencer of the Trenton High School staff is trustee of the fund.

Tim Buck Views Budapest Parade

Budapest, April 4—(Reuters)—Soviet Marshal Klement Voroshilov and Communist leaders from 20 countries, including Britain and Canada, today reviewed a giant military and civilian parade in celebration of the fifth anniversary of the Red army's liberation of Hungary from the Germans.

Attending the parade were Tim Buck, national leader of the Canadian Labor-Progressive (Communist) party, and R. Palme Dutt, vice-chairman of the British Communist party.

"The plans of the Imperialists are dead," the Marshal declared. "And all the threats of atomic or hydrogen bombs will not deter them from continuing the fight for peace."

Voroshilov, who is deputy chairman of the Soviet council of ministers, said:

"The western powers are mistaken if they believe that the Yugoslav people will support them or can be incited to war against the Soviet Union.

"The Yugoslav people know their place is within the camp of peace, and the working class of Yugoslavia will undoubtedly overthrow Tito and regain its place within the ranks of the people's democracies."

Flood Water Runs Two Feet Deep In Brampton

Brampton, April 4 — (CP) — A forecast that the temperature will drop tonight close to the freezing point brought hope today of relief from flooding caused by the rampaging Etobicoke Creek.

Water surged two feet deep down the main street of this community 25 miles northwest of Toronto. Barricades, hastily thrown up, blocked the street to traffic. There were no reports of serious damage.

Merchants removed goods from basements of their stores in the business section and carried the merchandise to high ground. Some of them boarded up their premises.

With several low-lying sections of the town under water, a siren warned citizens that the flood water was over the creek banks.

Heavy rain was reported in the highlands north of Brampton.

The main street of Brampton was flooded for a few hours last week by a similar flood.

Elsewhere in Southern Ontario, overnight rain gave rise today to flood troubles. Roads were inundated in Toronto suburban areas along the banks of the Humber River and Etobicoke and Highland creeks.

Will Include Municipal Employees in Code

Toronto, April 4 (CP)—Labor Minister Daley said today the new Ontario labor code will be amended to include in it provisions municipal employees.

Mr. Daley spoke today during the resumed debate on second reading of the labor bill. Formerly municipal employees came under terms of the labor code only when a by-law was passed by the municipal council.

The amendment proposed today by Mr. Daley provides that municipal employees will come under the code unless specifically excluded by a municipal by-law.

Bishop Lyons Officiates at Confirmation

Picton — Archbishop John Lyons, D. D., officiated at the confirmation service at the Church of Ss. Magdalene on Sunday night. In speaking to the congregation, he said a visit to Picton, a parish just prior to his election as Bishop of the Diocese, was like a homecoming. He outlined the responsibilities of the Christian life to those confirmed. The class was presented by the rector, Rev. W. G. H. Swayne. A capacity crowd was in attendance.

Four Injured In Collision Near Marmora

Marmora, (Special).—Four persons were injured necessitating the removal of two to the Belleville General Hospital early Saturday evening as a headon collision occurred on No. 7 Highway near the turn to Crowe Lake between a car driven by Claude Tucker of Stirling, and a coupe driven by John Youmans, of Marmora, R.R. 3.

Two Taken to Hospital

Following treatment of the four patients by Dr. W. J. Donevan, of Marmora, John Youmans and Mrs. Myrtle Youmans were conveyed to Belleville General Hospital by ambulance. The Youmans' car was a total wreck and the other car was badly damaged.

The accident occurred at 4.45 p.m. as the Youmans' car proceeding west met the other car as it was approaching Marmora. There were only the three occupants in the former car, but fellow passengers of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Tucker were Mr. and Mrs. Donald Tucker and infant daughter, Donna, also of Stirling.

Provincial Officer Hector Gould of Madoc, investigated and charges will be laid.

Campaign Results Disappointing
Red Cross Canvassers Requested To Turn in Cards to Headquarters

With the expiry date practically in sight, officials of the Belleville and District Red Cross Campaign are viewing with some concern the amount of funds contributed thus far.

Contributions to date amount to slightly over $7,000. The quota set for the city and surrounding communities is $13,000.

Officials stated today that it is urgent that canvassers turn in cards received to date. This is necessary as no definite amount of contributions can be ascertained until this is done. Time is getting short and all efforts must be put forth if the campaign is to reach its objective.

Contributions from Picton and Prince Edward, Trenton, Marmora and other places within the campaign area have not as yet put in an appearance, but it is expected that these will be forthcoming in the immediate future. Contributions in these places are requested to forward to Belleville headquarters their donations as soon as possible.

The city and district bears the proud distinction of contributing generously to any humanitarian cause. History has proven that. Residents of this area have always been lax in what they feel is their duty towards the aid of those in need. The Red Cross quotas in the past have always been reached and in some cases over-subscribed.

Campaign officials feel that the people of Belleville and its urban areas will not let the Red Cross down at this time. The "First to Help and the Last to Ask" this world-wide organization has never been found wanting in its efforts to succor the unfortunate or to aid victims of disaster, flood and fire, in peace and war.

If you have not contributed already, please do so at your earliest convenience. If a canvasser has called on you, send your donation to Red Cross Headquarters, Riggs Garage, Bridge Street, Belleville.

Again, canvassers are urged to turn in all monies and cards to campaign headquarters as soon as possible.

Russian Planes Used to Down Chinese Craft

Taipei, Formosa, April 4 (AP) — An air headquarters spokesman today said Russian-built planes which downed two Chinese Nationalist fighters were doubtedly were operated by Russians.

The Nationalist fighters were shot down Sunday during a raid on red shipping in Hangchow Bay, south of Shanghai, by four to five Russian planes, a communique said.

That opposition, the first the Nationalists have encountered in the air in four years of civil war, was seen by many today as an ominous forerunner of communist air attacks on Formosa.

It also is believed the reds will have air cover if they attempt an invasion of this nationalist island.

The Nationalist fighters, the communique said, were making low-level strafing runs on communist junks concentrated near Chapu on Hangchow Bay for an amphibious assault on the Chusan Islands. The island group, about 100 miles southeast of Shanghai, is used by the Nationalists for air and naval bases.

The communique said one of the Nationalist planes, a Mustang, crashed and returned safely to base.

Many More Added

The communique added:

"According to an accurate intelligence report from the mainland, a large number of Russian planes had arrived at Shuchow (Suchow), 160 miles north of Nanking . . .

"At Hsuchow their Russian insignia was repainted into Chinese red insignia with red and white stripes on the tail fins," the communique continued.

"They are participating in combat flights disguised as Chinese communist airplanes.

"Aside from the main base a Hsuchow, Russian technicians are operating radar stations as well as anti-aircraft emplacements in the Shanghai and Hangchow areas."

Hong Kong dispatches last November quoted noteworthy American business sources as saying Russian planes were on regular patrols over sea lanes to red ports in North China. These sources also reported Russian garrison and anti-aircraft crews were in Tientsin and Tsingtao.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

BRAVE HOPEFULNESS

From the cradle to the grave we are each beset with problems, and it is the measure of our facing and handling them, that measures out how our lives are to be appraised.

I have a little book, which is the publication of an address that William James gave before the Y.M.C.A. of Harvard University in 1895, a closing he quoted from his friend William Salter of the Philadelphia Ethical Society, who said: "As the sweetness and courage is to stake one's life on a possibility, so the essence of faith is to believe that the possibility exists."

Then James closed with these words: "Be not afraid of life. Believe that life is worth living, and your belief will help create the fact." We ought to live under the great shadow of a brave hopefulness. It is during troublesome times that our greatest literature is created. In the midst of the American Revolution it was Tom Paine who said, "These are the times that try men's souls!" They were.

But a brave hopefulness was triumphant.

The decision to live on, no matter how black the prospect may be, is the heritage of an honor that we owe not alone to ourselves, but to all the world. It is when we seem least important that the burden of responsibility rests heaviest upon us. It is then that a brave hopefulness, centered in an unalterable faith, can take possession of us and guide us to victory.

Upon the higher faculties within us do we lean the heaviest when dire distress arrives. It is then that they are called into action, reserves that, as up we lead us through to a successful consummation of our task. It is when we seem least important that the burden of responsibility rests heaviest upon us. It is then that a brave hopefulness, centered in an unalterable faith, can take possession of us and guide us to victory.

Kashmir Big Issue

Another big item in the catalogue of differences is the dispute over possession of the great state of Kashmir. This state, which is largely inhabited by Moslems, was ruled over by a Hindu Maharajah.

When the Dominions of Pakistan and India were created the Maharajah wanted to join India, whereas his Moslem subjects asked for Pakistan. This situation has almost resulted in war, and has been so bitter that the United Nations failed so far to find a solution, although the search continues.

Literally hundreds of thousands of Hindus have fled from Pakistan territory into India, and hundreds of thousands of Moslems have fled India into Pakistan.

Apart from the bloodshed, such a great dislocation of populations involving the loss of homes and means of livelihood, has created untold hardships. Not only must the fighting be stopped, but the best of hungry and impoverished refugees must be taken care of,

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

THE BASIC DUTIES

As one listens to Fritz Kreisler the violinist, the genius of the man and the high development of his technique produce an overwhelming effect.

Kreisler always begins his daily practice on the violin by playing the scales—just as he did decades ago when he was first learning to play. He has never reached the height where he feels he can disregard the fundamentals. The discipline of scale playing is still basic to his art.

We often hear a lot of high-sounding speech about morality and duty. The philosophers and theologians are taking some of the mystery out of moral concepts and tangle them with polysyllabic terms until ordinary folk can understand what is being discussed. Yet morality is a very simple thing. Right living is a pathway before our feet so clearly marked that even the simple may not err therein with assurance. There are only a few fundamentals underlying the good life, and practically all of us know what these fundamentals are.

Scale playing is basic to musical technique. It is indispensable in the moral field as well. Sometimes it is well to stick to the simplicities, we will find the going easier. Thus we thought it could possibly be.

Old Country Letter:

Hue and Cry in Britain Over, Crimes of Violence a Boon To Merchants Selling Locks

By DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Love laughs at locksmiths, goes the saying, but today it's the locksmiths who can afford to laugh. Their business is booming.

It's a side product of the current hue and cry in Britain over crimes of violence. Front-page stories in the popular press of youths swinging "coshes" and other nasty weapons have sent people flocking scurrying to the hardware store.

They demand chain locks, mortice locks, double locks, anything that will make their doors proof against unwelcome intruders. Many stores are said to be sold out. One result is that locksmith factories are working overtime to cope with the unexpected flood of orders.

"The public demand during the last few years has been the biggest I ever remember — and I've been in the business more than 30 years," says the manager of one chain of hardware stores. "The biggest demand comes from householders in the London area and the suburbs of the big cities."

An increased use of the armed burglaries has even shaken the faith in locks of many house dwellers, usually inclined to feel protected behind elaborate and baffling patents. Said a London locksmith who has had a rush of orders to fit mortice locks: "In the old days people who lived in blocks of flats often did not bother with extra locks. Now I have a lot."

Post-war Criminal

Sir Hugh Turnbull, retiring after 23 years as Commissioner of Police for the City of London, had something to say about the current criminal element:

"The criminal of today is far different from the criminal of pre-war years," said Sir Hugh. "He is far cleverer, far more highly organized. To combat this new type of criminal, the modern policeman must be far more highly trained."

But if criminal ways are changing, the lock industry can boast that its contributions to keeping down crime have the mark of greatness.

For example, the detector automatic invented in 1818 by Jeremiah Chubb is still used, in improved form, by the Chubb Company. This was the lock that for three months, in a special test, defied the combined efforts of the most notorious lock-picker of the day.

Another example of locking ingenuity, a lock firm recently had a group of mailbox locks sent in from all parts of the country. The average age of these locks was 65 years. "Locks of fast design," it was since 1842, two years after the first street mailbox was introduced.

About the same time the quaint newspaper item about the curfew appeared, a weekly of the American Medical Association came out with an editorial about "colds". Oracularly, the Journal editorial asserted that there is no cure.

The funny part of that, it seems to me, is that the writer or the editorial of course knows no more than the writer of a hokum about discovery of the "authorities" who say there is no cure they're talking about is that every one knows what a "cold" is.

As long as the "authorities" can get away with this, and as long as every one, or nearly every one, thinks he or she knows what a "cold" is, the practice of medicine and public health will afford attractive careers for doctors whose minds or consciences go along with the interests.

This is my advice: Whenever you find yourself within conversational spray range of a person who purports to have a little "cold" duck as fast as you can and beat it out of range. This is not nearly so difficult as it may seem at first thought. After all, conversational spray range is not more than five feet from the face of the sprayer, only two or three feet in quiet conversation. Thus you may feel fairly sure that no matter what the so and so may be coming down with, he'll keep it to himself, at least while chatting with you.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Should A Child Reduce?

Please send your pamphlet "How to Lose Weight" to the stamped addressed envelope inclosed. Also a cakey chart. Our daughter, in early teens, is much overweight. (Mrs. H. L.)

Answer—I can give no advice or instruction for reducing, except to persons over 18 years of age. I advise against any attempt to reduce the weight of a growing child—except as her own physician may prescribe.

Underwear

Please advise why elderly people who chill easily should wear light weight porous woolen underwear in the winter and spring months.' Mother complains that such underwear is not comfortable, but she thinks you are always right. (M. N. P.)

Answer—Such underwear is unobjectionable if it is comfortable. I think any one, young or elderly, should wear or leave off whatever he or she finds comfortable at the moment. That oughta hold 'em for a while, eh, Mother?

Thirty-two Warts on Fingers

Son has about 32 warts on his fingers. He is in the Army—because of a wonderful new cure for the hypothetical "cold," when I challenge them to tell us what they're talking about is that every one knows what a "cold" is.

As long as the "authorities" can get away with this, and as long as every one, or nearly every one, thinks he or she knows what

Meeting Between Prime Ministers Momentous One

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The conference in New Delhi between the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan, over the bitter differences between these new sister countries, is a matter of moment not only to them, but to the whole world.

The one bright spot in this dismal picture is that it seems to bring peace out of embittered relations which have forced the two states into the verge of hostilities.

War involving the more than 400,000,000 people of the Indian peninsula (over one-sixth of the world's population) might precipitate a general conflict upheaval. Certainly it would have a tremendous effect on the outcome of the swelling conflict between communism and democracy in southeast Asia.

So this meeting between Prime Minister Nehru of India and Ali Khan of Pakistan is close to all of us.

The differences between the two countries are deep-seated—religious (Hindu versus Moslem) and economic. The separation of the sub-continent into two rival states was the result of a final division of economic resources.

This would have been bad enough under all circumstances, but unfortunately when the separation was effected many Moslems were left in Hindu territory and vice versa. This has resulted in grave communal disorders, especially in Bengal.

Kashmir Big Issue

Another big item in the catalogue of differences is the dispute over possession of the great state of Kashmir. This state, which is largely inhabited by Moslems, was ruled over by a Hindu Maharajah.

When the Dominions of Pakistan and India were created the Maharajah wanted to join India, whereas his Moslem subjects asked for Pakistan. This situation has almost resulted in war, and has

Drew Crosses Verbal Swords With C.D. Howe

Ottawa, April 4 — (CP) — George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, crossed verbal swords with Trade Minister Howe in the commons today as the Committee Monday over disclosure of details of Trans-Canada Air Lines' purchase of a fleet of Vickerage of newspapers.

Mr. Drew asked details of the contracts T. C. O. President G. E. R. McGregor said the company had with Vickers or newspaper publishers.

Mr. Howe said this would disclose vital information to T.C.A.'s competitors and he did not think the committee was entitled to it. Details of the internal management of T.C.A. were also public.

Mr. Drew said it was time the committee decided it was entitled to all such information and that it was making a mockery of the contracts with newspapers. That it considered later today.

The committee, which completed consideration last week of the annual report of the Canadian National Railways, is now on a page-by-page examination of the annual report of T. C. A. The airline showed a deficit of $4,- 317,593 on 1949 operations.

Mr. Drew asked details of salaries of T. C. A. officers, said the commission as the whole of the company's operations were forthcoming the function of the committee would be rendered meaningless.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

When fashion takes hold of a dog, it is usually for the duration. In the past generation alone, we have seen breed after breed of dog rise, flourish, and then, swiftly and inevitably sprawling, at the top of the dog fancier's world, are men and women of the highest integrity, men who, through association, shows and field trials, have established the standards in the breeding and importation of dogs. But in the dog trade ever also a considerable number of nimble characters whose eyes are on the dollar sign. Their function is to provide the fashionable dog precisely as the hat trade provides the fashionable hat. And the commercial activities can be traced the rise and fall of so many breeds of dog in recent years.

withstood for generations the ruinous effect of fashion. It is true the American idea of a cocker differs from the English. The American cocker is smaller, from 19 to 24 pounds in weight, while the English cocker runs from 25 to 28 pounds. In the past thirty years, the English cocker has also submitted to fashion in a modest degree as regards the length of his legs, one of the characteristics of setters, the next, longies. But at one time it was possible to show, lately, I was thunderstruck to behold the cocker reduced to the proportions of a basset, these pocket dachsunds with a long nose above the eyes the size of an orange. Short neck, bowed forelegs, large gazes. They looked like St. Charles spaniels with the droopy. Cockers have been bred, actually, somebody-or-

1,800 Policemen In Montreal Form Labor Body

Montreal, April 4 (CP)—Montreal's 1,800 policemen have formed a new labor body to replace the outlawed Canadian Brotherhood of Policemen and at their first meeting adopted a resolution challenging a government bill disbanding the C.B.P.

At a day-long meeting Monday, the policemen resigned en bloc from the C.B.P. and enlisted in a new local organization called the Montreal Brotherhood of Policemen.

Late Monday night, the new organization adopted a resolution asking federal authorities to challenge the validity of private bill "97" passed in the Quebec Legislative Assembly last week.

The bill disbanded the C.B.P. by prohibiting policemen from belonging to a labor organization which is affiliated outside the municipality where the policemen are employed.

The C.B.P. was disbanded during the weekend following an emergency meeting of its executive to study the provincial government ruling.

The 60 delegates, representing the C.B.P.'s 2,500 members in 24 Quebec municipalities, decided that obedience to the law was the "sole means" of seeking collective labor agreements with their employers.

Executive of the C.B.P. and legal counsel Guy Mercil Desaulniers told the delegates, meeting in camera, that as a result of the bill, cities and municipalities no longer can negotiate with the C.B.P.

They added that the "only choice provided by the bill is for the policemen to reorganize into local unions, no matter how small and do their best to negotiate themselves with their employers."

Broken Homes Much too Common Says Report

Toronto, April 4 (CP)—Broken homes and common-law marriages are on the increase and becoming "much too common," says the annual report of the advisory board of the Ontario Department of Reform Institutions, tabled Monday in the Legislature.

The report advised a strict check-up on the requirements for marriage, and suggested a program of education for parenthood.

The board noted a recent tendency to commit young children to training schools. Of 619 youngsters now in training schools, 17 percent were listed as mentally defective.

Sending of extremely handicapped children, such as deaf mutes, to training schools lacking facilities to care for them was deplored. Training schools should not be regarded as dumping grounds for every sort of individual irrespective of whether he fits into some other place, the report contended.

Generating Units At Des Joachims Start in June

Toronto, April 4 — (CP)—Two of the eight new hydro-electric generating units at Des Joachims, Que., will start operating in June, Robert H. Saunders, chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, said Monday at the Canadian Association of Radio and Appliance Dealers Convention.

Although the opening date had not been set, he said it was expected it would be either June 28 or June 27 with output of 120,000 horsepower increasing to the total capacity of 480,000 horsepower by the end of the year. Situated on the Ottawa River, the plant is 38 miles upstream from Pembroke, Ont., and will supply power to Southern Ontario.

Later in the meeting, delegates agreed that because of the lack of decision as to what means of broadcasting color television is best, color television is at least five to 10 years distant.

British Writer Says no War For 24 Months

Montreal, April 4 — (CP) — Russia does not intend to make any physical move toward a 3rd world war for 24 months, at which time she thinks she will be so well prepared that the Atlantic system will give in to her rather than risk annihilation, Kenneth de Courcy, British writer and publisher of the Intelligence Digest, told the Canadian Club of Montreal Monday.

In an address on "Towards Crisis and Renaissance in World Affairs", Mr. de Courcy said the only way to stop this threat to civilization was by the prompt building up of Turkey, so that Russian sources of oil supply would be cut off, without which she could not conduct war.

Mr. de Courcy refused no words in condemning Soviet methods, or in-varying what he described as the Atlantic system to cease talking strategy and get down to hard facts, asserting that the Soviet aim was to keep the members of the Atlantic Pact talking while they were extending their frontiers and thus rendering a great section of their land mass invulnerable.

Glad to Hear 'Such a Rush' To Pay Taxes

Ottawa, April 4. (CP)—G. K. Fraser (PC—Peterborough West) asked the government in the Commons Monday to increase its staff in the income tax office at Peterborough, to help meet the year-end rush to file income tax returns.

He told the Chamber he was in the office on Saturday and found more than 50 persons waiting in line with only one officer at the six employees in the office available to check the returns. Many of them were farmers who came in from the countryside on the weekend.

Revenue Minister McCann promised to bring the matter to the attention of his officials and said he was glad to hear that there was "such a rush" to pay income taxes in the Peterborough area.

Lord Alexander May be Successor To Montgomery

London, April 4—(CP)— The Daily Telegraph says today that Viscount Alexander, Governor-General of Canada, is "being spoken of" as a successor to Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery as chief of the Western Union Defence set-up.

"If he does go, it will be no victory for Gen. de Lattre de Tassigny, the military commander of Western Union, who has never got on well with the field marshal. He is also likely to go."

Of Lord Alexander, Peterborough says, "it is known that he has been offered a high post under the North Atlantic Pact."

The Governor-General now is en route to Ottawa by air after a three-week visit to Britain. His vice-regal term is up next year.

5,100 Voters May be Decisive At Next Election

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, April 4 (CP)— Boyish-looking Woodrow Wyatt, at 32 one of Britain's youngest Members of Parliament, has decided that 5,100 votes may be decisive at the next election.

Given those votes, he argues, Labor could win a working majority of nearly 50 in the 625-seat House of Commons. Its present majority is four, with two by-elections pending.

Wyatt selects the 5,100 figure, meticulously, and this is his arithmetic:

The Conservatives won 22 constituencies at the last election by fewer than 1,000 votes. The total Conservative edge over Labor in these seats was 10,200.

Thus 5,100 votes "cast the other way, and in the right proportion," could mean 22 extra seats for Labor—enough for a majority of 48 if there were no changes elsewhere.

"On the other hand," Wyatt points out in Labor publicity journal, "there are 19 seats held by Labor with majorities of fewer than 1,000 . . . the utmost vigilance has to be maintained to prevent them being swung against us at the next election."

Like many other Labor MPP's Wyatt looks to the middle classes as the party's hope for a better showing at the polls. He considers Socialism may already have polled its maximum working-class vote—some 13,000,000—"and in an invincible political ignorance." refuse to change their allegiance.

The middle classes are more malleable. The best way to appeal to them is to stress the moral rather than material aspects of Socialism. They could be "lifted out of themselves" if aware that their small hardships contributed to a higher standard for others.

He opposes any soft-pedalling on nationalization measures, saying that any doubles about the effects of public ownership should be openly discussed.

Wyatt, a barrister, has often startled Parliament by his somewhat unorthodox opinions. He was one of the first to urge that Russia is building the largest air force in the world. What are they building it for? They are building it for use whenever their carefully-timed Peace Offensive comes around."

The pending budget allots $1,500,000,000 for air force procurement and $650,000,000 for new planes for the navy and marines.

Vinson would give the air force an additional $200,000,000 or a total of $1,550,000,000 for new planes, and the navy an increase of $383,239,211 or $1,033,289,211 for the same purpose.

These increases, Vinson said, are needed to maintain an up-to-date 48-group air force and a modern naval air arm.

More Warplanes Urged in U.S. To Meet Threat

Washington, Apr. 4 (AP)—The chairman of the House of Representatives armed services committee today called on Congress to vote $833,289,211 for more warplanes to help meet the threat of an "atomic blitz."

Protesting that the Truman administration's $12,911,127,000 military program "will neither American air power on the vine," representative Carl Vinson (Dem.-Ga.) urged instead that air strength be boosted promptly.

Vinson said that the president's budget for the fiscal year beginning in July does not assure adequate defence at a time when "the atomic blitz of tomorrow is a real, a genuine possibility," He added.

"It is universally known today

Canada should accept part payment in sterling for wheat. In his opinion, expressed in the House last September, Britain should "stop being squeamish" with Canada.

Actor Supposed Dying Ecstatic With Kisses

London, April 4—(Reuters) — For 36 hours actor James Kenney has been dying of kisses—American movie star Virginia Mayo's.

And he has been critisized for enjoying it.

He is portraying a young sailor lying wounded in the ship's sick bay, crying "kiss me like my mother did."

The scene had had to be shot from so many angles that the whole thing has lasted about a day and a half.

But James, who is 18, looks ecstatic that the director has ordered, "cut that out, you're supposed to be dying."

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

Fat isn't always the dirty villain.

Since fat must be largely eliminated from reducing diets and since reducing diets are the order of the day, fat as a food is often carelessly condemned.

It's well to be reminded that foods like butter contain essential fatty acids as well as needed vitamins, and that greens like romaine or chicory would be about as palatable as grass if not served with a small amount of dressing containing oil.

You don't have to emulate the Eskimos, who eat rendered fat as a dessert. But when you serve a large green salad as a main luncheon course, you'll need a snappy oil dressing to make it complete.

Caesar salad from California has become more or less of a national institution. Its base is romaine, its dressing oil and lemon juice. The salad is garlic scented and served with toasted bread croutons and cheese.

The amount of dressing needed will depend on the amount of greens used. A large bowl should have a thin film of dressing but should not be soaked; there should be no excess of dressing in the bowl.

Caesar Salad. 2 Large Servings

Place 1 egg in boiling water. Turn off gas flame. Let egg remain in water 2 minutes. Remove from water.

Cut enough French bread or Vienna bread into 1-inch cubes to make 1 1-2 cups. Place cubes in a moderate oven, or under a small broiler flame, until brown, turning occasionally.

Smash 1 large clove of garlic and add to 2 tablespoons olive or salad oil. Let garlic stand in oil five minutes. Remove garlic. Toss bread cubes in oil.

Rub garlic along sides and bottom of a large salad bowl. Separate leaves of a large head of romaine. Wash and drain completely. Use a clean towel, if necessary, to remove any moisture from leaves. Tear romaine into 1 inch-square. Place in salad bowl.

Combine 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon dry mustard and 1-8 teaspoon pepper with 2 tablespoons olive oil and 1 tablespoon lemon juice. When thoroughly mixed add to salad bowl. Toss salad until leaves are completely coated with dressing but not bruised.

Add 2 tablespoons freshly grated Parmesan cheese or crumbled blue cheese. Break coddled egg into salad bowl. Add bread cubes. Toss lightly. Serve at once.

Pocketbook Gets Thin Before Couple Takes Matrimonial Leap

The old family-type ceremony is fast disappearing. Now 100 to 150 guests attend the average formal wedding which costs the bride and her family $500 to $600—and often plenty more.

Evening ceremonies are becoming increasingly popular, too, especially on hot summer days. The twilight weddings are also more convenient for the increasing number of out-of-town guests.

Toronto's two largest bridal planning bureaus handled unlisted of the city's 11,000 weddings last year. This is how they say the costs go:

The largest single item is catering, usually planned three months in advance, but this depends on the season—summer weddings require earlier planning. For 150 guests, catering costs will total $200. Add another $20 if the punch is to be alcoholic.

Then the bride's dress will cost $80, and those of three attendants $45 each. The bride's tendress means another $25 (finger-tip fashion) or $35 (for a long veil.) Attendants at this average wedding will pay $6 for theirs.

Church rentals, booked up to a year in advance for a Saturday wedding, run from $10 to $25 for a non-church member. Tack on another $5 for the sexton, $10 to $15 for the organist, and $10, to the vocalist.

Most brides like a white carpet, so count another $12.50. Flowers taken to the place of reception, run to $50. Then a small bouquet for the bride will cost the bride $5 to $10, and she pays $8 to $15 for her attendant's bouquets. The bridegroom provides corsages for both mothers.

For a Saturday occasion, reception hall reservations are made five months to a year ahead of time, and cost $25, with engraved invitations for 150 guests taking another $30.

Want some luxurious touches? Shell out upwards of $30 for a canopy and anything from $25 up for a host serving a wide variety of liquor and champagne. Some have three to eight piece orchestras playing at union rates.

Services of a wedding display table and arrangement of gifts will take care of a further $25.

Bureaus also provide commissionaires to open car doors, parking attendants, announcers to call out guests' names at the reception, detectives to guard gifts and transcriptions made of the wedding ceremony.

Some weddings run into thousands of dollars. Highest handled by either bureau was a $40,000 affair for an out-of-town customer.

But you don't have to follow the trend. Wedding authorities say you can have a simple informal ceremony with eight to 10 guests for $50. That doesn't include spiked punch.

LEARNED HER LESSON

"Isn't it funny how things you learned at school suddenly come back? My washjays had a yellow tinge and then I remembered our chemistry teacher telling us that seven colours combine to make white, and one of them is blue. That is why there is no true white without blue. So of course, I use Heckitt's Blue now to keep my clothes white always—just a swish or two in the final rinse. Out of the blue comes the whitest wash."

A WORD ABOUT OUR VAULTS. We operate the largest vaults in Belleville, with the plant covering over 3,300 square feet.

The vaults are the only ones in the district constructed of solid poured cement with the walls and roof reinforced with steel. The concrete walls are 12 inches thick .. the roof 6 to 8 inches thick, poured in solid slabs, and supported by 10 huge beams. This type of construction is the only one that assures complete protection to your furs.

The walls and floors are lined with 4 inches of cork .. the ceiling with 5 inches. The cork is applied to the walls in hot asphalt with all joints staggered. The entire surface is then plastered.

ASHLEY FURS maintain a 33 to 37 temperature in the vaults the year round, assuring complete protection against the dreaded moth.

For cooling .. we use the latest type blower coils .. using a total of 8 horsepower on the compressors. This assures an even flow of frigid air around each garment.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beekman

How to sign your Easter Cards.

You should sign a greeting card with your informal name . . . never your name with a title, never "Mrs." or "Mr." or "Mr. and Mrs." or Miss."

If, as is customary, a wife is signing the Easter cards that she and her husband are sending, she, politely, signs her husband's name first: John and Joan; or on some cards, for necessary identification, John and Joan Clark. If the husband is signing the cards, he, politely, signs his wife's name first: Joan and John.

If a child's name is to be included in the signature, the father's name should always be written first: John and Joan, and Polly and Jim. Or, also correct, informal, and very friendly too:

A widow signs her cards Elizabeth, or Elizabeth Martin . . . never "Mrs. Peter Martin" and never "Mrs. Elizabeth Martin".

A divorcee signs her cards Alice or Alice Foster, or Alice Thompson Foster. . . . never her name with a title.

An unmarried girl or woman signs her cards Marie or Marie Allen . . . never with "Miss" before her name.

Sending informals with their "new home" address

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

My husband and I have very recently moved into a new house, which we have bought. I have had informals made, and (following a suggestion you made in a recent column) had our new address engraved in the lower right corner. This is the first permanent address my husband and I have had, as we were married at the beginning of the war, just before he went overseas, and since the war we have been trying to get settled in business and in a home. We both have many relatives and friends, both in this country and in Europe, principally in England and Scotland, I thought it might be a good idea to mail these informals to this list of relatives and friends, even to those abroad, informing them of our new address. Do you approve of this? (2) My informals are engraved "Mr. ——" on the first page. Would this make them incorrect to use for sending our address? (3) In the case of those living here or nearby would it be proper to write our new telephone number on the cards? (It's not yet in the telephone-book.)

Cathy M.

1. An excellent idea, this . . . entirely proper, practical, too. But you shouldn't send the cards without a bit of note of explanation written on the inside page. Perhaps somewhat like this:

Dear Mary and Bill,

Good news. . . Bob and I are "at long last" in our new home, and we're so delighted and proud to have a permanent address that we're sending it along to you. It's to tell you we hope you'll come to see us soon!

Dearest love to you both from both of us.

Affectionately,

2. These are correct. . . just write "Mr. and" in ink before your name. (Do this, too, when you and your husband send invitations on these cards . . . to a housewarming, for example.)

3. Yes, (it would be correct, and very helpful of course, to write your telephone number on the cards.

BEAUTY

Good-looks hazards of the housewife

Suggest to the boss of the domestic works that she needs exercise and she'll greet you with raucous laughter or chase you out of the house. She washes and irons, scrubs and cleans. What's that but exercise, she will ask you.

The answer is: it is hard work that results in depressing fatigue, and, in the course of time, may result in what physical education directors call the "housekeeper's droop". It can be beneficial exercise, everything depending upon the movements of the body and what posture is maintained.

Every muscle of the body has a special function, a special way of giving support. Use them properly and they keep strong; if you don't do that they weaken and the entire silhouette changes, loses the appearance of youth. It happens over and over again.

The homemaker, unless she watches her beauty requirements, will lose her good looks more quickly than the career girl. The wage-earner is on parade, as it were. In the home one can lapse, look old and tired, if one wants to—and there are days when one just doesn't care—days when the baby is fretty, when the Pappy is home with a cold and grumbling, when work piles up. That work that must be done is mentally, physically, spiritually.

Your husband and children are entitled to take pride in you

If you are a wife and mother, you have a special incentive to preserve the appearance of youth. Your husband and children are entitled to take pride in the way you look. If you have charm, the atmosphere of your home will be sunny.

We offer a few suggestions for retaining the waist shape. Read them, heed them, act upon them.

When bending over the pick up something from the floor, bend from the hips. If you bend at the waistline, the muscles of the abdomen will bulge, your waist measurement will slowly increase. If you use brush and dustpan, get down on one knee, keeping the upper portion of your body erect and vibrant.

Don't bend when using floor mop or carpet sweeper. You can make that an exercise, taking deep regular breaths as you go about the task.

Have a high stool in the kitchen. Sit on it when you are ironing. You'll be able to do this job just as well, and will suffer less fatigue than if you stand for hours. Sit down when preparing vegetables. Have a cut lemon handy to use, so your hands will not be stained.

Whenever you have to reach to a high shelf, give yourself a few stretches. Stretching is an excellent form of exercise. It helps you to avoid the strains that wear you out and delete the fine lines of your figure.

New Nylon Blouse

THE NYLON blouse has gone way, way beyond the initial design, which was a shirt blouse of classic line, unadorned, and relying for interest on the fabric itself. Now we have exquisite nylon blouses all prettied up with dainty touches. Yolande goes in for nylon tricot for a series of handmaidens with delicate little touches. This one has its bodice shirred with horizontal bands of hand detailing and bias piping, with a bit of this detail repeated on the club collar.

Dream Comes True for Girl On Farm Now Going Places

New York — (CP) — Tiny Pamela Drake is one young woman who has made her childhood dream come true.

Casting aside the wide-open spaces of the Montana ranch where she was born, she used to dream of getting away and "going places."

Last year as designer and decorator of airline terminals, she was constantly on the go, traveling an average 5,000 miles a week between airports in the United States, the West Indies and Latin America.

Pamela started "going places" by way of the College of Fine Arts at Washington State University, working half-days for a decorating firm during her four year course. Then came a job with an airline company, (Pan-American), combining secretarial and promotion work, until one day she submitted a design for beautifying one of the line's California terminals.

Not only was her design accepted, but she was sent to take over the decorating. That was six years ago, and the first of 22 such jobs she has handled.

Each job presents its own challenge, for she works on the principle of using local materials and labor wherever she is working.

"Being born on a farm was my first lucky break," she says. "A farm is the best place in the world to form the habit of making the most of what happens to be around. That's what I do when I'm fixing up airports in the tropics."

She spends days at the start of a new job just wandering around absorbing atmosphere, visiting little shops and markets, talking to craftsmen.

"Ideas for design and material take definite form after I get myself soaked in the personality of a place and its resources," she said. "I poke around talking with workers who could make curtains and chairs and a bar, and with artists who could paint murals that I design.

"I use only what the locality offers. That's what air travelers like to see."

Sometimes it's necessary to teach the native workers how to make the things she wants.

"One thing I am proud of," she admitted. "Wherever I have been I have left new industries at which native craftsmen are still working. After getting a start with me they went ahead on their own."

This year, as a new venture, she is decorating aircraft interiors but hopes there will be the occasional trip to far-away places. The flights are good "for catching up on sleep," she says.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Their men married someone else

Two young women with the same type of rather curious problem, if problem it can be called, have written me the following letters.

One of them says:

"Last year I met a young man whom I love very much, and he said he felt the same way about me.

"About four months ago he got married, but recently he told someone that he was still in love with me. When I see him now, I don't speak to him, but although I have gone out with several other young men, I always end up thinking about this one.

"If he should get a divorce and ask me to marry him, do you think I should?"

The other letter states the case this way:

"I am in love with a boy with whom I went steady for about a year. He loves me and I love him. A year ago this month he got married. I heard he did it on a bet. His wife left him about three months later and has never gone back to him. Now he wants a divorce, and she says she'll give him one. The question is, when will she do it? She knows this fellow wants me and not her. He says now he is sorry he got married and that he would marry me if he gets the divorce?"

About the only difference in these two situations seems to be that, in the second case, the man apparently has said he would marry the girl if his wife gives him a divorce, while in the first nothing actually seems to have been said by anyone about a divorce and the writer of the letter is simply daydreaming about whether or not she would marry him if he were to get one. Evidently she wishes to have her mind all made up, so that she could move right in if things should develop that way. Or perhaps she is just enjoying doing some wishful thinking.

Even though there is this slight difference in circumstance, my advice to both these girls is exactly the same.

It is that neither of them should have anything more to do with these men unless they are prepared to cope with entirely irresponsible husbands. I don't think there is the slightest doubt that if they married these particular chaps they would sooner or later —and probably sooner—find that history would repeat itself and their husbands would be moving out in search of new adventures.

Not all girls are so fortunate as to have the character of the men they consider marrying shown up as clearly in advance as has been done here. If these two girls can't see the writing on the wall, their eyesight is very poor. Or if they see it, and ignore it, they can blame no one but themselves if they run into trouble.

Luckily for them, however, I doubt if either is likely to have to make a decision. The chances are that both these men will prove to be more interested in something brand new in the way of romance than in going back to pick up something they have already discarded.

PLAINFIELD W.M.S.

DAY-LONG

This time, the Liberals carried the issue to a count and the vote was 194 to 39 to continue debate on the Alberta natural gas measure.

Motion Rejected

A third division came after the dinner hour when H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) again moved for adjournment. His motion was rejected by a vote of 121 to 38.

In all three votes, Liberals and Social Credit supporters voted solidly against Progressive-Conservative and C.C.F. members.

C. W. Hodgson (PC—Victoria, Ont.) sought to initiate a fourth division at the night sitting by moving still another adjournment motion.

He withdrew it after Ross Macdonald indicated he would rule it out of order and Works Minister Fournier, House leader, appealed to the Chamber not to lower itself in the eyes of the public by voting again on a motion which already had been defeated twice.

The House opening, by contrast, was quiet.

Robert McCubbin, parliamentary assistant to Agriculture Minister Gardiner, disclosed that apple growers in British Columbia and Nova Scotia will receive special grants of $2,000,000 and $500,000 respectively, to assist them because of the loss of export markets.

To Train Officers

Defence Minister Claxton said Canada's plan to train 250 Atlantic-Pact officers should be in full stride by this fall and may develop into something considerably larger through exchanges among other countries within the alliance.

The pipe-line debate built up an impressive list of speakers. It included Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C. (PC—Nanaimo), Joseph Harris (PC—Toronto Danforth), J. L. Gibson (Ind — Comox-Alberni), John Sinnott (L—Springfield), W. J. Browne (PC—St. John's West), Mr. Maybank, Mr. Herridge, Mr. Hodgson and Mr. Courtemanche.

Aside from Mr. Maybank, they were opposed to passage of the bills, discussed periodically since parliament opened Feb. 15.

Their arguments followed this common pattern: that Canada's resources should be used first for Canadian benefit; and that the pipeline companies should guarantee that their line would be routed through Canada to the Pacific coast before it branches off into the United States.

Almost Drowned Out

Mr. Hodgson, when he spoke began speaking from various publications dealing with the Alberta oil fields.

At one quiet interval, he said it was his firm conviction that Canadian consumers first should be served.

A roar of laughter went up when J. L. Gibson (Ind. — Comox-Alberni), who sits with the Liberals and generally votes on the Liberal side, carried a glass of water to Mr. Hodgson's desk.

Mr. Hodgson said that industries would develop all along the pipeline route. If the line ran through the United States, he was afraid that heavy American industry would leave nothing for Canadians by the time the line reached B.C.

He liked the Americans, but once they got a concession they did not let it go.

Mr. Hodgson said he would have been satisfied if the government had gone so far as to build and operate the pipeline itself.

He said he noted during the last few sessions several Liberal members who appeared to be calling for a Canada this and a Canada that. He asked them now if they wanted a Canadian economy or one tied to the United States.

the Canadian-developed North Star plane and heard T.C.A. president C. D. McGregor say political attacks on the plane during the last election campaign had shaken confidence in it.

But the North Star had proved itself as a competitive airplane Mr. McGregor said, though in some level" it was not competitive.

Not Compiled is Claim

The noise of the North Star's engines, Mr. Drew said, is not compiled as claim.

The noise of the North Star's engines was brought into the discussion by Mr. Drew when he questioned the president about a contract made with Canadair in 1947. This had said T.C.A. would make certain payments if Canadair developed an exhaust system to make the plane commercially competitive.

Mr. Drew said that since three years had gone by since the Canadair agreement regarding a suitable exhaust and none had been forthcoming, Canadair had not complied with its warranty.

In reply to Clarie Gillis (CCF—Cape Breton South) as to whether T.C.A. should not approach the government for aid such as a scale-down in landing fees, Mr. McGregor said the whole T.C.A. organization was striving to get back to "black figures".

However, he did not feel it should approach the government for a reduction in costs that had to be borne by other operators. The company's deficit position at the end of February this year was $550,000 better than at the same time last year and though he was making no predictions, he was "hopeful" the deficit might be scaled down to break even or close to it.

Mr. Fulton suggested T.C.A. might have "gone ahead too fast" on the Atlantic and Mr. Howe said the only hope of cutting the deficit there was to increase the traffic. The only way to cut it immediately was to cut the service but T.C.A.'s Southern Atlantic operations were "building up nicely and they may help fill things up. It's a matter of holding a route on which we were the pioneers."

FROST CONCERNED

make a slight reaction in taxation this year, while other provinces have had to increase theirs.

Alarming Increase

A former Liberal premier, Harry Nixon (Brant) said that expenditures were increasing at an "alarming" rate. When the present government came to power in 1943 they were $100,000,000. Now the budget is $238,000,000. Despite increasing revenue the government appetite for money was "insatiable". There would be a revision of the amusement tax, a tax on pari-mutuel betting, increased revenue from the amusement tax because of Sunday sports, a five-per-cent income tax (to be collected from the federal tax) and a tax on logging operations.

Mr. Nixon said the gross debt was $69,500,000. "I can remember the day when, if a treasurer had admitted this condition in his finances, we would have considered we were on the high road to bankruptcy."

Critical of Expenditures

C.C.F. leader E. B. Jolliffe (York, South) winding up the debate for the opposition, charged the government with using public funds to influence voters in by-elections. He said "there is a place for somewhat higher standards of political morality in this province, particularly in the expenditure of public funds."

The premier, who is also provincial treasurer, was charged by A. A. MacLeod (Lab.-Prog.—Toronto Bellwoods) with "financial improvidence to meet political expendiancy of the moment". He said that forecasts of expenditures were characterized by "inaccuracy amounting to irresponsibility," while surpluses, or deficits were "declared at will."

Wants Uniform Rates

Mr. MacLeod said the increased taxes and present surplus could provide enough revenue to give cash relief for unemployed, along with an additional $10 a month for old-age and blind pensions, and a free text book daily for all school children.

A call for uniform hydro power rates throughout the province was made by Aurele Chartrand (Lib. Ottawa East) who said residents of the banks of the Ottawa and St. Lawrence rivers are looking for "tremendous hydro development" in their areas. He declared they "don't want to be sold down the river for the glory and industrial expansion of somewhere else."

Mr. Chartrand also said that 15 per cent of the Canadian public teachers are earning less than $1,000 a year, and many of the others are getting less than true skilled workers. The teacher shortage could be alleviated by the fact that able young men and women will bring themselves to enter a profession that offers them poverty and humiliation."

Labor Voice Heard

A Labor voice was heard when Hon. Dana Porter (CCF-Hamilton East) said Labor is concerned with getting union security "even the smallest token." If the steel industry in Hamilton went on a 48-hour week the city's unemployment could be solved within 48 hours. But in answer to Labor Minister Daley he admitted he could not point to a case in which the Ontario Labor Board, in conciliation proceedings, had failed to grant some form of union security.

T. L. K. Feil (CCF-Toronto Parkdale) called for an immediate provincial-municipal conference on housing and unemployment. Lack of housing for low-income groups was breaking up families and causing the estrangement of couples who had been married for as long as 25 years. Much of the unemployment could be attributed to post-war modernization or machinery and efficiency experts who went about "lopping off jobs here and there."

ATOMIC WAR

Project at Cross-Roads

Dr. Cook, in an unusual speech from a government employee, said the Chalk River project "is at the cross-roads."

The people must decide, through Parliament, whether we should continue to "put up with money and stay" in the race or whether "we should let our little fire run its course and flicker out." The fire is Chalk River's radioactive pile or reactor.

The speech was interpreted not as a slap at government policy but as an attempt to confront an intelligent audience with a plain statement of facts, to try at an important moment to widen the horizons of laymen groping in the dark.

Dr. Cook said "you may be involved in a war in which atomic bombs are used, your children almost certainly will be. As citizens of a democracy you must know the details of these developments, must assist your government to make wise decisions in a precarious world.

"We scientists believe secrecy is harmful because, among other things, it keeps the facts from our fellow citizens. If the citizens of Canada demand to know what is going on and how it affects them they will get the information . . ."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Whether it was President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League, who laid down the law in no uncertain terms to the flaming backboys of the Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs, the fact that the boys had come to their senses and decided that mayhemic displays with possible dire consequences, physically and otherwise, were little short of foolishness, is not known, but when they showed on Saturday night that they can play the game Cup hockey, and a roaring sell-out crowd at Maple Leaf Gardens bore witness to it.

The Leafs won strictly on their merits. The Red Wings, minus their wing star Gordie Howe didn't have what it takes to stem the onrushing battling Maplees especially in the second period, and the Daymen skated off with a 2-0 victory and a 2-1 edge in the series. Tonight's game should be another thriller, Detroit knows that the Leafs are a dangerous on Olympia ice as they are in the Gardens and they must win tonight to square matters, or they face the tremendous task of winning the next three games in a row. Not an easy chore, the way the Leafs cavorted on Saturday night.

Meanwhile all is not well down Mawrzall way. Les Canadiens' supporters have swallowed a bitter pill. Three times their pride have been met issue against Rangers and three times the Madison Square Garden Blueshirts have turned them back. Dick Irvin is desperate. He's juggling and changing and the loss of Bernard Geoffrion, injured Saturday night's game is a severe blow to not only the team but his chances of winning the series. It looks from here like Canadiens must win four straight to cop the series, and in Canadiens must win four straight to cop the series, and in Canadiens must win four straight to cop the series, and in this fact, while possible, is a superhuman task for any hockey team. Canadiens, the team split the Rangers and the situation in which Les Habs find themselves. However, anything can happen in a hockey series.

OUTSTANDING ROOKIE

The American Hockey League Rookie of the Year, selected by the ten league coaches, is Paul Meger, young left wing star of the Buffalo Bisons. The flashy fast skating Meger, who had already been chosen by the members of the press and radio for the second All Star Team thus becomes the winner of the Dudley "Red" Garrett Memorial Trophy and will receive the handsome sum of $200, in addition. Having already gathered in $200, for his all star selection, Meger has earned a financial reward of $500 for his brilliant first year play in the circuit.

Ole King Hockey dies hard. Here in Belleville we have him wrapped up in mothballs tighter than an Egyptian mummy, and he had already been chosen by the members of the press and radio for the second All Star Team thus becomes the winner of the Dudley "Red" Garrett Memorial Trophy and will receive the handsome sum of $200, in addition. Having already gathered in $200, for his all star selection, Meger has earned a financial reward of $500 for his brilliant first year play in the circuit.

Teams from Lakefield, Bowmanville, Peterborough, Cobourg, Belleville (Diesels and Rockets), Trenton Flyers, Port Hope, Campbellford and Lindsay have forwarded invitations with the first eight accepting being eligible. The winning team gets 200 simoleons with the runners-up taking fifty. Four of the entries go to the west end Cobourg evening for with the other quartet of squads battling for honors on Easter Monday. Finals will be played on Friday, April 14. The winner will add the Cobourg Easter Trophy to his collection of souvenirs, if he has any.

THE KICK-OFF

Frexy Les Digby of the Bay of Quinte Football Association pens a line notifying us that a meeting of the organization will be held in the YMCA hcp on Wednesday, April 5th starting at 8 p. m. The newly-formed Ontario Football League will get together at H.M.C.S. Cataraqui, Kingston on Thursday, April 6th starting at the same time.

The banner soccer season predicted, the meetings are being held to make final arrangements and discuss schedules etc. All soccer-interested sports fans are requested to attend.

ATTENTION, BOWLERS

And here's news for the bowling fraternity. A Quinte District Bowling Tournament was organized over the week-end at a special meeting held by bowling interests for this area. Bill Bateman, Belleville Rod-O-Drome was named chairman with Ron Wilson, Picton, vice-chairman. Frank Hamilton, Brighton is the secretary treasurer.

Eight alleys will compete in the tournament for the main trophy and cash prizes. These include two alleys each from Belleville and Trenton, and Picton, with Napanee and Brighton sending one. Each alley will contribute $18 to the prize pot. Play is expected to get under way in a week's time. Home and home games will be played following the drawing of the schedule with game arrangements left to the decision of the managers of the competing alleys.

BASEBALL CONFAB

With the prospects of a Belleville entry in the Central Ontario Baseball League now lying peacefully in their ashes, unmourned by the powers-that-be, up comes a ray of hope for baseball fans in the announcement by President Malcolm Robb of the Belleville and District Baseball League that he will call the annual conclave on Friday, April 14th. The meeting will be held in the law offices of Robb, Ross and Cass, 15 Campbell Street, opposite the YMCA.

All teams that participated in the league last year have been notified, and other teams interested are urged to attend. It is expected that Sixarder, Trenton Flyers, Napanee "C's", Point Anne and possibly a Belleville team will enter, but others' are welcome.

Detroit Minus Two Regulars For Fourth Stanley Cup Semi-Final Game With Leafs

Toronto, April 4 (CP)—Detroit Red Wings will be minus two regulars tonight when they skate out against Toronto Maple Leafs in the fourth game of their Stanley Cup semi-final series. The Wings, champions of the National Hockey League, will be striving to even up the series, in which Toronto leads 2-1.

The N.H.L. champions lost Gordie Howe, top right-winger through head injuries in the first game of the best-of-seven series and he's through for the season. Monday the Wings learned that another right-winger, Jimmy Peters, won't be on duty tonight. He returned to Detroit for treatment of a twisted knee, suffered Saturday night when he collided with Tim-mate Jimmy McFadden.

Howe's loss has crimped the play of the League's highest scoring line on which Sid Abel was captain. Sid Abel and Ted Lindsay. The injury to Peters, an experienced performer, adds more woes to coach Tommy Ivan's collection.

But Ivan drew some hope from the Detroit performance last year.

"We're in just the same spot as in the semi-finals last season against Montreal Canadiens," the tough little coach pointed out. "We had won one and lost two—but as now—but we won that fourth game and went on to take the series.

"It could happen again."

That same comeback by Detroit against Montreal was recalled by Conn Smythe, managing director of the Leafs. "We've a tough time ahead of us yet," he said. "This is a four-out-of-seven series and we've only won the odd game in three."

The Wings have called up Gord Haidy, a 160-pound forward from Indianapolis Capitals of the American hockey league, as a replacement for tonight.

Probable starting line-ups:

Detroit: goal, Lumley; defence, Kelly, Stewart; centre, Abel; Wings, Couture, Lindsay.

Toronto: Goal, Broda; defence, Thomson, Morison; centre, Gardner; Wings, Meeker, Watson.

Frisch Will Use Juvenile Infield On Opening Day

By GAYLE TALBOT

Phoenix, Ariz., Apr. 4—(AP)—Frankie Frisch refuses to waiver in his determination to start his Chicago Cubs off with a juvenile infield in the National League scramble.

"These guys we had last year couldn't win," he says, reasonably. "You can't finish any worse than last. I'm going to go with the kids until they show me they can't do any better."

Only two men remain of the 1945 Chicago team which won the Pennant and lost to Detroit in the World Series—centre fielder Andy Pafko and Phil Cavarretta, who has been reduced to utility duty in the outfield and at first base.

Three of the infield designees were in the minor leagues the time a year ago. Preston Ward, 22, was first-baseing for Fort Worth in the Texas league; Wayne Terwilliger, 23, was holding down second for Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast League, and Bill Serena, 23, was at third for Dallas of the Texas league.

Only Roy Smalley, 23, survives an shortstop of the infield which started out under Charlie Grimm last spring. He is the standout young player on the club and could take his place among the game's top shortstops no later than this season.

Owen Friel Coacher

Ranrom Jackson, a long-ball hitting outfielder from Oklahoma City, and Bob Ramazzotti, obtained from Brooklyn, just about complete the infield possibilities. It is urgent that the top four come through if Frisch is to keep within out sedatives.

The outfield could have pretty good power. Pafko fell off to .281 last year, but he was over .300 each of the two previous seasons. Hank Sauer, who will play left, clouted 31 homers for Cincinnati and the Cubs last year and knocked in 99 runs. Bob Borkowski, a .276 clubber from Nashville, is giving holdover Hal Jeffcoat a tussle for the right-field spot.

Mickey Owen assures the Cubs solid catching, despite his 31 years and unhappy experience in the late Mexican league. Frisch at least has hopes for Carl Sawatski, a promising 21-year-old who hit .360, with 45 home runs, for Nashville.

The pitching staff, unhappily looks just about like one which was finished eight for two straight years.

Every baseball man knows that Lefty Andy Seminick is one of the toughest workmen in the league, yet his won-lost mark last year was 11-13. Back of him as starters are Ralph Kerr and Walt Dubiel from last year, the veterans Johnny Vander Meer and Bill Voiselle, obtained respectively from Cincinnati and Boston, and little star that Frisch can count upon. Dutch Leonard, the once highly-respected knuckleballer, has just turned 40.

Ball Club Applies For Permission To Play Sundays

Toronto, April 4 (CP)— The Toronto Maple Leaf Baseball Club Monday applied to city council for permission to play Sunday ball here this summer.

The Ontario government recently announced that municipalities where citizens vote in favor can relax the Lord's Day against Sunday sports. Toronto previously approved Sunday sports by plebiscite.

The application presented by Joseph Zeigler, general-manager of the International League club, schedules 11 Sunday games. The first is May 7.

City Council decided to lay over a proposed by-law permitting the Sunday games until the On-tario government's new act becomes law. The bill is expected to get Royal assent Wednesday before the Legislature prorogues.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By ROD CURRIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Halifax, April 4 — (CP) — Backers of the two senior hockey leagues in the Maritimes have been thinking about forming one big senior loop for a long time.

Alex (Halifax Chronicle-Herald) Nickerson says there can be both good and bad effects of such a union.

Nick says one of the main reasons for the proposed merger is "because all the clubs in the Cape Breton circuit and at least three in the Maritime 'Big Four' have had a disastrous season at the gate."

"This," he says, "is largely due to steadily rising costs for players and equipment."

Sydney Millionaires, Cape Breton hockey champions, are in the running for the Allan Cup. They now are playing a best-of-seven semi-final series for the Eastern Canada championship with Sherbrooke, Que., Saints.

$300 Weekly Men

The Halifax sport scribe draws as an example a statement made by a Cape Breton backer who named three players, all on the same team, who are paid more than $300 a week. A goalie, not the best in the circuit, received $245, a forward $235, and a defenceman $210.

The revised circuit would include teams from Sydney, Glace Bay and North Sydney from the Cape Breton League and Halifax, Moncton and Saint John of the present M.S.H.L.

"It is possible that if the Big Six comes into operation," Nick speculates, "an attempt will be made to cut down the huge weekly payrolls. The season now drawing to a close has been notable for the great number of grossly overpaid players accepting their weekly cheques in both circuits."

ADD ANOTHER TITLE

St. Catharines, Ont., April 4 (CP)— St. Catharines Masons, seven-time Ontario Minor Hockey Association bantam champions added another title to their list list Monday night when they bested Guelph Biltmores 12-3 to take the two-game, total-goal final series, 25-8.

Meger Named Rookie of Year In Hockey Loop

New York April 4 (CP)—Paul Meger, who made the jump to professional ranks from the Junior Barrie Flyers, has been voted outstanding rookie in the American Hockey League.

The 21-year-old Buffalo Bison winger far outdistanced his rivals by amassing 38 out of a possible 45 points in voting by sports writers and broadcasters. His closest competition came from Kelly Burnett, of Springfield Indians, a graduate of the Sherbrooke, St. Francis Club in the Quebec Senior League, who garnered 14 points.

Next in line came a pair of Pittsburgh Hornet freshmen, Ray Hannigan and Tim Horton, who earned 12 and nine points respectively.

Meger, named to the league's second all-star team last week, will receive the Dudley (Red) Garret Memorial Trophy and a cheque of $300 for winning rookie honors. He received $200 for the all-star selection.

The fast-stepping Meger collected 26 goals and 40 assists during the season. Seven times he scored what proved to be the winning marker for the Bisons. He played left wing on a line with the veterans Ab Demaree and Grant Warwick and this trio was one of the highest scoring combinations in the circuit.

Indians in B.C. Play Basketball, Not Lacrosse

(By the Canadian Press)

Their native game of lacrosse virtually forsaken, the Indians of British Columbia's north coast are working for a reputation in basketball.

Although they invented the sport which Canada adopted as its national game, the northern natives spend hours almost every day for four months practising basketball. They seldom touch the gutted stick.

Even in weather 50 below, they turn out religiously to get in shape for the annual tournament at Prince Rupert.

The event, held early in March, is part of a plan They're in town for supplies that time of year anyway, and the tournament provides a drawing card for buyers of their products.

Spectators aren't a paramount problem. Their families, which they bring along, keep the average attendance up to 1,000 by themselves.

Champions of the tournament for the third consecutive year were the Kitamat entrants.

"The worst pain in two years," is the way pitcher Dick Fowler described the arm pain that prompted Philadelphia Athletics to send him instead to Philadelphia from Florida for treatment.

Fowler, the Canadian-born righthander from Toronto who won 15 games for Connie Mack last season, arrived Monday to undergo treatment by Dr. Ilarion Gopadza, A Yugoslavian. The pitcher was really down in the mouth.

He said he will follow the doctor's orders and probably will hold some workouts at Shibe Park until the remainder of the team arrives for the city series against the Phillies. His wife and son, Thomas, are motoring to their home in Oneonta, N.Y.

Arthur King of Toronto, British Empire lightweight champion and number one contender for the world's crown, Monday night at Toronto scored a three-round knockout over Johnny Rowe of Rochester, N.Y., in the 10-round main bout of a professional boxing show at the Coliseum. Attendance was more than 3,500. King weighed 146, Rowe 139.

Guelph Biltmores Have Two-Game Lead on Combines

Ottawa, April 4 (CP)—Guelph Biltmores will go into the third game of their Eastern Canada junior semi-finals in Toronto Wednesday night with a two-game lead over Porcupine Combines.

The Ontario Hockey Association titlists shut out the Northern Ontario winners 2-0 Monday night for their second straight win in the best-of-seven series. They won the first game 7-5 in Toronto last Saturday.

Biltmores again came up with a spotty game against the hardworking porcupineers and were far below the form that saw them spring an upset over Winnipeg Spitfires in the RHA final for the right to advance into the semi-finals.

The Combines used Inkerman Rockets, Ottawa District Junior champions, as a stepping stone to advance into the present series.

Despite their win, the Guelph club showed no signs of happiness as they filed into the dressing room after the game. Severely disciplined by the referees of the ice while others were too tired to comment.

The scoring line of Herb Dickenson-Ron Plumb-Don Bellringer was the only one to click for Biltmores in Monday night's contest. Plumb and Dickenson accounted for the winning two counters, while Bellringer drew an assist along with Plumb for Dickenson goal. Defenceman Wally Clune gained an assist on Plumb's marker.

Goalies Bill Harrington of Combines and Cliff Hicks of Guelph starred in their respective nets. Harrington was called on to make 28 saves to 21 for Hicks.

The winner of the series will advance into the Eastern Canada final against Montreal Junior Canadiens for the right to meet the Western Canada champions for the Memorial Cup.

Both the Biltmore goals were scored off rebounds with the first coming after more than 30 minutes of scoreless hockey. The second came during the 11 minute mark of the final period.

The site for the fourth game of the series is undecided. Guelph officials are endeavoring to have the fourth meeting on their home ice.

Y.M.H.A. Blues One Game Ahead Of Manitoba

Montreal, April 4 (CP)—Coach Acey Olson and his University of Manitoba Bisons went down to a 53-45 defeat Monday night in the opening game of a best-of-three Canadian senior basketball championship series against Montreal YMHA Blues.

But the lanky westerners claim they are not discouraged with the result of Monday night's play. They feel that the Montrealers caught them while they were a "little unfamiliar with the east."

The game was a fast-moving affair with both teams playing it close during the first half. The Blues held a narrow five-point margin when the contest moved into the second session.

A capacity crowd of 2,000 saw Lanky Carl Ridd of Bisons put on a one-man show as he scored 25 points, more than half his team's total. The ruddy-faced westerner was handicapped in the late stages of the game because of four fouls called against him. Another foul would have forced him to leave the floor.

Sharp-shooting Benny Lands and Sol Tolchinsky paved the way for the Blues as they each sank 13 points made up of six field goals and one free toss apiece.

Australian Betters Two World Records

New Haven, Conn., April 3—(AP)—John Marshall, the sleek Australian, Saturday night bettered two more world swimming records including one made by Japan's great Hironoshin Furuhashi. Marshall sped the 400 metres free style in 4:29.5 and 440 yards in 4:31.2.

Marshal is winning his third United States A.A.U. individual crown, placed his name boldly alongside swimming's immortals. Only five men in the 46 years of the American championship have won three crowns, and none has assaulted world records the way Marshall did.

The listed record for 400 metres is 4:34.6 by Furuhashi, the sensation of the outdoor championships last summer in Los Angeles, and the 40-yard mark in 4:38.5 by Bill Smith, Pyrahshi has a time of 4:33.3 for 400 metres pending, but Marshall's super performance knocked almost four seconds off it.

Marshall, a 20-year-old freshman at Yale University, swam only one race but was timed for both distances. The 440 yards is about 10 feet longer than 400 metres.

Canadiens Must Win to Stay In Running

Montreal, April 4, (CP)— It looks like the beginning or the end of the Stanley Cup road for Montreal Canadiens when they meet New York Rangers tonight.

Rangers, now leading the National Hockey League best-of-seven semi-final series 3-0, have only to clinch tonight's tilt to oust Canadiens from the running and assure themselves of a final berth against the winner of the Toronto-Detroit series.

The high-flying Rangers, who finished the regular N.H.L. season in fourth place, have shown no mercy for Canadiens in the best-of-seven series.

They took the first game in New York last Wednesday 3-1, came to Montreal Saturday for a 3-2 triumph and then returned home to tag a 4-1 victory on the Habitants.

Canadiens are without two of their top players, Kenny Reaven, the Habs' colorful defenceman, is sidelined for the balance of the season with a shoulder injury and centre Billy Reay is nursing a leg wound.

Canadiens have scored only four goals against Rangers in three games while the New Yorkers have slapped 10 past goalie Bill Durnan. And Maurice (Rocket) Richard, the league's top goal-getter hasn't notched a single point in the semi-final series, while his "shadow", Fingers Hal Pennil Laind, has racked up four goals and three assists.

The clubs, ousted from their home quarters by a circus, will be out to wrap up the series on the ice surface where they won their first Stanley Cup in 1928.

Boucher Hired For One Season Says Art Ross

Boston, Apr. 4—(AP)—Art Ross was back in Montreal today to supervise the National Hockey League playoffs after a special trip here to decoy charges levelled against his Boston Bruins by former coach George (Buck) Boucher.

Ross, vice-president and general manager of the Bruins and a member of the sports hall of fame, told a meeting of hockey writers:

"Sure, we made a mistake in hiring Boucher to coach the Bruins and knew it a month after the season started. But we parted on friendly terms in Toronto after I told him 'you're through.'"

"Boucher was my friend, we played together. I brought him down here and if he had filled the bill he'd still be here. I'm not going to stay active much longer.

"At first when I told him we wouldn't have him back next season he became angry but then calmed down. I offered to try and get him another job if he wanted to stay in coaching and he said 'that's fine.'

"Then I read in the paper where he says he got a 'dirty deal.'

"We're not double-crossing here and we haven't lied to you people in 36 years here," Ross told 10 writers as club president Weston Adams and director Frank Ryan nodded in agreement.

Boucher had told writers the night the season closed "I'm balled about my treatment here. It's the dirtiest deal I ever got in hockey. I thought I deserved another chance but Ross told the club had other plans for next season."

Ross, with Adams agreeing verbally, asserted: "We had no plans for next season. We hired Boucher on a one year contract and he didn't fill the bill."

Ross cited several instances in which Boucher made what they considered "tactical mistakes, not using the right combinations at the proper time."

Alberta oil has changed his future

The boy doesn't know it yet. Many a grown-up doesn't realize it—but the new oil fields of Alberta brighten Canada's future.

Western oil is saving 100 million ounces U.S. dollars this year, dollars we don't have to pay out for oil imports. This means money to buy other imports we need—things that cannot be grown or made in Canada. Next year Alberta oil should save 145 million U.S. dollars!

Then, too, the search for oil is making a big new market in Alberta for things the rest of Canada has to sell. The oil industry is spending $3 millions a week in the west. Across the nation this money is fostering new industries, expanding plants, creating jobs, paying wages, building homes.

And in the prairies petroleum product prices are lower than they would have been if oil had not been found. Prairie consumers saved more than $30 millions last year. Anything that helps prairie prosperity helps all Canada.

Oil is important to us all. More oil means a higher standard of living.

The search for oil is unending, a costly business, often disappointing. But the job is pressing forward. And new-found oil is changing our future . . : promising a better, brighter future for Canadians—man and boy alike!

Bringing you oil is a big job . . : and a costly one

About Canada's Oil—At the end of 1949 potential oil production in Alberta was more than one-third of Canada's requirements. Three years earlier, Canada produced less than one-tenth of the oil she used.

More than 240 companies and syndicates are searching for or producing oil in western Canada.

It is estimated that the oil industry will account for almost 10 per cent. of all new business capital invested in Canada this year.

In 1949 Imperial Oil bought a total of nearly $40 millions of equipment and supplies from more than 3,000 Canadian firms.

ESSO

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

An expert who blew his own lootle turned many strong bids into futile. The result, may I say, is that bridge of today needs rescue from being too brutal.

Take the responder's redouble of a takeout double of an opening one bid. South opens with a heart and west doubles for a takeout. North redoubles. Somebody made a mess of this redouble.

You see players using it with a couple of aces and a king; even with an ace and a couple of kings. They do it simply to assure opener that he need not worry about his one bid. Silly people.

Such redouble only causes opponents to bid again. So, what does it accomplish? Nothing. On the other hand it wastes a good chance to stick in an honest bid that opener may need.

The redouble discussed here has a more powerful purpose in life. It is a convention signal that combines several pieces of advice in one swoop. It should not be used for what a number of players do.

Responder should have a hand that can help make a game. It should be strong enough for a jump. And it should bypass instead of redouble if game will pay more than a doubled defeat of opponents.

So, when should he redouble? When he has a game help but also a type hand that can defeat opponents for more than game worth. Only then should he redouble to keep opponents trapped.

♠A J 7 4 2
♥9 8 4
♦A K Q 6
♣8

North could jump takeout to two spades. But if partner has clubs, opponents will get a shellacking at any bid. So, he can redouble.

Opponents may then bid something that opener or responder can double for a big penalty. If not, game can still be bid by either.

Use a redouble to cause the foe trouble.

Marlboros Take Second Game From Cornwall

Toronto, Apr. 4—(CP)—Cornwall Calumets need an effective antidote to the poison of Toronto Marlboros if they want to put up more than token resistance tomorrow night at Ottawa in the third game of their best-of-seven eastern Canada senior semi-final series.

Monday night the eastern Canada hockey league champs absorbed a humiliating 12-2 shellacking at the hands of the Ontario Hockey Association Duker, added to the 7-1 setback the Toronto smoothies handed them in the opening game Saturday night, to made things look bad for Cornwall.

Marlboros' Chuck Blair garnered five points in the game, banging home three goals and helping on two others. Following on the heels of the scrappy winger was Danny Lewicki, recruited from the junior Dukes for the senior playoffs. The shifty Lewicki garnered two markers and two assists. Single efforts were by Hugh Bolton, Flash Hollett, Bobby Hassard, George Armstrong, Scotty Maly, Al Burchanon and Johnny McLellan.

The front line combination of Rheal Savard, Freddy Gardner and Jim Denny accounted for both Calumets' scores. Gardner fooled Duke netminder Don Lockhart in the first session while Savard got the other in the final period.

The homesters drove a 4-1 scoring wedge into the slower Calumets in the opening frame and after that had little trouble sifting through the disorganized Cornwall team.

Cornwall's defence, reputedly the force that carried them to victory in the E.C.H.L. campaign, was rarely a solid bulwark against a steady stream of Toronto attackers and after the Dukes carried a 6-1 lead into the final period, it collapsed completely.

T.V. Softballers To Operate Six-Team Loop

Frankford — A weekend meeting of the Trent Valley Softball League Executive was held in Stirling on Wednesday afternoon from the league, since they wished to continue in their own district league in which they have played for some time. The president and secretary were requested to look into the possibility of obtaining another team, possibly from Trenton, to replace Warkworth, thus retaining a compact six team circuit.

Games this year will be played on Monday and Friday evenings, with Wednesday left open for exhibition games and for postponed contests. Two representatives from each team were appointed to form the league executive. The league decided not to affiliate with the O.A.S.A., although Stirling and Frankford expressed their intention to continue in the O.A.S.A. They were given permission to proceed in the Intermediate "C" playdowns without interference by the T. V. L. games.

The first league games will be played on May 22. June 1st is the deadline for signing players. Another meeting of the league executive will be held in the League Hall in Hastings on April 16.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, April 4 — (AP)— Hard-working Burt Lancaster will be speeding spring, summer and fall on the movie stages.

The acrobat-actor soon starts "Old 880" at, 20th-Fox, playing the federal agents who tracks down counterfeiter Walter Huston. After that, Burt moves to M. G. M. for an epic western "Vengeance Valley", which is described as "along 'Red River' Lines." He then moves back to Warners to portray "Jim Thorpe —All-American." By that time he hopes to have his own production of "The Naked and the Dead" ready for filming.

Lancaster will get at least one respite between films. "I've asked for at least two months before I start playing Jim Thorpe," he told me. "Not only do I have to be in top shape, but I want to work with football and track coaches to make the athletics seem authentic."

Notes 'N' Stuff

My sharp-eyed AP colleague, Howard Heyn, noter this at the Circle Theatre's premier of William Saroyan's "The Son." Between acts, Charles Chaplin stepped out into the street and started running. His wife Oona raced beside him and they disappeared around the corner. A few minutes later, they appeared at the other end of the block, racing back to the theatre and the second act. I guess there's nothing like a race around the block between acts.

Capsule Review

"The Lawless" (Par) deserves an "A" for effort. It is a well-intentioned and sometimes moving tale of race prejudice in a small California town. The victims are Americans of Mexican origin. The treatment has rough edges, but the lack of polish adds to the believable effect. MacDonald Carey and Gail Russell head the cast.

Checker Tourney At Hotel Quinte Easter Monday

Checker playing enthusiasts from the Eastern Ontario district will convene in the city on Easter Monday for the annual checker tournament to be staged at the Hotel Quinte. Winner of the tournament will be holder of the H. S. Colliver trophy, up for annual competition.

From 25 to 30 players are expected to face the barrier when play gets underway at ten o'clock on the morning of Easter Monday. There will be two classes "A" and "B", both to carry on a total point round-robin series. Winners of the two classes are expected to play off for the cup, while there will be cash prizes for the runners-up.

The Eastern Ontario Checker Tournament has been an annual event in the city for nearly two decades and has drawn players from Cobourg on the west to near the Quebec border on the east. Current holder of the Colliver trophy is Jack Traves, Kingston barber.

PROPAGANDA INVASION

Berlin, April 4—(AP)—Allied intelligence sources said Sunday the Whitsuntide "March on Berlin" by the Communists is apparently going to be a propaganda invasion instead of a putsch, as previously reported.

Presumably the Russians think the "free German youth" (F.D.J.) ambition to "conquer" the allied sectors of Berlin is riskily premature.

I refuse to let my be ruled by the imper-ions of man-made gadgets. Let ery man run to the scales startled deer to check their ns. I believe in the class of the geniuses of mathematics like nsk Newton and Sir Albert ns. Those chaps trusted to their own inspired figures, and so do I. In other werds I wait till my figure takes on an unusually graceful curve, and then I start to diet again. Like all greate frommulas, it sounds simple when a brilliant man gives it to the werld, pop said.

Well I'm going to take a little pudding, ma said. I lost at least a pound this week, and I deserve a reward. And you dont need to think you're the only mitey in-tellect around here, William, be-cause I didn't have to consult the scales, either, to know I'd lost weight, she said, and pop said, What's your sistem, my dear, or can you only explain it by some abstruse formula that would be too deep even for my exceptional brane?

I simply depend on my own in-tuition, and to make my intuition dubbly sure, I check it, ma said, and pop said, For Peet sake how can you check your own intuition? Simply by the way my clothes fit, ma said.

And she took a small size help-ing of pudding and gave me 2 regular size ones.

Four Commissions In Near East Are Optimistic

By LARRY ALLEN

Jerusalem, April 4—(AP)—The four mixed armistice commissions striving daily to keep peace between Israel and her Arab neighbors have a tough job but the "boss man" is optimistic.

Maj.-Gen. William E. Riley is confident that with co-operation of all parties "the transition to a permanent peace in Palestine" can be achieved.

The United States officer, chief of staff for the United Nations truce supervision organization, so reported in his first annual report on the work of the mixed armistice commissions.

Riley said the work of these commissions "has been reasonably successful so far."

There are separate commissions to handle disputes and implement armistice agreements between Egypt and Israel; Hashemite Jordan and Israel; Syria and Israel, and Lebanon and Israel.

All these agreements provide that the armistices shall remain in force "until the Palestine conflict is peacefully settled."

That has formed only part of the job of the U.N. staff and the mixed commissions which have had to settle scores of minor bor-

Claimed Money Shower Broke Her Tooth

Twenty - four - year - old dancer Carol Vaughn, of San Francisco, Calif., has filed suit for $1,500 against a contractors group. According to her story, Carol was doing a backbend in a acrobatic solo at a builders' banquet last Jan. 27, when the audience became so enthusiastic that they showered her with money. Included in "shower" was a half-dollar piece which struck her mouth, breaking a tooth. She is seeking $1,500 for the tooth, lost wages and dental expenses. This time not thrown at her, please.—Central Press Canadian.

der disputes; quarrels over the transfer of people from one sector to another; the liquidation of No Man's Land strips, shooting incidents and a host of other things.

Riley appoints a neutral chairman for each of the four mixed armistice commissions. The commissions have an equal number of Arab and Jewish members, usually two each. The chairman casts the vote that settles a dispute if the commissioners remain equally divided.

Riley does not have any too much help in handling his monumental tasks. His military observer staff consists of 20 officers and 20 enlisted men from Belgium, France and the United States.

Many of these work 16 hours a day or more. They travel in jeeps and on foot from village to village contacting persons who can help supply the effective answer to any pending dispute.

Strachey Affair is Called Mixture of Comedy, Tragedy

Manchester, England, April 4—(Reuters)—The Liberal Manchester Guardian says today it is about time some "highly-placed American sources, not by any means news agencies, tried to develop a sense of responsibility."

In an editorial the Guardian refers to an American News Agency report that War Minister Emrys Strachey would be by-passed on western defense secrets. Strachey was accused recently by Lord Beaverbrook's Sunday Standard of not having renounced Communist views.

(The Associated Press reported from The Hague Saturday night that Strachey would be by-passed. The dispatch also contained a denial of that report from War Minister Emanuel Shinwell.

(The International News Service had reported Friday that U.S. military secrets were being withheld from Britain because of Strachey. When the AP correspondent approached a well-informed U. S. source Saturday, he was told the situation had changed overnight and was given the information which the AP distributed. The U.S. source asked that his name be withheld and the report was attributed to a high American official.)

The Guardian feels that soon Americans may "get over their jittery mood and begin to think."

"They may then realize that, as British newspapers all know, our public men have a higher affection for secrecy than theirs: they might even give us the credit for believing that the prime minister (Attlee) would not keep in any major office a man on whose absolute loyalty he could not rely.

"Any Americans who want to join in the dirtier games of British party politicians should reflect what they would think if we were to spring to the aid of Senator McCarthy, bringing our tar brushes with us."

(Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.) has accused the United States State Department of harboring Communists and being influenced by Russian spies. The U.S. Senate is investigating his charges.)

The Guardian finds the Strachey rumpus a mixture of comedy and tragedy.

Comedy—"In the picture of an agency man, fearing he had been 'scooped' by a rival, wrestling with his conscience about an 'off-the-record' talk, chasing officials and press officers, and finally getting heavily snubbed by everybody. To what incredible lengths can a nose for news take a man."

Tragedy—"The state of ignorance in which some high American officials go about the world and their readiness to open their mouths without studying facts.

"But perhaps we should not be too hard on them. They have always the fear of Senator McCarthy behind them. They never know when their most secret defence plans may not be published in an enterprising Chicago newspaper or turn up in a pumpkin in somebody's garden."

SECOND OLDEST MASON

San Diego, Calif., April 4—The second oldest mason in the world, his lodge here said, died Sunday in his 100th year. He was William John (Bad) Burwell, 99 on Jan. 16, who became a Mason in St. Thomas Lodge in 1873. He was a native of Washash, Ont. He came to San Diego in 1894. He was an active barber until he was 90.

NOTED PIANIST DIES

St. Louis, April 4—(AP)—Gottfried Galston, 70, world-famous pianist, died of complications of illness here Sunday. A recognized authority on Bach, Galston had been in failing health since 1946 when he retired as head of the piano department of the St. Louis Institute of Music.

Dude College

By Oren Arnold

That Lona Montoya should deliberately kiss him was both shocking and confusing to Vesley York. In all honesty he had to admit to himself that the kiss was not unpleasant, but that had been squelched in a little flash of shame. He had turned shrewdly formal again and escorted her back to town. He had felt a strong urge to see Ronnie Bailey again.

But not until next morning, Saturday could he go back to the Rocking R ranch. He had no classes this day, so at 9 o'clock he bought three thick T-bone steaks and drove straight from the butcher shop to the ranch homesite. Workmen were busy clearing out burned debris of the house, and Mr. Bailey supervising them, came forward to greet Ves.

"Good morning son! Glad to see you. Want you to look over plans for the new house right away."

"Glad to, Mr. Bailey. And say —I brought out some meat. Happens I'm a real good steak barbecuer. Mr. Bailey. If you could get Fabian to let me have charge of the noon meal, why I would put some expert touches on these steaks for you and me and Ronnie, sir. We could do it in the outdoors here—wonderful weather right now, isn't it?"

"Perfect! Perfect' all around. Only Ronnie isn't home, But don't let that interfere, son. I can eat twice as much as you think anyway. You'd never know it," came west with indigestion.

We felt let down. He had expected—hoped—to find Ronnie here, But he knew from experience that she seldom "stayed out" She was on the go somewhere, ever,and always.

"I'll get Fabian to keep the steaks on ice until noon," Ves said, trudging off.

For an hour after that he and Mr. Bailey sat at an outdoor table and checked measurements and details on plans for the new ranch house. No architect had been hired because Mr. Bailey said he could do his own designing with friendly help, but he had contracted with a local building firm who was already on the job.

Wes pointed out myriad details —he had forgotten a place for gun racks, he could use ranch branding irons for an attractive dining room chandelier, he could make a floor of cement and flagstones that would be both fireproof and patterned helper than any rug he might buy, he could make a hat rack of deer and elk horns.

"You're full of ideas son," Mr. Bailey declared, exultantly. "I hereby hire you as consultant architect. Now you must—"

"Can't hire out," Wesley grinned in thanks. "The university would fire me, sir. But I intend to build a western home of my own some day so I've given it some thought. And I'm glad to help you. A fire is a tragedy."

Mr. Bailey was suddenly serious, intent. He jabbed a pencil at Wes.

"Son," he said, in low tone now "that fire was no accident either."

Wesley looked closely at him.

"No, Wesley, I don't know who did it but—whoever did had it well planned and well timed. They used that as a cover to steal the new bomb site from one of the army planes!"

"No!"

"Yes, Wesley! The fire drew the enemy army man over here, naturally. Some thief went right in, cut the sight off and took it away. We haven't four bases haven't been guarded since the new sight was put into them. The sight was welded and bradded down, not of course, but that didn't stop the thief."

"And you think—"

"No, not a clue. Of course—strictly on the quiet, now— the federal agencies are onto it, But we haven't learned a single thing!"

Wesley was astounded.

He stared off into space, frowning, hardly hearing his host give the other details. He was deep in his own thoughts.

Here shockingly was yet another mysterious occurrence to add to the long list of unexplained incidents which crowded Wesley's mind of late, this the most important of all. Ronica knew some of those things with him, but he alone knew them all. He wished earnestly for Ronnie now so that he might talk with her. Possibly together they could evolve something. He looked at his watch. Almost noon.

"Mr. Bailey, if I'm not being too inquisitive, could you tell me when I might see Ronnie! Where is she likely to be this afternoon.

"Why son, she's headed for Mexico, I believe, Flying her plane down. Said they'd have lunch at the dude ranch where Andre is staying and take off from there about 1 p.m.'

"Andre! . . . Andre?! Wes exclaimed the name twice.

"Why yes. You know him, Wesley. Andre Corbeau. Fine young man, He has business connections down in Guaymas on the west coast of Sonora and Guaymas is also a resort town, as you may know. He and Ronnie and some other girl named—let me see — Lona! Is there a Lona somebody in the college here?"

"Lona Montoya!" Wes looked straight at his host. "Was she—she going too? Flying with Girardeau and Ronica! Into —Mexico?"

"Why yes. But—"

"I've got to go Mr. Bailey! Excuse me sir, but—well I've got to hurry! I—I'll explain later. I—"

He never finished. He had jumped up, half dancing in his excitement, and all at once he just ran to his car and hastened away, leaving an elderly man smiling after him slowly shaking his head. There is no explaining the impulsive actions of youth, reflected Mr. Bailey; especially of youth when Ronnie was involved. He wondered if this quiet-mannered young professor was interested in Ronnie personally. Wouldn't mind if he was.

As for Wes, though he broke all speed records for his old car in driving to town. And he tried to think while speeding. A lot of details needed thinking out.

He braked to a sudden stop at his home and ran to the telephone Then he stopped short. He could not remember the name of the ranch where Girardeau stayed, if ever he knew it.

He tried to telephone Lona Montoya, but she was out.

Back to his car, he drove fast then to the office of the United States Border Patrol in this area. and luckily did find Inspector Sheridan Starr there.

"Howdy Dr. York," the officer greeted. "You look excited."

"Listen Mr. Starr—it's nearly one o'clock now. Can we—is—can the Patrol autogiro around? Near here? Is—?"

"It's out 10 miles or so, out near the tanks where we keep field gear, Ahh. You know the place, There's a pilot there, and —"

"Then for God's sakes, Mr. Starr, let's hurry! Come on—I can tell you about it while we're on our way!"

Running with the officer, Wes felt like sobbing in a frantic boy might do. He knew, without the necessity of reasoning now, that Ronnie Bailey was in grave danger; and he knew he loved Ronnie Bailey better than everything else in this world.

Ronica Bailey was noted for collecting interesting personalities around her and for showing great patience with horses, Hence there was nothing unusual in her ready agreement to take Lona Montoya on the air jaunt into Mexico, although she was surprised that Andre asked it.

"Lona has never flown down," Andre explained lightly, "and she knows the country. Besides Ronnie, she can serve as a sort of— of chaperon, which we haven't had heretofore. Don't you see?"

Ronnie was truly grateful then "Of course, Andre. I am entirely too careless about such things. But I don't mean to be I think most conventions are important really. I'll be happy to have Lona, my plane is plenty large for three of us and more."

"Big enough for my Indian drum, too?" Andre asked smiling. "Might as well take it down to good old Pico in person, instead of shipping it."

"Surely, it's a fine souvenir."

Wherefore the three young people took off in the early afternoon with considerable gaiety. Weather was perfect for flying—as it usually is in New Mexico—and the time to Guaymas was only a matter of three hours or so. Departing in early afternoon had been Lona's idea, urged upon Andre in private.

Being a conscientious pilot, concerned always for good flying and maximum safety, Ronnie sat alone up front from the moment they left the ground. She had told her two guests to relax and have a good time; she would talk to them but little.

There were a few early bumps, then the monoplane settled down to dutiful, smooth sailing. Ronnie held fairly low the better to enjoy the semi-desert landscape. She caught one glimpse of Rainbow Canyon—and quite involuntarily turned for a quick look at Lona, remembering.

Now there is something Ronnie reflected, that must yet be worked out. Lona Montoya is a mystery girl! It helped make her interesting, hence made her doubly welcome vompany for Ronnie on this Mexican trip.

Ronnie smiled a bit to herself. Maybe, given some kind of break she could make Lona tell her secret. Ronnie felt that if—but all at once her reverie broke down.

"Look!" Lona Montoya almost shrieked that. "Look Andre!"

Ronnie turned. She saw Lona and Andre staring out a window and Lona's face had an expression she had never seen before. The bright beauty of it, the open Mexican friendliness, had vanished and in its stead was an expression of anger that seemed almost fierce. The change in the girl was so quick and so complete as to be startling, and even Andre's face showed grave alarm.

Ronnie glanced out, too.

"It's only the government autogiro!" she shouted back to her guests, slowing her own speed to coast so they could hear. "It's only the Border Patrol plane. See they're waving. They're friends, and—why—"

Lona and Andre ignored her. Lona had grabbed his arm in fury. "I told you!" she snapped at Andre, lips tight and pale, "It's a trap! A deliberate—"

$100-a-Month Pension Plus Other Proposals Sought by Union From GM of Canada

Oshawa, April 5 (CP) — The United Automobile Workers (CIO) announced today it is seeking a $100-a-month retirement pension for its 8,000 members employed by General Motors of Canada Ltd.

The pension request is one of several proposals made by the union as initial steps were taken toward a new contract with General Motors.

The company issued no statement in reply.

The pension would be payable at age 60 to employees with 8 years' service at the big G.M. plant here.

Along Ford Demand

A similar demand was made by U.A.W. in contract talks this year with the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Ltd., at Windsor. The company rejected it and offered a $50 pension. The U.A.W. in Windsor has set April 12 as a deadline for strike action by the force its demand.

The existing contract between the U.A.W. and General Motors expires June 11. Under 1'a terms negotiations for a new contract cannot start until April 11.

The union's Oshawa proposals were ratified by U.A.W. members last month, submitted to the company last week and disclosed publicly today by Malcolm Smith, chairman of the bargaining committee of Local 222.

Shorter Work Week

In addition to the pension, the union asks:

COLDER WEATHER EXPECTED TO HALT FLOOD THREATS

Toronto, April 5 — (CP) — Cooler air eased flood conditions in some parts of Southern Ontario today. It stemmed the flow somewhat of the rampaging rivers that forced hundreds of families from their homes and caused thousands of dollars' damage.

The flood-swollen Thames river dropped eight feet overnight, relieving the anxiety of thousands of Londoners who watched through the night. Tuesday the river was within inches of the top of the new earthen dikes.

At Guelph torrents of water rushed down streets in what was described as the city's worst flood in 23 years.

Already hit by the flood included Kitchener, Galt, Brampton, Orono, Woodstock, Palmerston, Dorchester, Breslaw, Pickering and Freeman.

Guelph residents breathed easier as the Speed River subsided shortly after midnight. Streets in the river area, from which many persons had been forced to leave their homes, were drying up slowly today.

Bell Drinking Water

Health authorities in Preston ordered residents to boil all drinking water. The chlorination plant was affected by the flood and it was feared water might leak into storage tanks. The Grand River was 10 feet above normal summer level. A foot below the record 1937 mark.

At nearby Galt the Grand river remained at flood level with no change from Tuesday. Some factories sent workers home and buildings on Water Street were unheated. Some stores remained closed. Families on Water Street south were still marooned with water swirling around their homes.

No one was reported drowned but several persons were rescued from the swirling waters. Max Armstrong, 26, fell in Duffin Creek near Whitevale and was rescued along the flood-swollen stream until fellow-workmen rescued him with a rope.

Dam Bursts

John Cathers was also rescued when he was plunged into the Maitland River at Wingham Two boys were rescued from waist-deep mud on the Thames River at London.

Under the force of thousands of tons of water, a dam on Hopewell Creek at Breslau suddenly burst, and the torrent washed away 75 feet of roadway.

BIG THREE NEAR CRITICAL POINT ON GERMAN PLAN

Outcome May Settle Fate of West Europe

Washington, April 5 — (AP)— Britain, the United States and France today appeared to be approaching a critical point on the question of German future.

The outcome may also settle the fate of Western European organization.

The central issue, as seen by officials here, is whether Britain will join fully in the unity of Western Europe or remain basically aloof from participation. Without Britain's wholehearted co-operation it is considered certain that France will be unwilling to accept Germany as a full-scale partner.

The United States favors Western European Union, including all three of those countries and feels that German participation is essential both to Germany and to its western neighbors. But British and French officials, rather than American, holds the key to future development.

Some diplomats say the situation will be the most critical to be discussed by State Secretary Dean Acheson, Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain and Foreign Minister Schuman of France when they meet in London next week.

The German problem was sharply injected up Tuesday night in a London speech by the American High Commissioner for Germany, John J. McCloy. The speech reflected top policy thinking in the State Department here.

PROVED TO BE WRONG

Toronto, April 5 —(CP)—A retired assessor of the Department of National Revenue who claimed he "knew the ropes" yesterday found out how wrong he was. Dr. Wm. C. Chalk, who conducted his own defence, was fined $50 for not filing a 1948 income tax return within the proper time.

WALLS BLOWN DOWN

Dallas, Tex., April 5 — (AP) — High winds Tuesday blew down two walls and the roof section of an unfinished storeroom of the First Baptist Church. The pastor, Rev. B. E. Smith, was in the nearby parsonage reading the Bible— the sixth chapter of Joshua which tells of the walls of Jericho falling.

'Agony Column' in London Times As Exciting as Detective Thriller

London, April 5 (CP)—Reading the personal column of The Times is almost a hobby with thousands of Britons—a hobby that was especially popular with the famous storybook detective Sherlock Holmes.

Some say the "agony column," as it is often called, is the most fascinating in contemporary literature and nearly as exciting as a detective thriller.

There are bits and pieces in it about everyone from bakers to junk store dealers and temperance reformers to needy gentlemen wanting a wife who want to sell mink coats and tiaras, young men who want jobs but no money; lovers making up quarrels and unremarried men wanting to go abroad.

In recent issues there were also notices about a missing heir, a man wanting a home for sleeping a Swedish woman desiring to live in England and a man advertising for a lake in Hampshire, Kent or Sussex.

Two French governments appealed for tickets for the Grand National Steeplechase and the Duke of Windsor's name appeared on a list of tickets for the Derby.

The scope and variety of the announcements published in The Times "agony column" is probably without parallel anywhere in the world.

Then there was a man describing himself as "an English painter with English ideals" who asked for a loan of £1,000 ($3,-000) "to gain time to complete my technique free from distraction."

He offered to pay back the money in five years and by way of interest suggested "the possibility of an honored place beside the Edgcumbes and Thicknesses of art history."

The references were to Baron Edgcumbe who discovered Sir Joshua Reynolds and Philip Thickness, an art collector, who was governor of Virginia, U.S.A.

A young man who wanted to "see the world" offered to go into partnership with others similarly inclined in the purchase of a steam yacht. A girl with a "melodious voice" offered to her services to anyone requiring her services.

Even a veteran newspaperman had his plea. He wanted a job as librarian in a "dignified home or business or educational surroundings."

Expected Increase in Price Of Cheese Boxes Protested By Cheese Makers' Assoc.

A feeling of alarm regarding the cheese maker. He said they expected increase in the price of cheese boxes was expressed here Tuesday by members of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association meeting at their annual spring conference in the Hotel Quinte.

Current price of boxes is fifty cents each, but with regulations this year calling for heavier veneer it is expected manufacturers may demand up to 65 cents for boxes this year.

Makers pointed out that as they had already been fined for the 1950 season they would be unable to pay any increase and unanimously passed a resolution that under no circumstances would an increase in the price of boxes over that of 1949.

It was further resolved that in case box manufacturers demanded an increase the matter would be turned over to the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association to be handled by the latter.

A copy of the resolution was forwarded to the Cheese Producers at their meeting being held in Brockville.

Should Not Be Penalized

President of the Association, Thos. Heath stated if there was any increase in the price of boxes it could not be borne by the should not be penalized by high box prices, when they had already hired figuring box prices from 30 cents. Herb Albert, Prince Edward county said some box makers had quoted as high as 65 cents for this season.

Mr. W. C. Cameron, associate commissioner of marketing services, pointed out that regulation calling for thicker veneer was not new. Prior to the war veneer had been thicker but the thickness was reduced during wartime when materials were scarce.

The discussion on the price of cheese boxes resolved into a general complaint from cheese makers that green boxes were being supplied by the box makers this season. The defects unless boxes were properly dried. Also it was stated that boxes were being made smaller with the result that boxing of cheese was made difficult.

"It hurts me to hear the cheesemakers being held responsible for many cheese defects when actually it is the boxes that are responsible," said Provincial Dairy Commissioner George Pollard. He felt they should be a standard of box height and veneer, as well as for veneer thickness.

$10 Counterfeit Bills Believed Printed in Upper N.Y. State

Toronto, April 5 — (CP) — Police said today they believe the presses on which a new flood of counterfeit Canadian $10 bills is being printed are in the upper New York State.

R.C.M.P. officials said the bogus currency is being produced by the same gang that has distributed hundreds of counterfeit United States bills throughout the U.S.

The R.C.M.P. is working closely with the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation and the U.S. Secret Service in an all-out effort to find the plant and break up the ring, it was learned.

A study of the paper used in the counterfeit $10 and $20 U.S. bills revealed it is the same kind as used for the new Canadian currency, police said.

Paper being used is known as "coupon bond." It is of a high grade but not difficult to obtain.

A man with printing know-how in Buffalo had $20,000 Canadian and $25,000 U.S. counterfeit money. This strengthens the belief that both types come from the same plant, police said.

Authorities along the Ontario-New York border are keeping a close watch for proof that counterfeit bills from Canada are being made in the U.S.

They also are exercised checking on a possibility that counterfeit Canadian money is being handled by the same gang.

Alex McDonald, 31, brother of Donald Stewart McDonald, a escaped Canadian convict, was arrested here Tuesday night by a Toronto police squad assigned to work with the R.C.M.P. in the counterfeit currency racket.

McDonald, who denied knowledge of the counterfeiting racket, was charged with vagrancy and possession of an Irish sweepstakes ticket.

Local police said today they believe thousands of citizens have been the victims of an Ontario-New York counterfeiting racket.

They expressed this opinion after conviction Tuesday of Reginald Charles, 37, and Joseph Shapiro, 34, on charges of selling counterfeit bills.

Receipts seized when the two men were arrested are not the real thing, police said.

Cost-of-Living At Peak, Rent And Food Higher

Ottawa, April 5 (CP) —An unparalleled advance in rents, combined with a sharp rise in food prices, pushed up February living costs by 2.1 points to a new record.

The cost-of-living index touched 169.7 points, compared with 161.6 in January and the previous high of 162.8 in July 1948, the Dominion of Statistics reported Tuesday. The index is calculated on the basis 1935-39 costs equal 100.

Initiated by the recent boosts in federal rent ceilings, the rent sub-index made the biggest jump. It rose 7.7 points from the previous peak of 125.6 in January to 132.7 in February. The food subgroup, largest single factor in the barometer's movements, climbed 2.7 points from 201.3 to 204.0, 2.5 points below the previous peak of 209.2 in July 1951.

U. S. LIFTS BAN

Washington, April 5 — (AP)— The United States Tuesday lifted its three-year-old ban against travel by Americans in Yugoslavia. The State Department announced that, following a new agreement with Marshal Tito's government, passports will now be freely issued for visits to Yugoslavia.

R.C. Clergyman Given Life Term For High Treason

Prague, April 5 — (AP) — A Roman Catholic clergyman was sentenced today by a Prague court to life imprisonment on charges of high treason and spying for the West.

His nine co-defendants, all of them Catholic priests, received lighter sentences ranging from two to 25 years.

The official Czechoslovak news agency reported that nine of the clergymen were convicted of either anti-state activity or treason or both. The other three were acquitted.

The court decided whether he knew of the activities of the others and did not report them.

Some of the defendants were charged with making contact with foreign groups and collecting weapons to be used against the government.

The life imprisonment was ordered for Dr. Josef Beran, 60-year-old Redemptorist monk who was director of the Moravian Theological Institute.

TO ARBITRATE DISPUTE

Orillia, April 5—(CP)—A dispute concerning wages and working conditions between the police department and the town council of Orillia will be settled by arbitration, it was decided Tuesday. The council appointed Stanton S. Marshall, a lawyer, as the town's representative on the three-man arbitration committee.

3-FRONT ATTACK MADE ON BUDGET BY OPPOSITION

Government Criticized For Lack of Planning

Ottawa, April 5 — (CP)— A three-front attack on the federal budget was launched in the Commons Tuesday.

It came from the Progressive Conservative, C.C.F. and Social Credit parties, all of whom agreed through their spokesmen—though their solutions differed—that the government has not done enough planning for the future in its fiscal policies.

The Progressive Conservative and C.C.F. parties promptly moved motions of non-confidence in the administration.

The Social Credit group was prevented by house rules from moving a similar motion, but its leader, Solon Low, urged the government to appoint a "national survey commission" to investigate the development of distribution of national production.

The Progressive Conservative motion came from J. M. Macdonnell (PC—Toronto Greenwood), their opposition finance critic, and asked the house to express regret that government policies had:

1. Made higher taxes inevitable.
2. Included unnecessary items to reduce expenditures.
3. Contained no program for national development without which there could be no hope of reducing taxes or the cost of living.

The C.C.F. motion, introduced by M. J. Coldwell, party chieftan, based its bid for an expression of non-confidence on the view that government policies had:

1. Indicated the government was prepared to accept present production levels as adequate for the Canadian people and was placing a limit on the services and security of the people.

No Provision Made Claim

2. Contained no adequate provision for increased production through planning, for making full use of natural resources, for public control of investment, or for public ownership of industry to provide a rising standard of living for the people.

MAY BE TORONTO MAN

Midland, Ont., April 5 (CP) — Police here said Tuesday they found at Severn Falls near here a wallet which may be the property of a missing Toronto man is being investigated by Provincial Police. They are also investigating any connection with the disappearance of Herbert Hudson, 39, who was last seen in August, 1948, when he visited Rev. Harry Martin at Bala and started out alone and skied down the railway tracks towards Severn Falls, about 11 miles from here.

Meanwhile, in Timmins, a howling blizzard from James Bay hit the district Monday night disrupting transportation service and bringing traffic to a halt. Nearly a foot of snow fell.

Bartenders Claim Women Who Rock Cradle Shouldn't be Pouring Drinks

New York, April 5. (AP)—An A.F.L. union has presented a tongue-in-cheek proof campaign today to keep women on their own side—the customer side—of the bar.

But five lady bartenders and their lady boss have refused to join the picketing and say they're not sorry. They say they'll fight, all the way, if necessary, to defend the principle that a hand which rocks the cradle may pour the drinks.

Larry's bar and grill is the battleground. It's busy place on Fifth Avenue, in a fairly hard-bitten neighborhood a block west Times Square. A lady bouncer, Rose Marie Miller, bought the place five years ago.

To wait on table and tend bar, she recently hired five women. Local 12 of the Hotel and Restaurant Workers Union, mostly made up of bartenders, said she'd have to replace them with men. When Miss Miller replied that she'd hire anybody she pleased.

The union put a picket line in front of Larry's. And Tuesday Local president David Siegel said the union would ask a city ordinance outlawing barmaids. Promptly, the lady bartenders went on a picketing spree.

Union officials said that wasn't true, the women can join. But Daisy'd heard that before, and es only, secretary-treasurer Joseph Rodriguez added:

"We have 600 men out of work. If bartending is dropped, it's not healthy for women to be behind the bar."

"That's absolute nonsense," retorted Ann Lawrence, one of the picketing girls, "a girl has every bit as much right to do this work as a man . . . "As far as the moral question is concerned, I'm a lady wherever she may be—if she was a lady in the first place."

G. Spencer Victim In Accident Near Mountain View

Carl Soble, Ameliasburg, Suffers Head Injuries

One man was almost instantly killed and another is in critical condition in Belleville General Hospital following an army vehicle going out of control on Highway 14 last night and crashing into a tree seven miles south of the city.

Killed was Garnet R. Spencer, aged 33, of 364 North Charles Street, Belleville, while Carl Soble, 19, of Ameliasburg, is in hospital with critical head and other injuries. Both men were members of the 9th Anti-Tank Regiment (Hastings) at Belleville.

Went Out of Control

The accident occurred shortly before ten o'clock as the army truck was being driven north. As the vehicle topped the knoll south of the Mountain View cheese factory the steering suddenly went out of control and crashed into the tree directly opposite the cheese factory. The truck then bounced back onto the highway where it overturned.

Spencer's body was found lying in the ditch, while Soble was found in the wrecked truck, one leg hanging through a side door of the vehicle. Soble was rushed to hospital by Bush's ambulance where he was said to have received 30 stitches to close a head wound.

No other vehicles was involved in the accident, which may have been caused by the wet pavement as result of a heavy rain.

No Eye Witnesses

There were no eye witnesses to the accident but the crash of the truck hitting the two trees was heard by Lesley Wyatt, cheese maker at Mountain View factory, by his son Glenn and daughter-in-law. They rushed out to find Spencer in the ditch and the wrecked truck in the centre of the highway. They believed that Spencer lived a few minutes following the accident.

Provincial Police from Picton were immediately called, while the ambulance from Belleville rushed Soble to hospital. Provincial Constable Charles Fletcher investigated, while Constable Earl Marvin of Wellington assisting.

Tire marks in the soft shoulder of the highway and in the ditch indicate that the truck was the driver's first time driving on

City and District News

CHRIST CHURCH CHOIR VISITS CHURCH PLACE

Christ Church choir travelled to St. John's Church at Carrying Place on Monday evening and rendered the Cantata by Sir John Stainer.

The work was excellently done, and in spite of bad fog, was well attended, and rendered the choir very entertained at the parish hall by Rev. F. C. Beazer and members of his congregation. A ring song on the return journey was enjoyed by all.

ICE EAST OF BAY BRIDGE BREAKS UP

Being somewhat later than a year ago, the ice in the Bay east of the bridge disappeared overnight. However, there is a fairly large leefield west of the bridge which is showing signs of breaking up soon.

The heavy rain last night, plus a moderate wind, contributed to the clearing of the Bay.

Travellers to Rossmore and beyond last night reported a dense blanket of fog which made it almost impossible to drive faster than a crawl. The same condition was also reported on the Belleville-Trenton highway.

Livestock Auction Well Attended; Many Offerings

Belleville district farmers and purchasers from as far as the United States put their stamp of approval on the first community livestock auction sale to be staged in the immediate district.

On Tuesday an estimated 4,000 persons attended the initial auction of the Belleville Livestock Sales immediately north of the city on Highway 14 when horses, cattle, calves and hogs were put under the auctioneer's hammer. Forty horses, 90 milch cows and springers, 315 calves and 425 pigs of all ages, were sold on the first day, sales continuing until nine o'clock in the evening.

Commodious Barns

Commodious new barns on the Chas. Scott property north of the city have been constructed as accommodation for the weekly sale of auction where it is expected that auction sales or livestock will be held weekly.

Mr. Scott stated that although the community auction was a new idea for the immediate Belleville district, such auctions were popular in the New York State, and in the Toronto and Montreal area.

Forty buyers, mostly Clydes, were sold at the first local auction at prices ranging from $50 to $150. Springer cattle ranged from $150 to $250; fat cattle, bulls 16 to 18 cents per pound; calves from 14 to 29 cents. One farmer brought a goat which sold for $6.

Set-up of Active and Reserve Army Forces Described by General Rodgers

"Army Day" was observed at the Kiwanis Club luncheon held at the Centre on Tuesday, when the members listened to an instructive address by Major-General N.E. Rodgers, C.B.E., Quarter-Master General of the Canadian Army. He explained the set-up of the Active and Reserve forces of the Canadian Defence Corps and how it would operate should a third world war result.

Gen. Rodgers stated that the democracies were subjected to two aggressions, military and economics, the latter to prevent recovery and stability. "The question is whether we can withstand the two aggressions, because the military field must have sufficient force and this costs money yet the economic field cannot be weakened", said the speaker.

He stated that the costs of defence this year will be 4½ million dollars of which the army branch will spend 143 millions. "There are two divisions in the army, the tasks to perform and how the army should be developed to perform those tasks" said Gen. Rodgers. "The tasks of the active army would become there must be sufficient ground force at the outbreak of war to hold off in respect to food. He will address the club later on his trip to Ottawa.

The attendance prize donated by Ab Mazer was won by Stafford McKenna. Taylor Statham presided at the luncheon with Harold Currie as song leader and Phil Huddleston at the piano. Don Allen collected the fines.

Former Resident Wins Name Contest

The management of the new baby-wear store at 30 Bridge Street East have attended one item from each district list.

They have decided on a name for the shop, which was submitted through the medium of their Kiwanis Club representative.

Henceforth it will be known as "Tiny Tots' Town".

That was the winning name selected from thousands of entries submitted from all parts of the district.

And the lady that submitted it is Mrs. Thomas Parks, 323 Albert Street, Kingston, former resident of this city, who is a subscriber to the Ontario Intelligencer. She is a daughter of Mrs. Worrell, 121 Station Street.

Dogs on Loose Cause Complaints

Local dog owners permitting their pets to run at large were warned today by Police Chief Walter Probert to keep them on leash and thus keep them safe from threatened mayhem on the part of irate householders.

During the past week the police station has been besieged with calls from unhappy householders complaining that dogs running loose are digging up cherished lawns and in general making a nuisance of themselves.

But Spring or no Spring, dogs cannot be permitted to dig up the neighbor's lawns and owners are requested to please keep their dogs under control.

Calfhood Vaccination Campaign Launched

Picton—The Holstein Breeders and Federation of Agriculture are both supporting a vaccination campaign that was launched on Friday with an aim to vaccinate as many calves as possible in the township of Ameliasburg this year. At the meeting attended by approximately 100 persons, Dr. Donald Spencer was named chairman and Ralph Bird, secretary.

The speaker, Dr. John Gallagher, regional veterinarian at Kemptville Agricultural School, discussed calfhood vaccination and the degree to which it controls Bangs disease. Dr. Gallagher explained that in the light of present knowledge calfhood vaccination was the best means of building up resistance to Bangs disease or contagious abortion. There were many questions pointed to the speaker following the address and relative to the subject.

Doctors Jones and Foster both spoke of the merits of vaccination and promised their support.

Those present without exception were in favor of calfhood vaccination and of putting forth an effort to encourage all possible farmers of the district to have their calves vaccinated. The following are the names and addresses each to visit farmers in a certain section of the township.

J. Clifford Barber, Jas Broad, Allan Weese, Harold Bonter, Bill MacDougall, D. Ross Clifford, Smith, Percy Carmike, Eldon Wall, Harmon Carscallen, Ross Townsend, C. Vancleif, J. Cairns, M. Dempsey, Keith Nelson, Harold Wood, Cecil Rowe, Harvey Brown, J. Dempsey, Brigadier J. Genet.

Plans for Racquet and Yachting Club Take Shape, Executive Appointed

Visions of a brand-new Belleville sports and social center, which will embrace indoor sports, tennis and yachting have matured into reality.

Total organization of the new centre which will be known as the Belleville Racquet and Yachting Club was completed at a well-attended meeting in the Y.M.C.A.

Heading the new club's executive is T. A. Carruthers, well-known city salesman. Other officers are, 1st vice president, S. M. Connelly, an experienced yachtsman; 2nd vice president, John Black; secretary treasurer, Ralph Clapp; chairman of finance, Roland Pryke; chairman of building, Jack Sills; and chairman of publicity, Dr. Bob Clement. Directors are Harold Mott and Bill McBride with Chris Lackyer, solicitor.

Application has been made for the incorporation of the club to be known as the Belleville Racquet and Yachting Club.

Location Secured

A location said to be ideal for the club's yachting and other activities, has been secured near the western limits of the city. The site overlooks the Bay of Quinte, and the possibilities, as far as yachting and dockage are concerned, are said to be in line with the executive's purposes.

Construction on the new clubhouse will start in the near future, members of the executive said today.

Architect's plans of the building are nearing completion. The new club house will include a large playing court on which handminton, volleyball, racquets, basketball and other court games can be played. Ample room will also be available for spectators. The court will be located on the ground floor of the club.

The second floor will embrace a spacious lounge from which members may view yacht races and other nautical activities on the club membership, enjoy social amenities, and refreshments.

Good Anchorage

Yachting facilities and anchorage planned for the new club, will fill a long-felt want in the city. Anchorage will be available for craft drawing six feet of water, and will be of such proportions as to accommodate a large number of boats.

Chairman of Yachting "Stew" Connelly said today, that there are upwards of 50 yachting enthusiasts in the city, who for years have been deploring the lack of facilities here. The water site off the proposed club house is ideal for yachting and power racing in Mr. Connelly's opinion, and he should know for he was the vice commodore of the Port Credit Yacht Club for two years, besides being the owner of the smart "Lightning" Class boat.

So enthused are these disciples of the "white wings" that a special meeting has been called for April 18th at Kiwanis Centre where important matters relative to yachting will be discussed.

A membership drive will be started immediately club officials said yesterday. Chairman of Finance Roland Pryke stated that membership certificates are now available and can be obtained from any member of the club's executive.

Terrified Kitten Found Imprisoned In Engine Compartment of Car

A small kitten, part Persian, is resting in the city pound today, excitedly licking its remaining eight lives, and thanking its feline forebears that it had a reserve to fall back on.

For it survived an experience that it can never in its short days for the next ten years, or whatever is the life expectancy of a cat, will probably see fit to relish curling whiskers in disbelief.

Believed to be the victim of a callous prankster, the kitten spent the night beneath the hood of a car owned by an Albert Street resident.

But that is not all. It huddled in feline terror within the darkness of the engine compartment, watching whirring mechanisms function while the car owner drove a distance of a mile before parking the car for the night. How the small kitty survived the ordeal, no one can conjecture.

The owner of the car, a coupe, was sent on an errand by his wife who was entertaining friends at a bridge party. Later he returned and put the car in the garage for the night, looking he found.

This morning, a few minutes before eight o'clock, he went to the garage to start the car to drive to his downtown office. He heard what he thought were the mewed cries of a cat. He searched the garage thoroughly but found nothing. The cries were persistent. Puzzled, he again searched the garage. Finally he traced the sound to a place near the car, and lifting the hood, discovered the trembling, terrified kitten, watersoaked and mewing pitifully, but still alive. It had been confined to its "prison" for over twelve hours.

How the kitten came to be beneath the hood of the car is a bit of a mystery. The garage was locked all night. The "gadget" that operates the hood-lifting mechanism is located inside the car near the dash.

There is a possibility that some cold-blooded individual whose idea of humor is gutter minus, placed the kitten beneath the hood of the car while the owner was absent when on the previous evening's errand.

The kitten, more dead than alive, was cared for and taken to the Humane Association where it was delivered to the city pound-keeper.

Los Angeles—Sonny Wisecarver, who eloped with a married woman when he was 14, and who another when he was 16, now is 21 years old. So he ran this advertisement Tuesday in a newspaper.

"Sonny Wisecarver is looking for a way of living without working or doing very little. Please let me know! If you have such a job or position, write."

He told a reporter: "I know that everybody doesn't work for a living and there must be a way to live without working being crooked and without working."

National City, Calif.—The motorist stopped and just like the song said, there was a baby hanging on his front bumper.

Glens E. Snodgrass, Chula Vista motorist, was flagged down by H. V. Puthuff, a milkman.

They found Charles Edward Potter, two years old, dangling his clothing caught between the bumper and license plate.

A traffic officer's report of the incident Tuesday said Snodgrass apparently snagged the neighbor child when starting his car to drive a block. The child was only scratched.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, April 5 — (CP) Prices settled into a narrow price range in mid-session on the Toronto stock exchange today as profit-taking sales stopped a strong two-day advance. Several issues moved briefly into slightly higher ground but the majority of leaders in the upturn were pushed into the minus column.

Volume for the first three hours was 1,276,425 shares.

In industrials papers, utilities and steels slipped fractions. Algoma Steel was an exception in steels, raising ½ at a new high at 16½. Imperial Oil traded heavily for a slight gain in a mixed refining oil list.

Royalite Oil held the limelight in western oils, rebounding from an early loss to show a gain of ⅛ at a new high at 13.

Rate Increase Not to Take Effect Until '51

Toronto, April 5 (CP)— An increase in hospital rates which municipalities will have to pay for indigent patients will not take effect until Jan. 1 1951, Premier Frost gave this understanding in the legislature Tuesday night when CCF leader E. B. Jolliffe said main compliment was that municipalities had made no provision for the change in this year's budgets.

The debate on second reading of the public hospitals act revealed that contrary to statements of some Toronto members of council, the city would benefit by the change, Toronto controllers had claimed that an additional expense of $300,000 would be incurred by the increase from $3 to $4 a day for indigent patients.

Mr. Jolliffe pointed out, and Acting Health Minister Goodfellow agreed, that this would be offset by reduction in the deficits which the city has to pay.

Premier Frost said the special 25 percent grant to hospital from the province would reduce deficits in Toronto from $1,295,000 to $500,000.

Amendment to Assessment Act Defeated in House

Toronto, April 5 — (CP) — The Ontario Legislature in the night sitting Tuesday defeated without a formal vote an amendment by Reid Scott (CCF — Toronto Beaches) to the Assessment Act.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dunbar said the section of the bill affecting chain stores, to which the amendment referred, had been deleted by the standing committee on municipal law.

The clause that was deleted would have increased assessment of chain stores for business tax purposes to 50 per cent of land value, while reducing the assessment of wholesale merchants from 75 to 50 per cent.

William Dennison (CCF — Toronto St. David) said it was obsolete to allow municipalities to make an assessment of 75 per cent on wholesalers and only 25 per cent on chain stores that do "four to 10 times the business"

R. B. Salsberg (Lab.-Prog. — Toronto St. Andrew) charged the government members of the Municipal Law Committee had been persuaded by "a lobby of terrific force combining all the big chain stores" to vote against the bill.

The government's "capitulation" was "humiliating to every member of this House."

Liberal leader Farquhar Oliver said he resented "the implication that members of that committee and particularly those of my party were influenced by an outside group."

"It is just about time this House asserted what to me is a very important principle — that the rest of this Legislature cannot be bought and sold."

Although Mr. Scott's amendment had "some merit" the whole Assessment Act should be revised "from stem to stern."

Canada Seeks Better U.S. Pact On Potatoes

Ottawa, April 5—(CP)—Canada is going to use 15,000,000 bushels of potatoes as an incentive to pry open a better potato agreement with the United States.

The new agreement, trade officials say, will be worked out between the two countries at the fourth round of international tariff negotiations to begin in Torquay, England, Sept. 28 next.

Although unsatisfied with the terms of the current agreement, Canada still declined to take advantage of a trade clause under which she could have shipped an additional 15,000,000 bushels of potatoes into the U.S. market at a specially-reduced tariff.

Thus, at a "directors" meeting of the multilateral pact on tariffs, now under way at Geneva, Canada has approved, along with other countries, a United States request to ignore a clause in the 1947 Geneva tariff agreement.

That clause established that the annual U.S. potato consumption would be fixed for purposes of tariffs at 350,000,000 bushels a year. If U.S. home production fell below that amount the United States would open the doors to additional imports at reduced tariffs to make up that amount.

This year the U.S. has decided to curtail acreage and cut production to 330,000,000 bushels. But for purposes of tariffs the consumption figure still is fixed at 350,000,000.

This would normally allow world exporters—which for practical purposes would in this case mean Canada only—to ship 15,000,000 bushels to meet the "deficiency."

Although Canada has a big supply of potatoes available for export, she nevertheless has agreed to forego the additional tariff reduction in the hopes of concluding a better deal with the U.S. as a result.

SHOCKING TOTAL

Recently at the Safety Exposition held in New York, the startling statement was made that automobiles had claimed the lives of more persons in the United States than had been killed in all the wars in which the United States had engaged. The war dead throughout American history was totalled at 852,000 but the victims who died in motor-car accidents since 1907 reached the shocking total of 927,260.

Those are astounding figures which need to be brought to the attention of every driver of a motor vehicle and every other person who has to cross or in any way use the highways and streets. Constant watchfulness and care on the part of everyone are the only security.

WONDER OF THIS AGE

"It used to be that highways were thought of as running through the open countryside, tying the cities with one another. For two or three decades the good roads movement was in effect to extend the amenities of pavement beyond the outskirts of towns and to weave concrete or asphalt threads into some kind of network," says the Christian Science Monitor.

"It is a different picture today. Great highways in Canada and the United States lie in part within the boundaries of cities and towns and draw vast patterns of growth all over the continent.

This problem complicates traffic problems and the apportionment of the cost of road construction which has naturally taken on large proportions as these highways bear so large a share of commercial traffic.

How great a problem the development of the motorcar and the unfolding of its uses are shown by the situation in Memphis, Tennessee, where there are eleven federal highways converging with a volume of more than 50,000 vehicles a day.

New York City is held up by the Monitor as the city that deserves a hand for having shown "by expressways that traffic-laden volume can be moved through a metropolitan centre practically as fast as on the open road."

Little was this huge development, which possesses so many problems which go to alter the traffic problems of the world, fully visioned by their builders. Many highways, some up for solution without precedent except as in the instance of New York City which has shown the way by the express traffic which is sped through the mighty metropolis of the New World.

No one can envision what will be the ultimate form in which motorized traffic will impress itself upon the globe. That which began in a very small way with the odd autoist steadily adding to his numbers has become a mighty system in which the towns and cities are wrapt with the entire country.

Endless issues emerge from such a growth. The growing pains of this great system of roads which has been and still is developing not only in America but also in countries long thought to be decadent or past revival are felt everywhere. No nation can successfully escape them unless somehow there might be a new system of transportation, as for instance by A-energy. But the traffic which is borne by wheels and is as old as the ancient civilizations of the East.

And all of these issues came so fast in the present century, or even a shorter length of time because everybody did not own a car until well on to a third of the century was passed.

The maker of the first wheel the world ever knew and the builder of the early cars have transformed the world. In time the plane will dominate the trackless air as the motorcar now possesses the highways of the earth.

Gigantic issues rise out of these two modern uses of power and the end is not yet. There are prophecies that atomic energy can be tamed so as to lend propulsion to cars and ships. If that time comes as may possibly be, greater wonders than man has yet seen will be commonplace.

EFFICIENCY

Whether or not we can justly boast of our efficiency as a people, it is a fact that the efficiency of the average individual has declined in the past five decades. In the horse-and-buggy days a driver could, at least a temporary repair when a trace broke. His modern counterpart, when a comparable accident puts his car out of commission, has to telephone to a garage.

Failure of electricity was unimportant in 1900, when its principle use was for lighting, and every household had alternating lighting systems in gas jets, oil lamps or candles.

Perhaps the aim of modern education should be to bring up children as competent mechanics and electricians so that they will be able to avoid the frustrations entailed by our labor-saving inventions. It is a fine idea to do much for the idle generation. I must find for itself a philosophy that will reconcile the conflict between efficiency and happiness. — The Printed Word.

JUST FOLKS

LAWN

A lawn too perfect seems to me,
Just like a house too neat,
Where all who enter never see
The mark of racing feet.

The sign, "Keep off the grass"
I read
And angry shake my head,
I think it shame to plant the seed
Where children may not tread.

Is beauty only for the eye,
Not for the heart to share?
If so, why happier am I
To see on places bare?

Where first base was I still can show,
The home plate still I see,
For where the green grass couldn't grow
Our children used to be.

Mr. Norman Hill, M.P.P. for East Hastings, was in town today.

Mr. F. C. Maughan, accompanied by his wife and daughter, have arrived here from London, England, and will make his home here. He is a painter and paper hanger. His brother, who is a plasterer, will arrive later.

Twenty members of the Toronto Rotary Club visited the newly-formed Belleville Rotary Club and presented to it the charter which completes the organization of the club. A banquet was served at Hotel Quinte at which W. Gus Porter, Mayor W. B. Riggs extended to the visitors the freedom of the city and welcomed them with a key of massive proportions which was made by the Belleville Hardware and Lock Company. Alderman Jamieson Bone, president of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, welcomed the visitors on behalf of the Chamber. Secretary W. L. Doyle read a number of letters from distant Rotary clubs welcoming the Belleville Rotary Club into the magic circle of good fellowship and useful service.

The general tax rate this year will be 20 mills on the dollar. It could not legally be more and nobody expected that it would be less.

The gore at the junction of Station Street and Cannifton Road would make a pretty park; there is no doubt of that. The idea, however, is nearly as old as Haley's Comet. Perhaps the dream will become a reality some day.

Before any expense is incurred in connection with the proposed basin on Ewike's Island, it might be well to obtain the opinion of an expert with regards to the plan. It was pointed out several years ago that the mere fact of water filtering through gravel does not purify it although it may clarify it.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Bifly Rose

CURTAIN

On an October morning in 1903, in a village not far from La Belle Rivière in eastern France, a young priest paled as he listened to his first confession.

"Yesterday afternoon," he heard the penitent on other side of the curtain say, "I found a strange girl on the dirt road that runs by the pond. When I tried to make friends with her, she laughed at me, and, I got so mad I picked up a stone and hit her to make her stop laughing. She fell down, and when I pulled and she didn't move I got scared and buried her behind some bushes."

Father Antoine recognized the voice as that of a 15-year-old who was known in the village as "the crazy teller" — a boy who was always talking about his daydreams as if they had actually happened.

Even though he didn't know whether the confession was real or fiction, the priest imposed the most severe penance, and it helped him and the boy to visit him every day after school for a friendly talk.

A few weeks later, Father Antoine was almost certain the "crime" was a boyish hallucination. For one thing, there had been no report of a missing person in the district and, for another, the boy's description of the murder grew more and more confused.

One afternoon he finally admitted to the priest that there was a fabrication. "I did meet a girl," he said, "but she was not so angry that I wanted to kill her. But I never touched her, and afterwards I got all embarrassed about what I wanted to do and what I really did."

"I suspected as much all along," said Father Antoine, "but I never admit I was shocked at first. You see, you were the first person who had ever confessed to me."

Two years later the boy's family moved to Paris and the priest all but forgot the incident—until a new paved road was laid alongside the old dirt one. Under a bush near the pond was found the decomposed body of a girl, and the coroner testified it had been there about two years, for the bird had been crushed by some heavy object.

Bound by his vows, Father Antoine could say nothing, and for the next forty years the secret remained with him.

The years of the German occupation were difficult ones for those who lived in the La Rochelle District, but many of the villagers did what the could for the resistance movement — and not the least among them was the priest, now in his late 60's. And when liberation finally came, a great celebration was arranged with Father Antoine as the guest of honor.

After the dinner was a good deal of reminiscing about the veterans of the underground, but when someone asked the priest to tell of his adventures, he smiled and declined."The best adventures are those I had, of us," he explained, "but in my calling, I've found, they are not everyday occurrence. As a matter of fact, the first confession I ever heard was like a real murderer."

Then, remembering his vows, Father Antoine apologized for his old-guard remark, and changed the subject of the guests would say no more.

Later that evening a delegation of underground workers from Paris arrived to pay tribute to the station and one of them, a colonel in the Maquis, was asked to say a few words.

"Meeting Father Antoine tonight is my greatest pleasure," he said to the gathering, "and not only because of his war record. Although he doesn't remember my name or face, I knew him well. He was the first — and only — of fact, I was the first person who ever confessed to him."

Stenographer Says She Gave Accused Sum of $5,000

Toronto, April 5 — (CP) — A portly middle-aged Don Juan, who police claim has charmed a number of women out of their money, was accused in court here today after a stenographer said she had given him her $5,000 life savings following a proposal of marriage.

John A. Stavely, alias Major Murray Buchanan, alias John Heatherdale, was arrested in a rooming house and is charged with of fraud and one of absconding. He is also charged with the as yet laid a theft charge.

Police said Stavely has been posing as an engineer for a large Canadian mining company.

Stavely was arrested last December and charged with stealing $200 from a Toronto widow while posing as the owner of apartment houses.

A warrant was issued for him after he failed to appear in court.

Police said that to cover up his tracks Stavely put a notice in the Toronto newspapers saying he died from a heart attack and that his body was cremated in Montreal.

Police said that last December Stavely persuaded Aline V. Harris-Lowe to give him $200 to buy furniture for an apartment he said he owned.

Within the last few months, police said, Stavely has been living in Toronto, Bolton, Stayner and other towns posing as an engineer. He is charged with obtaining by fraud $400 at Bolton and $50 at Stayner.

Fine, Jail Term For Selling Sweep Tickets

Toronto, April 5—(CP)—Two men were each fined $1,000 and one of them received a prison sentence following decisions in the Irish Sweepstakes.

Elliott Lewis, 31, received one month in addition to his fine. Lewis and Joseph Chesnick, 27, were given the alternative of six months in jail instead of the fine.

Tickets valued at about $15,000 were found in a hotel room which Shapiro was registered under an assumed name September 25.

Constable Wilfred Hood said he also found 5,208 blank receipts in the room, and more than found 771 stubs with names and addresses of persons who bought tickets, valued at about $2,000. He found 44 sealed envelopes addressed to Ontario persons.

Peace Effort In India Ruddely Jarred by Plot

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

This column Tuesday recorded the good news of the conference in Delhi between Prime Ministers Nehru of India and Liaquat Ali Khan of Pakistan looking toward peace to settle their feuding countries.

Today we have to report that already this effort has been rudely jarred. The Bombay police say they have found that a Hindu extremist plot which is said to be aimed against peace in the Indian subcontinent which is necessarily inherent in the Nehru-Liaquat agreement.

Dialectes may cause this type of terrorism. It is one of the possibilities which must be disposed of, in any case. Fungus disease, such as may be found in the variety of ailments dubbed "athlete's foot," may be present in skin areas and prove to be the source of the itching.

Allergy or hypersensitiveness to various food stuffs, wearing apparel, chemicals, soaps, toilet preparations and a host of other substances may be involved in the cause of the itching.

The skin areas which piles may be eradicated by the ambulant method would suggest that if piles are present in cases of itching, they should be disposed of as a preliminary—and possibly final —step.

The intractable cases of itching, tatooing is sometimes effective. Extensive surgical undermining of the skin is necessary in others.

Finally, itching may be caused by disorders of the urinary tract and rectal outlet, apart from piles. Fortunately, these conditions often can be handled successfully by a skilful physician or his office, instead of surgical treatment carried out in a hospital.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Every girl has had a plaid skirt. Every man has owned a plaid shirt. But there is no such word in the dictionary as plad.

It is plaid that makes people shudder at the word plad. But unfortunately, it is the only thing we can do about it except shudder. For even the Concise Oxford dictionary gives, as first choice, the pronunciation plad. And so do the Americans, as second choice, they give the pronunciation as "playd". What initials lie in bracelets after it. Which is the polite English way of suggesting hillbilly.

Whatever may be the origin of the word plaid, in Scotland plaid is not a kind of cloth: it is a piece of cloth, a piece of shawl. It is still worn by Scottish men, shepherds, farmers. But in the early pioneer days, every Scot who came ashore in Canada or America or Tasmania or Africa or wherever the Scots went as the standard bearers of Britain had either around his shoulders or rolled up in his bundle—a plaid.

It could also be worn a tartan plaid. For tartan is a kind of pattern of cloth. It could be a shepherd's tartan of black and white check. Or it might have been any sort of homespun woollen cloth. But it was a garment, not a pattern. Many of them had a button-hole worked in one edge, and a button on the other edge, so that, when the plaid was pleated lengthwise like a sheet, and flung about the shoulders, it could be buttoned on the chest to hold it in.

To this day, a plaid is the most useful garment for a sportsman. Around the shoulders it is warm, and keeps the rain off, while leaving the arms free. Rolled, it is good to sit on. Wrapped around the legs, it is a comfort. On the bed, it is a cover.

And out of respect for it, we should refer to our fancy shirts and skirts as tartans, not plaids.

THE PAINT PEELS OFF

When the Turks captured Constantinople, they turned the great cathedral of St. Sofia. They painted out the Christian story, and for years the pictures stayed painted out. But now the paint is beginning to come off. In the dome of the ceiling one can see a great deal of the original painting of the ascension of Christ.

When the revolutionists took over in France 150 years ago, they banished religion. They would not stay banished. Many people are wondering today how long the atheistic leaders of Russia can hold out against the true piety of the masses.

Our secular civilization has gained vast conveniences of a material kind. Its science and its religion are fundamentally in conflict with each other. Thoughtful people today do not believe this. The possibility that religion may be right is being forced upon them through many scientific findings. Also we are tiring of the materialism, the lewdness, and the general decadence of secularism.

If you have tried to paint out in your own life the promptings of Christian conscience, the teachings of Christian home, the inspiration of Christian ideals, the chances are that the paint will begin to peel after a while and the things you wanted to hide will again make their appearance.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

MY HAT

I wonder who it was who invented the hat. But we men would! Apparently he was not very proud of his invention, for there are many jokes to sing his praise. Manufacturers have given him credit for nothing. Its only to identify them for commercial purposes.

For my hat, in the singular, for though I have a whole closet full of hats, one prefers to wear my favorite companion. I have tried to be faithful to my hat, to be a good actor. The older and more distinguished it appears the more I love it and like to fit it. I want a modest purchase price for its possession, but like a lot of hats, I have to be fed regularly, no matter how much I love it, with one hat or two every five years. The hat men know what I mean.

For years I have had one hat to my perfect liking. It was an individual hat, joky in its form and substance. I could toss it anywhere, and it would come back to me in as happy a mood as though it had never left me. It was soft and pliable, and I could fit it myself proudly. It was a democratic (no pun) hat, for I never let it think I was above it went, or how it was used. It had to go with me in state or not at all. In other words, it had become an antique. I loved it. That hat was a member of the family and had to go back to the business of depression days.

Now I am back to my hat in paragraph two, and I shall climb down from my pedestal. It has already stood storms of snow and rain, and in the latter under many a blazing sun. It's a friendly companion and I am not going to desert it for the current fashion. Not so bad at all. I don't believe in pampering my hat, by wearing a rain contraption when it rains. I even like my hat to show its sterling stuff in the rain. I want it to keep its ancestral spunk.

In a small manner of means my hat is my fortune, for it conceals a lot of poverty. It has persisted, though silent, disappearing down Gotham's hill as undignified, but but deadly proud. The Ide Dr. George Washington Carver had such a hat in his day some one stole it, and he refused to speak or discover, until it was returned. It came back.

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

YOU DON'T PAY A PENNY FOR THIS

Many comfort-loving people who know that their homes will be warmer in Winter and cooler in Summer if properly insulated, consider the cost of insulation a real problem.

Nothing could be further from the truth. Whether it this way. Write down the amount of your average heat bill. Then deduct 25% (conservative figure) from that amount and see how quickly you'll pay for insulation. And remember, with Johns-Manville Spun Rock Wool Insulation you insulate only once, but save money on it year after year for as long as your home stands.

J-M Rock Wool Insulation will save you up to 30% on fuel and give you a home that is warmer in Winter and up to 20 degrees cooler in Summer. It's a luxury, yes, but one that soon pays for itself from the money. For more information, write Canadian Johns-Manville, 190 Bay St., Toronto, or see your nearest J-M dealer.

The president gave a short scripture reading and Mrs. S. L. Hooper welcomed the delegates representing 71 auxiliaries, 10 evening auxiliaries, 31 Mission Bands, 23 Baby Bands, 6 Mission Circles, 9 C.G.I.T. groups and 22 affiliated societies with a membership of 4,770.

World Friendship Recipe

An interesting dialogue was presented by Mrs. Fred Bell assisted by Mrs. R. Drew and was beautifully demonstrated by the use of a clothes line. The work of the literature secretary vividly pointed out that by the use of W.M.S. literature the Society is forming world friendships. The recipe for keeping the clothes line of world friendship bright and colorful was given thus:

Begin with a plentiful supply of hot water of enthusiasm and a good shake of sympathy as a water softener, and the best bubbles and suds of colorful stories you can make. Enthusiasm, sympathy, colorful stories. Soak clothes in these and plenty of facts as long as needed, then rub everything thoroughly with adequate prayerful preparation and study, and rinse several times in songs, prayers and hymns. These are important. When you think an article requires a bleach it in a strong solution of right attitudes. And now shake them out in the breezes of recreation and creative handwork. There you are!

Mrs. Empey, the retiring President, gave a short presidential message urging the members to assess themselves and their organizations, measuring their short-comings as well as their achievements. She urged the membership to attract every woman to the work of missions in order that the Society might do its share in the "Five Year Program of Advance" and also to pray for volunteers ever keeping in mind the motto of the organization "Not by might nor by power, but by My Spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts. Whatsoever He saith unto you, do it."

Guest Speakers Introduced

Mrs. Fred Montgomery introduced the guest speakers of the day: Miss Sybil Courtice who served as a missionary in Japan for 40 years. During that time she was secretary-treasurer of the Japan Mission for many years and carried on an extensive evangelistic program. She was one of the most influential and best loved missionaries. When war broke out in Japan she was interned for nearly a year but was finally allowed to return home by way of the Griphohm. At the end of the war in Japan Miss Courtice was one of the first missionaries to return where she served until very recently when she came to Canada to retire from active service.

Miss Helen Day who spoke during the morning session came to the W.M.S. from the Missionary Society from the staff of the National Council of the Y.W.C.A. For several years she was treasurer of the literature department and for the last three and a half years she has been the editor of the Woman's Missionary Monthly. Miss Day's subject was "The W.M.S. Mainspring."

By way of illustration and comparison she established the fact that the W.M.S. mainspring was the membership of its organization and that possibly the most important organization was the Auxiliary because it was composed of adults who should be the main cause of action. Miss Day stressed the fact that the adult organizations were responsible for the organizing and care of all the other missionary groups in the church. The aim of the Dominion Board in the "Five Year Advance" program is to have an Auxiliary or an affiliated society in every preaching place of the United Church and to double W.M.S. membership.

W.M.S. Work Increasing

Miss Day pointed out that the work of the Woman's Missionary Society is now steadily climbing and that if the "Five Year Advance" was to attain its objective every member should ask herself "Have I won a member?" "Do I like the program and activities and social life of the W.M.S.? Then I must urge other women to share it with me." She urgently recommended the use of the pamphlet on "Plans to Advance" and the formation of a membership committee, also the study of the work of our missionaries within W.M.S. conferences and the work of the missionaries who had gone from these conferences to other fields. This proved to be a very stimulating and helpful address for the societies. The rise and decline of the society over a period of 25 years was outlined. The speaker urged delegates to work for 25 per cent increase in membership this year.

Miss Betty Robbins, accompanied by Miss B. Boughan at the organ, sang the solo "Bless This House."

Mrs. Frank Mills, treasurer of the Presbyterial, then presented the financial statement of the year which was most gratifying showing the Presbyterial had exceeded its allocation by $1,050.

Report on Junior Groups

The story of the year for Junior groups was presented by Mrs. W. B. May of Belleville assisted by Mrs. C. Bertrand and Miss G. Pettingill. Mrs. May reported for Mrs. MacMullen who was absent owing to illness, and stated that the Mission Circles had enjoyed a very fine rally in the fall, that unfortunately there had been the loss of two organizations during the year.

Miss Pettingill reported for the C.G.I.T. stated that there had been advances in giving and that a very fine rally had been held at Deseronto last fall. Mrs. May speaking for the Mission Bands was pleased to announce that 26 groups would receive awards for having completed the requirements for recognition and that she had been able to assist with the organization of 13 new bands during the year making a total of 67 bands in the Presbyterial. Mrs. O. Bertrand reporting for the Baby Bands said there were 28 groups with a membership of 687 that raised $318 during the year.

A very fitting Memorial Service was conducted by Mrs. Ralph Sills, vice-president of the Belleville section, for the 37 members who had passed on to higher service during the year.

Commemoration Service

Mrs. A. V. Empey then conducted a service in commemoration of 25 years' union. The president said it was very fitting that at this 25th anniversary the Society should be meeting in the same church where the union of the women's organizations of the three churches was consummated on April 14th and 15th of 1925. Mrs. Empey displayed the Blue Book for the year 1926 and read out the names of those elected to the first executive after church union.

These were:

Honorary president, Mrs. J. Laird, Picton and Mrs. S. Russel, Belleville.

President, Mrs. M. E. Wilson, Ameliasburg.

5th vice president, Mrs. A. D. Way, Picton.

Recording secretary, Mrs. S. C. Gay, Foxboro.

Correspondig secretary, Mrs. J. G. Sills, Foxboro.

Treasurer, Mrs. Morley A. Day, Belleville.

Christian Stewardship and Finance, Mrs. Geo. Finlay, Napanee.

Associate Helpers, Mrs. F. O. Bennett, Corbyville, now of Belleville.

Strangers' Secretary, Miss A. Hume, Shilo.

Young Women's Work Secretary, Mrs. A. R. Schryver, Belleville.

Mission Band Secretary, Mrs. George J. Mann, Madoc.

Supply Secretary, Mrs. A. G. Turnbull, Belleville.

Missionary Monthly Secretary, Mrs. Harry Hill, Belleville.

Press Secretary, Mrs. Jas. Laughland, Napanee, (now President of Dominion Board).

Former Executive Members Attend

Seven of this former executive were present, namely Mrs. A. D. Way, Mrs. J. G. Sills, Mrs. Geo. Finlay, Mrs. F. O. Bennett, Mrs. Geo. Switzer, Mrs. E. L. Fraser, and Mrs. Lucey. Thirteen other members who were present on this auspicious occasion 25 years ago were also present as well as two former presidents, Mrs. W. C. Fitzgerald, Cherry Valley and Mrs. S. W. Spafford, Aikens. Prayer was then given by the president: "We thank Thee our Father for the lives and service of these women of the first executive of the W.M.S., Belleville Presbyterial and remember with love and respect those of the group who have passed on to higher service."

The presidents since Union were named: Mrs. M. E. Wilson, 1925-26; Mrs. S. C. Gay, 1926-32; Mrs. F. H. P. Anderson, 1932-33; Mrs. W. C. Haggerty, 1935-38; Mrs. F. L. Hooper, 1938-41; Mrs. S. W. Spafford, 1942-46; Mrs. A. V. Empey, 1946-50. The three presidents who were able to be present spoke for a few minutes on the highlights of their term of office. Mrs. W. C. Haggerty mentioned the tenth anniversary of Union as one of the highlights of her term of office and the splendid contribution made at this time of Mrs. J. L. Smyth. The second highlight was the Farewell Party for Miss Elsie Hunt given at her home church at Bayside before her departure to Cold Lake, Alberta.

Highlights of Success

Mrs. S. W. Spafford then stated that the success of her term of office could be measured by the co-operation of the groups, she mentioned that the war years were years of trial with the shortage of gasoline, rationing of tires, food problems and the tension in many homes because of the absence of many people who were serving their King and Country. It was during this period that the exhilarating experience of climbing began; climbing financially and ever in attendance and interest.

Mrs. Empey felt that one of the highlights of her term of office had been the Cavalcade held in Bridge Street Church when many former missionaries were present. She welcomed overseas missionaries, Miss S. Courtice, Miss Dann of Conley's Bay, united in marriage Mae Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Sarles, and Clayton Alexander Wallace, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Wallace, of Campbellford, Ontario.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white slipper satin with fitted bodice, long pointed sleeves and full skirt. A beaded tiara held her fingertip veil of embroidered net. She carried a Colonial bouquet of red roses.

Miss Dorothy Moran, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing a gown of sweet pea organdy with matching headdress. She carried a nosegay of roses and mallne.

Amid showers of confetti and good wishes, the happy couple left for a motor trip through Western Ontario.

DICKSON—LEWIS

A wedding of interest was solemnized in St. Giles' Presbyterian Church, Ottawa, on Friday evening, March 31, when Maureen Murray Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L.-H. Lewis, of Ottawa, formerly of Belleville, was united in marriage to John Hayes Dickson, son of Mr. Allen Dickson, Saint John, N.B. The Very Rev. Logan-Vancta officiated.

Mrs. Angus Orr provided the wedding music.

The Bride wore an Olive-designed gown of pale blue lace, of ballet length featuring a dipping hemline, high neckline and long pointed sleeves. Over her hair she wore a Spanish mantilla of the same lace forming a coronet trimmed with crystal beads. Pale blue satin slippers completed her costume. She carried white calla lilies and white hyacinths.

Mrs. Donald Lewis, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor, while Mr. Douglas Hanson, attended the bridegroom.

For travelling, the bride chose a dark brown taffeta suit with chartreuse accessories, with model hat of matching leaves outlined with seed pearls.

Following the honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Dickson will reside at 232 Cooper Street, Ottawa.

The bride's father was a former alderman of this city. The bride attended Albert College during their residence here.

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

The Oregon crab who recently walked 90 miles wasn't a vagrant. He was a healthy bold specimen who helped the Oregon State Fish Commission in its study of crab populations and their movements.

This crab was one of the thousands who had been marked with small celluloid tags by biologists interested in learning how crabs travel between bays and oceans and along the coastline.

Most of the canned crab meat sold in retail stores is produced by the migrating crabs of the Pacific northwest.

A small can of crabmeat may seem expensive but it is all edible meat except for a few membranes which are easily removed. In many fish stores you can buy freshly boiled crab meat which saves you the bother of boiling and cleaning fresh crabs.

For the macaroni casserole recipe below canned crab meat is ideal. Generally a macaroni casserole is made with a thin white sauce. In this recipe eggs and milk are used instead of the sauce. This combination gives body to the dish without making it excessively starchy.

When boiling macaroni for a casserole, keep it on the fire only until it is barely done so that until firm.

It will not become mushy during the subsequent baking.

Baked Macaroni with Crab Meat
Serves 6.

Cut enough celery in 1-2 inch squares to make 1 cup. Place in 2 cups of boiling water and simmer until tender. Drain.

Place 1-2 pound elbow macaroni in 3 quarts of boiling water, to which 1 tablespoon salt has been added. Boil 8-10 minutes, stirring frequently until tender. Drain. Wash in cold water.

Combine macaroni and celery in a greased baking dish. Empty the contents of a 13-ounce can of crab meat, or 2 small cans of crab meat. Break crab meat into small pieces, removing any membrane. Add crab meat to macaroni. Mix well.

Beat 2 eggs slightly and combine with 2 cups milk, 1 teaspoon salt and 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Pour over macaroni.

Combine 1-2 cup bread crumbs with 1-4 cup butter or margarine. Sprinkle over macaroni. Sprinkle 2 tablespoons grated cheese over bread crumbs. Sprinkle lightly with paprika.

Set baking pan in a pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees for 1 hour or until it is barely done so that until firm.

Ham for Easter

Easter, the early spring festival of returning life always calls for some special recognition by the homemaker.

Just as turkey is traditional for the Thanksgiving dinner in this country, so ham is becoming the accepted choice of meat around which the Easter dinner is planned.

Whole ham, baked and decorated, is a picture of elegance but unfortunately the average family will find it an expensive luxury. They need not, however, forego the enjoyment of ham for the special dinner for there are other cuts which will answer their purpose. A "picnic" ham, a cottage roll, a half ham or even a slice may be proudly served and enjoyed. A ten to twelve pound ham yields 20 to 24 servings. A four to five pound "picnic ham" serves eight to ten persons. The 'picnic ham" is first cousin to the genuine ham for it comes from the forequarter of the animal but is cured and prepared similarly to the ham. It weighs several pounds less and because of its size is ideal for the small family. With a good glaze and perky garnish the 'picnic" is every bit as festive as genuine ham for the company meal. Cottage roll, which is the boned, rolled and cured shoulder, is sometimes a good buy. It slices to good advantage as it has no bones to interfere with carving.

Courtesy Helena Rubinstein

Cooking Suggestions

Here are some suggestions for cooking and serving the various types of ham. The recipes have been tested in Canada's Kitchen by the home economists of the Consumer Section, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

The time allowed for precooking depends on the type of ham purchased. Many processors are now partially cooking or completely cooking some of their meats. If the ham is uncooked it should be simmered in water to cover until tender, allowing 25 to 30 minutes per pound. If it is pre-cooked it is best to read the directions on the wrapper and follow them carefully.!

When ham has been simmered or otherwise cooked until tender it may be glazed to improve appearance and add to the flavor. The skin should be removed and the fat surface scored in squares or diamonds then covered with the glaze. A whole clove stuck in each diamond is a nice touch, the ham is then baked at 400 degrees F., for 15 minutes or until nicely browned.

Glazes for Ham

Maple syrup, honey, corn sprup or fruit juice. Pour over ham and baste several times during baking.

A mixture of 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 1-2 tablespoons vinegar, 2 tablespoons sugar and 1 cup water or stock. Pour over ham and baste several times during the browning period.

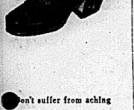
A mixture of 1-2 cup brown or white sugar and 2 tablespoons flour rubbed into fat surface.

Honey spread over fat surfaces, then sprinkled with cinnamon.

A mixture of 1-2 cup white sugar and the grated rind of an orange, spread over fat surface.

Baked Ham Slice

1 slice uncooked, smoked ham, 1 inch thick (about 1 1-2 lbs.
2 teaspoons dry mustard
1-4 cup brown sugar
2 teaspoons vinegar
10 whole cloves
1 cup milk or fruit juice.



Trim the rind off ham and place in shallow baking dish. Mix mustard, sugar and vinegar together and spread over ham; stick with cloves. Pour milk or fruit juice around meat. Bake, uncovered, in a moderately slow oven 325 degrees F., until tender—about 1 hour. Yield: six servings.

Films Feature Life in Mexico

Victoria Ave. Baptist Church was filled almost to capacity Tuesday evening for the special entertainment sponsored by the Young Adult Fellowship group.

Possibly highlighting the evening's entertainment was the showing of color movie films taken by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Blackburn on their recent trip through Mexico. The film was shown by Mr. Blackburn while Mrs. Blackburn gave an interesting commentary regarding the customs and mode of living of Mexicans.

A special shot in the film showed the Duke of Windsor laying a wreath at a cenotaph during a Mexican function.

Eric Naylor acted as chairman and led in the devotional program which included prayer by Howard Hall and Scripture reading by Mrs. Violet Demorest. A song service opened the night entertainment while Miss Marjorie Hales and Miss Doreen Groves sang a duet.

Well known local cornetist Mr. Jack Green again demonstrated his ability with the cornet with a solo while Mr. Green and Dan Branscombe played a duet.

An Easter film "The Way of Peace" was of special interest, showing the life of Christ and concluding with how the atom bomb could destroy the world if atomic power was not properly used. Commentary by Thomas Stovell indicated how peace could be successful.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Futile to worry about a "slight"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm very much perplexed, and I need your help. My sister married into a family who are quite well-off, but who did not entirely approve of the marriage. However, the two families have been brought closer together in our mutual sorrow over the death of their mother and of our mother, and by two severe illnesses in their family, when we tried to do everything we could to be of help. In their family at home are one brother and two unmarried sisters. A week ago one of the sisters gave a tea at the home at which her engagement was announced.

I was not invited to this tea, and I was so hurt that I just about made myself sick as I do not think it was the right thing for her not to invite me. I was told that "Anne was having only her close friends to this." but still I understand that she had over fifty people the next day for the announcement-tea was written up in the newspaper. All my friends read this and think it is awful that I was not invited.

Do you think that I should forget about the whole thing, or would it be proper for me to send this girl a card of congratulations? Even though I think she did the wrong thing I want to do what is right.

Dorothy M.

My sincere salutations to you for writing that fine last sentence . . . wonderful philosophy, wise, makes perfect sense. So hold your head high. . . don't pay any attention to what your friends say, don't even discuss this with them, and eventually hold on to that best of all advice in such a situation, "The least said, the soonest mended." You know, really you do, to "make yourself sick" about what you think is a social slight is ridiculous, gets you nowhere except on the negative side of life and living and thinking. It's just possible . . . why not? . . . that you were told the truth, that only the engaged girl's "close friends were invited". After all, she had a perfect right to invite fifty of her young friends and not to invite any of her relatives by marriage. Better to think of it this way, which may be true, than to take time and valuable energy to be hurt, offended. It's the people who show an abidingly high-hearted and understanding point of view, people who don't carry chips on their shoulders, who are the good companions we all want to know and cherish as friends.

If you wish . . . and I would, if I were you . . . send the engaged girl a little note of good wishes (not a card, please, for this special message calls for a note, and a card, . . . and not "congratulations", please, for we mustn't use the word "congratulations" or "congratulate" to engaged girl or bride, only to an engaged man or groom). In other words, don't "forget about the whole thing". Just forget about the part that is making you unhappy, perhaps with no justification whatever.

When to serve the water at table

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Am I right in thinking that it is not considered really correct to have the water poured into the glasses at table until directly after the guests are seated at the dining-room table? I am quite sure that this was true when I was in my twenties (many years ago!), and although our household isn't as meticulously run as ours formerly was, I have always abided by this detail of service. But now I so often notice that the water has been poured into the glasses before the guests have been seated.

"Old-Timer"

True it is that formerly . . . and formerly . . . the water was not poured until the guests were seated at the dining-room table. But one reason for this, undoubtedly, was the fact that yesterday's houses had more, and more formal, service. But today, when there is usually no service, or at best limited service, it is obviously far more convenient and practical to have the water poured before the guests come into the dining-room. Therefore this is today's generally accepted practice.

BEAUTY

A double chin is no beauty handicap

To those who admire womanly loveliness, nothing about the face is much more regrettable than defects of the chin. The jaws are the bony framework of the mouth. When the lower line is symmetrically curved, terminating in an oval chin, it contributes greatly to the beauty of the countenance.

Unpleasant habits of thrusting out the chin or of drawing it in, and even fine lines in the soft tissue at its base, has much to do with the development of that extra chin of which many women of middle-age complain bitterly. Of course, the poor dear who partakes too freely of the good things of the table is particularly susceptible to the development of a wattle.

First there appears a slight bulge with a crease above it. That is when one must take action. Your chin is about to take itself a mate. It is easier to thwart this project than it is to divorce the two later on, although clever facial operators are doing this work all the time, much to the delight and happiness of the cash customers who appeal to them for help.

Your chin is about to take itself a mate.

The beauty patient tilts back her head. The operator does up-and-down movements with fingertened fingers over the throat. With the heels of her hands she presses from chin to ear lobes. (That's a-tine motion for you to use when creaming your face at night.) With the customer's head on the level, the operator picks up the flesh below the chin, rolls it between thumb and fingers. This squeezing treatment tends to crush and dissolve the fat cells that form the disfiguring pouch. You can do that too, very easily.

In order to ward off the sagginess that may follow the dissolution of adipose tissue, there is brisk friction with an ice cube, after which chilly treatment an astringent is applied, allowed to dry on.

One so afflicted must not forget that posture is a help in keeping the throat and chin in normal condition. Let the chin droop and the underlying flesh will puff out, tissue will lack firmness, muscles will lose tone. Chin up, head on the level, chest full, tummy in and you are a Woman Alive. Any other attitude sends the muscles out of their natural positions, and they have no opportunity to perform as nature intended.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

His girl friend has problems — he wants to help

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been going with a girl for the past four and a half months. There is nothing wrong with her except that she is terribly shy and afraid of people. She is afraid to talk to anyone or express her opinion for fear of being hurt. She takes what people say or do in the wrong way, and seems to think they are against her.

She knows she has this trouble, and has been going to a psychiatrist for the past five months. However, I have not noticed much if any, improvement so far.

She is not living with her parents. Her mother died several years ago and she says her difficulties were caused by her stepmother's strictness.

This girl says she doesn't want to get too interested in me because she is afraid she . . . make a good wife and she wants to become more mature before she gets married.

What do you think I can do to help her?

C. S.

Dear C. S.:

This girl is very fortunate indeed to have for a friend a young man who is as understanding and eager to help her as you are.

No doubt s her difficulties do stem from unfortunate family situations, and if they are deeply ingrained in her, as seems very likely, it would certainly take longer than five months for her to gain the insight that would enable her to understand and cope with them adequately. I think she is very right and wise in wanting to become mature before getting married.

The most helpful thing you can do for her is to keep on being a loyal friend and understanding friend, and to let her know that you are fond of her and willing to wait until her problems are on their way to getting solved.

She's afraid to end an affair

Dear Miss Fairfax:

When I had been going with a boy of 20 for a few months he asked me to have an affair with him. I am 16. At first I refused, but after much persuasion, and promises on his part not to tell anyone, I consented.

Now I realize that I have done wrong, and I am truly sorry, but the trouble is, he says that unless I continue to be intimate with him he will tell my parents what I have done. I don't want to keep on, but I am afraid not to.

C.

Dear C.:

The longer you continue a relationship of this kind, the deeper you are going to get into trouble. Tell this young man you have definitely made up your mind you want nothing more to do with him, and stick with it. Don't weaken. That would be fatal.

I don't think you need worry that he would tell your parents any stories about you at all. Any boy spiteful enough to make such a threat is a weak character who would be afraid of the consequences to himself if any girl's parents were to find out that he had led her into wrongdoing.

Your part now is to make good on your realization that you made a bad mistake in letting yourself be so persuaded. Be the kind of girl you want your parents to think you are, and I'm sure you won't let yourself get into any further trouble.

SECOND READING 3-FRONT ATTACK

Mr. Millard, Canadian Director of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) said he was referring to a "gentleman's agreement" among Northern Ontario gold mine operators not to grant the check-off system of union dues payments.

He said the government could have solved the situation by including in the new bill "some modicum of union security" such as a voluntary, revocable check-off.

Premier Frost said the underlying principle of the bill is to give Labor the right to bargain collectively, appoint bargaining agents and have access to means of conciliating differences. In addition to this there was a body of general legislation, governing hours of work, minimum wages and vacations, much of it the outgrowth of collective bargaining. The government policy was not to interfere in matters that properly were subjects of collective bargaining.

Premier Frost also said the government thought it advisable not to legislate even a minimum of union security because the needs of particular industries and sections varied throughout the province. The bill provides that in a certification vote, the bargaining agent will be chosen by a majority of those eligible to vote, rather than a majority of those actually voting. There are exceptions for employees unable to take part in the vote because of illness, or other reasons.

"Dice Loaded" Claim

C.C.F. leader E. B. Jolliffe (York South) said the principle of a majority of all eligible to vote "loaded the dice" in favor of unions already certified as bargaining agents, hindering employees from changing their affiliation. He also attacked what he called the "inflexible" conciliation machinery which required months to produce results.

Mr. Jolliffe said the question of union security was fundamental to collective bargaining and should be the subject of legislation. Most of the distinguished jurists who had acted as arbitrators had recommended some form of union security.

Liberal leader Farquhar Oliver (Grey South) said he approved some sections of the bill, but strongly opposed others. He would reserve comment until committee stage when the bill is considered clause by clause.

Mr. Daley remarked that passage of the bill had been delayed to give interested groups a chance to express their views. Neither organized labor nor the manufacturers' association had entirely approved the measure. "If either one was absolutely satisfied, there would be something wrong with the bill," he added.

NINE OIL STRIKES

The motions were introduced as the chamber opened the traditional budget debate. Speakers included Jean Lesage (Montmagny-L'Islet), Julian Ferguson (PC-Simcoe North), Raymond Bruno (L-Prescott), Jules Gauthier (L-Lapointe), W. J. Major (L-Glengarry), J. O. Gour (L-Russell) and William Bryce (CCF-Selkirk).

At the House opening, Trade Minister Howe tabled a government order transferring the duties of the deputy minister of reconstruction and supply to the deputy minister of resources and development. The Reconstruction Department is being dissolved.

Robert McCubbin, Parliamentary assistant to Agriculture Minister Gardiner, said the agricultural prices support act will apply to the apples of British Columbia as well as those of Nova Scotia.

Launching the budget debate, Mr. Macdonnell repeated a Progressive Conservative suggestion for the appointment of a national advisory to co-operate with the provinces in the conservation and development of natural resources. There were resources across the country awaiting development.

Attacks Budget

He attacked the budget as "purely negative" in character and urged the government to work actively for the abolition of currency restrictions to promote world trade and quiet the uneasiness in the public minds about future export sales.

The government, too, should provide for a more detailed scrutiny by parliament of federal expenditures. There was no real sign of an attempt to economize on government expenditure.

Mr. Coldwell said his main criticism was that "the government seems prepared to accept whatever levels of production, employment and economic activity the uncontrolled, undirected, unplanned operation of the private enterprise system may bring."

The government should present a plan "for the maximum employment of our manpower, our industries, our resources and for the maximum production of goods."

Want National Bodies

He proposed that the government appoint two national bodies —a national planning commission and a national investment board —to make and help carry out the plans necessary to assure full employment, full production and high incomes. Both should be responsible to parliament through the government.

Mr. Low said the national survey commission which he suggested should investigate the country's real and potential productive capacity and the relationship between national income and gross national production. It should be made up of at least 40 technicians, engineers, economists and business men who would report on "the true state of affairs within our country."

Has Faith in Canada

He had faith in Canada's ability to produce enough of almost everything necessary for abundant living for every Canadian.

But the government must accept as one of its major responsibilities the removal of "those barriers and artificial restrictions which prevent individuals from enjoying a larger share of the production of their own hands". Financial restriction constituted one of those barriers.

Mr. Ferguson said the budget gave no direction for the country.

The budget speech traditionally gave direction to industry as to what course should be followed in the ensuing year. This budget had been awalted but it gave no signal for the country's development and no tax relief for the consumer.

Something Wrong

Mr. Ferguson said there was something radically wrong when Canadians had to pay $160 for a washing machine costing $60 in the United States, when it cost one third more for a motor car produced in Canada by an American firm.

He wondered how much longer Canadians would have to take less for the same work that Americans were doing. Some of the best of Canadians were flowing across the border to better paying jobs.

It was time the Cabinet gave up golf games, five o'clock teas and travels around the world and got down to serious problems facing Canada. It was time the government went to work on some direction in the development of resources.

Such development would require taxation and would do away with the type of budget presented last week by Mr. Abbott.

Reduce Cost of Feed Grain

Mr. Major said steps should be taken immediately to reduce the cost of feed grains or to increase the price support given to agriculture products.

The cost of feed grains in his constituency had increased from $3.45 at Jan. 1 to $3.75 a 100 pounds. In the case of oats the increase was from $2.75 to $3.70 a 100 pounds.

He was sure there was no reason for the increase and that prices should be restored immediately to a reasonable level.

While the costs of feeds was increasing, the prices received by farmers for cheese, bacon and eggs were decreasing.

If this trend continued farmers would not be able to buy feed and production would drop. Prices to consumers would increase.

He suggested feed prices should be decreased or prices support levels should be boosted.

Would Help Farmers

Mr. Bruneau said he would support any measure that would help the farming class.

Mr. Bruneau reiterated he would like to see the public works department estimates contain something to help curb annual flood of the South Nation River in his constituency.

He hoped the department would carry out irrigation or other projects to stop the floods.

He called for government assistance to disabled persons unable to earn their living.

Mr. Gour said he agreed that feed costs for Eastern farmers would have to be reduced. Otherwise, the farmers would have to go out of the livestock business.

This would mean that Western producers would sell less feed grain. For the consumer, there would be less meat, cheese and other products.

There should be no conflict or misunderstanding between farmers of eastern and western Canada.

No one should try to set the farmers of the east against the west or race against race.

SHEEP POPULATION

Australia had 108,730,000 sheep at March 31, 1949, an increase of more than 6,000,000 over the preceding year.

William Mattick Acclaimed Bulb King of Canada

Cordova Bay, B. C., April 5—(CP) — A green thumb, he fought along from Saskatchewan's wheat fields 27 years ago has made William (Bill) Mattick the bulb king of Canada.

His annual harvest of 4,500,000 to 5,000,000 bulbs tops Vancouver Island and lower Fraser Valley sales across Canada, worth $300,000 annually.

Thanks to British Columbia's climate, outdoor-grown bulbs flourish for greenhouse growth elsewhere in Canada. And South Vancouver Island, where Mr. Mattick's 340-acre farm is located, has a growing season a full 10 days earlier than the mainland.

What the former wheat farmer from Qu'Appelle, Sask., says is a $60,000-a-year business stems from the low, fertile soil eight miles from Victoria on the lip of the Pacific Ocean.

Crops Three Weeks Late

Already some of the 750,000 dozen daffodil, iris, hyacinth, and tulip blooms he also grows are being sold in retail stores from Victoria to Eastern Ontario. He grows tons of cauliflower, cabbage and squash and cultivates some medicinal herbs as well.

Because of the harshest winter he's ever experienced here, Mr. Mattick this year faces an early Easter with flower crops three weeks late.

It means, he fears, that he won't be able to meet demand when it's biggest.

This year, while demand from chain distributing agencies on the prairies and in Ontario is as big as ever, eastern orders will go spring in all likelihood.

Mr. Mattick has worked an original 6½-acre plot into his present holding. It employs more than 10 men steadily and as many as 45 at peak seasons.

Fishing Trip Made A. Dass A Publisher

Gravenhurst, April 5—(CP)—Alfred Dass is celebrating his 50th anniversary in the printing and weekly newspaper field, said Tuesday that a fishing trip made him a publisher.

On his way west in 1920, he stopped off here for a day's fishing with his brother. He didn't catch any fish, but by nightfall he was the new owner of the Gravenhurst Banner.

He still is editor and publisher of that Muskoka district weekly and is a charter member of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers' Association.

He started work as a printer's devil, a printing-office helper and reporter boy, with the Fergus News-Record at $1.50 a week. His first tasks were polishing glasses for coal-oil lamps and making lye to wash composing-room forms. He graduated as a full-fledged printer at $14 a week with the old Guelph Herald.

Expect Request Will Be Filled

Ottawa, April 5—(CP)—Fisheries department officials said Tuesday that an Ontario government request that the trout season in the province open April 29 instead of May 1 is expected to be filled shortly.

A spokesman described the procedure as a "formality". While control of fisheries is vested in the Dominion under the British North America Act, in practice, Ontario sets her own dates.

Ontario fisheries department officials said the season would be opened April 29 instead of May 1 to provide an extra weekend of fishing.

FATTENED ON LORDS

The procedure of the Canadian Senate is modelled upon that of the British House of Lords.

Teachers Advised To Seek New Employment

Gananoque, April 5—(CP) — Claiming that the new salary schedule discriminates against senior teachers and offers a lower maximum than that approved by the federation, the Ontario secondary school teachers federation has advised 31 Gananoque school teachers who refused the new schedule to seek employment elsewhere.

I. M. Robb, secretary of the federation, in a letter to the Gananoque school board Tuesday said any further applicants for teaching jobs would be advised the schedule is unsatisfactory. It offers an annual increment of $200 until a salary of $2,700 has been reached, and then an annual increment of $100 to the maximum.

Increasing Interest in Christianity

Hambley and Miss Clazie, who had all served in Japan. A message was read from Miss Elsie Hunt now stationed in Portage la Prairie by Mrs. J. G. Sills, of Foxboro, who was the first corresponding secretary of the society.

An interesting contribution in the afternoon was made by Mrs. L. Elliott, who interviewed departmental secretaries in the form of a radio broadcast. Mrs. Sproule, secretary of Missionary Monthly and a world traveller, said that the objective for 1950 was to have the World Friendly magazine in every church home where there was a child.

In an interview with the secretary of Literature, Mrs. Fred Bell, the broadcast stated that there was an advance in reading in the past year, 1,471 books had been read and a large number of copies of the study book "Growing With the Years" had been sold. Many auxiliaries took part in the reading course and Ivanhoe led with an average of over eight books per member. The Community Friendship secretary, Mrs. S. Spafford, who reported for Mrs. Wilson, told the most important job for 1950 was to be found in her department.

Suggests More Visits

She asked all those listening in to get better acquainted with the literature for community purposes and to co-operate with the Presbyterial secretary, the ministers and the women's organizations of the churches. The reports show that the women of the society should be doing a great deal more visiting throughout the community in which they live. Mrs. Geo. Finlay reported for Mrs. Jeffs on Christian Citizenship and Temperance and urged all members to avail themselves of the use of the "Purpose Course" prepared by the Dominion Board.

The Press secretary, Mrs. F. R. Harback, stated that the press was one of the most powerful forms of propaganda in the world today and that therefore the W.M.S. members should avail themselves by the use of it. A society which used the press created better programs, enlisted more members, established a pride in their achievements and made communities of the group before the community. Mrs. Elliott also said "The aims of our organization are to have an affiliated society in every preaching place of the United Church by 1955; to have a 12½ per cent increase in membership in 1950, to have every society procure two more subscriptions to the Missionary Monthly this year, to have the World Friendly magazine in every home where there is a child.

Warmly Welcomed

"The Open Door in Japan", was the theme of the afternoon address by Miss E. A. Courtice. She stated: "I have come to you from Japan to tell you that your world friendship in Christ can do. I had the privilege of being interned with 125 other women, all but seven were missionaries. Finally when we were released and were being sent back to America our captors said "We will be glad to have you back as soon as you can come." We were interned for nine months after the war started and then were released.

"I had the good fortune to return to Japan and I shall never forget the wonderful welcome we received from a country that had been so sorely bombed by our people. Not a single word or gesture nor look of resentment was shown. This is the attitude of all people in Japan. The doors are open everywhere for Christians.

"When we were forced to return to America during the war years we were anxious because we felt our work in Japan would receive a serious set back but when we returned we found God had been working in a wonderful way. Our Christians had never ceased working and through gifts received from the church at home were already starting to rebuild again.

"Evidences of the open door in Japan are that young people are looking for direction and leadership, they are frustrated because of the difficult experience they passed through in the war years. The children of Japan are eager to learn English; kindergartens are flourishing and there is a great demand for them everywhere. Japanese teachers have made many sacrifices in order to promote educational work in their country. Their message to the returning missionaries is "We need you to give us the inspiration of Christ, we are dismayed but not cast down.

Post-War Problem

"In order to understand the problems of Japan we must remember that the devastation and destruction of war cannot be told in words. One hundred and nineteen city were destroyed and 1,550,000 soldiers were killed. There are 600,000 war widows to be wonderful aid. Over one million numbers of unclaimed children. These all present a great challenge for today and a greater problem for tomorrow for their authorities".

It is unfortunate that many of our people today, members of a Christian society are remembering war instead of spreading the gospel of peace. Can we not make up our minds to give and give and give until peace shall come to this world, not war? The work of Christian Missions started in Japan 90 years ago and nothing has ever been able to destroy its influence".

In an interview with the Empress of Japan Miss Courtice stated that she showed keen interest in the work of the Canadian missionaries and she was anxious to discover what the women of Canada were doing. In reply to the question "What is the greatest need?" the Empress said "What Christ can do for me, for my family and my nation." The open doors of Japan are being flung wide by a people anxious to help and co-operate in making their country Christian. She is grandson of the Empress is in one of our Christian kindergartens.

The speaker illustrated these points with many interesting stories. "The women who have been trained in our schools," she said, "and who are graduating to day are all talking places of leadership. They need our best. Are we prepared to give it to them? They say to our missionaries, "You come to us in our need and humiliation, you have shown us what real friendship is, we need more help than ever." The forces of Communism and other evils are battering the heart and life out of Japan. More Canadian missionaries are needed and this society must give money to send them. The United Church of Canada, Pray that we may be able to show ourselves good neighbors in Christ."

The soloist in the afternoon was Mrs. Whiteman new who sang, "He Smiled on Me."

Resolutions Presented

Mrs. S. W. Spafford presented the following resolutions:

(1) Resolved that we are not in favor of organized Sunday sports in Canada; we stand firmly behind the Lord's Day Alliance in this regard.

(2) Resolved that we would favor curtailing any further outlets for the sale of liquor; that the present law be strictly enforced, especially in regard to sales to minors.

(3) We deplore the use of our papers and magazines for liquor advertisements; and are resolved that we, as a W.M.S., take a definite stand against this practice.

(4) Concerning the department of Temperance and Christian Citizenship — Where as too little emphasis is placed on this department or is confined to one aspect only — Resolved that we make an effort to further the study of Christian Citizenship among our women and further that we take an active interest in all community projects affecting the general welfare of Canadians.

It was moved and seconded that these resolutions be sustained.

Mrs. R. N. Broad brought in the report of the nominating Committee and the following officers were elected: Past President, Mrs. Albert V. T. Empey, Eldorado, R. R. 1; President, Mrs. C. D. Mrs. F. W. K. Harris, the Conference Branch President, installed the officers for the ensuing year.

Awards Presented

Mrs. W. B. May, Secretary of Mission Bands, presented the awards of the year. Two Bands received special awards for having carried out satisfactory programs for recognition for eleven years. Seven Bands received special awards for six years of satisfactory work and seven Bands received their first award for one year's work.

Mrs. Bruce Finlay gave a word expression of thanks to the retiring officers and the president, Mrs. Albert V. Empey, stated that the women of Picton had invited the Presbyterial to meet with them in 1951.

The afternoon session closed with a very impressive Communion Service presided over by Rev. N. Hutton of Trinity United Church.

During the supper hour greetings were brought from the following people: His Worship Mayor Lavine, from Presbytery by Rev. Chas. Perkins, from Grace Church by Rev. C. D. McLellan, from the W.A. by Mrs. W.G. Smith, from the Conference Branch by Mrs. F. W. K. Harris and Mrs. Clifford Smith replied to these greetings. The Rev. N. Hutton acted as chairman.

The evening session opened with a worship service conducted by the Wesley Mission Circle using as its subject "Christ's Hands." The choir contributed a beautiful anthem "The Lord Is My Shepherd".

Need More Missionaries

Once again Miss Courtice thrilled the assembly with her address on "The New Age in Japan." She stated that is is a new age and a very different age in Japan today. Immediately following the war years there was a marked change. She told many human interest stories of the advance of young Christian Japanese. Christian men are changing attitude towards marriage, marriages that are where the people concerned are allowed to make their own arrangements.

Last year 60 young people from America went to Japan as short-term English teachers. One quarter of them asked to remain at the end of the year and to be called missionaries. The Christian Japanese are craving for the fellowship of the United Church of Canada. They call out "Send us more missionaries, we need your help now, now is the time." The war presented grave problems in Japan through indiscriminate bombing. 300,000 civilians were killed and 600,000 orphans have been left.

Thirty years after the war the evangelistical workers reported they had held 1,041 meetings reaching over half a million people. There are 32 ordained women in the United Church of Japan and 59 are licenced to preach, 436 women students are preparing to be full time workers. There is a tremendous increase in the number of adult baptisms since the war. There is evidence of sacrificial giving on every hand for the Japanese people to re-establish their Church work and rebuild their mission.

Prayer Groups Established

Family worship is becoming a common custom. Prayer groups are established. They are praying for their country, for all the countries of the world to have peace, they are praying for the Imperial Family who study the Bible one and a half hours every Wednesday morning and are also praying for Christian families.

In closing Miss Courtice said "If the people of Canada could visualize for one moment what it means to make Japan Christian now and the world Christian we would not hold back one thing." She urged her audience to make a matter of action to bring in the age of peace and to pray and give all that we have for the Prince of Peace as His Kingdom does come in this our age.

Mrs. C. Empey was presented with a small token of appreciation from the members of the Executive of the Presbyterial for her unique and sincere contribution to the work of the Society for the past four years by Mrs. F. R. Harback and the gift was presented by Mrs. O. Bertrand.

Sessions closed with the National Anthem and Prayer benediction by Rev. N. Hatton.

Counterfeiting Ring Sought In United States

Toronto, April 5—(CP)— The Globe and Mail dispatch from Buffalo today says that the United States Secret Service to R.C.M.P. at Buffalo have joined forces in the hunt for a counterfeiting ring which has flooded the United States and Canada with counterfeit $10 and $20 bills, as well as bogus Irish Sweepstake tickets.

The dispatch said that both the U.S. and Canadian bogus bills, as well as the sweep tickets, are believed to have been printed in the United States. Indication that Buffalo was close to the centre of the counterfeit activities was said to have been given when Richard Gunn, a fugitive from Cincinnati, was arrested at Niagara Falls, N.Y., recently.

Gunn was said to have been in possession of $20,000 in counterfeit Canadian $10 bills, $30,000 in counterfeit U.S. $10 and $20 bills, and a large quantity of the fake sweep tickets.

Another batch of Canadian counterfeit money with a face value of $40,000 was found in possession of Frank Ciolla of Guelph, now serving a four-year term in Kingston penitentiary.

The Globe and Mail dispatch said that a secret service agent in New York reported two separate rings of counterfeiters were operating.

(By the Canadian Press)

Something new in Canada, pensions for cabinet ministers, is proposed in Nova Scotia. Premier Macdonald introduced in the legislature at Halifax Tuesday a bill to give pensions to ministers after 10 years service in the Cabinet.

The Nova Scotia ministerial pension would parallel the system for civil servants' pensions, although the ministers would contribute eight per cent of their salary, a larger amount than the civil servants. Also, while civil servants may be refunded the amount they have paid when they leave the service, ministers could not collect a refund if they leave the Cabinet within three years.

The amount of the pension depends on the length of service in the Cabinet. Maximum is 70 per cent of salary for 14 years in the Cabinet. Premier Macdonald said he introduced the bill "with some embarrassment" but because it "involves expenditure, it could only be introduced by the government and not by a private member. Nova Scotia Cabinet ministers now receive $8,000 a year, and the premier gets $9,000.

Applause from all sides of the house greeted the premier when he finished his explanation of the bill.

In Quebec the threatened deadlock between the upper and lower chambers over the Montreal transportation bill was ended when the lower house—the legislative assembly — accepted under protest amendments by the legislative council.

The upper house has a Liberal majority, while the lower chamber has a majority of Union Nationale government supporters.

Set Up Commission

The legislation sets up a five-man commission empowered to take over privately-owned Montreal Tramways Company and run it under municipal ownership.

The Ontario legislature gave second reading by a vote of 61 to 19 to the government's new labor regulations. Labor Minister Daley said he would introduce amendments to include municipal employees under the bill.

At Winnipeg a record budget for Manitoba was brought down by Premier D. L. Campbell, acting provincial treasurer. It estimates expenditures at $39,153,948 compared with $36,455,567 in the year just ended, with revenues at $39,440,000 against $39,394,676. The expenditures estimate includes $29,474,000 on capital account, chiefly for hydro power and telephone service. There is no change in provincial taxation.

The Saskatchewan legislature gave second reading to a bill authorizing the province to complete a housing agreement with the federal government. Welfare Minister Sturdy told the Regina house that the government had applied for a federal loan to finance its share, but had been told the federal government has no authority to make such a loan.

Ships Involved In Accidents In Heavy Fog

New York, April 5 — (AP) — One ship ran aground and another vessel was rammed and badly damaged in the pre-dawn fog outside New York harbor early today. No one was reported hurt.

A 6,214-ton freighter, the Hurricane, went aground on a sand bar near Fire Island, a resort spot in the Atlantic off the southern shore of Long Island.

The ship was described as "riding high" out of the water. A Coast Guard cutter was standing by, while a tug was ordered to the scene to try to dislodge the stranded freighter.

In the other mishap, a 91-foot schooner, the Edith Boudreau, was rammed in a dense fog about 15 miles southeast of the harbor entrance by an unidentified vessel.

The schooner, a gaping hole punched in its bow, limped into New York harbor under its own power, while the crew worked to prevent it from sinking on more water.

A Coast Guard patrol boat, sent to the aid of the stricken vessel, escorted it into the harbor.

First reports after the accident were that the schooner was sinking and being abandoned. However, Capt. Dave Reborn, the skipper, and his eight - man crew stayed aboard.

Frost is Ready To Discuss All Tax Fields

Toronto, April 5. (CP)—Premier Frost said Tuesday he is prepared to discuss with Dominion government the entire question of Dominion-Provincial tax fields and social security in connection with Ontario's plan to impose a five-per-cent income tax.

The legislature gave second reading to four bills arising from Mr. Frost's budget address. They provide for imposition of a personal income tax amounting to five per cent of the income tax imposed in Ontario by the Dominion government, authorize the government to enter an agreement with the Dominion government whereby the Dominion will collect the tax for Ontario, impose a nine-per-cent tax on logging operations formerly imposed by the Dominion government.

Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver said he would be more inclines to support the income tax bill if the government could give the assurance that the measure would be part of an overall agreement on the fields including income tax corporation tax and succession duties.

Mr. Frost said: "I would hope we would be able to come to a broad agreement on the fields. It is undesirable that we should pull in opposition directions."

J. G. Brown (Lib.—Waterloo North) Liberal financial critic, congratulated Mr. Frost on "his optimism in attempting to get this agreement signed."

He was "very doubtful" that an agreement could be signed without forming part of an over-all agreement involving all tax fields.

No 'Non-Virgin Club' in Borger Says Grand Jury

Borger, Tex., April 4 (AP) —There is no such thing as a "non-virgin" club among teenagers in Borger, a Grand Jury reported Monday.

The Grand Jury report came after an investigation last week after newspaper articles said there was evidence such a club existed and that it was believed to require its members to have sexual intercourse at least once a week.

The Grand Jury report described this as "wholly without basis in fact, and completely unwarranted upon the basis of the suspicious and rumors it repeats."

In publishing reports of the club the Border News - Herald said its information did not consist of proved facts. But the paper said the alleged existence of such a club became a matter of common gossip in Borger.

Defence Minister Reports to House On Hague Parley

Ottawa, April 4 (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton, back from The Hague, said Monday Canada expects her direct defence collaboration among the 12 Atlantic Pact nations will come up for consideration at the meeting of their foreign ministers next month.

Welcomed back to the Commons about a day and a half after conclusion of the latest meeting of the treaty's defence committee, he told the House:

1. Canada's offer to train 250 officers from member countries at a time was "received very enthusiastically," will start this summer and be in full stride by Fall and may lead to a "much larger" system of exchanges among the various members.

2. Canada has made no other specific extra commitments beyond the training plan other than those written into the treaty itself.

3. Canada is "completely satisfied" with existing arrangements for exchange of military information with the United States and United Kingdom.

Mr. Claxton was asked if any steps have been taken under Article Two of the treaty "to eliminate conflict in their (members) international economic policies and to encourage economic collaboration among them?"

The clause was inserted largely at Canada's insistence.

Mr. Claxton said "our hope and expectation is that at the next meeting of the North Atlantic Council ,that is the council of foreign ministers, this matter shall receive consideration."

"Nothing has been done under Article Two?". Mr. Coldwell asked.

"We hope that will be a further development," Mr. Claxton replied.

Bridges' Union To Enter Appeal Against Conviction

San Francisco, April 5 (AP)—Harry Bridges' C.I.O. Longshore Union labor plans to carry the United States Supreme Court, if necessary, the fight against their leader's conviction on a charge that he lied to conceal he was a communist.

Bitterly assailing Tuesday's verdict of a Federal Court jury, reached after 31 hours deliberation, the union's officers mapped a strategy that would counter possible moves to cancel Bridges' citizenship and have him deported to Australia.

But Fr. Joseph Donohue, the special prosecutor for the government in the stormy 81-day trial, said he felt certain the higher courts would find no basis for a reversal.

Donohue expressed belief that Bridges' conviction of committing perjury at his 1945 naturalization hearing would result in automatic cancellation of his citizenship, followed by deportation action.

Bridges, 48 and two union aides —Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson—convicted with him on also conspiring to commit perjury will be sentenced Monday. Seven-year terms and $15,000 fines are possible.

Bridges' union presently is under threat of expulsion from the National C.I.O. on charges of consistently pursuing left-wing policies, against the wishes of President Philip Murray and his national officers. Murray declined comment Tuesday night at Washington on what effect, if any, the conviction would have on that.

The reaction of Bridges and his union colleagues to the conviction was cynical.

"An immigration frameup," snapped the lean, hawk-faced man who has sparked several paralyzing west coast strikes since he became an active leader in 1933.

Bridges always has been bitter against the immigration department which he blamed for the moves behind two unsuccessful efforts to have him deported as an alleged communist.

Advised to Return Boxes

Francis Murphy, Ottawa, senior produce grader, advised makers to return to the manufacturer boxes which did not come up to standard and this also was advised by W. C. Cameron. Cheese makers countered, however, with a query asking whether under such circumstances they would be assured of a continuity of supply for boxes. "Already" they said, "box manufacturers were saying they could sell veneer to better advantage for furniture use."

"Not the kind of veneer they are putting into some of the cheese boxes," was the reply of another cheese maker.

Mr. Cameron said it was unfortunate that cheese makers were the victim of circumstances in that suitable dry boxes were important. The department could demand that boxes come up to specification but continuity of supply was something which must be worked out between the cheese maker and the box manufacturer.

Only sediment free cheese will be eligible for prize money at the next British Empire Dairy Show to be held in the city it was decided unanimously by the cheese makers.

Must Be Properly Finished

The above resolution was introduced by J. L. Irwin, honorary president of the cheese show, who felt that no cheese which was not properly finished or which contained sediment should be exhibited.

Jack M. Bain, chief instructor for western and central Ontario said that makers in western Ontario had adopted a like decision for their dairy show at London. It was expected that other cheese shows should follow suit.

Speakers at the cheesemakers' annual spring conference included C. E. Lackner, director of dairying for Ontario; O. R. Irvine, associate professor at the O.A.C. Guelph, who pointed out the loss to the cheese industry through faulty and damaged cheese rinds and the importance of keeping such defects to a minimum. Careful handling of cheese was necessary to reduce this loss he said.

Reviewed Cheese Market

W. C. Cameron reviewed the world cheese market and its effect on the Canadian industry. He said the production for Empire cheddar cheese was regaining its popularity in the United Kingdom, this in an effort to save dollars. Cheese manufacturers were now in a buyers' market in which quality and price were big factors, he said.

Mr. Cameron touched on the cheese box question stating that boxes were not sufficiently strong. Box weakness was responsible for much of the box breakage, both in the export and domestic market. He said that the cost of packaging cheese was less than for other dairy products—about one half cent per lb.

Mr. Murphy said it would be better to pay a satisfactory price for good boxes than a lower price for inferior boxes and have the breakage costs reflected in higher consumer costs for cheese.

Use of Sniff Bottle

Fred T. Hart, District Inspector for Weights and Measures, emphasized the importance of proper care for factory scales. Rust and corrosion were the enemy of scales and this could be largely overcome through application of vaseline or oil during the season not in use.

Other speakers included J. M. Bain, Chief Dairy Instructor; W. M. Hales, dairy scientist, Millwaukee, Wis; and Robt. Gillen, Dairy Produce Grader, Belleville.

BIG THREE NEAR

"The fact is," McCloy said bluntly, "we can not solve the German problem without fitting it into the larger context of a United Europe."

In his speech McCloy dealt with the German population problem.

"I hope we shall be successful in our efforts to unite Germany," he said, "but even with that, in order to support that population Germany must rely on industrial output even more heavily than she did before the war."

Solid Strong Economy

"Without the solution of these basic economic problems, democratic forces may not be able to retain power and exercise influence in Germany. It is essential then to build an economy strong enough to support its larger population."

Then McCloy defined the problem which officials here said is the basic U.S. concern about the future of Germany and Western Europe.

They contend for example, that German industrial output should serve as an source of strength and higher living standards for the whole Western European community. They realize, nevertheless, that this means a much stronger Germany than now exists.

It is at this junction that the difficulties with Britain and France arise. Indications here are that the French are willing to go along in general with American plans, provided: that Germany's growing industrial strength and its resurgent political power are offset in any future European organization by the strength and power of other countries.

Britain thus far is reported unwilling to go along to the extent that the French consider necessary. The British position is that Britain is not in fact a part of the continent and that its ties with the Commonwealth as well as its internal economic problems make British membership in the European union undesirable.

RAWDON

Aged Daughter Of Rawdon Pioneers Dies in Peterborough

Rawdon.—The funeral service for Mrs. Irvin Frederick, of Peterborough, was held in Wellman's United Church on Tuesday, March 28th, with her nephew, the Rev. Ernest Honey, of Lindsay, officiating. The interment took place at Wellman's Methodist Church.

Mrs. Frederick was in her 94th year, and was a daughter of the late Robert Clancy, and Rosella Stroull, pioneers of Rawdon Township. She was the last of a family of 14, and for several years bore her father, using a tuning fork, conducted a singing school school at Wellman's Methodist Church.

Mrs. Frederick, formerly Rosella Clancy, went to Prince Edward County to reside following her marriage. When her two daughters and one son were of preschool age, Mr. Frederick died suddenly, and she carried on the duties of home alone.

Her son, Aylmer, became a minister and early in life he contracted influenza and died, leaving his widow and three small sons.

Choir Member

Deceased was a valued member of Wellman's choir previous to her marriage, and she sang when the church was dedicated and returned to sing again at the 60th anniversary.

Due to the flooded condition of the council chamber, the usual meeting place of the Scouts, the meeting was held in the rather cramped quarters of the basement corridor.

Only a limited number can be accommodated at present, and others will have a chance shortly. CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Director

They'll probably give Leo Reise, Detroit defenceman who fired the winning goal in overtime in last night's Detroit-Leaf-Wings playoff battle, the Pemberton Building, a couple of Brass Balls, a week's take in the Motor Bar in the Book-Cadillac and part ownership in Bells Isle Park, for his 40 grade winning effort against the Toronto "Tastfields" a few seconds after the fifth round got underway. 'Twas a typical Stanley Cup playoff game and nested in the first seat in radio row in the home corral, we had visions of that Boston - Leafs game of many years ago that lasted until nearly 2 a. m. That was the game which broke up when little Kenny Doraty took Blair's pass to end what appeared to be an all - night endurance contest.

* * *

Things don't look quite so dismal down Montreal way. For Lex Hale, their backs against the wall, fought desperately against the inspired New York Rangers to pull out a 3-2 win in a game that also went into overtime. The veteran Elmer Lach is the toast of the Quebec metropolis today for 'twas his trusty shillalagh that fired the winning goal into the Ranger net. But Les Habs still have a tough road ahead. They're three down and three to go. It can be done, for it happened before. Toronto Leafs went three games down to their perennial rivals from Detroit some years ago, then went out there, hitched up their breeks, swore to live a good life from then on, and in inspired desperation won the next four games to de-feather the Wings.

* * *

SOCCER FANS

Don't forget the meeting of the Bay of Quinte Soccer League being held in the YMCA tonight starting at eight o'clock. All interested in the sport are urged to be in attendance.

* * *

"ON THE HOUSE"

If moppet-development of initiative, call it "nerve" if you will, is the foundation of a successful career, then two urchins of this district are destined to become owners of seats on the New York Stock Exchange, presidents of banks, oil magnates or owners of transcontinental railways.

* * *

The other night, Bill Bateman, manager of the Bowl-O-Drome was giving his usual evening cheers, seeing to it that the clientele was enjoying itself. A family bowling session was going on in two of the alleys and on a third two youngsters disported themselves, in not what one might call a refined manner. They rolled the bowls down the alley, chased them when they came back, and in general made a danged nuisance of themselves.

* * *

Bateman kept one eye cocked on the pair of exuberant moppets and the other on the male members of the bowling party, expecting any moment to see one of them admonish the youngsters who from time to time dashed over and interfered with their games. Temporarily tiring of their play, the kids sauntered over to the soda bar.

"Can we have a coke, mister?" inquired one.

Bateman figured it might be a good thing for business, and anyway the parents would pay, so he handed out the drinks to the kids. Guzzling the cola, the refreshed youngsters dashed back and resumed their antics on the alleys. Still no word of reprimand from the parents.

Again they approached the snack bar.

"Gosh, mister," said the spokesman again. "We're hungry. Can we have a chocolit bar, please?"

Again the obliging Bateman accommodated the kids.

* * *

They returned to the alleys and redoubled their troublesome antics. After a few minutes, the Bateman patience gave out. He approached one of the men of the bowling party and said courteously. "Pardon me, sir, but would you mind speaking to your boys. They're not behaving as properly as they might."

The man looked up amazed.

"Your boys?" he asked with raised eyebrows. "You're mistaken. I haven't any boys".

* * *

Bateman jaws clamped. The kids, seeing what had happened scuttled down the stairway to safety. They had wandered in the place and through sheer nerve and gall had the time of their lives on the alleys but had rooked the management for a coke and a bar. Bateman wrote it off to experience.

* * *

The next morning on his way to the daily task, mulling over the happenings of the night before, he nearly lost his years growth when he reached the entrance to the Bowl-O-Drome. In front of the door stood his grimy-faced urchin friends of the night previous, big grins spread over their faces.

"Please, mister", said the spokesman, "could we have a coke?"

A NOTABLE PROJECT

In the not-too-distant future residents of this city, who so desire, will be able to relax in comfort in easy chairs in the lounge on the second floor of a well-appointed clubhouse and watch white-winged yachts keel to spanking breezes on the sunlit waters of the Bay of Quinte. They won't necessarily have to be yacht-owners or enthusiasts, but as members of the newly-formed Belleville Racquet and Yacht Club, will be entitled to the privilege.

* * *

As will be noted in a news story on another page, plans are well under way for the complete organization of the club and the creation of the clubhouse. The locale of the club is ideal for yachting, one of the feature activities of the club. Badminton enthusiasts, young and old will get the opportunity to indulge in their favorite sport at their leisure, something they have been denied in the city through the lack of proper facilities. Basketball enthusiasts and players will have the opportunity to watch and play this popular game in ideal rooomy surroundings. Other indoor sports will be available depending on the demand of the membership. The club's property will permit of the erection of tennis courts, if they are desired.

* * *

While yachting and the other sports mentioned will be the main activities of the club, there will be a strong accent on social fraternalism. Among sportsmen and sportswomen there is no stronger binding tie than the post-game discussions, and social amenities. It is easy to conceive then, that the spacious lounge of the club will be the scene of many a jolly after-race or after-game get-together. Apart from these there will be many social functions held for the membership.

* * *

The Belleville Racquet and Yacht Club will be a welcome asset to the sports-loving populace of the city and district. Its potential docking facilities which will provide ample anchorage for American and Canadian yachting visitors, will give the club international and national prestige. In addition, new friends will be made, City business will not suffer when American and Canadian yachts tie up for the weekend or a longer period. Those in charge are deserving of all the support they can get from the residents of Belleville, and the city fathers, whose exchequer will not suffer in the least.

Victory for Canadiens Gives Them New Lease on Life and Chance to Advance Along Trail

Montreal, April 5 — (CP) — Montreal Canadiens today have a new lease on life and Tuesday night's 3-2 overtime decision over New York Rangers may prove to be the shot-in-the-arm the doctor ordered.

It was Elmer Lach's goal at the 13:19-minute mark of the overtime session that gave the Montrealers their victory— their first in four starts in their National Hockey League semi-final playoff series—but much of the credit went to substitute goalie Gerry McNeil.

McNeil took over from veteran Bill Durnan—at Durnan's request —and although he had fewer shots to handle than Rangers' Chuck Rayner, he turned in a masterful performance. McNeil came up from Cincinnati before the end of the season.

For a while it looked as though the Rangers would take the series in four straight games but the Montrealers surged through to victory. They did it the hard way too. They tied the score twice in the earlier periods before Lach put the game on ice before a wildly-cheering throng of 14,089 fans.

Pentti Lund and Don Raleigh scored for the New Yorkers while Norm Dussault and Maurice Richard gave Canadiens an even terms until Lach produced.

Played at Fast Clip

The game, played at a fast clip, featured brilliant goaltending and generally wide-open play despite the fact Canadiens realized a single false step could well shift them out of the 1949-50 playoff picture.

Montreal drew seven of the 12 penalties handed out, including a misconduct to Glen Harmon for back talk to referee Butch Koring.

Doug Harvey set the stage for the game-winning marker when he passed up the ice to Dussault who whipped a pass to Lach. Loch moved only a few feet before letting drive with a backhander that caught the far upper corner of the net, passing under Rayner's arm.

The teams go to it again Thursday night and although there has been no official announcement, it is believed McNeil will once more be on end for the game.

Lineups:

Man for Man Boston Red Sox Best in League

Sarasota, Fla., April 5 (AP)—Man for man the Boston Red Sox are the best team in the American League, Tom Yawkey in a row last year the pennant on the last day. This time they should go all the way.

How can you pick against a club with Ted Williams and Vern Stephens, each with 159 R.B.I.S., in the line up . . . with Dom Dimaggio in centre field, Bobby Doerr on second, Birdie Tebbetts catching and Johnny Pesky on third.

Sure the pitching is uncertain but what hasn't?

Lefty Mel Parnell (25-7) figures to be the ace manager Joe McCarthy's staff. If he doesn't take 20, the entire league will be surprised. Ex-Senator 14-12 appears ready to better his poor 1949 early season form.

Ellis Kinder, the 35-years-old righter, probably won't be up to another 23-6 year. That happens once in a lifetime. But he had a sensitive bow earned run average, even with St. Louis Browns.

Two Great Southpaws

Backing up the Parnell-Dobson-Kinder combination, the Sox have two potentially great kid southpaws in Maurice McDermott and Chuck Stobbs, a bonus pitcher with a fine 5-4 record last year.

Many think McDermott, a tall, skinny 21-year-old can be one of the game's best lefthanders now he's got around to it. There were flashes of brilliance in his 5-4 season.

Dave Ferris, twice a 20-game winner before felled by arm trouble, looks his best in two years. Walt Masterson, bothered by a sore arm most of season, is his purchase from Washington, has been taking it easy. If Walt comes around, Sox pitching will be in fine shape.

Additions to the veteran catcher, Buddy Rosar, figures to give Al Zarilla-Tebbetts more chance to rest. Matt Batts is the third receiver.

Summing up, the Sox have power to burn. The infield is steady if not spectacular, and the pitching should be adequate

Dizzy Dean Will Be TV Announcer For the Yankees

New York, April 5 (AP)—It's tough enough to find anyone left with a pure, rich Brooklynese accent and now, heaven help us, Dizzy Dean is with us.

Yes, ole Diz is back in New York again. Not to pitch once more against the Giants or the Dodgers but to cast his Arkansas twang on the-air waves as a television announcer for the New York Yankees.

The former pitching genius of St. Louis Cardinals is going to do a daily TV program before and after Yankee games and every other day he's going to handle the play-by-play commentary, or "communitatin" as Dizzy calls it, over a local station.

When news of this startling event reached the ears of Brooklyn rooters, and Bronx rooters too, there was great alarm.

Many of the fine Brooklynese dialect (example: "Holman herstiered to Holst at folst") bos gone to the majors the daily broadcasting barrages Mel (Alabama) Allen and Red (Florida) Barber, two rebels from the south who have achieved much success with the Yanks and Dodgers, and the radio and TV appearances of the illustrious Hopalong Cassidy.

A typical dinner time example:

Mother: "Maxwell, please eat your spinach."

Maxwell, scowling and twirling his six-shooter: "ah reckon ah ain't aimin' to have no spinach maw!"

Now comes ole Diz with his "studdin' this second base" and "ain't that a beaut, ain't it, eh?" "Like Will Rogers said I'm gonna keep on sayin' ain't and I'm gonna keep on eatin', if a guy sluds, he sluds, don't he? Nothin' wrong with that, is there? I'm gonna talk like I talked in Arkansas."

But what about the good people of Brooklyn?

"If they can't understand me, they got nothin' on me," replied Dean. "I can't understand them either."

MAY GO LIMIT

Cleveland, April 5—(AP) — Coach Hap Moran said today he was resigned to having the championship series between Cleveland Barons and the Indianapolis Capitals go the seven-game limit.

The series for the American Hockey League playoff title starts here tonight, and the Barons are anything but over-optimistic.

"If we parcel the puck during the regular season by 10 1-2 games, but they had trouble with the Capitals,

The Barons won six straight from the Cups but then lost the next four in a row.

Because they led the league during regular season play, the Barons will be the host team for the first two games as well as the fifth and seventh, if they are needed.

They'll Do It Every Time

Minneapolis Wins U.S. Title

Minneapolis, April 5 (AP) — Minneapolis Millers hold the United States Hockey League championship today—their first in the five-year-old league.

Bill Richardson, with assists from George Agar and Billy Agar and Billy Warwick, gave the Miller a 4-3 victory over Omaha Tuesday night.

Richardson punched in his only goal of the evening after 9 1-2 minutes of overtime play.

The overtime victory gave Minneapolis the final playoff series with three straight victories after an opening loss to Omaha.

The game was close all the way. Walt Atanas opened the scoring for the Millers in the first period but Motto McLean tied the score before the session ended. Peter Durham's goal put the Knights ahead early in the second. Glen Sonmor got that one back for the Millers and when Walt Samanski counted at 11:40 of the final frame, it seemed like curtains for the Knights.

But Johnny Wilson knotted the count with but two minutes of regulation play remaining, thus sending the game into "sudden death" overtime.

Leo Reise Scores Winning Goal Against Leafs in Overtime To Put Detroit Back in Race

By FRASER MacDOUGALL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, April 5 (CP)— Six-foot-two Leo Reise, blond son of a famous hockey playing father, put the Detroit Red Wings back in the Stanley Cup hunt Tuesday night.

The 27-year-old defenceman broke up a gruelling struggle with Toronto Maple Leafs after 20 minutes and 38 seconds of sudden-death overtime play. His backhand slap shot from the boards hit a Toronto player's leg and caromed into the goal to give the Wings a 2-1 victory and tie up the best-of-seven cup semi-final 2-2.

The crowd of 13,888 fans had barely settled into their seats for the second overtime period when Reise stunned them into silence with his goal. It climaxed a Detroit ganging attack during which nothing penalty to Toronto's Bill Barilko who went off with two seconds left to play in the first overtime session.

Reise had a hand, too, in a magnificent Detroit defensive stand in the first period. He joined with Sid Abel and Red Kelly, both also in a sensational performance by Harry Lumley in the Detroit goal, in holding off the Leafs for all but two and 36 seconds while two Detroit players served penalties.

Marked Turning Point

That defensive display marked a turning point in the game. Until then, the Leafs had the edge and it appeared they might come through with their third victory of the series. It put fresh heart into the Red Wings who charged into the game from then on with new zest.

The game was only three minutes and 34 seconds old when the Leafs scored. Max Bentley got the goal, whipping in a passout from left winger Ray Timgren.

The game was played in willing heat and the rink was stuffy before it ended. The heavy going brought a rash of penalties and one full-scale fight in the first period. Main participants in the battle were Steve Black of Detroit and Bill Juzda of Toronto who got in a tangle behind the Toronto goal. They got majors for staging the main bout. Barilko drew a minor for roughing and Leo Fogolin of Detroit a minor for high-sticking.

The Red Wings left immediately after the game for Detroit where the fifth game of the series will be played Thursday night. The Leafs left by bus for St. Catharines and will head for Detroit tomorrow afternoon. The sixth game will be played in Toronto Saturday night and the seventh, if necessary, in Detroit next Sunday.

Reise's father, who played with the old New York Americans more than 20 years ago, was not on hand to see his son break up the game. "He was here Saturday night he's never around when I score a goal," laughed Leo, Jr., who tallied one goal against the Leafs in the 14 games between the two teams during the National Hockey League schedule.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

Augusta, Ga., April 5 — (AP) —No matter what you think of the fuss within the ranks of the United States Professional Golfers Association you can bet the touring golf pros won't give up on any of those big purses — — The argument shapes up as merely as serious disagreement as to whether the effort of the playing pros to rule their own affairs constituted a real threat to the organization — — The players say they don't plan a "break" of any kind, but Joe Novak, Horton Smith and Company, feel their plan would lead to a complete separation between them and the "club" pros.

What's It About?

The basic cause of the dispute seems to be that the year-round pro with purses of $10,000 to $50,000 put up nearly every week has become a major business in itself. The playing pros — and Byron Nelson says there must be 200 of them now — want to govern their own affairs. They're outnumbered by the "club" pros in the P.G.A. Likewise the makers of golf balls, clubs, and other equipment, who pay the stars fat retainers and put up a lot of dough to keep the tour going, don't have anything to say about how the tour is run. The guys who stick around their own clubs giving lessons don't get any of the manufacturers money — and they'd like some. Hence the effort to spread out the purse distribution and to confine sales of "game" brands of clubs and other equipment to the club pro shops.

Three Teams Lay 'Eggs' In Major B League

Three duck-eggs were apparent in the nest of the Major 'B' (Tuesday) Bowling League at Recreation Alleys last night after the regular weekly session was completed.

The Pigeons laid one and Hibbards and Our Gang deposited the remaining pair with the victorious Ontario Intelligencer "Inkspots" Sacco and Just Us adding seven points to their standing totals.

The "Inkspots" are still out in front in the league standing topping the second place Sacco by 10 points.

Sacco rolled the highest aggregate score of 3454 aided and abetted by the veteran Joe Legault who was high individual scorer with a triple of 841 and single of 351. How Does Not Blame Kennedy For Accident

(By the Canadian Press)

Gordie Howe, injured left wing of Detroit Red Wings, may be able to leave Detroit hospital in a week or 10 days.

He hopes, too, to be in home game, if the Wings can string out the Stanley Cup playoffs that long.

Physicians Tuesday removed a "no visitors allowed" sign from Howe's room. By law, only immediate members of his family have been allowed to talk to him.

Howe was injured in a collision with Ted Kennedy, Toronto captain, in the first game of the playoffs.

"I don't hold Kennedy to blame," Howe said. "He's too fine a player to intentionally hurt anyone.

"All I remember is chasing him towards the boards. I don't recall being struck or hitting the boards."

Citizens of Sherbrooke, Que., will be asked to finance their hockey team further along the Alley trail if the Sherbrooke Saints eliminate Sydney Millionaires in their present best-of-seven Eastern Canada semi-final.

It was decided at a meeting Monday night to have club officials of the Chamber of Commerce to direct a public drive for funds to keep Sherbrooke in the top playdowns if they defeat Sydney.

At Somerville, Mass., Kenny Smith, Boston hockey left winger, Tuesday was operated on for a thyroid cyst by Dr. Thomas Kelley. The team said Smith, whose play was affected by his thyroid trouble, is expected to remain in Somerville hospital about a week.

At Minneapolis, Bill Richardson scored after 3:37 of sudden death overtime play Tuesday night to give Minneapolis Millers a 4-3 victory over Omaha Knights and their first U.S. hockey league championship. It was the Millers' third straight victory in the title series after Omaha won the opener.

Winnipeg, April 5 — (CP) — Although the 1949-50 hockey season has not been completed the scramble already is on for new coaches for next winter.

Out west, Bruce (Medicine Hat News) Hogle is beating the drums for Norman (Buzz) Bill, former N. H. L. star, as successor to Joe Fisher as coach of the Medicine Hat Junior Tigers.

In Moose Jaw, one - time Toronto, New York and Boston forward, is just the man the Bengals are looking for.

He says:

"For the information of the new customers, we'd like to say that Buzz was going to take over the Moose Jaw Canucks back in 1946. Something happened and Ken Doraty — who just signed a few days ago to coach the senior Regina Caps — came in . . ."

The West the Best?

Toronto scout Squib Walker, one of the most successful talent-hunters in the country, thinks the Memorial Cup will return to the west this spring.

Back in his home town of Fort William after a tour of the prairies, Walker told Max (Times - Journal) Ray that "From what I saw I have decided the west can give the east all they can handle, and a little more besides."

He named Port Arthur Bruins or Brandon Wheat Kings as the best bets.

Tough for Leaders

Krug (Brandon Sun) Crawford notes the 1949-50 hockey season has been a tough one for league-leading clubs.

Toronto Marlboro Juniors topped the Ontario Hockey Association standings at the end of the regular season but were knocked off in the first playoff. Lethbridge Native Sons walked off with first place in the West — ern Canada junior loop then bowed to Regina Pats. Edmonton Flyers were in command at the end of the regular play in the W. C. S. H. L. but fell to Calgary Stampeders in the finals.

"There must be quite a strain on league leaders," says Krug. "The long schedule gives way before the short series, and having a club 'fit-and-ready' for the payoff is what really counts.

B.C. Lacrosse Players Sought By East Clubs

Vancouver, April 5 —(CP)— Eastern talent scouts are skimming off the cream of British Columbia's young lacrosse talent.

Rumors running through the intercity league say Peterborough as the biggest threat to league teams. They are reported to have made offers to several young players.

Jim Kinsa and Russ Buchanan of the Eagle-Time juniors, last year's Minto Cup champions, have received offers. So has Burt Ticehurst, an outstanding rookie with Burrard seniors.

Buchanan, lacrosse circles say, has been offered a job on the Peterborough Parks Board, with a weekly bonus for playing lacrosse.

Ticehurst said he would be interested in a Peterborough offer "if it is good enough."

Whitey Severson, another Adan Brampton claimed Adanac's star player, has said he will join Archie Browning last year, and Browning this season.

The Kibitzer

A burst of satanic energy follows every important bridge match. Each player seems to recall some devilish deal. Some player can think of something that made trouble for his side or opponents.

In such a contest, unusual distribution in any one hand is a cue for a sacrifice, or an excuse for interference that may spoil easy exchange of information between their opponents.

Many contestants were crying their eyes out over the stuff they encountered with these cards:

NORTH
♠ None
♥ A 10 9 8 2
♦ Q 6 5 2
♣ K 4 2

WEST
♠ J 3
♥ 6 4
♦ J 10 4
♣ J 10 9 8 3

EAST
♠ A K Q 9 8
♥ K 5
♦ None
♣ 6

SOUTH
♠ 10
♥ Q 7 3
♦ A K 9 6 3
♣ A Q 7 5

At many tables the bidding ran something like this:

South	West	North	East
1 D	Pass	1 H	4 2
Pass	Pass	5 D	5 S
6 D	Pass	Pass	6 S
Dbl	Pass	Pass	Pass

East realized that it would be a save to go down, assuming south could make a small slam in diamonds. At some tables, east did not go to six spades and regretted it later.

At one table where south opened with a diamond, north hopped to five diamonds in the first response. East overcalled with five spades and south doubled. It was a bad double.

Practically all east players came in as fast as possible with a spade game bid or beyond. This meddled with the south-north pair, it put them out of gear too soon.

However, in the main, nothing that east did prevented south from reaching six diamonds. Some south-norths had the guess to get her being rushed from using ♦; four no-trump ace-asker.

All your standard rules can be shot to pieces by a bold bop of an opponent. But what you know is not altogether lost.

Hollywood, April 5 (AP) — Joan Crawford was at it again this week—posing for cheesecake

In fact, she calculated that she was posing for leg art for the 8,000th time. I don't know how she arrived at this total, but, as any photo editor will tell you, that's a lot of cheesecake.

"As long as the public wants it," she volunteered, "I'll give it to them."

This has been going since Miss Crawford arrived in Hollywood, back in the days when the Charleston and the ukulele were going around the first time.

"I was posed being shot out of firecrackers for the Fourth of July," she recalled. "I was a female Santa Claus coming out of a chimney. I was in track uniform running the 100-yard dash. I thought I would never get before a movie camera."

Finally Made It

She finally did make the movies, although she was sometimes as scantily-clad as she was in the publicity pictures. She became the symbol of the flaming flapper.

Now, many years and an academy award later, she is still willing to display her form. And with men who know cheesecake best, she's as good as ever.

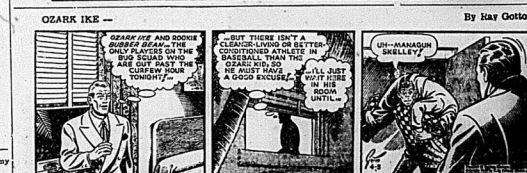
Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

Little Benny's Note Book



Mrs. Colombo, being ma's cleaning woman, hasn't been to our house for 2 weeks on account of having decided to take a vacation while she's having another baby, and today at breakfast ma said to pop, William, I'm in luck. Maud Hewa's little cleaning woman is the envy of all beholders, and it just happens that she has a one day unexpectedly free, and Maud has induced her to give it to me, so she's coming every Thursday, starting tomorrow, till Mrs. Colombo's back in circulation again. So congratulate me, William, ma said.

I not only congratulate you, I envy you, my dear, pop said. By gollies if I could find a good little cleaning man to take over my week at the office, I'd help you to celebrate. We'd pile up these breakfast dishes and rush rite out to the golf course, and you could spend a delightful day in the sun watching my strokes improve with every passing hole, he said, and ma said. The prospect through telling me that Maud Hewa's 4 star cleaning woman is sounds divine, I'm sure, but even if you were free, I'd still have to spend the day putting the house best kept homes, and I can hardly afford to let her think that this house isn't up to her best standards, can I? she said.

That's a question I refuse to answer without the advice of my lawyer, pop said.

And he folded his paper and kissed ma goodbye and left for his office shaking his head to

OZARK IKE — By Ray Gotto

Phil Marchildon Sent to Minors By Connie Mack

West Palm Beach, Fla., April 5—(AP)—Philadelphia Athletics Marchildon to the minor leagues, today sent sore-armed pitcher Phil

This owner-manager Connie Mack finally gave up on the big right-hander hey from Penetanguishene, Ont., who once rated as one of the American league's top pitchers.

Marchildon was sent to the A's farm club at Buffalo in the international league.

Basically, Marchildon was a victim of the war. He was shot down over Germany while flying with the R.C.A.F. and spent 10 months in a German prison camp.

The big righthander with the blazing fast ball didn't give up, though. He came back to win 13 and lose 16 for the A's in 1946 and in 1947 compiled a brilliant record of 19 and 8.

The following year he slumped to 9-15. Wildness, a bad arm and what many considered "war nerves" kept Phil from winning a single game last season. His record was 0 and 3.

Tuesday announcing Marchildon's departure at breakfast, said: "We were always with him as far as we could. I wish him all the luck in the world."

The 34-year-old Canadian was stunned. He didn't say a word.

Mack immediated after the opening of two righthanders, Charles (Bubba) Harris and Ed Hrabcsak, to Buffalo.

T.C.A. Watching For New Types Transport Planes

Ottawa, April 5 (CP)—Trans-Canada Air Lines is watching closely the development of new types of commercial transport planes, including jet, with an eye to replacement of its present fleet of DC—3s.

G. R. McGregor, president of the nationally owned, 10,000 mile air system, told the railway committee of the Commons Tuesday that TCA has a replacement fund of $2,500,000 ready when suitable replacements are found.

There were "interesting developments" in new types of planes, including those fully jet propelled, those with turbo-jet motors and even new designs with piston engines,

He said the line's 20 North Stars, powered by British Rolls Royce Merlin engines, was a "competitive" plane.

The committee heard criticism by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, of T.C.A.'s accounting system before it approved the air line's annual statement and auditor's report. Mr. Drew, learning that T.C.A.'s estimates did not come under the sphere of the committee moved to ask Parliament to grant the committee this power in future years.

Donald Fulton (PC-Kamloops) indicated he would support T.C.A.'s request in the post office for an increase from $450,000 to $520,000 monthly on its air mail contracts. He said he was prepared to recommend this when the committee considered its report.

Will Not Abandon Line

During the day the committee heard Trade Minister Howe say he was not prepared to recommend abandonment of Atlantic air line services. It was a "thin traffic line" but other service such as the British, were not talking of abandoning it despite the position.

Mr. Drew's criticism of T.C.A. accounting involved its method of not showing accumulated deficits and in showing as a credit that portion of deficits as yet unpaid by the government.

Auditor Frank P. Turville said actually T.C.A. had no deficit on its books at all. All deficit money was repaid by the government.

Mr. Drew said the showing of unpaid deficits on the credit side of the books was somewhat "presumptuous" since Parliament had to approve their payment before the debt could be met.

"It's an account receivable under authorization and if Parliament turns it down it's a bad debt," replied Mr. Turville, bringing general laughter in the committee.

LINDSAY KINSMEN OUT

Lindsay, April 5 (CP)—Aurora Black Hawks whipped Lindsay Kinsmen 10-7 before 1,216 fans Tuesday night to take their best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Junior C series in five games. Ken Mitchell's Hawks were held to a 1-all draw in the first but gained a 2-1 edge after two periods and showed their superiority in the last five goals to Lindsay's three. Laurie Thoma sparked the winners with three goals while Don Simmons notched a pair. Arn Karrys with three markers in the second period was the pick of the losers.

TURN DOWN APPEAL

Toronto, April 5—(CP)— The Ontario Supreme Court Tuesday turned down the appeal of Mrs. Meroda A. Faulkner against the estate of James V. Grace, founder and president of Met-Wo Industries, Limited, who died suddenly in 1946 without making a will.

Mrs. Faulkner, secretary-treasurer of the company for several years, claimed that Grace had promised to divorce his wife, marry her and leave her all his shares in the company plus $250 a month for life.

Mr. Justice D. P. J. Kelly said there was no doubt in his mind Grace wanted Mrs. Faulkner taken care of but "he didn't do anything about it," he said.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation estimated that a serious crime was committed in the United States every 19.7 seconds during 1946.

Sydney, N.S., April 5 (CP) — Sherbrooke Saints, Quebec Senior Hockey League champions, Tuesday night hung a 5-3 defeat on Sydney Millionaires to take a 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven Eastern Canada Allan Cup semi-final series.

Dude College

By Oren Arnold

He glared back. "But you yourself agreed they wouldn't be out now, Lona! You said they patrol the international line only in mornings. That's why you wanted to leave after noon!"

"Oh-h-h-h!" Lona was half standing and she shook Andre in an obvious little fit of frenzy fear. "I ought to have—!"

"What is wrong?" Ronica called loudly.

"Shut up and fly this thing fast!" Lona snapped. "If you don't you'll—"

"It's-a-is!" Andre tried frantically to quiet the girl, but plainly Lona was in a panic now.

"They're signalling me to turn back," Ronica called. "I don't know what's the matter but—all down, kids, and don't be afraid. It's nothing endangering us, I'm sure. Careful—I'm going to turn."

"No!" Andre yelled at her. "If you don't! Keep straight for Mexico or I'll kill you!"

Ronnie's chin dropped. Had she actually heard correctly? Frowning incredulous at her own ears, she turned around in her seat again.

To her further astonishment she saw Lona Montoya rolling Andre's Apache drum—the souvenir he had brought to take to a friend in Guaymas. It had been carefully packed in thick padding and tied with ropes. Ronnie had observed. All at once Lona opened the cabin door and kicked the drum outside!

"Hey!" Ronica yelled, in new astonishment.

Sensing real danger now, Ronica looked quickly out. The autogiro was repeating its signals to turn back or land. She even thought she recognized the flyers in it. She handled her controls to obey them. A hand struck her shoulder hard.

"Do as I tell you!" Andre Girardeau yelled menacingly, in her ear. "Keep due south. Get across the line as quickly as possible!"

"I won't!"

"The hell you won't, you little fool!"

With a quick move, then, he jerked her out of the pilot's seat and literally threw her backward on the floor. Even as she moved she tried to reach under her leather jacket; there she carried the pearl-handled pistol Wes York had given her and ordered her to keep near. The plane lurched dangerously.

Ronnie's body struck the cabin floor, stunning her so that she came to a sitting position slowly. When her head cleared a few seconds later, Lona Montoya had taken her gun away and Andre Girardeau was at the ship controls.

She stared up front at the couple. Andre had often said he knew nothing of flying—but he handled this ship with obvious skill! Lona was shouting out a crack in a cabin window. Shooting and glowering at the autogiro with that peculiar new fury in her face, an expression utterly unlike the Lona they had first known. It wasn't simply a Mexican girl in anger or fear; it was different.

Ronnie didn't understand it, didn't understand anything. Her own fury was such that she was beginning to sob a little, partly from sheer helplessness. Somehow she knew Lona Montoya would shot her on the slightest provocation now. Also that Andre Girardeau was anything but a friend.

All the past weeks of adventure and change and excitement streamed through Ronnie's consciousness as she sat there on the floor of her golden monoplane. The new college entry, the friendship with Wesley York—was that really Wes in the autogiro?—the fight with the five Japanese, then the spying on Lona in Rainbow Canyon, the fire at her home, everything. Strangely Wesley York had figured prominently even heroically, in most of those exciting incidents—lordy, if Wes were only here to help her now!

Obviously, though, not even Wes could have aided her against the mad couple now kidnapping her. Andre, Lona—both foreign names, Ronnie suddenly realized. What, in truth, did she actually know about either of them? She had just accepted each at face value as she did any one who was interesting. Plainly both were afraid of the law.

Angered now beyond any sane control, Ronica Bailey did a characteristic thing.

With Lona's attention centred with the gun out a window and Andre intent on his flying, Ronnie grabbed a parachute case, quickly strapped it on and threw herself out the same cabin window from which the Indian drum had fallen.

"Hey, parachute's open, she's safe!" Wesley shouted frantically at the two officers in the autogiro plane. "T-thank God!"

"Use your rifle!" the pilot yelled. "Aim at the front of the cabin, the controls!"

But officer Starr was already aiming, and he began firing with meticulous care. Crack! Crack! They just had to stop that monoplane now before it could outdistance the government ship!

"He's hit!" the pilot yelled. "He's got to land!"

There was no open field, no cleared spot. Obviously Girardeau was striving desperately. He did guide the crippled monoplane over huge boulders—then all at once it struck the earth, bounced twice and finally halted tall up against thick Yucca growths. The autogiro was settling right near it.

Girardeau jumped from his plane and started running. The moment the autogiro, touched earth Wesley York leaped out in pursuit, carrying Officer Starrs gun.

"Halt!"—Wesley yelled.

Girardeau shot back twice, ran on. The chase continued half a mile, each man dodging cacti, greasewood, rocks. All at once Wesley saw they had been running at an angle toward the spot where Ronnie landed, saw her unstrapping her chute to be free. She saw them then and began shouting.

Girardeau stopped abruptly behind a rock and shot back again and again, and Wes in turn dropped prone to resume shooting. He saw Girardeau's head go out of sight, and so he quickly sprang up and ran again. When Girardeau's head next showed, only a few feet separated them.

LATTIMORE SAYS CHARGE 'BASE AND CONTEMPTIBLE LIE'

Claims He Never Was Communist at Any Time

Washington, April 6 (AP)—Owen Lattimore, accused by Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.) of being Russia's top spy in the United States, swore today that the charges are "base and contemptible lies".

He said McCarthy has "flagrantly violated" his responsibility as a senator and has made unauthorized use of secret government documents.

Lattimore, an authority on far eastern affairs, branded Mc-Carthy's contention that he can prove Lattimore is or was a communist as false and said:

"I was not and have not been a communist . . . and I am not a communist now."

Lattimore made his denial in testimony prepared for a Senate Foreign Relations Sub-committee investigating McCarthy's charges that communists and Red sympathizers have infested the State Department.

Hits Back at Senator

Hitting back hard in a 10,000-word statement, Lattimore said McCarthy has violated his responsibility "by making the government of the United States the object of suspicion in the eyes of the anti-communist world, and undoubtedly the laughing stock of the communist governments."

He accused the Wisconsin senator of "instituting a reign of terror among officials and employees in the United States government, none of whom can be sure of safety from attack by the machine gun of irresponsible publicity in Joseph McCarthy's hands".

Lattimore is director of Johns School of International Relations at Johns Hopkins University.

Wants Court Action

Lattimore declared the senator had promised the Senate that any charges he made under "the cloak of immunity he would repeat off the floor so, as Lattimore put it, "their falsehoods could be tested in a court of the United States". Lattimore added:

"He said that if he should fail to do so that they could be testified to under oath. He has failed to do so. And he has not resigned."

Mr. McCarthy's description of Lattimore as the architect of this country's far eastern policy McCarthy regards as disastrous—Lattimore declared:

"He said that I have never held a position in the United States government in which I could make policy. . .

More Than 100 Persons Die As Crowded Brazilian Train Tumbles into Flooded River

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, April 6 (CP)— More than 100 persons were killed when a crowded train early today plunged into the flooded Indian River near Tangua, the Brazilian News agency reported.

The train, loaded with Easter holidayers, was said to have tumbled into the river from a collapsing bridge. Tangua is in Rio de Janeiro state about 100 miles from here.

Earlier reports said 40 persons were killed and 200 injured.

Collapse of a bridge near Rio apparently left another train carrying medical aid from reaching the disaster scene.

Two engineers and one coach fell directly into the turbulent river. Three other coaches telescoped and sagged from the bank into the waters.

Sir Basil Brooke Now on Way for Visit to Canada

London, April 6. (AP)—Sir Basil Brooke, Prime Minister of Northern Ireland, took off for the United States Wednesday night—for the third time in 24 hours.

Sir Basil, bound for a speaking tour in the United States and Canada, boarded the same plane which put him down twice before at London airport, then turned back for repairs.

The Prime Minister's British Overseas Airways Stratocruiser turned back Tuesday night when it was over mid-Atlantic, two hours out of London. Engine trouble was the cause.

Sir Basil and Lady Brooke boarded the plane again Wednesday afternoon. A few minutes after the takeoff it turned back once more. This time the pilot found he had low pressure in the hydraulic system.

Political Boss And Ex-Convict Shot in Club

Kansas City, April 6 (AP)—Charles Binaggio, onetime underling to the late Boss Tom Pendergast, and an ex-convict were slain today in a political club.

Both were shot dead with a single head. The ex-convict was identified as Charlie Gargotta.

Binaggio was head of a political faction opposing remnants of Pendergast's once-powerful political organization.

The political leader recently was a witness before a federal grand jury investigating underworld activities.

Police Chief Henry W. Johnson said it looked as though Binaggio was shot by an acquaintance since he apparently was relaxing in the chair in which he was found.

Police said Gargotta had $2,400 in his wallet when found.

U.S. Air Giant Explodes, Blast Is Under Probe

Pearl Harbor, April 6 — (AP) — The United States Navy was today to learn why a newly-mounted engine in its giant 80-ton flying boat, Marlin, burst, caught fire and caused an explosion that destroyed the big plant.

Seven crew members who were taking the 175,000,000 craft on a test run Wednesday brought the ship to an emergency water landing and escaped minutes before the flames of high octane gasoline exploded.

The Navy launched an inquiry to learn:

1. Why carbon dioxide extinguishers were unable to check quickly the fire in the newly-installed No. 4 engine.

2. Why the wing tank cell of aviation gasoline exploded after the engine fire apparently was quelled.

The huge flying boat, holder of the world passenger cargo record of 301 persons and crew of seven, had developed engine trouble Tuesday. A new engine was installed and the crew took it up Wednesday for a test run.

Fire began about one mile off Keehi Lagoon, the old clipper base between Honolulu and Pearl Harbor. The pilot tossed it around at 1,000 feet and brought it down.

Two Men Slugged, Robbed in Toronto

Toronto, April 5 —(CP)— A novelty store proprietor and a truck driver were slugged and robbed in two west-end holdups Tuesday night. A third robbery attempt was foiled when a college street theatre manager refused to give up money to a lone gunman.

Yankel Jesel, 46, was slugged and robbed of $18 in his store by a lone gunman. An hour later, a lone gunman, one with a revolver, held up cab driver James Klein, while his wife and baby sat beside him.

A middle-age man, armed with a toy pistol, fled when curly Posen, manager of the King theatre, dashed out of ticket seat west for help when asked to hand over money in the theatre's ticket booth.

185 Persons Killed And 300 Injured In 3 Train Wrecks

(By the Associated Press)

At least 185 persons were killed and more than 300 injured Wednesday night and today in three train wrecks, a fire and a barge disaster.

Sixty textile workers were missing from a motor barge which capsized in the Yangtze River at Oporto, Portugal.

At least 19 persons were killed and more than 100 injured in the derailment of the Oviedo-Madrid Express at Pola de Lena in Spain.

A train loaded with Easter holidayers plunged into the flooded Indian River at Tangua, Brazil, when a weakened bridge collapsed and jammed coaches were reported to have left 100 persons in their deaths. The injured totalled 200.

An early morning blaze in a home at Toronto trapped six children who were burned to death. The parents, and two other children escaped.

Several passengers were slightly injured in a Mexican train derailment near Nanchi, 200 miles northwest of Guadalajara.

COMMONS REJECTS BROADENING OF DIVORCE GROUNDS

Parliament Recesses Until Monday April 17

Ottawa, April 5—(CP)—The Commons turned thumbs down Wednesday on a suggestion that divorce grounds be broadened.

The debate developed on a private member's resolution, introduced and later withdrawn by David Croll (Liberal, Spadina), asking the Chamber to consider the setting up of a special house committee on divorce and enlarging the grounds beyond that of adultery.

The discussion, providing an almost unanimous expression of disapproval, occupied the last three-hour sitting before the Easter recess. At 6 P.M. EST the chamber adjourned until 3 P.M., Monday, April 17.

Mr. Croll, closing the debate, said he had sought a change in the law because children. He had obtained that and would withdraw the motion. He wanted divorce grounds enlarged to include desertion of children, three years, gross cruelty, incurable mental disease after five years, and habitual adultery after two.

He won support only from G. S. White (PC — Hastings-Peterborough).

Nude Redhead Found Dead In Hotel Room

Los Angeles, April 6 (AP) — In circumstances strangely reminiscent of the city's brutal sex murders of three years ago, a nude redhead was found dead Wednesday in a hotel room, a cryptic note written in ink above her breasts.

Police identified her as Mrs. Sally Oswald, 39. They said they could not determine, pending an autopsy, whether she had been killed after a prolonged drinking party or had died of a drug overdose.

"I have to do it. It's the best," was the way they translated the almost-illegible legend across her chest.

Detectives said Mrs. Oswald was recently discharged from the psychopathic ward of Los Angeles General Hospital. She and a man registered at the hotel 10 days ago.

The case recalled other weird deaths of sex stranglers in Los Angeles in the last three years. Elizabeth Short, called the "Black Dahlia", because of her fondness for black clothing, was found in vacant lot. Her severed nude body bisected at the waist and tossed into the lot.

The body of Mrs. Jeanne Axford French, 45, onetime writer, was found with cryptic inscriptions in lipstick on the breasts April 10, 1947.

None of these slayings has been solved.

CONDITIONS REMAIN GOOD

Saskatoon, April 6—(CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner said Wednesday night he believes farm conditions in western Canada for the next few years will remain good enough "to enable us to continue getting our farming finance into better shape." Speaking at a reception he called on all Canadians to put as much money into development of natural resources as they had into the Second World War.

Scarboro Junction House Went up 'Like a Torch'

Parents and Two Others Saved, Fire Origin Unknown

Toronto, April 6 — (CP) — Six children perished in the early hours today when fire blamed on hot coals in a bucket on a back porch roared through a fluted wood frame home in suburban Scarboro Junction.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Harding, the parents, who slept on the ground floor, escaped with two other children. The mother carried the youngest child, Harold, 2, to safety from his downstairs crib; Paul, 14, jumped from the only upstairs window.

Ages of the other children ranged from eight to 16 years.

Harding, 43, a coal delivery driver, said the fire apparently started in a bucket of red embers he set out in the back porch and forgot to empty. He had cleaned out a stove because it was smoking.

"Just before I fell asleep, I thought I should get up and put the pail of coals outside," he said. "But I didn't do it.

"I thought there were only a few coals in the pail and, because it was the heavy kind like a lot of iron and garbage, figured everything would be all right."

Plan Mass Funeral

Plans are under way for a mass funeral for the victims.

As firemen combed the ruins for the bodies and tried to determine the cause of the blaze, Rieve O. E. Crockford of Scarboro township said a fund had been started for the Harding family.

He visited the parents at the home of neighbors and told them the township would pay the expense of the six children's funeral. School children were asked to give collections for the two children who survived. Other donations were being accepted at the Scarboro municipal office.

Mr. Harding said he carried no insurance on the house, his furniture or automobile, all of which were destroyed in the fire.

One of the surviving children, 14-year-old Paul, said "I heard my sister Faith calling to the others to 'Wake up, wake up,' but I guess they didn't make it."

Dead are Faith, 16; Davis, 16; John, 13; Tim, 11; Earl, 10, and Keith, 8.

Paul Harding escaped by leaping from an upper window of the adjoining roof, while three-year-old Harold was carried through a bedroom window by his mother.

Firemen early today said they had no information as to the cause of the blaze which turned the house into a mass of flames within minutes. The house was destroyed within less than an hour and eyewitnesses said "it went up like a torch."

Roy Harding, father of family, awoke shortly after 1 a.m. to find the rear of the house on fire. He aroused his wife after they tried to awaken the children by shouting while Mrs. Harding fled with them through flames to the doorway with the youngest child.

Both parents collapsed as they reached safety and are under a doctor's care.

Neighbors Helpless to Assist

Neighbors were forced to stand by helplessly as firemen, quickly on the scene, battled the wooden house a mass of flames.

One of the first on the scene, Doris Wall, Toronto Globe and Mail reporter, said "It was awful. The flames were there when I came in the house. Three men got an extension ladder and put it up to a bedroom window. They were Joe Jenoves, Maurice Sallown and his brother."

HEAVY PROGRAM OF LEGISLATION NEARLY FINISHED

Toronto, April 6 (CP)— The Ontario Legislature expects to prorogue this afternoon, a heavy program of legislation has all but completed.

Besides opening sittings at 11 a.m. today and prorogation is expected at 3 p.m.

The last three hours of debate were required before the labor bill got passage through committee Wednesday. Only minor amendments were made. One recommended by Labor Minister Daley will include municipal employees in the bill unless a municipality passes a by-law to exclude them. Previously municipal employees were excluded unless a municipality passed a by-law to put them in.

Another amendment, also by the labor minister, deletes the section that would have given the labor relations board power to deny its services to a parent labor federation, or employers'

Ontario to Regulate Forests To Serve Interests of People And Not One Group or Faction

Toronto, April 6 (CP) —Lands Minister Scott said today he has offered the Great Lakes Lumber and Shipping Company at the Lakehead right to timber areas including both pulpwood and sawlogs so that the company can exchange the pulpwood for sawlogs which it lacks.

The minister's statement read today in the Ontario legislature was proposed as a solution to a dispute at the lakehead over timber rights. The Great Lakes Company claims its timber rights have been stripped of sawlogs and that timber limits assigned to pulpwood companies contain many good sawlogs which are being wasted.

At the time this mill commenced it was regarded as having a capacity of approximately 30,-000,000 feet of lumber annually, however, the company now claims it is unable to operate at full capacity there should be produced 125,-000,000 feet," Mr. Scott said.

Pulpwood and Lumber

"It is conceded that the forest stands in the Thunder Bay district are dominated with timber of pulpwood size and that the main timber suitable for processing into lumber."

The Great Lake Lumber Company claim they should have 1,-850,000 sawlogs to operate the sawmill, This volume of sawlogs represents the equivalent of approximately 165,000 cords of wood.

The results of a forest resources inventory would establish with greater accuracy the availability of sawlog volumes to pulpwood volumes.

"Tentatively it is believed 20 percent by volume can be regarded as suitable for sawlogs.

"The point to emphasize in this problem is that the volume

FLOOD WATERS DROP IN ALL SECTIONS OF ONT.

(By The Canadian Press)

Flood levels eased today in southern and eastern Ontario as a surge of cool Arctic air slowed the spring runoff.

The rain-swollen Nation River flowing into Ontario dropped more than two inches overnight. Some of the flood water drained off inundated sections of farmland in Prescott, Grenville, Dundas and Stormont and Glengarry counties.

The Rideau River, over its banks in the Ottawa suburb of Eastview, also receded during the night.

Almost Back to Normal

The Speed River was almost back to normal at Guelph today after flooding low-lying sections of the city for two days. At Galt, the river was down eight feet from the peak it reached early Wednesday and flood danger appeared past. However, at Hespeler the river was blamed for the collapse Wednesday night of a section of an enamelware factory wall.

As the cooler weather moved into Quebec Province, residents in the industrial centre of Shawinigan County on the St. Lawrence south shore got temporary relief from the flooding Chaudiere River, unusually high this year and swollen by ice jam in the upper reaches. Public prayers were called to avert a serious flood.

North of Brockville, at Jasper and Bellamy, repair crews of CPR railway track on the Ottawa Brockville line were washed out by the swollen waters of Irish Creek.

Elsewhere in Ontario, flood levels were receding after causing thousands of dollars' damage and at least one death.

Nine Glass Companies Will be Prosecuted on Price-Fixing Charge

Toronto, April 6 — (CP) — A Grand Jury decided today there is enough evidence to warrant prosecution of nine Toronto and Quebec glass companies for alleged operation of a price-fixing combine.

The jury made the decision after a study of a report by A. McGregor, former Combines investigator for Justice Minister Garson announced Feb. 7 the federal government would proceed with prosecution if a Grand Jury returned true bills of indictment against the nine firms.

The nine:

Hobbs Glass Ltd., Pilkington (Canada) Ltd., Consolidated Glass Ltd., Advance Glass and Mirror Company Ltd., Excelsior Plate Glass Company Ltd., J. R. Lockwood and Company Ltd., Queen City Glass Company Ltd., Llewellyn Maurice Lloyd (carrying on business under the name Lloyd Glass from 1929 to 1949) and Canadian Plate and Window Glass Ltd.

They are charged with conspiring among themselves and with various other companies throughout the world to prevent and lessen competition in manufacture and sale of glass products in Canada, Justice Garson said.

Trial is expected to proceed during the current Assizes of the Ontario Supreme Court. T. N. Phelan will be Crown prosecutor.

Unlike a recent Combines trial, during which seven of eight Canadian dental firms were acquitted and similar price-fixing charges the glass trial will be without jury, Mr. Phelan said.

In his report to the government, Mr. McGregor said a multi-million-dollar flat - glass trade.

Newspaper Guild Certified as Bargaining Agent

Ottawa, April 6—(CP) — The Canada Labor Relations Board announced today the American Newspaper Guild (C.I.O.) has been certified as collective bargaining agent for a unit of editorial employees of the Canadian Press, Canada's National News Service.

The unit consists of editorial employees within Canada, including office boys but excepting the general manager, general superintendent, general news editor, bureau chiefs and news editors.

Certification followed a public hearing and the taking of a government-supervised representation vote among the eligible employees.

The board did not announce the vote tally, but, of the 89 eligible employees, 54 voted in favor of having the Guild as bargaining agent and 35 against. The Guild needed 45 votes, 51 per cent of those eligible to ballot.

It was the first time since the board was set up in 1948 that every eligible employee had balloted in a certification vote.

The certification applies to The Canadian Press, main supplying to daily newspapers, but not to its subsidiary, Press Wireless Ltd., which serves radio stations.

The Guild's original application covered the firms but the board ruled Press News under separate management and ordered the vote restricted to employees of CP only.

Downs-Coulter Co. Plans To Re-Open Plant Monday: Union to Increase Picket Line

Trenton, Ont. (Special) —Close on the heels of an advertised announcement by the management of the strike ridden Downs-Coulter Textile Company to the effect it will re-open the plant, came a statement from union officials today that they will picket the factory with the largest lines since the walkout 14 weeks ago.

Company officials stated in an advertisement in the Trenton Courier-Advocate that the company is re-opening the plant at eight o'clock next Monday morning. The ad also stated that "only those applicants who have received notice of engagement should present themselves for work at that time."

George Beckett, union official, countered with the statement that his organization will seek the assistance of other unions, in posting the biggest picket line around the plant since the the strike began.

Mr. Uttley, manager of the Downs-Coulter plant, was not available for comment this morning.

Mayor Kenneth Couch of Trenton, who returned from Niagara Falls on Wednesday night stated this morning that he had no comment to offer on the situation until Monday.

Proceeds for Hospital

At a meeting of the Trenton Branch 110 of the Canadian Legion, it was decided to turn over the entire proceeds of the Legion carnival which is held annually in Trenton, to the hospital board as a donation to equip a room in the new hospital.

It was also decided to remodel the bar as the present one is not large enough to accommodate all the members and guests. The new one will extend along all one side of the room and all work on it will be done by Legion members.

Several Legion members plan to attend the fish fry being held by the Carrying Place branch of the Canadian Legion on April 14th. The fish will be of the smelt variety. It is estimated that this is the first fish fry held in the last fifty years.

Fish Shanties Lost

At least three local fishermen were cut off guard when the abrupt change in the weather caused the ice in the harbor to break up leaving the shanties used for ice fishing floating around out of reach in the open water.

A channel of deep, clear, water separates the shanties from the shore and although several attempts to reach the stranded huts by boat have been made, none has been successful and the shanties have been given up as a complete loss.

128 Paris Police Injured in Clash In Champs Elysees

Paris, April 6 (Reuters)—Paris police headquarters announced today that 128 policemen were injured in Wednesday night's "battle of the Champs Elysees" between 2,000 police and about as many demonstrators.

Thirty of the injured police were unable to be on duty today. Four were in hospital.

Of 150 persons arrested, police kept 14 in prison but released the others.

The clash resulted from a communist demonstration in front of the offices of the Conservative newspaper Figaro which is publishing memoirs of former S.S. Colonel Otto Skorzeny, chief of Hitler's bodyguard.

He led the airborne commando group which "spirited" Mussolini away from Italy after the Allied victory there in 1943.

Family of Six Narrowly Escapes Death by Fire

Ferndale, Ont., April 6 (CP)—A family of six narrowly escaped with their lives today at Ferndale when fire swept through their home and an adjoining garage, burning both buildings to the ground.

Alec Brough, III in bed with influenza, was carried from his blazing home seconds before flames engulfed it, and his wife and four children were aided to safety.

The fire, believed to have started in the garage section of the home, spread so quickly that the Broughs were unable to save any of their belongings. A bucket brigade of 30 men from nearby Lions Head worked frantically in an unsuccessful effort to save the house and its contents.

$10,000 FIRE LOSS

Windsor, Ont., (CP)—Wednesday swept through the old Crawford home on Windsor's west side, routed 14 persons from their apartments and caused some $10,000 damage.

The fire apparently started in the basement from an overheated furnace. Firemen worked several hours and returned again Wednesday night after a new outbreak was discovered. No one was injured.

London, Ont. — Fire today ripped through the bedroom of two-year-old Lillian Anna Richardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Richardson, an hour after her mother had pulled her up from her crib and taken her into her room.

The flames wiped out the Richardson's wardrobes, including the Easter outfits and a quantity of bedding. Total damage was estimated at $500.

Defective furnace pipes caused the blaze.

100 of New York's Irish at Airport To 'Boo' Brooke

New York, April 6 (AP) — More than 100 of New York's Irish gathered at New York International Airport today under the leadership of a city judge to "boo" Sir Basil Brooke, Prime Minister of Northern Ireland.

Matthew J. Troy, special sessions justice, head of an organization called American Irish Minute Men of 1949, said the men were at the airport by 5 a.m. and more than 100 by 8 a.m. He anticipated a total of 1,000 before long.

A force of 20 detectives was on duty in the area in mid-morning.

Meanwhile, Sir Basil's plane was delayed at Goose Bay, Labrador, because of trouble in its hydraulic system. British Overseas Airways Corporation said it did not know when the plane would be able to resume its flight.

Judge Troy told reporters he was sending out men with cars to pick up reinforcements. When he learned the plane would be late, he said:

"We will stay here all day and all night, from now until tomorrow, if necessary."

$1,192,000,000 Canada's Reserves Gold, U.S. Dollars

Ottawa, April 6 (CP)—Canada's reserves of gold and United States dollars were $1,192,000,000 at March 31, Finance Minister Abbott announced Wednesday.

The figure was up by $125,000,000 from a year previously and down $1,000,000 from the figure reported in the minister's March 23 budget, which gave the total as at the close of business the preceding Saturday.

Reason for the recent drop was the beginning of the seasonal transfer of earnings of United States investments in Canada.

The reserves stood at $1,117,000,000 at last Dec. 31; $1,149,000,000 at Jan. 31; $1,176,000,000 at Feb. 28, and $1,067,000,000 at March 31, 1940. All the figures are in terms of United States dollars.

of timber available for manufacture into lumber must be related to pulpwood requirements and a continued expansion in the requirements of the sawmills would only lead to pyramiding of pulpwood production overcutting our forests and chaos in forest management.

"Accordingly the government intends to regulate the forests in this and in all other areas of the province under the best system of forest management and in the requirements of the people of the province, and not in the interests of any one group, faction or individual.

"With this thought in mind after many meetings with pulp and paper representatives, sawmill operators, representatives of labor and interested citizens during the past year, we have submitted a memorial to the Grand Lakes Lumber and Shipping Company to the effect that we would set aside areas which would enable them to produce pulpwood and sawlogs so that they could exchange the pulpwood for sawlogs developing from pulpwood operations. T annual rate of production by t lumber company must be tied with the domestic pulp and pap mills annual requirements."

EASTER DRIVING CARE URGED

Ten days' holidays can mean ten days' hazard for children on the streets and highways, Hon. George H. Doucett, Ontario Minister of Highways, points out in a special pre-Easter statement. He urges all who drive to watch constantly for children on the streets and highways.

"Remember the Easter holidays of your own childhood," the Minister suggests, "with the freedom from regular schoolday routine from homework, and with all the fun of several days of carefree play. Today's children, feeling the same, have to face the dangers of greatly increased motor traffic. And all of us use our cars more and more as fine weather returns.

Mr. Doucett believes that if every person who drives will keep safety uppermost in his mind in the next few days, a tragic upswing in traffic accidents can and will be avoided. "I know of no pleasure," he says, "who could erase from his memory the picture of a child he had maimed or killed."

Looking back he realises that the accident might possibly have been avoided by just a little less speed, a little more care."

During 1949, motor vehicle accidents killed 125 children and injured many of them permanently — nearly 1,000 compared with 1941, however, children playing in the street figured in fewer accidents, a fact that should give encouragement to those who strive to make children more safety minded; teachers, police, newspapers, radio, service clubs, parents and others.

"But in the last analysis, everyone who drives must recognize his individual responsibility for accidents. Driving is a privilege; a privilege which is being withdrawn from scores of hundred drivers every week because they fail to use it safely.

"There can be no letup in our efforts to promote safety on our streets and highways. Rather must our efforts be increased as motor traffic continues to increase."

SHOWERS OF BLESSINGS

Trees have been the glory of Canada, giving shade, warmth, and beauty to homes without asking that the tender care demanded by other and often less valuable crops. Like other assets easily gained, they have been squandered and now, none too soon, the Ontario Conservation Committee has recommended an imaginative program to safeguard and expand our diminished wealth; if it is carried through there will be 4,000,000,000 new trees in Ontario, each one a blessing to be handed on to new generations.

Then the future — a green and pleasant future if Ontario and her people so choose. It is more than a job for the province and the 3,600 square miles it may re-forest in the next 25 years in co-operation with the Federal Government. It is a task, too, for municipalities like Ottawa where tree-planting has been a haphazard arrangement for too long; for rural districts where the long-dead pioneers justifiably looked on trees as barriers to productive property; for sub-marginal lands along the river banks where the trees vanished and let the flood waters ride free; for organizations like ordinary citizens with a little lot and a dried-out patches where the stately pines no longer serve as water traps; for industrial concerns which think of future earnings; for sportsmen, tourists, planners, youth grandchildren.

What Ontario does now, in conserving trees, soil, water and wild life, in co-operating with every desirable agency to preserve the gifts of nature, will decide the stature of present-day citizens in the eyes of those who will inherit this land. Henry Van Dyke said it long ago:

"He that planteth a tree is a servant of God
He provideth a kindness for many generations
And faces that he hath not seen shall bless him."

The oldest inhabitant of Shetland, Mrs. Agnes Linklater, of Scoster, Bressay Island, died in her 105th year last week. Mrs. Linklater was never out of Shetland. She enjoyed wonderfully good health throughout her long life and had been attended only once by a doctor before her 100th birthday, says London Times.

A BOY'S HAIR

Once there was a little lad
Who wished he hair at all
Down for breakfast every day,
"Back and comb your hair!"
"Wet that cowlick down a bit!
Get a proper part in it."

Saturday, the holidays
Little boys can spend in play,
He was told: "Today, you know,
To the barber shop you go
Sheet around him in the chair;
Spent the sunniest mornings

One vacation mother said:
'He has such a tousled head
For the summer it is cool,
Easier if clipped were he."
So he played until the fall
Hairless as a billiard ball.

Once he wished he had no hair,
Combing it was so much care,
Fat and nearly sixty
Now,
Bald, and with a glistening brow
Hairless as a china egg
Time has granted him his wish.

"Before we go ahead, do you realize that more people are injured in bath tubs than any other place?"

CONCERNING ANGELS

What does the Bible teach about angels?

Modern man has almost ceased to think about angels, and yet the Bible has a great deal to say about them. The word "angel" both in Hebrew and Greek means messenger. The angels are God's messengers, for we see them ascending and descending on a ladder, taking the petitions of men up to God and bringing the blessings of God down to men. Jesus spoke of the angels which guard little children. Angels came to minister unto Jesus in the hour of His temptation. Jesus spoke of the angels as the reapers of the wheat and tares in the last great day.

The teaching of the Bible is that angels are celestial beings, higher than we who appear to be arranged in continuous activity in man's behalf. We are justified in believing that we have guardian angels and that every day they exert concentrated spiritual influence on our lives than we are accustomed to think.

Modern man may disregard angels and ignore them, but, therefore, this in no way makes any difference so far as the reality of their existence is concerned. The clear testimony of the whole Bible, and especially the New Testament in particular, is fallacious, angels are very much alive, active and very near to us; and whether we recognize the fact or not, they play a very important part in our daily lives.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

Commerce and industry have become so tidy, and so many of us are enjoined in the mass tidiness of business, that we are liable to forget that as immense proportion is rough, ugly, hard and pretty grim.

So recently are our cities and towns that we can spend our whole lives going to and from work, following the accustomed streets, visiting all parts of our city—as we suppose—without being aware that there are huge warehouse, foundry and factory districts where work is still being done by ordinary human sweat and muscle.

Big, dirty men, with gauntlets on, grubbing raw materials. Men like horses, heaving and sweating at steel ingots, iron ingots, bales of scrap, kegs, giant crates of primitive things—the raw materials that we never see, in our prim

The newness of them has been beaten and blown and reduced out of them in the ugly big nameless foundries and warehouses along the railway tracks or the waterfront in the city's oldest heart.

For it is coming into a city by rail that you see the view of the fact that commerce and industry still depend, despite all our mechanized wonders, upon the bodily labor of men. There, across the industrial ridings, you see the great heaps and piles, the bins and platforms, the racks and vats around which toil the strong. Strong men in dirty clothes, with the things which, presently, by transmuted into goods fit to be handled by our prim, ordered, cleaned, sanitary citizens.

No matter how tidy we arrange our world, it is still founded upon the labor of men who work with muscles.

Impressions of Britain

FARM BUILDINGS AND COUNTRYSIDE

(By RALPH CAMPBELL)

Oxford, England—(Special)—Most newcomers to Britain say they are most struck by the tiny fields here that are "smallness" of the countryside, but it seems that this must depend largely on the type of area from which the visitors come. It certainly is true in a number of counties, but one impression has been that the fields are not as large as those in the Prairies. What has been more impressive to us has been their rich greenness, and the almost total absence of waste-land. Except for the mountainous areas we see few fences outcropping of rocks, nor the great boulders and "hard-heads" of Ontario. Instead the many stone fences are built of almost rectangular stones adding large flag stones in any dimension. Many of these have of course been quarried, and not picked from the farm fields as in Ontario.

Draining has been practiced since the Roman conquest in 55 B.C., and it is the view that if there is practically no swamp waste-land. Tiling and drainage have gone on for generations, and in consequence all the little creeks and streams, have made this a land of rich and mellow fields, with no four square. There are many many streams and small rivers, which, however, in modern moderate climate maintain a fairly constant level all year. Floods are rare, even in winter and spring floods, they are not accustomed to heavy and snow and frozen ground.

Little Erosion

While there are some very flat areas, there is generally enough slope to ensure that the land is dry and capable of working at almost any time. At the same time, the gentle nature of the slopes, and the careful draining and perhaps a greater variety of farmer crops, has almost entirely prevented erosion. In fact we cannot recall ever seeing any evidence of farm land erosion since our arrival.

It is true that there is little waste-land, we do not mean to imply that there is no land uncleared. There are numerous "parks", which are actually small-wood (tree-studded pastures, usually connected with the estate) and many groves of trees, especially on the tops of hills. It is interesting to read that the original hillcountry was almost entirely planted during the time of the Great Plague in the 17th century. Although there are now many were hastily and unceremoniously buried as the plague still-dog and to prevent later generations disturbing them, and causing the deadly germs, seedlings were planted in these common graves. Many of these plantations are beautiful, and though has only an indirect bearing on the farming, it is a good indication of the influence of history on the land.

Although there are wire fences in some areas, they are far from predominant, and are usually used by stone fences or hedges. The stone fences are built with the utmost beauty and precision—strong and clear, and reflecting the skill of generation after generations. Most are "dry" or constructed without the help of mortar, but they have involved a great deal of work, the stones having been carefully placed in such a manner that after all these years they still appear of substantial, and almost permanent walls. On the moors of Yorkshire and the hill-country of Northern England and Scotland, these stone walls are characteristic, and valleys, steep slopes that one can hardly climb, and deep valleys are divided by these walls, and there the walls stand in the face of the weather, and testify eloquently to the faith and devotion of bygone generations and farmers. They still do their duty as boundaries of the great sheep runs, and as small sheep-folds in which the flock may be closely enclosed.

Hedges Work of Art

Hedges require a great deal of attention, and this is a fine outdoor occupation in winter. When thick and well trimmed, they are almost impenetrable, but, like the fence corner brush of Ontario, they can become eight feet high, unnatural if neglected a few years. Thorn hedges have joints two feet apart and these are allowed to grow until they are eight feet high, partially chopped and trimmed, then bent along the hedge until they are all lying parallel with about two feet above the ground. A small instrument is a blade about one-third as long as that of a scythe, on the end of a fairly long, slightly curved handle.

Barns Generally Small

Farm buildings are quite different from those of Ontario. Very few are of wood, and none have the shiny steel roofs to which we are accustomed. Generally barns are small by Ontario standards, since hay and grain is either stacked during the summer, and then taken in with the thatch to keep out the rain, or are stored in Dutch barns—those quaint looking objects, much like a large umbrella, with only the tassel at the central point. The Dutch barns are usually open sided, with roofs only. Most farmers do not seem to use "silage" or "hay-fodder" in Britain, but often have great conveyor tracks to take the hay from the stacks or Dutch barns. Straw is almost never blown into a straw shed, but is usually tied in neatly pressed into bales or tied in great bundles and stacked in the yard. These are then stacked and sometimes covered with tarpaulins. Strangely enough there could be no "tracks" or "hay-ropes" in such barns.

The barns themselves are small. In fact there are so few of them that we know them, for most farmers have only sheds for their machinery, and the small acreage permits cattle to be outside most of the year. Thus there is little real necessity for barns full of hay and straw, but the fodder is generally left in the hay yard or field when the pastures becomes short and the hay is cut and stacked. Having been a farmer for a good many years, I still wonder these things most carefully and the largest barn I have yet seen would be about 50 feet by 80 feet. There are usually made of stone and lime, but the farmhouse is often of a fine earth barn of stone including walls and roof. Sheds are quite common in areas where building stone is not ready to hand. Usually it is a mixture of brick and the roofs of tiles. Instead of being stone and roofing is shingle shaped, about one half inch thick, and about three inches long. They are placed on the roof in the same way as we place our shingles.

In Good Repair

One soon observes that farm buildings here are generally in excellent repair. The farmers probably have no more reason for this than we have, for stone and brick they require far less repair each year, and it takes much longer for time to show on the self evidenced. The system of farming in Ontario where land changing to larger farms so that a number of buildings are abandoned and therefore allowed to fall into disrepair even more quickly, does not take place in Britain, it would take longer for the buildings to show evidences of decay. Secondly, the introduction of combines, stockbreeding of dairy and straw bailers is making large barns less necessary, and finally because of the introduction of the same methods and machinery in Britain would bring about a similar number and kind of stacks, not farm buildings.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

UNDYING MEMORIES

Every once in a while we read of someone who has lost his memory, who does not recall his own name. What a tragic situation! Yet how little we think about the memories—the ability to remember. It is what I have remembered all throughout my life about those with whom I have lived and worked, and the kind I have read, that have given to life its beauty and substance.

Oscar Wilde once said that "memory is the diary that we all carry about with us," and that one has said that "God gave us memory that we might have roses in December." It was J. M. Barrie who quoted this in his Sentimental Tommy, May 3rd, 1922. He talked of courage, and brought to mind the examples of many a one who possessed—it, including Capt. Scott, who perished in the Antarctic snow.

One of my fields in the literary world, for many years, has been John Buchan, later known as Lord Tweedsmuir. His absorbing and out of the unhappy ones. How important it is that we have only the

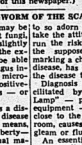
ON RINGWORM OF THE SCALP

Ringworm of the scalp may be caused by several different fungi, each of which produces a slightly different effect. Although the experienced physician may be able to suspect the identical fungus involved, nothing short of a microscopic examination will positively confirm the diagnosis — or identify the fungus.

Ringworm of the scalp is a disease of childhood. If the disease is not cured by medicinal means, it usually disappears at puberty—the age of beginning sexual activity. Rarely, when caused by a certain fungus, the disease may carry over into adulthood.

Typically, 'in ringworm of the scalp, separated areas develop in which the hairs are broken off close to the scalp, presenting a slightly grayish appearance. The fungi in such numbers as to be visible to the naked eye may be seen attached to the hairs as a coating. Depending upon the specific fungus involved, the scalp may or may not become inflamed. Peculiarly, one of the most dangerous fungi to which children are susceptible, are completely harmless to animals.

The disease is acquired by either direct or indirect contact. Any place an infected child rests his head—against the back of a chair, for example, becomes a new reservoir of infection. The disease may be spread by common use of combs and brushes.



Ringworm has reached epidemic proportions. Despite this, it is not general practice to keep infected children home from school. The reason for this is that from three to six months of treatment are required to cure the disease, and personal contact must always have been shown to be of value. Spreading of disease, in fact, to others may be largely controlled by compelling the victim to wear a stocking cap at all times, which serves to prevent him from rubbing his head against the pillow on which they may be picked up by others. The cap should be changed frequently and should be boiled longer for time to time to destroy the fungi.

The top of a woman's cotton stocking is well suited for the purpose of a stocking cap.

I full well realize that although this is a proven preventive, many parents feeling that their child was infected because of some other parent's carelessness, refuse

Mrs. Claude Tucker thanked the hostess, and the two hosts for the lovely evening; the ladies of the Institute who had provided such grand refreshments and all those who had attended, and so helped to make this last card party a splendid success.

RAWDON

Linen Shower Presented to Bride-Elect

Rawdon.—On Tuesday evening previous to the wedding of Miss Mae Sashs and Mr. Burton Wallace, a delightful linen shower was held at the home of Mrs. Douglas Campbell, Mount Pleasant, Rawdon, with Mrs. Jack Haggerty as co-hostess.

The rooms were decorated with pink and white streamers and bells. The guest of honour was seated in a decorated chair. Several balloons filled with confetti were hung gracefully above the chair and showered the bride-to-be at the appointed hour.

Mrs. Jack Haggerty read an address of appreciation and Mrs. Campbell made the presentation of a large array of gifts. Mae thanked her friends for their kindness. Several friends, who were unable to attend owing to road conditions and weather, sent their best wishes in tangible forms.

About twenty guests enjoyed progressive euchre and Chinese checkers. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. J. Haggerty and consolation to Mrs. Don McKeown.

The hostesses served an appetizing luncheon plate and all enjoyed a social half hour and wished the bride-to-be every happiness on her matrimonial voyage.

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

Meat deserves all the comforts of home.

When you read in a recipe that the meat should rest comfortably in the pot or pan, it means there should be enough room for free swinging action in all directions. You should use utensils with ample space for turning the meat, for adding liquids and vegetables.

A roast that is too big for the roasting pan will cause fat to splutter over the sides and bottom of the oven compartment. When you place chicken in a pan to fry, there should be ample room for the surface of the chicken to touch bottom and be browned uniformly. If you are simmering a piece of beef in liquid, and part of the beef is forced against the sides of pot while another section juts over on the surface of the liquid, the piece of meat in question will not be cooked uniformly.

When you boil a tongue, you will notice that the tongue changes shape as it cooks, forming into a curve. If the tongue does not float easily on the liquid, you will have trouble turning it or testing it for tenderness.

Smoked beef tongue has a piece of waste meat at the root end which can be used for cooking with soup. The liquid itself in which tongue is cooked is excellent for any of the dried vegetable soups such as dried pea, bean or lentil.

Smoked Beef Tongue with Sauerkraut—Serves 6-8.

Order a smoked beef tongue weighing between 3 and 4 pounds. Wipe with a damp cloth. Place in a large kettle containing boiling water. Liquid will stop boiling when cold tongue is added. Add 2 peeled large onions, 2 large carrots, 2 bay leaves and 6 peppercorns.

Bring water to a boil again, and then reduce flame so that water barely simmers. Cook for 2 1-2 hours or until the tongue is not quite done. Remove tongue from liquid.

Empty the contents of 1 No. 2 1-2 can of sauerkraut into a large saucepan or Dutch oven; or use pot in which tongue was simmered if it is fitted with a heavy lid. Add 1 cup of liquid in which tongues was simmered, 1 chopped apple, 2 tablespoons fat, 2 tablespoons vinegar and 1 tablespoon sugar. Place tongue on sauerkraut. Cover with tight lid.

Place in a moderate over 375 degrees and continue to cook, stirring sauerkraut about every 20 minutes. Cook until tongue is tender, about 1 hour. Cut off root end of tongue. Remove outer skin, tearing it off with a clean towel in hand. Cut off any part of skin that sticks. Cut tongue in thin slices. Arrange over sauerkraut on serving plates.

Dr. E.W. Stapleford Addresses Bridge St. Missionary Society

The missionary societies of Bridge Street Church held their Easter thank-offering meeting in the Sunday School auditorium, on last Tuesday. The meeting commenced with a pot-luck supper.

Mrs. Houston gave the call to worship, and asked Miss Claire and Mrs. Arnott to take charge of the worship service. A pleasing feature of the meeting was the presentation of a Life membership in the Societ yto Mrs. Everson, by a daughter, Mrs. Bertrand.

The members of the Glee Club of B.C.I. sang several numbers, led by their teacher, Mr. Templer. Mrs. Houston expressed the thanks of all present for this very enjoyable part of the meeting.

The highlights of the Presbyterial held in Napanee were given by Mrs. Clare. The offering was taken by members of the C.G.I.T.

Mrs. Finkle then introduced the guest speaker, Dr. E. W. Stapleford, of Toronto, who spoke on the "Stewardship of Life", and the "Parable of the Talents", his address was a misapiration to all, and Miss Campbell thanked Dr. Stapleford for his very fine message. Rev. D. C. Amos closed the meeting.

Easter in the Holy Land

(By MAXWELL JOSEPH (In the War Cry)

There is no place in all the world where the solemnity of Holy Week is so deeply felt as in Palestine, Jews, Christians, and Mohammedans wend their way to the Holy City to participate in hallowed ceremonies.

According to the Biblical commandment, Passover is to be celebrated for seven days. It is every Jew's duty to be, at least once in his life, in Jerusalem for Passover. Every "Seder," the most impressive ceremony in the Jewish religion, closes with the fervent wish "Next year may we be in Jerusalem!" Seldom is seen such solemnity as Passover Night in Jerusalem. The next morning all Jewry pays a visit to the Wailing Wall. It is a pilgrimage after the ancient custom.

The impulse to visit Jerusalem to pray before the Holy Sepulchre is common to all Christians. All Christian denominations share in the festivities, but one of the most interesting ceremonies is that or the Abyssinians. They arrive for the procession on Easter Eve. Around the dome of the roof they set up a tent in which their abbot, gorgeously appralled, sits like an ancient monarch in a chair beside the altar. Monks beat silver tom-toms, while others like King David of old, "dance before the Lord." The procession then forms. Three times the dome is encircled, in the accompaniment of a strange, exotic chanting.

• • •

While the Ethiopians are thus dancing on the roof of St. Helena's Chapel, the Armenians are chanting inside. Franciscans are offering Sacrifice Mass in the Chapel of the Apparition. In other quarters, Coptic and Syriac hymns are being sung. Moslems also have congregated in and around the Haram al-Sherif, the ancient site of the Holy Temple, where the Omar Mosque now stands.

Only a small remnant of the ancient Samaritans survives in Palestine. According to tradition, they are the descendants of Ephraim and Manasah, and are thus of the tribe of Joseph. The only exception is the priestly family which is descended from the tribe of Levi. The language of the Samaritans is now a dialect of the Palestinian Aramaic. Their script which they use for all purposes is derived from the ancient Hebrew script. Of the Scripture they accept only the Torah, (the Pentateuch) and claim to have the oldest copy of the Torah, written at the door of the Tabernacle by Abishua, son of Eleazar son of Aaron the high priest.

• • •

By sunset of the eve of the Passover, preparations are complete for the only blood sacrifice offered up to God in any part of the world. A small oblong plot of ground is marked out by a low rubble wall as a place of prayer. Here a trench is dug. Water is boiled in copper cauldrons on a rough altar of unhewn stone. A few yards away excavated in a piece of higher ground is a round, large pit about six feet in depth and lined in stones. The sheep are slaughtered on the altar and roasted in this pit, each one "a lamb without blemish a male of the first year."

The first part of the ceremony consists of sacrificial prayers. Young men clothed for the occasion in robes of white linen, face the rock on the summit of Gerizim, which marks the site of the Holy of Holies of the Samaritan people. The high priest takes his place at the head of the congregation.

When the sun sets, the high priest turns to face the congregation and reads the twelfth chapter of Exodus which contains the laws and commandments regarding the Pascal Lamb. When he reaches the verse, "and the whole congregation of Israel shall kill it at dark," the sun has completely set.

A young priest collects some of the Pascal blood in a basin, stirs it with wild thyme and daubs with it the lintel of every tent. Boiling water is next poured over the lambs so that the wool can be plucked off. The skin is left intact to protect the flesh in the oven. The actual sacrifice to the Almighty now takes place, certain parts being offered upon the altar and entirely consumed. Meanwhile the lambs are prepared for the oven. Parts are given to the priests. The remainder is spitted and lowered into the pit while the worshippers chant, "There is no God but one."

More prayers and reading now occupy the time until the meat is made ready. During this period the high priest raises aloft before the people the scrolls of the Torah. When the lambs have been sufficiently roasted, the oven is opened, the meat distributed and eaten "in haste with unleavened bread and with bitte herbs. Great care is taken not to have a bone of the Pascal lamb broken.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

For Our Easter Prayer

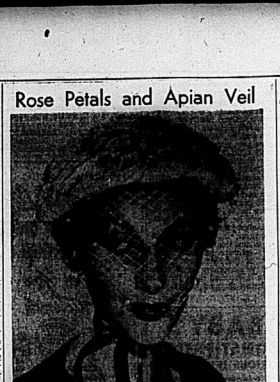
"Grace and Peace be multiplied unto you" . . . the beautiful and inspirational greeting expressed by the Apostle Peter in the beginning of some of his Epistles . . . is a prayer most fitting to this year's Easter.

Your table setting should sing of Easter.

Lyrical words come to our minds when we think of setting our Easter tables. Spring flowers. Gay, joyous colors. Sunny linens. Bright china. Sparkling silver. All festive touches for our Easter tables.

"Welcome, happy morning!" Have your Easter breakfast table blossom in a yellow cloth or doilies . . . yellow, the color of daffodils and sunlight and downy Easter chicks. Perhaps, too, your centrepiece of bright yellow tulips, or pink or lavender for a charming contrast, half-grapefruit or orange at each place with the sunlit color scheme. Or use a traditional centrepiece of eggs. The children will be enchanted to see (or to make) a centrepiece of colored eggs on the Easter-morning breakfast table, the eggs dyed to harmonize with the linen, and perhaps nestling in a large white pottery or silver dish lined with shining leaves. And an Easter rabbit on each side. Or the colored eggs may be in compotes, low or footed white dishes, flanking an all-white flower centrepiece. Or . . . per dramatic touch . . . down the centre of the table, a parade of small, white-painted flower-pots containing hyacinths, all of one color or rainbow-hued. Or, if you prefer to use all white hyacinths, have the flower pots painted a delicate Spring green.

Chilled grapefruit or orange-half may be the first course of your breakfast. Or . . . for the special tradition and a special treat. . . . a circle of unhulled strawberries on each plate, with a little mound of powdered sugar in the middle. Then eggs, of course . . . "An egg for Easter" sings the old song . . . will be featured for the main course probably with bacon curls, and garnished with sprigs of parsley. A delicious bread there will be. . . hot cross buns, or coffee cake filled with raisins, or spongy cake, or muffins or tiny hot biscuits, or toast. And coffee, perhaps with chocolate as an alternative.



For your luncheon table, an appealing centrepiece, simple and inexpensive, is one made entirely of daisies. Or an old-fashioned bouquet . . . small Spring flowers snugly circled about on one larger flower. Always lovely are flowers floating in shallow white glass bowls . . . pansies, sprigs of hyacinths, daffodils, yellow freesias, tulips, mimosa. Or two smaller bowls may flank the central bowl. For the dinner table the centre bowl of flowers may be radiantly flanked by tall white candles glowing in low candlesticks, or shorter candles in taller candlesticks. For any Easter meal put at each guest's place a gay little Easter basket filled with vari-colored candy eggs.

And capture fresh Spring colors in your food items for luncheon or dinner. A tiny sprig of mint on the colorful fruit cup. Such food-accessories as rosebud radishes, slivers of carrots, hearts of celery (asilions, too, if you dare), sprigs of cauliflower. Bright mint jelly with the roast lamb, and parsley garnishing. For the vegetables, creamed spinach garnished with thinly-sliced egg; peas and carrots combined, or only the green, green peas. In your salad a variety of lush shades of green. A gala shade of ice cream or sherbet, or for the accompanying sauce. Gay frosting on the cake or cookies. And with the after-luncheon or after-dinner coffee, serve pastel-shaded crystals of rock candy.

Happy, happy Easter to you . . . and to all those dear to you!

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Shampooing the hair.

Busy women—and what woman isn't busy these days?—have found out that they can forego those delightful hours at the beautyerium and attend to a number of their good-looks duties themselves. The short hair cut, with only a shadow of a finger wave, makes head washing fairly easy. As these are right and wrong ways of going about this task, your reporter desires to give the misguided ones a few suggestions.

Cosmetic chemists, understanding the present practice of home treatments, have responded by offering the many shampoo medicines displayed on cosmetic counters. Only a few years ago the shopper had a limited choice of shampoos. Now she can launder her mop with liquid soap, or she can have an oil medium, or she can select a shampoo cream. It is a good idea to experiment with these various preparations until one finds the kind that is best adapted to one's condition, and that one can manage best during the application.

It is important to have a bath spray and a strong current of water for rinsing. To endeavor to remove any shampoo agent by dunking one's head in a wash-bowl is out of the question.

As a preliminary to a thorough job of renovating, a rousing brushing is necessary to remove surface dust and to loosen dead skin scales that may be present on the scalp. Brush strand by strand, holding the hair away from the head. Slap the bristles on the scalp; wield the brush with a rolling motion. Lower the head and brush from nape line to crown. Then give yourself a three minute scalp message.

Before applying soap or cream, rinse the hair well. If a liquid soap is used, dilute it one half with warm water; it can be rinsed away more easily than if it is used full strength. Pour a little on the top of the head, on the temples, along the forelocks. Spread out fingers and thumbs, give your head a vigorous mauling.

This first application may not suds up well, especially if the hair is oily. Use the spray, lifting the hair as the water flows over your head. The second application should foam up like beaten egg white, but the longer and firmer the friction, the cleaner your hair will be. Remember, it is not easy to combat a combination of sebaceous oil, atmospheric dust and scalp debris. Let the final rinsing be prolonged.

If your hair is long or shoulder length, comb the ends first. To force the comb through tangles is a cruel way to treat your precious halo.

Only a few years ago the shopper had a limited choice of shampoos.

Water your house plants often enough to keep the soil moist, but not muddy. This may have to be done every day, or every two days. Cactus and fleshy leaved plants will not need to be watered quite so frequently.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

There's 5 years difference in their ages—Can they be happy?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 21 and in love with a girl of 26. We enjoy the same things and have much in common, including the fact that we are of the same race and faith.

The only thing that stops me from asking this girl to marry me is the difference in our ages. We have always had fun together, but marriage is a different story. Do you think this age difference would interfere with our happiness?

Art

Dear Art:

You are very sensible to recognize the fact that marriage is indeed a different story from having fun with a person beforehand. Congenial companionship is a very important factor indeed in a successful marriage, but there are, as you realize, other things to be considered too.

It is not at all impossible for a very happy marriage to result when such an age difference exists as between you and this girl. It depends entirely on the relative degree of maturity each person has attained at his or her respective ages. In other words, if your ideas, standards, tastes and interests and those of the girl meet on common ground there is an excellent chance of your being happy together. If, on the other hand, you have interests and ideas of a younger type, shall we say, than hers, you might eventually find incompatibility developing after you had been married awhile.

The important thing is not to be in a hurry, but to give yourselves plenty of time to make sure you meet on common ground psychologically. If this proves to be true, the five years between you would not likely make any particular difference. Twenty-one is pretty young for a boy to be sure of his feelings, of course, and you may find them changing a good deal in the next year or so. So don't be in a hurry to make any decisions.

He dropped her—Should she try again?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Two years ago I was going steady with a fellow I liked very much. After I broke up with him he joined the Navy, and for a while I did not hear from him. Then we began to correspond. There was nothing serious in our letters, and he said we would talk things over when he came home on leave.

Later, I learned from his buddy that he was going steady with a girl, and when he did come home on leave he did not come to see me. Afterward I received a letter from him telling me the story, and I stopped writing to him.

Recently, after I began to go with another fellow and had forgotten the first one, I received a birthday cable to forget him, and I would like to go with him again. He does not go with any girl now, and maybe I might have a chance with him if I handle it right. I sent him a thank-you note for the birthday card, but his friend told me his address had been changed and he probably didn't get my note. Should I write him again, or just wait?

Gloria

Dear Gloria:

Just wait.

Even though this chap's address was changed, his mail undoubtedly is being forwarded to him wherever he is or you would have got your note back.

He was the one to drop you. Let him be the one to look you up if he has changed his mind now. Don't let him think you've been sitting round pining for him. He'll be far more likely to get interested in you again if he thinks there are other people with whom you can have just as much fun as you ever did with him.

Fashion Flashes

NOT TOO MUCH satin is seen just now, but, when used, it is very smartly handled. Gray silk satin makes an evening ensemble consisting of a full-length, strapless dress, the skirt softly draped in back with a full-length tapering panel in front. With it a self-belted easy jacket, the easy sleeves with turn- back, flared cuffs.

A SUBSTITUTE for the lapel or belt flower is fruit, just as so many hats are trimmed with fruit rather than with flowers. For a novelly and pretty color accent, try a cluster made up of two bright yellow kumquats set in soft, gray-green leaves. Nice on a dark suit or coat.

NOTHING PENDING about the success of patent, for that shiny leather has staged a big comeback. Three strips of patent—navy, red and white—fed through a large navy blue grosgrained buckle in a diamond shape, adds up to an attractive belt for Spring.

SLEEVELESS dresses and blouses abound, and with them pretty accessories to both obscure and point up the bare arm. For a nice cover up, there's a wide cape collar of white organdie with Venise-type lace, that comes well below the shoulder.

THE RIGHT BAG does much to add distinction to the tailored costume. Three leathers add up to a very interesting bag. A boxy model, it is of navy suede with a piping of navy patent leather and it is lined with white leather.

READY TO DOUBLE as a reefer or a dress is a neat number in finely checked navy and white sheer woollen. Fitted at the waist, it has a tiny collar overlaid with another in white pique, and there are tapered pocket flaps at the waistline. Closes to the hem with navy enamel buttons.

erman Bombs May Have Helped reate Social State in Britain

By ALAN HARVEY

London, April 6 — (CP) — A ook-back on Britain's days of ock implies that German bombs ay have helped create the pre-ent welfare state.

Other conclusions, drawn in an fficial history of the home front uring the Second World War, are hat individual men and women an take burdens with great ap-earance of ease, and that civilian asualties from bombing were much maller than anticipated.

The history, one of a series of ar studies sponsored by the ritish Government following a ermet decision in 1942, has just een published under the title, ilitary of Social Policy."

The author, Richard Titmuss, ys that during the war the gov-rnment took a hand in the well-being of the population which was little short of remark-ble compared with the govern-ent's role in prewar years.

It was increasingly regarded as proper function or even obliga-ion of the government to ward off distress and stress among not only the poor but almost all class-es of society," Titmuss writes.

The book, while stressing individ-al heroism, says that the blitz ories were overrated.

In 1937, it was officially judged hat an all-out air attack lasting days would kill 600,000 persons and injure 1,200,000. The Air Min-istry estimated casualty hospitals would require up to 2,800,000 beds.

The Home Office thought in terms of mass burials and was burning of bodies in lime. More than 1,000,000 burial forms were distributed to local authorities, which on their own bought shrouds and papier mache coffins. The Home Office hired 10,000 tents for blitz victims, later removing them because their startling whiteness made people panicky.

Doctors said psychiatric casual-ties might exceed physical suffer-ers by 3 to 1.

Instead, official figures show that the number of civilians killed by enemy action in Britain total-led 60,595. The number of wound-ed totalled 401,000, comprising 86,000 severely wounded, 150,000 slightly injured and 165,000 treat-ed by first-aid posts.

Britain had a larger number of air-raid casualties, in proportion to her population, than any other member of the United Nations.

There were more subtle dam-ages, such as a weakening of family bonds and disruption of education, Titmuss commented:

"Perhaps more lasting harm was wrought to the minds and to the bodies of men, women and children than to their bodies."

One of his individual stories concerns Mrs. Jane Bixby, a beet-root seller, who made one rest centre a place of security, order and decency for hundred of home-less people. Mrs. Bixby worked at the rest centre at night and sold beetroot by day.

Publication of the book coin-cided with an appeal for civil de-fence volunteers by Home Secre-tary Chuter Ede. He said defeat-ism was keeping enlistment low —people were shaking their heads and saying nothing could be done about the atomic bomb.

Guelph Paper Launches Fund For Flood Victims

Guelph, April 6 — (CP) — With the rampaging Speed River almost back to normal, Guelph took stock today of the extensive damage caused by heavy floods which swept low-lying sections of the city for two days.

Red Cross aid was being pro-vided families who were hardest hit, emergency fund was also launched by the Guelph Merc-ury.

Three city bridges were dam-aged by the heavy flow of water and "slow" orders were in ef-fect for C. P. R. trains using a trestle bridge on the Guelph junction line.

Public works employees were repairing roads and sidewalks washed out during the flood.

Tells Cop Father He Strangled Sweetheart

Oakland, Calif., April 6. (AP) —Arthur Prindle, 19, shaking off the effects of 12 sleeping pills, mumbled a dramatic bedside con-fession to his policeman-father Wednesday night: he strangled his pretty 18-year-old sweetheart in a jealous rage.

"What did you do son?" asked Officer Leslie Prindle when the youth opened his eyes.

"I killed Sally. . . I choked her. . . we quarrelled. . . she was going out. . . with other boys," he said haltingly.

The youth and his former fi-ancee, Sally Ann Humphreys, were found Wednesday in a car parked in a lovers' lane.

The girl's body was slumped in the front seat, a man's belt tightened about her neck.

In the back seat, minus his belt, was young Prindle, his wrist bleeding from the jagged glass of the girl's compact. He was un-conscious from the effect of the sleeping pills.

Wakefield Taylor, deputy dis-trict attorney, announced the youth will be charged with mur-der.

"I had planned it for months," Taylor quoted young Prindle as saying.

"I found out she went around with another guy. I wish I had taken my father's police pistol to do the job.'

"I began hitting her," he con-tinued. "I kept hitting her, trying to knock her out. . . then I strangled her. I strangled her.

"I took off my belt and wrap-ped it around her neck. . . I must have strangled her 45 minutes."

Officers said the girl had shat-tered the car windshield during the ferocious struggle. She had a tooth knocked out.

Then, the youth continued, he climbed into the back seat, swal-lowed 12 sleeping tablets and slashed his wrist.

Austerity Budget May be Modified By the Cabinet

London, April 6 — (Reuters)— The cabinet met today and there were indications it considered some concessions in the austerity budget due April 18.

Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancel-lor of the Exchequer, will give the cabinet a full outline of his financial proposals at a special meeting shortly before budget day.

The cabinet is watching pub-lic and trade union reaction to the food price increase — four-pence (about five cents) more for a pound of butter and twopence extra for a pound of bacon—an-nounced Wednesday by Food Minister Maurice Webb.

Psychological effect of these changes, many observers think, will be to increase pressure for more pay by 5,000,000 trade un-ionists now resisting the govern-ment's official wage freeze.

Sir Stafford, who will spend his Easter holiday working on the budget, is anxious to lighten the burden of lower bracket wage earners.

But despite the big forward strides made towards economic recovery he can make no slash-ing budget concession.

However, the food price In-creases and his surplus on last year's estimates give the Chan-cellor of the Exchequer a little room to manoeuvre in a budget which is expected to be the only one before the next general elec-tion.

MacKenzie's Column:

Democracies May Call off Boycott Against Spain

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

It begins to look as though the democracies finally may call off the boycott against Spain — bad kid of Western Europe ever since General Franco became dictator in 1939 as the result of his revolt against the Communist-supported republic.

The trend was first indicated some weeks ago when State Secretary Dean Acheson announced a change in American policy towards Spain. He favored resumption of full diplomatic representation in Madrid as soon as the United Nations repeals its 1946 recommendation that all members withdraw their ambassadors. The recommendation which was followed.

This reversal of policy seems to have paved the way for a striking development at the recent meetings of the Atlantic Pact Defence Ministers in The Hague, Spain being of vast strategic importance militarily, the question naturally arose of her relation to the 12-power Atlantic Pact.

Favors Leasing of Bases

The conference military advisers favored the leasing of air bases from Spain, rather than giving her direct membership in the pact. It is said this proposal will be placed before the meeting of the pact foreign ministers in London early next month.

All 12 countries must approve before Spain can be approached in the matter. Chief opposition comes from Britain, whose Labor government objects to the Franco regime on ideological grounds.

The point is that if bases should be leased from Spain, it would open the door to full inclusion of Spain in the western defence system if she should wish to participate.

It is an interesting note that the western world should turn thumbs-down on the Madrid government, because it is a dictatorship, while playing ball with other totalitarian regimes which are tougher, for example, Soviet Russia.

The answer to this naturally is that the western powers have been making a virtue of expediency.

Duplessis Says Liberal Leader Should be Chosen

(By The Canadian Press)

An exchange of compliments between Premier Maurice Duplessis and opposition leader George Marler preceded the prorogation of the Quebec Legislature Wednesday.

The head of the Union Nationale Government noted that the opposition Liberal party is due to choose a permanent leader and redraft its program at a convention at Quebec starting May 19.

"It is not an easy job for an opposition leader to stand up to the present government," he said, "but among candidates for the Liberal leadership none is superior to the present opposition leader."

The Alberta Legislature also prorogued Wednesday, and the Ontario Legislature is expected to prorogue this afternoon. The Nova Scotia House adjourned one week for Easter.

At St. John's the gift of a golden mace was presented from Canada's most westerly province to Canada's newest and most easterly province. Herbert Anscombe, Deputy Premier and Minister of Finance of British Columbia, told the Newfoundland Legislature that the mace is a symbol of the will of the people and British Columbia was confident "you will cherish it as such, and play your part as a member of the Confederate family, forming an important part of the Commonwealth of Nations."

The Nova Scotia Legislature gave first reading to a government bill ending the fixing of retail gasoline prices by the public utilities board, Premier Macdonald explained retention of the old bill might discourage oil companies from expanding their facilities in Nova Scotia. The board however retains authority to control the retail mark-up, the spread between wholesale retail prices.

The Ontario Legislature heard lengthy debate passing the new labor bill through committee stage. Estimates of the education department were approved in a night sitting and a start was made on reform institutions estimates.

The Manitoba Legislature debated various government bills and an opposition Independent Liberal member, Edmond Prefontaine, said that a proposed inquiry into provincial liquor laws would be a waste of money. Mr. Prefontaine originally introduced the motion for an examination of the laws but Attorney-General McClenaghan suggested that no "fundamental changes" be contemplated. The minister suggested that public bearings be held concerning only the administration and enforcement of the law.

HEAVY PROGRAM

organization, when one of their subsidiary units engaged in an illegal strike or lockout.

Must Order Vote

The new act provides that the Labor Relations Board must order a vote of employees where a union applying for certification has between 45 and 55 per cent of employees signed as members. On the vote for certification, the union must obtain a majority of votes of eligible employees in the plant at the time of balloting. Formerly, employees who did not vote were considered to have voted against the union.

Much debate arose over the opposition charge that the bill failed to include some provision for the check-off system of union dues payment. C.C. Calder (L — Lincoln) moved an amendment that the act require employers to grant at least a voluntary, revocable check-off, but it was defeated.

Mr. Daley said he felt employers should agree to some form of union security, but this was a matter for collective bargaining, not legislation.

Not Subject of Legislation

He felt employers should agree to a request by an employee for the check-off but it was not a subject for legislation.

Premier Frost said he could see no reason for management to hesitate in granting the request.

Speaking of Northern Ontario Gold mining companies, he said: "Some of them grant the check-off, Mr. Frost said "some of the attitudes in the mining industry are not excusable but we must realize we are dealing with a developed industry."

Eamon Park (CCF—Toronto Riverdale) moved an amendment, which was approved, reducing penalties for violation of the act from $500 to $100 for individuals, and from $5,000 to $1,000 for corporations, made under or employer organizations.

Mr. Park said also the present procedure of voting for bargaining agents to the benefit of a "communist" union at the International Nickel Company refinery at Port Colborne, Ont.

Reference Brings Objection

The reference to "communist" unions brought objection from J. B. Salsberg (Lab.-Prog.—Toronto St. Andrew). He said "There are no communist unions." There was only "one large trade union movement to which everybody ought to belong."

C. C. Jolliffe E. B. Jolliffe said that Ontario unions are "house - cleaning communists" out of their organizations and added it will do everything in my power to assist them." But he felt the Labor Act's certification procedure was defeating this purpose.

Mr. Jolliffe said the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers was the only bargaining agent at the nickel plant in Port Colborne. The United Steel Workers (C. I. O.) had taken part in a vote in an attempt to replace the mine-mill Union as bargaining agent. The steelworkers had won a majority of the votes cast but lost because non-voters were considered to be supporting mine-mill union.

SCARBORO

"They screamed 'We can't get in. It's too hot.'

"People went over to the roadside and were sick. Others were sobbing so loud you could hear them over the crackling of the flames."

Banged on Door

Jenoves said: "I woke up when I heard someone banging on the door. Mr. and Mrs. Harding were standing with Paul and Harold. They were all balding heads. They were in their night-clothes. Mr. Harding was in his underwear.

"Mr. Harding shouted 'Get me a ladder.' He seemed to be crazy. He screamed 'Call the fire brigade — my house is on fire.' Then he ran back across the road."

Scarboro firemen fought the blaze with three hoses but the fire had gained too much headway. They were driven back when they tried to enter the house wearing masks. The roar of the blaze could be heard for blocks.

When they entered, they found the burned bodies of the children in their beds. They found the back stairs leading to the bedrooms had been destroyed at the outset of the blaze.

Davis and Ruth, the two oldest children, were working. The rest, with the exception of Harold, attended school.

COMMONS REJECTS

Condemnation came from Rev. Dan McIver (L—Fort William). W. R. Brown (PC—St. John's West), J. M. Macdonnell (PC—Toronto Greenwood), W. F. Carroll (L—Inverness-Richmond) and Dr. Pierre Gauthier (L—Portneuf.)

In the opening stages, Trade Minister Howe announced the initial wheat payment for western producers will be $1.20 a bushel for the crop year beginning next May. It now is $1.75.

Considering Action

Justice Minister Garson said the government is considering the action of the post office in suspending the mailing privileges of certain Toronto brokerage houses which have been promoting western oil stocks.

Speaker Ross Macdonald announced the issuance of a warrant for a by-election in Montreal Cartier, made vacant by the recent election of Camille Hartt, Liberal. No date has yet been set for the contest.

Mr. Croll, introducing his resolution, said he wanted to put divorce on an honest basis because there was no legal field in which the law "is a greater hypocrite than in the divorce courts." His suggestion would not produce a flood of divorces.

Divorce decrees were doing the best they could, because they were bound by law and precedent. But he wanted to see the law amended to "grant relief in all circumstances where it appears wrong not to do so."

"I feel that our present law no longer adequately reflects the public need or the public mind," he said. "It is high time we funigated the divorce courts of this country and did away with perjury, collusion, connivance and fraud. In my view, the present law is unreal."

He stressed that he did not wish to interfere with the rights of Quebec and Newfoundland, the only two provinces without divorce courts.

Divorces Harmful Claim

Mr. Browne, a Roman Catholic and former Newfoundland judge, said he wondered why Mr. Croll did not recommend the establishment of a committee to study ways of strengthening the family. Divorce broke up families, destroyed homes and harmed society

Mr. Carroll, a former justice of the Nova Scotia Supreme Court who also identified himself as a Roman Catholic, felt that "hasty" marriages were one of the leading causes of divorce. Perhaps if adultery was made a crime, divorce would end.

Mr. MacDonnell suggested that marriage be made "too easy" with the result that people "rushed" in. It should be made a more solemn occasion." Perhaps if the ceremony lasted two or three hours, people would think twice about marrying.

Mr. McIver said the main causes of divorce were selfishness, drunkenness and a lack of faith in the Supreme Being. "Remove these causes and you will have no divorces," he added.

Dr. Gauthier felt that repeated divorces could only annihilate society. The family was the basis of society and that basis would be destroyed if parliament enlarged the already wide-open doors to the dissolution of marriages.

FLOOD WATERS

Floods Claim One Life

The floods claimed the life of one person, two-year-old W. L. Rooney was drowned in a stream near Thamesville in Kent County. Public health officials warned residents of Preston, five miles southeast of Kitchener, to boil drinking water. They declared a state of emergency, fearing water from the Grand River had contaminated the town's reservoir.

Boats were pressed into operation at Brantford and Preston. Some 100 isolated families were evacuated and mail delivery deliveries were made by boat in some cases. A doctor was taken by boat to the home of a child ill with measles. The Grand River at Brantford crested a little.

Waters were reported rising at one point, however, at the Lake Huron resort of Port Franks, police were calling Detroit to advise motorists owners their summer homes were in danger of being damaged by the rising Ausable River.

Drops Five Feet

At London, the north branch of the Thames River had dropped five feet from its peak, the south branch about two feet, during the Tuesday night crisis the north branch had risen 18 feet above normal and within four feet of the west London breakwater.

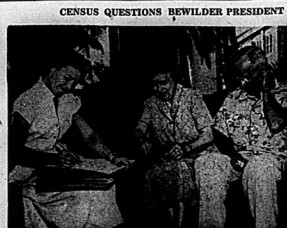
At Woodstock, 18-year-old Jack Nichols was rescued from the Thames River after he was caught in the swirling waters while standing in an old punt he had found near the shore.

In Eastern Ontario clearing skies combined with a drop in temperature well below the freezing mark, slowed the spring runoff overnight. With a high of only 30 degrees—nine degrees below Wednesday's high—forecast for this region today, it was hoped the floods would continue to recede.

Ice May Jam

Main threat for even more serious flooding along the Nation River lay in the possibility that the ice in the stream might start to "go out" piling up ice jams that would force the turbulent river out of its normal course.

Highway 31 between Winchester and Morrisburg was reported under 18 inches of water and at Inkerman farmers built two-foot high platforms in their barns to keep their livestock above the water.



Jack Kirkwood, who farms two miles south of Inkerman, said the flooded land surrounding his home looked "just like an ocean."

"All I can see is water, with the odd farmhouse or barn rising up like a desert island."

FIRST RAILROADS

The railroad era in Canada began in the 1830s and the first rail lines were generally "portage roads" built to connect water routes.

CENSUS QUESTIONS BEWILDER PRESIDENT TRUMAN

Census taker Mrs. Eileen M. Nolte is shown smiling while Mrs. Truman and daughter Margaret (right) laugh at the President's difficulty at answering one of the questions at Key West, Fla. Burns Fatal To Child Rescued By Father Pearson, Ont., April 6—(CP)—A farmhouse fire yesterday claimed the life of three-year-old Giselle St. Amand in his tiny farming community.

The tiny girl died of severe burns after her father carried her from the blazing home in a heroic rescue. The child died before reaching hospital in New Liskeard, 25 miles from here.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred St. Amand, were working out in the barn at the time the blaze broke out.

The couple dashed into the blazing home. Three young children in the downstairs rooms were quickly carried out in below-freezing weather.

St. Amand was unable to penetrate the smoke and flame to reach the upper storey of the house where young Giselle was trapped.

He ran for a ladder and placed it against an upstairs window. Then he broke through the window and reached his daughter. He carried her down the ladder to safety but the child had already suffered multiple burns on her face and body.

SERIOUSLY INJURED

Brantford, April 6 — (CP) — Neville Carefoot, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Carefoot, was seriously injured at home Wednesday night when he fell out of a second-storey window. His mother found him lying on the sidewalk after the fall. Just last Sunday, Neville's younger brother, David, returned from hospital after being seriously scalded.

RATES REMAIN UNCHANGED

Meaford, April 6 — (CP) — Hydro rates will remain unchanged during 1950, the public utilities commission announced Wednesday. Rates have been increased several other Georgian Bay centres this year.

Fuchs' Name Found in Notebook Says Lord Jowett

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, April 6—(CP)— Viscount Jowitt the Lord Chancellor, admitted yesterday that the name of atomic scientist Dr. Klaus Fuchs appeared in a notebook "belonging to a man who was one of those examined" by the Canadian Royal Commission on espionage set up in 1946.

He said the notebook and all other relevant material were made available to Britain at the time.

"Subsequent events, of course, have attached a significance to that name (Fuchs) which it did not then bear," Viscount Jowitt told the House of Lords.

The Lord Chancellor thus corrected a statement he made in the House of Lords last Thursday, referring to press statements about the German-born British scientist who was sentenced March 1 to 14 years in prison for betraying atomic secrets to Russia.

Lord Jowitt said Thursday there was no truth in press statements that at the time of the revelations of Soviet spy activities in Canada the Canadian authorities had given British security services a copy of a diary containing the name Fuchs.

He told the peers he was "misinformed" when he made that speech.

ALL-OUT PLEA MADE

Oshawa, April 6 — (CP) — Some 400 teen-agers attending Oshawa teen club dance Wednesday night heard a plea for all-out support of former president Donald McGarry, charged under the Lord's Day Act with charging admission for Sunday dances. Owen McMohan, operator of the hall where the dances were staged, was remanded Wednesday to April 20 along with McGarry.

The Basic Fact of Christian-Faith

By ROY L. SMITH

It has long been the custom among Christian preachers to proclaim the Easter message as if it were no more than an assurance of personal immortality.

It is that, of course, as the scriptures, the teaching of the Christian Church, and the faith of Christians testify. But it is more even than proof of immortality. It is the basic fact of the entire system of faith which rests back upon the life and teachings of Jesus of Nazareth.

It Produced the Church

It was their faith in the fact of the Resurrection which produced the church which the Christians organized. Had there been no Resurrection, or had the first century Christians not believed there had been one, there would have been no church.

The story of the raising of Jesus from the dead was the central theme which the early Christians went preaching throughout the ancient world.

It Produced Christian Theology

The vast system of theology produced by the Christian church is altogether the product of the Resurrection. Some explanation had to be found for this amazing personality who had appeared for the space of one brief lifetime among men, and then had gone out under such astounding circumstances.

The Greek world was a very practical and reasonable one, and the Greeks, scientific thinkers as they were, demanded an explanation for all mysteries. In trying to make out a case for Jesus of Nazareth, the resurrected leader of the new faith, the Christians had to offer a solution for the problem He posed. Their efforts produced the basic principles of our Christian theology.

It Produced the New Testament

It is a notable fact that whereas the matter of the miraculous birth is mentioned in only two books of the New Testament, the Resurrection is at the very centre of almost every one. True, two or three are primarily concerned with questions of church government and administration, but even they would never have come into existence except for the fact of the Resurrection.

It Produced the Martyrs

It was the Christians' faith in the fact of the Resurrection, and their confidence that they would share in its glorious triumph, that nerved the martyrs to defy the Roman Empire and go to their death with a shout upon their lips.

It was the vast reservoir of power that lay in the doctrine of the Resurrection which became the seedbed of the church, in that it was able to come up out of catacombs and prison camps stronger than it ever was before. The Meaning of the Resurrection

To the plain man—the humble Christian—the Resurrection is an assurance that we are living in a world in which God has the last word. Goodness, not evil, is the stuff of which eternity is made.

When Pilate put Jesus of Nazareth to death he had gone his limit. Death is the worst thing that evil can do. Beyond death it is powerless.

The Resurrection means that death is only an incident to God, a minor event along the way which does not in any way impede his work or delay his triumph.

The Resurrection means that no effort invested in righteousness and no sacrifice made in behalf of honor or truth, is ever wasted.

The Resurrection means that the man who is true and upright has an ally in time, and that reinforcements are waiting for him at the grave.

The Sunday School Lesson for April 9: "The Power of The Resurrection," 1 Corinthians 15; Luke 24:1-12.

It was to declare their faith in the Resurrection, or to clear up the thinking of the churches on the question of the Resurrection, that a considerable portion of the New Testament was written by the Christians.

Read your New Testament and measure the space given to the Resurrection, and you will discover that it constitutes by far the greatest bulk of any subject mentioned in the Christian scriptures.

It was the Christians' faith in the fact of the Resurrection, and

Dude College

By Oren Arnold

He himself couldn't have said what strange fury drove him, but Wes was on the fleeing man with a peculiar exultation. Both guns had been emptied. Wes literally tired at Girardeau in the last few feet to make a flying tackle such as any man who has played football knows.

They tought there furiously. Ronnie came running toward them fast.

Girardeau suddenly gained his feet but Wesley straightened upward, swinging under Girardeau's guard. Splack! The man's head snapped back; he fell limp. In 60 seconds more Wesley had Girardeau's hands tied with his own necktie.

"Wesley!" Ronica Bailey was shouting nearby now. "Oh-h, Wes!"

The officers had found Lona Montoya dazed but not critically hurt, even though in the landing she had fared worse than Girardeau. Mr. Starr gave first aid. The border patrol pilot took to the air and when he saw that Girardeau was safely captured—with Wesley and Ronnie waving to him—he flew back a few miles, landed for a moment and promptly took off again for his return.

It was marvelous how he could set the autogiro down and lift it from small places. When he came to the crashed monoplane this time all the others had gathered there waiting, and he left the government ship carrying — surprisingly — Girardeau's Indian prisoner.

Still panting Wes York stepped forward. He tore off the padding around the drum, then with pocket knife cut the rawhide head and took out the parcel concealed within it.

"You had the right hunch, Dr. York," Officer Starr said calmly. "That's the bomb sight."

The others—Ronnie especially — just looked on, enthralled Lona and Girardeau ha'l been handcuffed now.

"The U. S. Secret Service owes you a new hat, Dr. York." Starr went on. "You've lost yours. And there may be some points you and Miss Ronica want cleared up, eh?"

"Y-yes!" Ronnie could barely mutter it, nodding.

"Well," the officer looked with obvious respect at Ronnie and Wesley both "to tell you the truth, Girardeau isn't French, and the Monteya girl isn't Mexican. Our federal under-cover force has been checking close for weeks the Mexican government co-operating. He's German; she's some Asiatic mixup, probably part Japanese at least. And she was playing him for a sucker all along—ha! She and some Jap agents have a secret cache in Rainbow Canyon, with radio and everything."

"Oh-h-h!" murmured Ronnie wide-eyed. "So that's—"

"Finally," the officer went on. "She made Girardeau take the actual risk of stealing the bomb sight, but she would have taken it from him."

Wesley turned toward Lona to take it from under his very nose!" Lona glared now at Girardeau in obvious contempt "Engaged to thees Ronica, and make the love with me!"

Ronnie gasped. "No! I have never been engaged! Never! Why I—"

Starr resumed talking. "We know a lot more than we told anybody. But Dr. York, you sure saved us! We could get nothing clinched either way. I see now this Lona was working her treachery in two directions. And they would have gotten out of the country with this bomb sight today as sure as sin! An Indian drum—ha! And Bailey's own daughter!"

"I feel utterly flat," murmured Ronnie. "Wes, however did you know? You came—when I needed you most!"

Inspector Starr grinned "You two kids talk that out while me and the pilot take the prisoners in. He'll come right back for you. Ship won't hold all six of us."

They watched the autogiro soar off the weird mechanical bird it was, and when Wesley turned to Ronnie again he saw that she was trembling and had slumped a bit as if tired. He put a comforting arm around her.

"Ronnie," said he, ever so gently, "it's all over now, except that I simply must—I've got to—oh, you—" He swallowed. "Ronnie this Lona was a type who tried to get everything in life through her feminine appeal. And this Girardeau had money and a smooth way of—"

"Must we talk about them, Wes?"

"No. No indeed, Ronnie! It wasn't what I—I—you—Ronnie, could you ever be engaged to a—a mere college professor? Ever? I—"

Ronnie straightened up a bit and sighed dolorously. Then she took his face in her two hands, her eyes very close, and shook his fine head a little.

"Wesley York, if you don't kiss me—I—I've been throwing myself at you for weeks, I love you so! And I know you love me. Or—do you?"

Frost Claims Royal Commission On Education Has Been Making Excellent Progress Since 1945

Toronto, April 6 — (CP) — The Ontario legislature in a night sitting approved estimates of the education department.

By a vote of 40 to 34 the legislature defeated a motion by C. H. Millard (CCF-York West) which would have reduced the appropriation for the Royal Commission on education estimates from $50,000 to $1.

The commission was appointed in 1945 and Premier Frost promised a review of the commission's work in replying to opposition criticism of the fact it has not yet presented a complete report.

Premier Frost said the commission had been making "excellent progress in the face of an enormous task which is not fully realized by our people, or indeed by the House."

Mr. Frost presented a review of the commission's work which he indicated he had received from the commission.

It began in April, 1945, to hear submissions and hear evidence and continued to do so until 1946. Twelve public sessions were held. Recorded evidence amounted to some 2,500,000 words.

This was "the end of the beginning—the first stage," he said.

Special committees and investigators were appointed to study education under other jurisdictions in January, 1947, and considerable work for 18 months.

The committee then called for special reports on special education topics. Twenty-three of these were prepared.

Five standing committees were appointed to study and digest the submissions, evidence and special reports. This was completed in September, 1949.

A first draft of the report was made and recommendations to be incorporated were reconsidered and revised in private sessions ending last January.

"At present the commission is preparing and editing the final draft of its report for submission to the Lieutenant-Governor in council," Mr. Frost said.

The commission chairman is Mr. Justice J. A. Hope. There are 20 members, all Ontario residents representing various interests.

"Obviously the government and the people are not bound by the report," Mr. Frost said. "On the other hand, we all believe that the report will contain matters which will be of moment and interest to the people and the province."

Harry Nixon (Lib.-Brant) said the commission after sitting for five years had produced nothing more than a recommendation that teaching standards be lowered to meet a shortage of teachers.

"This report was ill-advised and met with no favor whatsoever in the province," he said.

"If we are going to vote another $50,000 and get nothing more useful than that I don't want to be associated with it."

C.C.F. leader E. B. Jolliffe said opposition members had been charged with discourtesy for criticizing the commission.

"No matter how eminent the members of the commission might be the people of Ontario have a right to call them to account."

The government felt "extraordinarily sensitive" about opposition criticism of the commission.

A. A. MacLeod (Lab.-Prog.—Toronto Bellwoods) said the commission had "far exceeded the normal period of gestation and it's time the child was born."

Mr. Millard's motion was designed "to shake this government out of its complacency, and particularly the Minister of Education who is the most complacent man who ever ambled across the political stage of this province."

Education Minister Porter, discussing estimates for education grants said the grants for vocational schools were some $700,000 less this year because higher grants for normal schools were discouraging municipalities from building academic high schools which might be more suitable for their particular purposes.

Mr. Millard asked Mr. Porter to give the assurance that under the new system of education grants announced earlier in the session municipalities would not be "worse off" than under the old grant system and that the new system would not come into full effect until next year.

Eritrea's Future Under Study By UN Commission

Lake Success, N.Y., April 6 (CP)—The United Nations machinery to dispose of Italy's three former colonies in North Africa is moving into high gear.

Five-country U.N. commission is scheduled to leave Eritrea Sunday for completing a six-week survey to learn what Eritreans believe should happen to their country.

Administration of Somaliland was transferred last weekend from Britain, whose troops liberated the area during the war, to Italy which will help the colony's affairs leading to independence in 1960.

Libyan Independent

In Libya, U.N. Commissioner Adrian Pelt is well along in preparations for calling a National Assembly which will be the territory's legislature when it receives independence Jan. 1, 1952.

The U.N. General Assembly decided last December on independence for Libya and Italian Somaliland. But it deadlocked on proposals for Eritrea. The survey, now drawing to a close, indicates the Assembly still will not have an easy task.

Failing to reach agreement on Eritrea, the Assembly decided that impartial observers should make on-the-spot check. Commission representatives from Norway, Burma, Pakistan, Guatemala and South Africa, the commission arrived Feb. 8 in Asmara, where more than 100,000 of the territory's 1,000,000 inhabitants are located.

At hearings conducted throughout the territory, the commission heard a flood of contradictory demands. They boiled down to unconditional union with Ethiopia, conditional union, complete independence, trusteeship under the U.N., partition between Ethiopia and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

Calls for union with Ethiopia were strong. Most of the population are of Hamitic origin, closely linked with Ethiopians.

The steaming territory, which has a 670-mile coastline along the Red Sea, now is administered by Britain, whose forces drove out Italian armies during the war.

The commission's report is to be delivered June 15 to the Little Assembly here which will make recommendations to be considered by the General Assembly in September.

Government Guards Against Wheat-Board Bankrupcy; Wheat Price Dropped to $1.40

Ottawa, April 6 — (CP) — Guarding against wheat - board bankruptcy, Trade Minister Howe has announced a drop in initial prices to be paid to western wheat farmers.

Beginning with the new crop year, Aug. 1, the initial price, under a three-year pool reasonable annually, will be $1.40 a bushel, instead of the current initial price of $1.75.

Trade Minister Howe, announcing this change in initial payments in the Commons Wednesday, said the new price will cover the 1950-51 crop year on deliveries to the board of No. 1 Northern wheat in storage points at Port Arthur, Fort William and Vancouver.

He also said that the initial prices for oats and barley in the 1950-51 crop year will be the same as in the current year — 93 cents a bushel for No. 2 Canada Western six-row barley and 65 cents for No. 3 Canada Western oats, both prices based on deliveries to Fort William and Port Arthur.

Because of the poor reception the Wheat Board's flax pool got from growers during the current crop year, the government still was undecided whether it will conduct another flax pool in the 1950-51 period.

However, if it did, the initial price paid will be $2.50 a bushel, the same price the Wheat Board paid on flax deliveries during the current year.

Says Initial Prices Fair

Manitoba agricultural leaders, commenting on the announcement, said the initial prices on oats and barley is "fair," but termed the wheat price "disappointing."

Agriculture Minister F. C. Bell of Manitoba said he was "a little disappointed" that the wheat price didn't reach the $1.54 minimum price under the International wheat agreement. The same sentiment was expressed by W. J. Parker, president of the Manitoba pool elevators. Both said the oats and barley initial prices would be acceptable to western farmers.

World wheat prices and the possibilities of a Canadian wheat surplus were the two main reasons given by Mr. Howe for the lower initial price.

He told the Commons the prices set must not only take into account the international wheat agreement floor for the forthcoming crop year, but also the year that followed.

In the 1950-51 year, the international agreement floor will be $1.54 a bushel and in the following year will drop to $1.43. The maximum price, fixed for the duration of the four-year multination agreement, is $1.80.

On Good Behavior For '14 Solid Years' Is Told Not to Return

Stratford, April 6 — (CP) — Anthony Van Marsbergen had the answer today when Magistrate A. F. Cook asked why the St. Thomas courts hadn't seen him lately. Van Marsbergen, charged with being drunk in a public place, said he just got out of Stratford's county jail.

The accused, who has appeared before Magistrate Cook many times both here and in St. Thomas on minor charges, said he was on good behavior for "14 solid years" until he met some friends who persuaded him to have a drink.

The hearing was adjourned indefinitely after the magistrate warned him to get out of town and never come back.

COAL CARRIERS FIRST TO CLEAR AT KINGSTON

Kingston, April 6 (CP)— The first two lake vessels to clear Kingston harbor this season left today for Sodus, N.Y., via Clayton, N.Y. The vessels are C.S.L. coal carriers Glenelg and Collier. They will load coal at Sodus and then return here.

The man's body was found in the field by a party of men working in a bush near the Purvis home, after Mrs. Purvis became worried about her husband's return. It is believed he had been lying in the field for some time.

Railway Has in Foreseeable Future Important Role to Play

By NORMAN MICHIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Saskatoon, April 6 — (CP) — Railroads will remain an integral part of the Canadian economy during the next half-century, says a transportation expert.

Dr. G. F. Britnell, head of the University of Saskatchewan's Department of Economics and Political Science, says:

"I don't think the picture is as black for the railways as some would paint it.

"The railway has in the foreseeable future a significant and important role in the life of Canada.

"There may be industrial areas — particularly the St. Lawrence valley — where road competition may be expected to make increasing inroads into rail traffic and revenues. But even there the railways are likely to continue to share the large traffic with their competitors."

In an interview, he said that "no matter how we predict technical changes" during the next 50 years, truck competition will not replace the freight train for the long-haul prairie handling of bulky staples such as grain and livestock.

And shippers of agricultural and other products between central Canada and the Maritimes, ore from the north, lumber from British Columbia "will probably continue to find the railways the most economic and effective means of transportation."

Trunk Lines Important

Trunk lines will likely make further gains in the short - haul fields — from rural centres to urban collecting points. But Dr. Britnell says that, even where road competition threatens the railways, they are dividing the market rather than losing it.

Airlines, as a faster medium, would compete mostly in the small-bulk-for-value fields.

Dr. Britnell, who submitted Saskatchewan's brief to the Royal Commission on Transportation, says the railways will have to be increasingly vigilant to take advantage of technological advances to offset competition.

"Even though the economy is expanding, Canada no longer is an open field in which they enjoy a virtual monopoly of transportation services over large areas. Competition will force them to share the fruits of national expansion, and to be more prudent in their operating policies."

In addition, Dr. Britnell forecast that the railways' role in the next half-century will be determined to some extent by the role of their controlling body, the Board of Transport Commissioners.

Must Have Large Staff

The board cannot adequately deal with transportation problems unless it is given "greatly-enlarged jurisdiction over competitive rates" and a larger technical staff to oversee and assess the operations of the roads, he said.

Dr. Britnell thinks current railway problems are a result of the history of Canadian railroad development. The east - west linking of the embryo nation was required to ensure a market for products manufactured in the east, and to develop the west as a market.

National policy also rushed through railroads, sometimes along uneconomic routes, to forestall a threatened economic and political assimilation of Western Canada by the growing and productive United States.

He suggested that regional inequalities should be offset by government subsidies: (1) To provide an effective freight-rate reduction in the prairie region, and (2) a second, or 'deficit' subsidy to the railways to guarantee satisfactory services despite inadequate operating revenue.

ROBIN HOOD BUTTERMILK SCONES

2 cups sifted Robin Hood Flour	4 tablespoons shortening
½ teaspoon soda	¼ cup plus 2 tablespoons buttermilk or sour milk
½ teaspoon salt

Wonderful old-fashioned scones that'll melt in your mouth — brought up-to-date and made better with Robin Hood!

1. Sift together flour, baking soda and salt into mixing bowl. Cut shortening into small pieces and add to dry ingredients. Blend together until mixture is mealy, using pastry blender (or two knives, cutting in with scissor-like motion).

2. Make a well in the center of mixture and gradually add the buttermilk or sour milk, stirring lightly with fork. Mix only until soft dough is formed.

3. Turn out onto lightly floured bakeboard or pastry cloth and divide in two equal portions. Gently roll out each piece with floured rolling pin or pat out with hand into circles ½ inch thick. Place circles on ungreased cookie sheet and cut in quarters, but do not separate the pieces. Bake at 450°F. (very hot oven) for 12 to 15 minutes. Makes 8 individual scones.

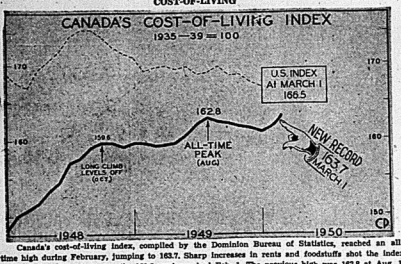
SPORTSMANSHIP IN CANADA "UNLIMITED"

A record crowd jammed Edmonton Arena in 1923 to watch the Commercial Graduates play — a top American squad. The prize was the first International Women's Basketball title—and a chance at the world championship.

The Grads had fought their way from the high school finals to become Dominion Champs. With the same spirit they clinched up two straight wins over the Americans. Europe was next . . . and without a loss, they became the first World Champion Women's Basketball Team.



Close teamwork and sportsmanship have won many firsts for Canadians. And teamwork, with sportsmanship, helps you, too—in work and play. Together they keep your scope for opportunity in Canada . . . unlimited.

COST-OF-LIVING

Canada's cost-of-living index, compiled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, reached an all-time high during February, jumping to 163.7. Sharp increases in rents and foodstuffs shot the index at March 1 up 2.1 points over the 161.6 mark reached Feb. 1. The previous high was 162.8 at Aug. 1, 1948. The solid line shows the course of Canada's index during recent months. The dotted line shows the trend of the Consumers' Price Index for moderate income families in large cities of the United States during the same period. It stood at 166.5 as of March 1. The two lines do not represent the relative costs of living in the two countries but merely show the trends of the two figures. — CP Photo).

Family Honors Sine Couple on 25th Anniversary

Sine — Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Elliott of Sine, who were celebrating their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary on March 25th, were pl···asingly surprised by their family, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Warren, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Morrow, at a delightfully arranged dinner party held in their honor. The party was held at the latter's home at River Valley, where fifteen guests were present to greet them upon their arrival.

There are three grandchildren, Allyn and Douglas Warren and Linda-Anne Morrow, who presented their grandparents with a corsage of tulips and daffodils, rose bud buttonnaire and a bouquet of mixed flowers, as they stood beneath an arch decorated in pink, white and silver, where they also received congratulations and best wishes from the guests.

The dinner table looked most attractive with cut flowers and lighted ivory tapers, while the ceiling above was equally lovely covered with balloons in every color.

During the dinner a beautifully iced anniversary cake was ceremoniously cut by the honored couple.

A program of toasts followed the dinner interspersed with humorous "fortunes" which were read by each guest.

Later in the evening a very fitting address was read when the guests of honor were presented with many lovely gifts, including a large wall mirror, silver cold water jug, large silver tray, walnut tea wagon, Kenwood blanket and an easy chair, along with several other gifts from friends not present.

The guests enjoyed several films shown on the projector, and a sing-song brought a happy evening to a close, with everyone wishing the bride and groom many years of happiness.

Among the guests were: Mr and Mrs. Thos. Elliott, West Huntingdon; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Elliott, Moira; Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Elliott, Frankford and Mrs. R. Townsend, Belleville.

Reds Edge Blacks In Collegiate Floor Hockey 8-7

By DON ROSE

Memorial Arena might have been the place to see action-packed ice hockey games, but the all-star floor hockey game staged at the Collegiate yesterday was one of the most action-packed, fastest, smoothest and just plain floor hockey games ever played in Belleville. The game was the annual affair as far as floor hockey is concerned in the school and the teams were dressed in the traditional 'Red' and 'Black' Clever playing was exhibited and the close checking and fast-breaking of both teams resulted in a close score of 8-7 in favor of the Reds.

Before 200 cheering students the boys did their stuff with, no punches pulled. Half time saw a total of fourteen penalties but all were deserved as both teams endeavored to stop any scoring play even if a penalty was the result. With both teams wide open the half score ended 5-5.

Referees Muirhead and Brown had their hands full again in the second half. For a few moments the Blacks got away from the Reds with Lewis netting the two scorers for his teammates. Cameron of the Reds broke the ice with a marker and netted another assisted by McBride five seconds later to tighten the game down again. In an effort to save every break-away the boys roughed it and penalties were liberally dished out, some in the favor of the crowd and others that brought the famous boo of unagreeable sports fans. Although both teams tussled their hardest and best for the remainder the Reds took the clash by a long goal.

All in all, the game produced spirited playing and hopes for better hardwood hockey. Tom Lewis was chosen outstanding player of the game by the spectators. Mr. Townsend deserves credit for his choice of players of each team.

Blacks: Coach Don Dolan; goal, Henderson; defence Butler; centre Coughlin; rover, Lewis; subs Dowsett, Walmsley, Cornell, Parsons, Barclay.

Reds: Coach, Tom Buchanan; goal, Wannamaker; defence, Greene, Varley; Rover, Doran; subs, Allen, Cameron, Farmer, McPherson, Casanoi.

Believes Woman Found Mutilated Victim of Pervert

Canton, N. Y., April 6 (AP)—The St. Lawrence County District Attorney said today he believed a sex pervert killed a woman found frozen Wednesday in a block of ice.

The nude mutilated body apparently had been in a ditch by a rural road for several weeks. Identity was not established.

District Attorney Charles E. Bowers said the woman had been cut across the abdomen and down both thighs. Her jaw and one side of her head had been smashed.

The coroner said the body apparently had been covered by snow piled up by plows. He expressed the theory that the snow had melted and frozen into a solid block of ice around the woman.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Bridge is full of smart players who make their partners smart. We have run across many of them. They ride or divide their partners, fascinate the nature of brutes. They are bullies at home. Or they have an inferiority complex of some kind that they are trying to hide. Or they have a mean streak that runs their neck when disappointed. Such do not take you aside to nicely point out an error you may have made. Their specialty is hurting it out before an audience. If awaiting each chance to kiss your sufferer shattered. What if they are more adept. that if they have a better memory. What if they know more. But if they lack taster. If critical they are fools and the worst enemy of their partners.

Even a dub is made worse by carping he gets during a game. What he knows is given out of him. What co-operation he is normally capable of is deranged or at least reduced.

In a deal, Elva Tyrne drew trumps by leading ace and king. I failed to drop the queen. Partner pounced on her without a bit of hesitation. "Now dintcha like a finesse, dope?"

Next came this deal:

NORTH
♠ 10 9 5 3
♥ J 5 3 2
♦ 7 6
♣ A Q

WEST	EAST
♠ 7 2	♠ 8
♥ Q 9	♥ A K 10 8
♦ J 9 6 2	♦ 10 8
♣ 10 9 4	♣ K 8 7 5 2

SOUTH
♠ A K J 6
♥ 7 6
♦ A Q 5 4 3
♣ 6 2

She became declarer in south at four spades. West led a club. Dummy club queen was shuffled to third diamond. So she wisely stopped on trick one with dummy's ace.

Safety calls for pulling two trump rounds with ace and king, but she attempted to please her partial partner by taking a trump finesse. This defeated her with a losing two hearts, a club.

When partner plays wrong it is a mistake to make an issue of it. Such action invite the best service by making your partner feel nervous. It is not smart to make a partner smart.

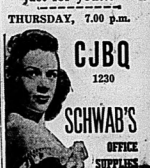
Chrysler said:
"We are considering the union proposal."

A previous Chrysler offer to put $50,000,000 into a pension fund has failed to bring a settlement.

The union Wednesday proposed:

1. That an actuary determine the cost of pensions for workers retiring within the next five years. The size of Chrysler payments to a pension fund would be sufficient to keep the fund sound. Payments could be on an hourly, weekly, monthly, or annual basis.



2. The fund would provide pensions of $100 a month, including federal social security, to all employes at 65 with 25 years service.

3. The company would set aside money at a rate which would pay off all back and future service credits of the plan were continued 30 years. Back service means all time worked before the plan would go into effect. Future refers to time worked from the date the plan started.

COUNTESS FOUND INSANE

Naples, April 6—(Reuters)—A court Wednesday found the once beautiful, now emaciated Countess Pia Bellentani "insane and socially dangerous." She was committed to an institution.

Countess, young mother of two children, was accused more than a year ago of shooting dead Milan industrialist, Carlo Sacchi as he danced with a red-haired fashion model in a crowded night club.

TWO SHOT DEAD

Singapore, April 6—(Reuters)—Terrorists Wednesday shot dead a 38-year-old Chinese radio salesman and auctioneer in the central Malayan town of Raub. He had gone with his children to pay at his mother's grave on the Chinese festival of Cheng Beng (the veneration of the dead). While he was at the graveside two men jumped from behind a hedge firing and killed him.

Possible Merger Of Two Unions Serious Topic

Washington, April 6 (AP) —A possible merger of the A.F.L. and C.I.O. has suddenly become a serious topic of conversation in labor circles.

The reason: A.F.L. president William Green's observation that the chances for such a move are "better today than they have been in the past six years."

Green was commenting on a proposal put forward by Philip Murray, president of the C.I.O.

Murray invited the A.F.L., John L. Lewis's United Mine Workers, the International Association of Machinists, and the Railroad Brotherhoods to join in a grand program of co-operation on legislation, politics, and economic problems.

Once that is done, Murray said, the groups could work toward unification into a single organization of some 16,000,000 members. The A.F.L. claims 8,000,000 in its rolls, the C.I.O. 6,000,000 and the other organizations about 2,000,000 together.

Green and Murray have split in the past over how unification should be accomplished, and their differences still seemed to exist.

The A.F.L. chief favors immediate consolidation—as contrasted with the step-by-step procedure suggested by Murray. Green made clear in an interview Wednesday in New Orleans that he hasn't changed his mind.

The interest of labor could best be served by the establishment of one strong, united organization," he said. "Anything less would be temporary."

Murray said he would be available at any time to discuss the unity question with Green, and others. Lewis later quit the C.I.O.; for a time the United Mine Workers returned to the A.F.L. but now they are independent, like the machinists and railroad brotherhoods.

Lewis said he had received Murray's letter but had not yet looked it over.

Chrysler Scans New Peace Offer By Workmen

Detroit, April 6 (AP) —Chrysler Corporation, strikebound for 72 days, scanned a union peace offer today.

Whether the proposal would break the long deadlock over financing $100-a-month pensions remained to be seen.

However, the United Automobile Workers Union (CIO) abandoned their demand that a specific number of cents an hour be set aside in a pension trust fund in the dispute, which has made idle 140,000 workers, this was considered significant. Chrysler has resited a settlement on a cents-an-hour basis.

The union made its offer Wednesday. It said its proposal "completely overcomes" management objections.

Six hours after the ofer was put on the bargaining table,

AT THE CAPITOL — That famous team of Bob Hope and Bing Crosby, the comedy kings of screen, radio and TV, is now starring at the Capitol Theatre today, Good Friday and Saturday, in his latest, hilarity-packed Paramount picture, "Bells of Coronado." The Capitol has a special matinee for the children's show Good Friday and Saturday.

AT THE BELLE — Love and Laughter. Principals in the hilarious husband-hunting project of the heroine in "Bride for Sale," are enacted by Claudette Colbert, Robert Young and George Brent. This rousing romantic romp, given the three stars a delightful workout, which carries the merriment right up to smash climax. The picture is continuing today and Friday at the Belle Theatre.

AT THE CAPITOL — First time on the screen, Popular Roy Acuff in Up Comedian's "Smoky Mountain Melody," action musical at the Capitol Theatre for its last showing today, Friday and Saturday. On the same program, Bob Crosby's Bobcats in person. Continuous show Friday and Saturday.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, April 6 — (AP) — Nearing the end of his first year in show business, John Barrymore, Jr., declares "I'm in it to stay."

The younger great profile, acutely modest of his young abilities, added: "At least it's me to stay; I don't know how long I'll last."

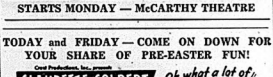
Almost a year ago, I met young John for the first time. Leaving a sheltered childhood, he had signed his first movie contract. He bore a remarkable likeness to his famed father (whom he remembers seeing only once). But he also possessed a youthful reticence.

Today, the paternal resemblance is more marked. As I talked with him for a progress report, the 17-year-old actor also evidenced some of the flair that made his father one of the great names of the theatre.

John, has completed two pictures. Although he likes the film as a whole, he believes his acting "stinks" in the first one, "The Sundowners."

Stinks Better

Of his second film, "The High Lonesome," he opined, "I stink a little better."



His aunt Ethel saw his filth debut, but made little comment to the boy himself. She did however, suggest voice lessons, which John has been taking. So far no comment has come from Uncle Lionel. John has seen him only three times in 13 years.

"Neither of them wants to coach me," John explained. "They have their styles of acting and they want me to develop my own."

The fear of imitating his father still haunts John. "I lay awake nights worrying about it," he said. "I don't see how anyone could be the same as someone he had seen only once. But when I saw my father in 'The Great Profile,' I was amazed how much he seemed like me."

Aside from two pictures, John has also been on an almost continuous appearance tour, visiting nearly every metropolis and a great many whistle stops. "I've worked three times as hard selling pictures as I have making them," he said.

PRESERVE THE PICKEREL

Spawn-laden pickerel will shortly be finding their way to ice-free rivers and streams of the district. Each fish will deposit 80,000 eggs in its "nest". Left to themselves, the female pickerel and her mate will reproduce and bring to maturity between 200 and 300 fish and over a period of four years will produce 1,000 to 1,200 active fish, the first 300 of which will reproduce others. The result: well-stocked streams and plenty of fish for everybody.

But looming behind this attractive piscatorial picture is the menace of the annual Spring slaughter. Synonymous with the approach of the pickerel to spawning grounds, spears are being sharpened in darkened garages, kitchens and other places. Dip-nets and grappling irons are being readied. The pickerel killer is getting prepared to strike. Acting with him will be spawn-destroying fish, weather conditions and pollution. A heavy toll of spawning pickerel, and their eggs is exacted each year through this media.

Nothing much can be done regarding the spawn-eating perch, bullheads, suckers and pike which follow the pickerel. Lots can be said and nothing done about the weather. Pollution can be reduced perhaps, but something can and will be done regarding the wanton slaughter of these producing fish by those who apparently derive enjoyment from nocturnal spearing and other illegal fishing activities.

During the past few years, hundreds of spawning pickerel have been caught and a great number tossed aside to rot on river or stream bank because of the killer lust of some of these stark-dark "sportsmen". This is especially true of the district extending between Trenton and Shannonville, with emphasis on the Salmon River near the latter place. Game overseers and police have done a fine job in curbing the practice, but they cannot be in a dozen places at the same time.

During the past few weeks, a number of those taking pickerel illegally do not do so merely for the fun of fishing. Some do it for financial gain, selling their catches to friends and neighbors, others merely take sufficient for their own needs. In any event the temptation is strong, but that does not relieve any of the responsibility of breaking the law. All are equally guilty.

Let's put it this way. A farmer would not kill a cow about to freshen, nor a sow carrying a litter of pigs. He would not decapitate a setting hen with eggs ready to hatch. Or in a broader sense, the farmer wishing to replace his herd with new stock would not kill the entire herd before it had freshened.

A government official has stated that if the taking of female fish at spawning time continues there is a possibility of a complete loss of reproduction for at least three seasons. This will lead to one thing, the posting of all streams and inland lakes in this district with fishing strictly prohibited until the fish population is back to normal.

Three very important points should be considered by those who purchase pickerel out of season. First, if the vendor is without a license he would be in illegal possession, and which state is immediately yours when the purchase is completed. Second, if the fish were taken in the Moira River or other inland waters it is illegal by reason of a closed season. And third, and this is very important, the flesh of any fish just before or after the period of reproduction is not properly edible, and worst of all, if it is a female fish and taken before the spawn is deposited, you are in possession of 100 fish, for even under unfavorable circumstances the hatch would yield that much.

So when you buy a pickerel or any other game fish taken during closed season, it is not only illegal, but if you enjoy angling or if you cater to the tourist business, you are helping to eat the proverbial cake and speeding the approaching catastrophe.

It has been announced that the law governing the taking of fish illegally will be rigidly enforced Game overseers and conservation staffs will be augmented. No matter if you are the local equivalent of the Aga Khan or Mickey from across the tracks, the Colonel's Lady or Judy O'Grady, if found fishing illegally, or in illegal possession, you will feel the full force of the law.

The present picture as far as game fish is concerned, is alarming but not discouraging providing every local citizen gives his co-operation. The Game and Fish Associations of Belleville and Napanee in co-operation with the Department of Lands and Forests, are exerting every effort to conserve the game fish of the district. They believe that with proper protection and treatment the fish will, in their own way, provide this area with fine angling and fishing for all concerned as well as making it attractive to tourists who intend spending vacations in this part of Ontario.

Leafs and Wings Start Even In Fifth Game of Stanley Cup Semi-Final Series Tonight

Detroit, April 6 — (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs, seeking to make hockey history by winning the Stanley Cup three times in succession, had to start from the ground up today.

That overtime goal by Detroit's Leo Reise, which gave the National Hockey League champion Red Wings a 2-1 victory at Toronto Tuesday, made a vast difference in the drive for the cup-holders. Leafs and Wings have each won two games and tonight's fifth game is a toss-up. Odds here on the single game were 6-5, take your choice. But on the Stanley Cup title, the odds were 6-5 in favor of the Leafs.

Tonight's game actually starts a new series with the sixth game at Toronto Saturday and the seventh, if necessary, back here on Sunday night. A proposal by Detroit that the seventh game be delayed to next Sunday night has been rejected by Toronto, with the league headquarters overruling.

Coach Hap Day of Toronto is expected to stay with the line-up that has battled Detroit to a draw so far. But Howie Meeker, coach, Tommy Ivan, called up three replacements from Indianapolis of the United States Hockey League play-offs. They are John and Larry Wilson, brothers, and Marcel Pronovost. John Wilson is a left-winger, Larry a centre, and Pronovost a rugged defenceman.

Peters is out

Jimmy Peters, who missed the Tuesday game because of a knee injury, may start tonight for Detroit. Local fans will also get their first look at the new line of Sid Abel at centre, Ted Lindsay at right wing and defenceman Red Kelly on left wing.

The Abel-Lindsay-Howe line which led all scoring in league play, was broken when Howe was injured in the first game last week. For two games after that Detroit used Couture at right wing in place of Howe. Tuesday they put Kelly at left wing and switched Lindsay from his regular left-wing spot to the right boards.

The Leafs were to arrive this afternoon from St. Catharines. Leafs' managing director Conn Smythe, and Clarence Campbell, president of the N.H.L., were in Cleveland Wednesday night for the opening of the American Hockey League final. Both commented on the Detroit suggestion that the seventh game, if a seventh game is necessary, should be held over to next Tuesday. Detroit contended that the overnight train ride from Toronto's Saturday night game would tire both teams.

Smythe said: "They (the play-off dates) are still satisfactory to us, and that's when the games will be played."

Baseball's New Balk Rule Certain To Hurt Hurlers

Daytona Beach, Fla., April 6 — (CP) — If you hear of a fellow walking along the street and mumbling "thousand and one," "Johnny loves Mary" or "one, two, three," give him a sympathetic ear. He's probably a pitcher, or an umpire, honing up on baseball's new balk rule.

The guy's mumbling may be accompanied by some weird gestures, but if he can say one of those phrases in a second — and in less — he'll probably avoid chubarbs in the ball parks this summer. In short, he's learning how not to balk — in the case of the pitcher — or how and when to call them, in the case of the arbiter.

The "thousand and one" business was dreamed up at the winter meeting of Major League ball officials when they brought in the new rule. It means that a pitcher must pause at least one second on completion of his stretch with men on base before pitching.

There'll be no more of those deliveries, the rule-makers say.

Frank (Shag) Shaughnessy of Montreal, president of the International League, has been making the rounds of the minor-league training camps and explaining the new rule to managers, coaches, umpires and players. He figures all will be rory if the hurlers will just mutter "thousand and one" after the stretch before throwing.

Certain to be Ratified

It sounds, and looks, simple the way Shag talks about it. "Just say 'thousand and one' and fire," he says. But a number of pitchers and the training camps are loaded with them — want to make good and, with men on base in exhibition games, they're almost certain to be victims.

In a Boston Braves — Detroit Tigers Grapefruit League game at St. Petersburg, Johnny Sain had five balks called against him although the Braves outlasted the Tigers 18-16. In a Toronto-Philadelphia Athletics game at Fort Lauderdale, balks were called twice against Leaf pitcher Paul Stuffel and both times Philadelphia runners, parked on third base, were waved in.

Using the "thousand and one" formula and a stop-watch, we have seen at least 20 balks in various games — and another 30 ignored by the umpires. The pitcher probably forgot his "thousand and one" line and the umpire forgot his.

Y.M.H.A. Blues Win Second Game From Manitoba

Montreal, April 6 — (CP) — University of Manitoba hopes of capturing the Canadian senior basketball crown suffered a serious setback Wednesday night when Montreal Y.M.H.A. Blues defeated the Westerners 47-34 to take the second straight game in the best-of-five final round.

The more experienced Montrealers practically romped over the Blues, who played spotty, missing scoring opportunities and offering a weak defence.

Blues, on the other hand, looked like a powerhouse on their smooth-clicking passing combination and bright defensive moves continually left the younger Westerners backtracking.

Veteran Doodle Bloomfield turned in a brilliant performance for Montreal, sinking four field goals and three free tosses for 11 points. He was matched by Manitoba's Carl Bidd, who connected for the same number of free tosses and field goals.

Roy William and Jack Willett each scored five points for Blues while Sol Yelchinsky was the second high Montreal sniper with 10. Murray Waxman followed with nine.

Montreal held a 2-17 lead at halftime mark, and steadily moved out in front from there on.

Coach Joey Richman predicted that his Montreal would win the series in three straight games following Wednesday night's victory. He said the West didn't appear to be a match for the Montreal squad. Third game in the series is scheduled for tonight.

Rookie Goalie Revives Hopes Of Canadiens

Montreal, April 6 (CP)—Rookie goal-tender Gerry McNeil has revived Montreal Canadiens' dwindling hopes in their Stanley Cup semi-final playoffs with New York Rangers.

Gerry took over the net-minding duties on short notice from Bill Durnan who couldn't go on because of after-effects of an injury suffered late in the regular National Hockey League season.

The rookie goalie from the Habitants' farm club, Cincinnati Mohawks of the American Hockey League, stepped into his first playoff game Tuesday when Canadiens chalked up their only victory in four start against New York—A 3-2 overtime decision.

Now the team, forced against the wall with a 3-1 deficit in the semi-finals, are pinning their hopes largely on McNeil,

Coach Dick Irvin, pleased with the club's comeback, isn't counting too much on any crack-up in Rangers' camp because of the loss.

"Of course it could act that way," he said, "but I can't string along with that theory. The Rangers are a fighting team and remember, the pressure is still on us."

Can Afford to Lose

"Rangers can afford to lose another game. We can't."

Besides McNeil, Canadiens will have four rookies for tonight's game, Tom Johnson, defenceman from Buffalo Bisons, another A.H.L. farm club for the Habitants, is the last one to get the call.

Paul Meger, a Buffalo winger, Bobby Frambton and Bert Hirschfield, forwards recalled from Cincinnati for the series will complete the rookie line-up.

Calum MacKay may have to be sidelined with an aggravated leg injury, Kenny Reardon with a dislocated shoulder and Rip Riopelle with a leg injury are other teammates that had to be excluded for the series.

Meanwhile, coach Lynn Patrick of the Rangers said he would most likely dress the same 18 players he used Tuesday.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

Augusta, Ga., April 6 — (AP)— Norman Von Nida, the little bereal wearing Australian who is paired with another little guy, Ben Hogan, for today's opening round of the Masters Golf Tournament, must have tried out fifty clubs since he has been here . . . Von Nida likes the American-made implements better than those he can get at home and is trying to find a set that suits him exactly to take along to the British open . . . Sammy Snead complained he "never was so nervous" the morning of his final practice round which could be taken as a good or bad sign. Some experts figure it was the pressure of being favorite that ruined Cary Middlecoff here last year in the Elite tournament, but others recalled nervous gents who played way over their heads as a result.

What's the Youth?

Ace Packer, Duke University backfield coach, encountered centre Jim Gibson, injured in spring football practice, in the university fonacial parlor the other day . . . "How's the shoulder, Gibb?" Packer queried politely . . . "Not so good, coach," replied the 24-year-old athlete. "Guess I'm getting too old for this game." . . . With a perfectly deadpan expression, Ace matched Gibson's sigh and said: "That's the way I felt once — when I was 35."

Dick Irwin Tells Of Drama Behind Thriller-Diller

By The Canadian Press

All drama in that dream-drenched hockey thriller-diller won by Montreal Canadiens Tuesday night at Montreal wasn't confined on the ice. "

One scene was in a little anteroom off the Canadiens' dressing room.

But first there was the sensational mid-day announcement that Gerry McNeil would go into Canadiens' net to face the ramparing New York Rangers, already three games up in the series.

And it was silling Bill Durnan veteran ace goalie, who requested his understudy replace him "for the good of the club."

Coach Dick Irwin told the rest of the story finally Wednesday night.

"The players had started dressing when Bill walked in. I told him to take Gerry in the anteroom, give him a pep talk, buoy him up and tell him not to worry.

"A few minutes later I stepped into the room myself and what do you think I saw? The two of them in there crying, yes, crying, and Bill, his voice shaky and his hand trembling uncontrollably, was saying, 'now Gerry, don't be nervous, don't be nervous, everything will be all right.'"

Edmonton Mercurys, en route home from their triumphant hockey invasion of Europe, Wednesday night at Ottawa were given a warm-up for the big welcome awaiting them in Edmonton today.

An even dozen of their fellowtownsmen, including the mayor, Sydney Parsons, formed the welcoming committee as the world's Amateur Hockey champions arrived in the capital by air. The team was tendered a banquet before departing by air for Edmonton.

At Hamilton, Jack Gair, popular centre player with Hamilton Tigers of the Ontario Lacrosse Association, Senior League for the last four seasons, is the latest to take over the coaching duties when the 1950 season opens in May.

Most Gentlemanly Player Award To Johnny Chad

New York, April 6 (CP)—The American Hockey League announced today that veteran Johnny Chad of Providence Reds has been selected unanimously by the league's staff of referees for the "most gentlemanly player" award.

The combined effective playing ability, clean sportsmanship and gentlemanly conduct over the 1949-50 season earned for Chad a first place vote by each of the six referees. They balloted for three players each, with five votes for first, three for second and one for a third selection.

Pat Lundy of Indianapolis was the runner-up with nine-points. Jackie Gordon of New Haven was third with eight.

FROM SANCTUARY

Kingsville, April 6 — (CP) — Easter Saturday the CBC will carry a coast-to-coast "bird sound" broadcast from the Jack Miner bird sanctuary here. Called the Saturday afternoon magazine of the air, the program will be broadcast from 3 to 3:30 p.m. EST.

Cornwall no Match For Toronto Marlies

Ottawa, April 6 (CP)— Toronto Marlboros now are considered almost sure bets to eliminate Cornwall Calumets in the Eastern Canada Senior semi-finals when they clash in Toronto Friday night in the fourth game of their best-of-seven series.

The Ontario Hockey Association titlist built up a four-goal lead in the opening period Wednesday night; then coasted to a comfortable 8-4 win in the third game of the series, after taking the first two 7-1 and 12-2.

The Eastern Canada Senior Hockey League champions showed more power and drive than in previous meetings, but met a stone wall in goalie Don Lockhart. The ace custodian turned back drive after drive and robbed Calumet forwards of several easy goals.

Marlboros' Bill (Red) Johnson garnered three points in the game banging in two goals and helping on one other. Chuck Blair also potted two counters. George Armstrong, Scotty Mair, Danny Lewicki and Al Buchan scored the others.

Freddie Gardner was best for the Calumets driving home two goals. Bert Lilly and Pete Long were the other snipers for the losers. Rheal Savard collected assists on both Gardner's tallies.

The Dukes hammered in four goals in the opening stanza without a reply from the Calumets. They outscored the Cornwall crew 2-1 in the middle frame but the Calumets came back to outscore the Marlies 3-2 in the final.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By DAVE STOCKAND
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, April 6 — (CP) — Ever heard of a swimming champion from the Sahara Desert, or a great mountain climber from the plains of Kansas?

Likewise, where are tomorrow's Stan Leonards and Ben Hogans going to come from if Kenleyro Golfers have no place to practice their puts?

That's the moan of Eric (Vancouver Province) Whitehead who writes of a "strange local paradox."

No Place To Go

"Here we are in the so-called evergreen playground of Canada, with the country's greatest approach to a year-round golfing climate and — - thousands of Embryo and would-be golfers have no place to go."

Vancouver, Eric points out, has only nine 18-hole courses. Two, by virtue of a rule of members clubs, are "open only to sons and daughters of present members."

Across the other hand, Winnipeg, a city about two-thirds the size of Vancouver, has 18 courses. Cleveland, Ohio, a city of comparative size, has 50, and "more building."

The Outcome

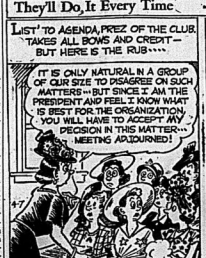
Junior interest in the game is necessary "to bring on a badly-needed crop of new players to take over in national competition when the current crop of outstanding amateurs fades away," says Eric.

No Sympathy

It is cnaldered unlikely, writes Andy (Vancouver Sun) Lytle, that Hazen McAndrew of Vancouver Canucks of the Pacific Coast Hockey League will:

1. Throw any more punches at referees.

2. Any more pucks in the Pacific Coast League.



McAndrew was indefinitely suspended for throwing at least four punches at a referee, and, Says Andy, taste greatly "has had it."

Two northern division club owners, he says, believe the player has "forfeited the right to symbolic consideration."

"They consider the attack not only vicious, but unprovoked. There is no legitimate excuse at any time for players or managers to attack or violently abuse officials. The National Hockey League learned this the hard way and reformed on discovery that men of integrity and self-respect wouldn't take the job at any price because of the abuse that went with it."

They'll Do, It Every Time

By Jimmy Hatlo

The survivor of this series will advance into the Eastern Canada final with either Sherbrooke Saints or Quebec Millionaires for the right to go against the western champions for the Allan Cup.

POLICE CHIEF APPOINTED

Oshawa, April 6 — (CP) — Lockhart W. Trimell, 55, who retired in 1939 after 25 years on the Toronto police force will get back into harness May 1 when he takes over as Pickering's chief constable. He was selected over 45 other applicants to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Chief Irvine.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was downtown today, and after supper she said to pop, really William, I mean really, there's nothing more amusing to a philosophical bystander than a crowd of excited women in an auction room bidding for something with no idea why they want it in the first place, and no conception of what in the world they would do with it in the 2nd place. You'd never guess what they were bidding on, when I dropped into the Salem Auction Rooms this afternoon. It was a white screen covered with flying pink angels. Honestly, William, it was better than a show, she said.

You're lucky you didn't get bitten by the mass hysteria and start to bid at the top of your voice, pop said, and ma said, Now William, you know we have no need or place or room for another screen, particullilly such a screen. That's why you could of blown me over like a feather when the auctioneer announced, "Sold to the good looking lady with the green hat." William, he meant me, ma said.

..No! pop said, and ma said Yes, I been scratching my nose and he mistook the gesture.

Well, that was his mistake, pop said, and ma said, Of course, but he was sutch a nice man, and he paid me sutch a pritty compliment on my perfect taist and exceptional judgement, how could I end the situation with a vulgar early climax by explaining that I had merely scratched my nose?

And after all, my sister Fanny has a berthday coming up, so I had bid, so you better not tell me, pop then send the screen direct to her said.

With my card pinned on it. Fanny is sbsilutely screen crazy, ma said, ..That's just the way I'll probably be if you tell me how mutch you paid, so you better not tell me, pop

Cincinnati Reds To Sink or Swim With Blackwell

By JACK HAND

Columbia, S.C., April 6. (AP) —Once again the Cincinnati Reds figure to sink or swim with Ewell Blackwell in his comeback try.

Despite a rosy record in the Grapefruit league, manager Luke Sewell knows he does not have a solid ball club. Outside few outfield changes, it's the same team that finished seventh, only one game out of eight, last Fall.

With a sound Blackwell, taking a regular turn, there is hope of bettering the Reds' said 1949 record.

Taking it slow and easy, Blackwell has not been firing the ball with his old zip. The 22-game winner of 1947 has been experimenting to see how far he can go with half-speed pitches and soft stuff.

Kenney Raffensberger, the crafty 10-year-older with the "cannon ball" pitch, was the 1949 pitching ace with his brilliant 18-17. Kenny goes a long way with soft stuff and appears in good form.

Herm Wehmeier, 23-year-old righthander, should be a regular winner. Howie Fox, despite a 6-19 record last year, probably will take a turn. The fifth game is open with Kent Peterson, Johnny Hetki and Harry Perkowski leading candidates.

Second Base Serious

The second base problem is so serious that Giles grabbed Lou Klein from St. Louis to fill it. Klein, however, has been slow rounding into form. It probably will be necessary for aging Jimmy Bloodworth, to step in again. Grady Hatton at third and Red Stallcup at short are fixtures. So is Ted Kluszewski, the hulking first baseman whom Sewell calls all "the best hitter I've seen in Florida."

Sewell is wrestling with an outfield problem. It looks now as though he will open with Danny Litwhiler in left, Johnny Wyrostek in centre and Ron Northey, the chubby ex-Card, in right. Marv Rackley, Lloyd Merriman, the bonus kid, and Bob Usher are other candidates.

Walker Cooper, veteran catcher, has looked great. He is in shape and hustling.

Terry Sawchuk Brilliant in Capitals' Win

Cleveland, April 6 — (AP)— Chunky Terry Sawchuk, 20-year-old Indianapolis goalie, got credit today for putting the Capitals one-up on Cleveland Barons in the best-of-seven American Hockey League finals.

Indianapolis won the opener 4-1 here Wednesday night before 7,121 fans. Sawchuk made 43 stops. Eighteen of them were in the last period when the Barons slashed the puck at him from all distances and directions.

The second game of the series will be played here Saturday.

After a scoreless first period, Gerry Reid got the Cap's first score at 3.23 of the second period. Rod Morrison got the second Indianapolis tally at 8.22.

The other two goals for the winners were scored by defenseman Al Dewsbery at 10.04 of the second period, and by Pat Lundy at 4.44 of the last period.

Cleveland's only score was by Ted Sloan at 9.41 of the second period.

Rundown Woman Praises Syntona for Helping Her

Was Always Tired; Nerves on Edge, Had Poor Digestion, Frequent Headaches and Many Spells. Feels Much Different Since Taking the Herbal Compound.

MRS. DORIS ANSLOW

"I am certainly glad I began taking Syntona when I did, and I do not hesitate to recommend it to other sufferers," said Mrs. Doris Anslow, 2359 Taylor St., Niagara Falls, Ontario, in a recent report.

"I was in a badly rundown condition. I was tired all the time, could not sleep, nerves were on edge, I could hardly stand the children complaining. Evening dishes to do was enough to set me going to bed more tired than ever. My digestion was all upset and I had headaches and dizziness. I would get many spells and my sleep was broken. I had pains in my back, limbs and muscles.

"Reading in the paper about Syntona, I decided to get a bottle, I went to try it and after taking only one bottle I found some relief. I went right on taking it, and now I feel so much better. I have taken three bottles and all the troubles mentioned above have disappeared. The headaches and dizziness cleared up, I am free of aches and pains and my strength returned. Instead of feeling tired all the time, I now have my old energy and even my work is easier to do.

Syntona is made from the pure liquid extracts of herbs. Nature's own medicines. It helps to stimulate elimination, to help neutralize and aid in the elimination of excess acids and impurities and promotes better assimilation of food for increased energy and vitality.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

Combines Stay In Memorial Cup Hunt With Win

Toronto, April 6 (CP)— A lot of fight sometimes goes a long way.

Wednesday night the battling Peterborough Combines, outclassed in everything but determination, upset Guelph Biltmores 3-2 in the third game of the Eastern Canada Junior Hockey semi-finals.

Defeated 7-5 and 2-0 in the earlier games, the Northern Ontario champions jolted Guelph with a three-goal outburst in the first period and then hung on while the awakened southerners stormed desperately but unsuccessfully for the next 40 minutes.

Bill Harrington, a 17-year-old Toronto product, stole the show as he gave a sparkling display in the Peterborough net and put six forwards on the ice but still failed to get the equalizer.

Art Stanlake, Reds Braggnalls and John Mestan fired goals for Porcupine in the first period. Guelph rallied in the second with Andy Bathgate and Ron Plumb counting. The third period was scoreless.

The Combines got their second goal while actually two men short. Darrel McLaughlin was in the penalty box for tripping. Stanlake was just returning from a holding penalty but hadn't got into the play when Mestan hooked the puck near the left boards and the Biltmore zone.

Mestan went around one Guelph player, circled in front of the net, drew out goalie Dennis Mooney and flipped the puck into the Biltmore goal.

Fourth game of the best-of-seven series will be played in Guelph Friday night with the fifth in Toronto Saturday afternoon. The series winner meets Montreal Canadiens in the Eastern Junior final.

Coach Jerry Beland complained after the game about the fourth game going to Guelph but said he would make no formal protest. He said the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association had arranged for the first four games to be split between Toronto and Ottawa.

Displaced Persons Bill Finally Passes Senate

Washington, April 6 (AP) — Legislation to let additional thousands of European refugees come to the United States to make their homes passed the Senate late Wednesday night.

The bill, liberalizing the 1948 Displaced Persons Law by raising the number that can be admitted to 359,000, caps a long and bitter struggle in the Senate. Republicans and Democrats in almost equal number joined to put it over, by a final vote of 56 to 15.

As passed, after stormy session that lasted nearly 12 hours and set a record on the number of roll call votes (20) it conforms in its essentials to a measure passed by the House of Representatives last June.

The measure now goes to a joint Senate-House conference to iron out minor differences.

The arguments was largely over terms on which various members felt strongly—there was general agreement along on the bill's principles of admitting more refugees.

Provisions Eliminated

The Senate bill eliminates provisions of the 1948 act which President Truman assailed in his election campaign as discriminatory against Roman Catholics and Jews.

The bill would extend the present program for a year beyond June 30 and increase the number of refugees eligible for admission to the U.S. from 205,000 to 359,000, including orphans and adopted children.

It also would wipe out requirements that 40 percent of the D.P.S. admitted be from the Baltic States and 30 percent be farmers. It would advance the eligibility "cut-off" date from Dec. 22, 1945, to Jan. 1, 1948.

Together, these three changes erase the principal provisions that gave rise to the charges of religious and racial discrimination in the present law.

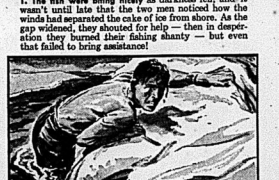
INDIAN SWIMS 100 YARDS THROUGH ICE FLOES FOR HELP



Tom Porte, of Jackson's Point, Ont., risks life in Lake Simcoe to get aid for friend

1. The fish were biting nicely as darkness fell, and it wasn't until late that the two men noticed how the winds had separated the cake of ice from shore. As the gap widened, they shouted for help — then in desperation they burned their fishing shanty — but even that failed to bring assistance!

2. Tom Porte, a 25-year-old Ojibway, decided to act. Stripping almost completely, he plunged into the dark, wind-swept water and swam through the broken ice to shore, a hundred yards away. His shivering comrade, Joe Latremouille, remained on the drifting floe, praying that Tom would be able to win out in his gallant fight.

3. Piled-up ice prevented Tom from climbing out immediately. He was forced to edge another 200 yards along the shore. He ran to a boathouse . . . and soon a boat was sent out to the stranded Tom. Tom Porte's courage has earned him not only THE DOW AWARD, but also the praise of his fellow Canadians.

THE Dow AWARD

THE DOW AWARD is a citation presented for acts of outstanding heroism and includes, as a tangible expression of appreciation, a $100 Canada Savings Bond. The Dow Award Committee, a group of editors of leading Canadian daily newspapers, selects Award winners from recommendations made by a nationally known news organization.

Miss Annie Hamilton spent Thursday with Mrs. Stanley Hazard.

Mr. Beetty, who is visiting at Mr. and Mrs. Charles Beatty's was taken ill with the flu but is better and improving.

Brighteners

Oroville, Calif. — Mrs. Joyce Chapman, 17, was listening to a radio program on painless child birth.

"All of a sudden I heard a cry and there he was," she said.

The young mother wrapped her premature baby in a heavy coat, laid him on the bed. Then she walked two miles to a mine to break the news to her husband, Jack, 22.

This story of painless childbirth last Sunday was told today by Dr. Charles G. Gibbs, who attended Mrs. Chapman in her seven months of pregnancy.

Asked if the long hike through the mountains immediately after the birth hadn't tired her, Mrs. Chapman exclaimed:

"Oh no. I frequently walk over to meet my husband at work. Having the baby was nothing."

Detroit — Mrs. Dorothy Fitz Gerald, 24, came before Judge Frank Fitz Gerald Wednesday seeking a divorce.

The judge lovingly considers the Fitz Gerald a notch above the Fitzgeralds. The Fitzgeralds, he explains, are lace-curtain Irish; the Fitz Geralds, venetian-blinds Irish.

His Honor was taken aback when Mrs. Fitz Gerald described her husband as a wife beater, drunk and deserter. He asked indignantly:

"How did he ever get into the Fitz Gerald clan?"

"By adoption," Mrs. Fitz Gerald answered.

"Divorce granted," said Judge Fitz Gerald.

Hong Kong — It's all a matter of semantics.

One Peiping editorial which the Chinese Communist News Agency liked well enough to distribute was titled:

"We are fully mobilized for peace."

2 PERSONS ARE KILLED IN SPANISH R. R. WRECK

Madrid, April 6 — (Reuters) — Nineteen people were reported killed and more than 100 injured when three coaches of the Madrid-Oviedo express hurtled off the rails today near Villalana station, 18 miles from Oviedo.

The three coaches rolled down a 35-foot embankment on to a road. Many victims were pinned under the wreckage.

FREIGHTER MAKES HARBOR

Buffalo, N. Y., April 6 (AP)— A five-day struggle in a Lake Erie ice field ended early today when the freighter James Watt puffed into Buffalo harbor, accompanied by the Coast Guard cutter Tupelo.

The James Watt, the first ship arriving here this year, prepared to unload a cargo of scrap iron from Detroit at the Hanna Furnace Corporation.

The 450-foot freighter left Detroit last Thursday and became stuck in the ice field Friday. The Tupelo went to her aid after assisting a ship in similar trouble last weekend. For a time the Tupelo, too was caught.

ONTARIO'S C.C.F. PARTY WORRIED OVER FARM VOTES

Toronto, April 8 (CP) —Ontario's CCF party is worried over the farm votes.

Delegates at the annual convention Friday criticized a farm report and said that until the CCF obtains a large measure of farm support it can never hope to form a government.

The report, presented by T. H. Jaley, legislature member for Waterloo South, was approved by after provincial leader E. B. Shiels ended the discussion with a plea for its approval. Several delegates asked rejection, claiming it contained nothing to justify support.

Illness of the farm committee handicapped the work, it was explained.

Andrew Lane, delegate from Ontario South, declared it was no secret that the CCF did not have the support of farmers. He said the farmer "is ready politicologically for socialism, but he doesn't consider the CCF the medium for the change."

Agnes Macphail, member for York East and delegate, urged to seize every opportunity to make sympathetic contact with farm organizations. She thought farmers, disillusioned with the loss of overseas markets will put up their own candidates for political office.

"The best we can do is to set up a coordinating link and cooperate with them," said Miss Macphail. "Farmers don't like strait jackets. We must not attempt to come into our organization and do things our way. They don't like that. They are starting to think our way, but they don't call it CCF."

Older Ones Reluctant

J. S. Wagner of Kitchener said young farmers are willing to support the C. C. F. but the older ones are reluctant.

Walter Mann of Oshawa suggested altering up the provincial council "which has done nothing."

Replied Mr. Jolliffe: "I have a lot of sympathy with Mr. Mann, but I must remind him that the provincial council is not in a position to finance a farm program."

He called for continued effort at farming constituencies.

The convention adopted a resolution which urged that the federal government with bringing about loss of overseas markets because of neglect and called for immediate action to protect farm income.

Earlier the convention unanimously adopted a resolution calling on the Ontario government to take a constructive position at the forthcoming Dominion-Provincial Conference "so that the Federal government shall take full responsibility for all employable unemployed."

Want Works Program

Until such a program is adopted, the resolution said, the Ontario government should accept this responsibility.

Another endorsed resolution called on the federal and provincial governments to co-operate in launching a productive works program.

A speech prepared for delivery to the convention, Mr. Jolliffe said that industrial and provincial grants and the building of new "trustee schools" for teachers alike are frustrated at every turn by uncertainty about the objectives of education itself."

Mr. Jolliffe criticized what he called the provincial government's lack of educational policy. He also attacked government policy on housing, hospital insurance, unemployment relief, agriculture and Dominion-Provincial relations.

Seek Identity Of Man Reported Thrown in Lake

Newark, N. J., April 8 (AP)—Warren county authorities and state police are seeking the identity of a man who, they say, apparently died by violence and was flung into Lake Ontario at least four months ago.

The body was found on the shore near Pultneyville a week ago. It was nude except for a blue and white flowered neckerchief.

Coroner Arthur Besemer said the man died of a skull fracture and cerebral concussion.

The body was believed at first to be that of a drowning victim, possibly from the steamship Noronic which burned at a Toronto dock last September with the loss of 119 lives.

Grand R. Normal After Flood Level Of 10 Feet 7 in.

Brantford, April 8 (CP)—Residents of the Grand River, which at last Wednesday reached a flood level of 10 feet 7 inches above normal, has permitted evacuated residents to return to their homes but warned that a small fraction of the muddy debris.

The highest hit section here was the Birketts Lane area where numerous residents were evacuated by the rising waters last week. Extensive damage was caused to district roads.

The river has now receded to less than four feet above normal. It is believed the threat of further flooding has passed.

'Kidding' Ad Fmds Some Employees Of UN Ready to Canoe to Their Jobs

Lak Success, N.Y., Apr. 8 (CP) —Some United Nations employees may switch from the subway to canoe for transportation to and from work.

But G. N. T. (Jerry) Widdrington, former Toronto teacher and newspaper man, was only kidding when he advertised for husky engineers to organize a "canoe pool".

Widdrington, editor of the Secretariat News, said he received about 20 phone calls in response to the advertisement he placed in the bi-monthly information bulletin for U.N. employees.

Some of the callers were serious—especially those canoeing to work along Manhattan's East River to 42nd street when the new U.N. headquarters there is completed.

Widdrington still isn't taking the project seriously, however. At 49, he has no desire to renew the paddling prowess he achieved as a young reporter at Canoe Ahmee in Algonquin Park.

He is now employed as a Y.M.C.A. officer and has been assigned by the United Nations personnel. On both sides they will pass grim reminders of the recent war between Arab and Jew—barbed wire entanglements, shattered buildings and dragon's teeth tank traps.

The Jewish and Arab sections of Jerusalem will open the ancient Jaffa Gate to the old city tomorrow for the pilgrims through to the Holy Sepulchre.

CANADA RESORTS PREPARING FOR BIGGEST YEAR

Most of Visitors Will Come From U.S.

(By the Canadian Press)

Although optimism is keener than ever, Canada's resorts and travel agencies are preparing this year for the biggest tourist season in history.

Last year 1,990,000 automobiles entered the country and 3,405,000 visitors came by boat, train, plane and bus. But the number of inquiries being received to date days indicates those figures will be far outstripped during 1950.

Most of the visitors as usual will come from the United States, a Canadian Press survey shows. The premium on the American dollar is a special inducement, but Canadians are expected to visit unfamiliar parts of their own country in the previous years.

Revamping Industry

Canada's new province, Newfoundland, is having its entire tourist industry revamped under the supervision of tourist chief Leo Dolan. Most Newfoundland hotels are attracting the guests old salmon fishing, and many take boat trips around the island's rugged coast.

Most visitors to Prince Edward Island are expected to come from other parts of Canada but there will be a slightly increasing numerous than in any year since the war—are coming from America.

New Brunswick's scene seashore and fine fishing are expected to attract more visitors than the 1,130,000 who came in 1949. The province's tourist season is gradually expanding with a trend toward more September and October visits.

Picturesque Quebec has 35,000 hotels, tourist cabins and guest homes to accommodate the millions of tourists expected this year. In 1949, 3,500,000 visitors spent $125,000,000 mostly while motoring through the province on the fishing trips.

Offer More Accommodation

Ontario is prepared to offer more and better accommodation than ever before, with new roads in the scenery, sport and fishing. More tourists are expected than the 1,500,000 who came last year. A number of automobiles entering the province—compared with the previous year, was greater than the total gains in all other provinces.

Manitoba has opened 23 new auto camps in the past year and improved old ones in anticipation of a flood. It has also a ten last year's record-shattering 400,000. Tourists, up to 80 per cent over, 1948, including many Americans, to the north, where an extension to the Flin Flon highway will open new game-fishing grounds.

DISASTER-PREPAREDNESS SERVICE OF NURSES

Toronto, April 8—(CP)—Way in which Canada's nurses can help in time of disaster will be discussed April 17-18, when top officials of the Red Cross and organizations meet here at National Red Cross headquarters.

Helen McArthur, Red Cross director of nursing services, is announcing the meeting today that members of the nursing profession will be asked to play a part in the disaster-preparedness organization of the Red Cross. They felt that only detailed planning would enable them to do so.

Miracle of Resurrection Draws Faithful to Churches In World-Wide Observance

(By The Associated Press)

The joy of Easter will be celebrated wherever Christians gather tomorrow, bringing to their hearts the ever-hopeful message of the risen Christ.

In the great cathedrals of the Old World and the New, in village churches and at hillside services, the devout will kneel once more to mark the miracle of the resurrection.

Millions will observe the occasion in other ways, too. It will be a day for fine dress, and flowers, and for children's games and Easter baskets.

Celebrations already were in progress in ancient Jerusalem, where nearly 20 centuries ago Christ suffered, died and rose.

The peal of bells came at the climax of a colorful holy fire ceremony of Eastern Orthodox Christians symbolizing the rise of Christ from the tomb as the light of the world.

Easter morning Protestant services in St. Andrew's in the Kasbah church were to be broadcast by shortwave to Canada.

More than 100,000 pilgrims from the Americas were expected to crowd streets of Rome where the climax of the Easter observance will come when the Pope celebrates a Pontifical Mass in St. Peter's. The service will be broadcast in many languages.

At its end, from the central loggia of the basilica, Pope Pius will give his apostolic blessing to the city and the world.

"Way of the Cross" processions, culminating the Good Friday observances, drew thousands to the Roman ruins of the Colosseum and the Palatine Hill.

In Paris, police marshaled a force of 639 just to handle the Easter parade on Fifth Avenues always a colorful event. Thousands wearing their most festive attire, traditionally throng the midtown Manhattan area in the vicinity of St. Patrick's Cathedral.

Resorts throughout the country looked for record business on the weekend.

Most of more than 2,000 will portray scenes from the life of Christ in a natural amphitheatre in the Wichita Mountains near Lawton, Okla. An attendance of 100,000 is expected from this annual dawn service.

From the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, representing 27 major denominations, came an Easter message declaring that "our American faith in democracy has its historic roots in the Bible."

The message, issued by Bishop John S. Stamm, president of the Council, said that "the Easter faith in God and in the triumph of His holy and loving purpose is the one thing that gives ultimate meaning to human life."

Fur Coats May Cover Finery In Ontario's Easter Parade

Toronto, April 8—(CP)— Fur coats may hide those new spring dresses tomorrow in Ontario's Easter parade.

The public weather office, in a special forecast "warning," predicted today that temperature will drop tonight to 10-18 degrees above zero in southern Ontario and to 15-20 below in northern Ontario.

"Arctic air now covers all of Ontario," the forecaster said.

The outlook for Easter Sunday is "clear and very cold. But slackening winds and a strong April sun will likely take off some of the chill for Easter parades."

Chicago—(AP)—A mass of Can-

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, April 8 —(CP)—Bitterly cold Arctic air masses are causing Arctic air to surge across the province and early morning temperatures range from about 25 above in southern Ontario to 45 below in extreme Northern Ontario. Sunday will dawn clear and very cold, but slackening winds and a strong April sun will combine to give some measure of relief from the unseasonable cold to Easter parades.

Christians Pray At Sepulchre In Jerusalem

Jerusalem, April 8 (AP)—The first Easter bells pealed out their joyous message of a risen Christ here today as several thousand eastern Orthodox Christians gathered at the Holy Sepulchre.

In the Arab-held old city of Jerusalem the great bells rang out as 11 a.m. (4 a.m. EST), the colorful holy fire ceremony of the Eastern Church, held in the Sepulchre, was over. Traditionally, the body of Jesus was anointed with spices by Nicodemus.

Easter this year comes on the same weekend for both the Eastern and Western Christian churches. Earlier today, in a separate service in the Basilica, the Roman Catholic Bishop of the Holyland, Rev. Alberto Gori, blessed the holy fire, struck from a flint for the lighting of the Paschal candle.

Later Greek Orthodox priests handed their sacred Easter fire into the darkened church, symbolizing the Resurrection when Christ issued from the tomb.

Worshippers, most of them in the Arab community as under the previous night, quickly set the Paschal candle, the Church's paschal the flame from candle to candle.

Roman Catholic and western protestant ceremonies marking the Resurrection will start here at dawn tomorrow by United Nations personnel. On both sides they will pass grim reminders of the recent war between Arab and Jew—barbed wire entanglements, shattered buildings and dragon's teeth tank traps.

The Jewish and Arab sections of Jerusalem will open the ancient Jaffa Gate to the old city tomorrow for the pilgrims through to the Holy Sepulchre.

Geo. H. Campbell Named OASA Head For Second Year

4. To limit the use of gloves to catchers and first-baseman.

WALTER HUSTON, CANADIAN-BORN ACTOR, DIES AT 66

Established Star on Broadway for Years

Hollywood, April 8—(AP)—The movie and stage is mourning today for one of its most beloved craftsmen — Walter Huston the actor's actor.

The rangy, Toronto-born veteran of 48 years in the theatre died of a heart attack Friday—the morning after his 66th birthday.

Tributes from his fellow workers streamed in for the versatile actor who was equally adept on Broadway for years before he came west to carve as deep a niche in Hollywood's hall of fame.

But the most touching salute to an old trouper came from his son, director John Huston, in a description of his father's last moments:

"He died peacefully and without struggle. I have never seen so quiet a death. He died as modestly as he lived."

Actress Mary Astor, who costarred with Huston 20 years ago in "Dodsworth," called him "a great person, a great actor."

"Funeral arrangements await the arrival of his widow, former actress Nan Sunderland, flying here from New York.

Stricken Suddenly

Huston was stricken suddenly Thursday night after he had attended a small birthday luncheon at the hotel where he lived when in Hollywood. But a "wrap pain in my back" cancelled plans for a party and put him to bed. He never got up again.

The robust elder Huston, who reached his movie peak as the grizzled gold prospector in his son's picture, "The Treasure of Sierra Madre," left behind him a string of dramatic portrayals matched by few on either screen or stage.

His versatility enabled him to play such diverse parts as "Abraham Lincoln," "The Virginian" "Virginian" the minister in "Rain", a Chinese peasant in "Dragon Seed," and a song and dance man in "Yankee Doodle Dandy."

Won Academy Award

Huston, who won the coveted Academy Award for "Sierra Madre" in 1948, he received Oscar nominations for his roles in "Dodsworth," "All That Money Can Buy," and "Yankee Doodle Dandy."

Born of Scottish and Irish ancestry, was born April 6, 1884, in Toronto. He worked as an errand boy, bank clerk and bookkeeper before finally launching his theatrical career in vaudeville with Bayone Whipple, who became his second wife in 1915. His first wife was Rhea Gore, John's mother.

Refugee and Wife Arrive in Canada With Nickel; Now Set Up in Business

Winnipeg, April 8—(CP) — A young Hungarian refugee, his wife came to Canada in December 1948 with a nickel between them. Today they own a thriving bathing suit and lingerie manufacturing business.

With 2,000 miles of hitch-hiking through Eastern Canada behind them, Budapest-born Thomas Kunstler and his wife Veran settled in Winnipeg, where they originally had intended to stay only a few days. They were headed for Vancouver where, said Mr. Kunstler, "we could employ the skills which made us two of the best designers in the old country."

But they found that "Winnipeg people were friendly. We liked it here."

The Kunstlers set up their office factory and sleeping quarters in one room—it was all they could afford—last November. Mr. Kunstler then went out to sell his wife's products, and by January they had set up shop in a store at 215 in Holloway Street United Church Women's Auxiliary Bazaar. A6-8-13

NaphthaGasFumes Blamed For Two Explosions, Fires

One Man Killed as He Tried to Escape From Flaming Tank

Ottawa, April 8 (CP) — Fire authorities today blamed naphtha gas fumes for two Easter Friday explosions and fires. One man died a human-torch death as he tried to escape from a flaming steam tank in the boiler-room of a department store.

Robert Robinson, 52-year-old suburban Billings Bridge painter, was stunned by an explosion in the confines of a 12-foot tank. He died in his flaming clothing at the bottom of the vessel's hatch.

A fellow worker, Theodore Louis-Seize, 43, Billings Bridge, who was helping him to pull Robinson from the tank. He was taken to hospital.

Fire authorities blamed the sudden igniting of fumes from naphtha being used to clean the tank.

Earlier Mrs. Annie Wyatt, using a rag soaked with naphtha got to clean a hat in her Bank Street apartment, saw it suddenly explode and start a fire that damaged a number of flats and business premises and left 14 persons homeless.

Her house-coat caught fire but she threw it off, shouted an alarm and fled to the street in only a burned wrist and singed eyebrows. Her two pet dogs died in the flames.

Cleaning Tank

Robinson was working with other men cleaning the boiler-room tank at Freiman Limited, a Rideau Street department store. The store was closed for Easter Friday. He had just relieved another worker in the tank and had been lowered an electric light when the explosion occurred.

Fire Chief Gray Burnett said a short circuit in the light may have caused the naphtha gas to explode.

An inquest will be held into the accidental death.

There was no immediate estimate of damage to the $50,000 Stevenson apartment block in the other fire. The blaze ate through floors and ceilings. Fire seeped through the apartment floors to a hairdresser shop, a restaurant, beauty salon and a tradesman's office.

Apartment owners were damaged so badly that 14 persons were left without accommodation.

500,000 RECORDS LOST IN $370,000 TORONTO BLAZE

Toronto, April 8 (CP)—A stubborn two-alarm fire burned out business premises in a three-storey brick structure on west-central Richmond Street West Friday night, causing damage estimated at more than $370,000.

A Super Distributing Company, Ontario agents for Decca records, suffered heaviest damage. Lee Harris Ltd., confectionery, and Jessop Steel Company, were also hard hit.

Firemen said the chemical composition of about 200,000 records on the second floor of the premises of the distributing agency was like the raging through the structure, built a year ago. Firemen battled more than two hours before bringing the blaze under control.

George Offer, manager of the distributing company, estimated the loss to his firm at $125,000, including equipment in addition to the records. Loss to the confectie firm, a manufacturing plant on the top floor, is believed to be about $60,000.

Several firemen suffered cuts from flying glass but none required hospital treatment.

Firemen prevented the flames spreading to adjoining buildings.

Kiddie Cars And Wagons Disappear

There is no suggestion that children's playthings owned by junior residents of the north Bleecker Avenue district, have wings on which to fly away, but the fact remains that wagons and kiddie cars continue to disappear. One resident of the district has complained on several occasions to police that children's playthings keep disappearing while the complaint has also been heard from other householders.

Some weeks ago a child's new kiddie car disappeared from in front of the house, while this week a new wagon, purchased only three days previously, also was taken.

55 Singers and 20-Piece Symphony Orchestra Will Present Tuneful 'Iolanthe' Under Kiwanis Sponsorship

One of the most appealing and tuneful of all the operettas "Iolanthe," by Gilbert and Sullivan, will be played before a Belleville audience on April 19th by the T. Eaton Company Operetta Society with a cast of 55 singers and a 20-piece symphony orchestra.

The operetta is being staged in the city in the auditorium of the Belleville Collegiate under the auspices of the Kiwanis Club. Proceeds of the show will be for the club's various community service programs.

The show will be staged with all the trimmings of its showing in Toronto at the T. Eaton Company auditorium. The scenery, the settings, the gorgeous costumes and the lighting effects will be exactly the same. The 20-piece concert orchestra will be conducted and directed by the famous Geoffrey Bidder.

One of the leading parts in the operetta "Lord High Chancellor" is played by Geoffrey Hutton, formerly of D'Oyly Carte Opera Company of England, who have exclusive rights for the performance of Gilbert and Sullivan operettas. The leading female performance of "Iolanthe" is produced with their permission.

Many critics contend that "Iolanthe" is probably one of the most tuneful and enjoyable of all the Gilbert and Sullivan operettas, in this respect placing it above "The Pirates of Penzance" or "The Mikado." It contains such famous songs as "When Britain Really Ruled the Waves", "The Law is the True Embodiment," and many others.

Produced in two acts "Iolanthe" is the musical store in 25 delightful songs of the fairy queen and her court, and of the members of the House of Lords, of their courtship and amorous entanglements. The setting is between the year 1700 and 1882 when the operetta was produced.

Persons seeing "Iolanthe" as produced by the Eaton Operatic Society at the Eaton auditorium are amazed at the excellence of the performance which was said to be of professional calibre. However, on Tuesday last Ladies' night in the operetta are employees of the Eaton Company organization in Toronto. The calibre of some of this talent is appreciated when it is known that the leading lady, "Iolanthe," played by Elizabeth Mawson, had auditioned on the "Singing Stars of Tomorrow" radio program.

HASTINGS IN ERIN

By LAVONIA STOCKELBACH

Human beings are too important to be treated as mere symptoms of the past.

People are much more interesting than places.

How the townships of County Hastings got their names, when, and by whom chosen is unknown to me but I hope to find out some day. One thing is certain, the man or committee of men who chose them seem to have had all the qualities that go to make up a good committee. In this case they had a love for the land of their origin; a deep reverence for the lives of truly great men; a knowledge of history; a cultured interest in things antique and an appreciation of science.

Some time ago on looking over letters on exhibition in Pierpont Morgan's library, there was an original by Samuel Pepys written 13 June, 1700, to his nephew who was then travelling in Italy. It gave this advice with the spelling as it was then. "Let me recommend it to you to be as covetous as you can of observing everything, great or little, see it be new, that occurs to you at sea, or in foreign parts . . . and to ask questions for without it you must expect to Learne Little."

And it is inexcusable to pry into your friends' personal affairs, there need be no limit to the prying into the reasons, causes, effects, results of whatever has happened anywhere, to be covetous of observing everything" from outlines of hills, colors of rivers, the faces of people. There is so much to be seen in this very nice old world.

Montegle

It would be especially agreeable to "pryе" into the reason for the name Montegle. Down towards the mouth of the Shannon River in Ireland were some beautiful estates, a beautiful setting on the shores of the river which here is between one and two miles wide. Is there anywhere a river like the Shannon? Its source is only 20 miles from the sea yet it takes 214 miles of wandering to get there. Very Irish. Has anyone ever written a book on the Shannon? It could certainly make a captivating story. Broken down castles, ruins, abbeys, and also up-to-the-minute engineering feats.

The name of Montegle Park in Ireland is very good condition and it took a firm tongue to make the chauffeur slow down. At last I had to compromise. I told him the places I must see and then let him go his own gait in between, for what is the use of a good motor and a good car and very little traffic, if you can not let her go. If he went past too fast he just "shut up" and back and do it over again. We both enjoyed ourselves, for he was full of gossip about the "Big People".

* * *

We stopped by the side of a hilly cliff, the estate of Mount Trenchard, the home of Lord Montegle. On top of the cliff was an enormous cross in memory of one of the Montegles who had fought for Britain. A Montegle is connected with the Gunpowder Plot of the fifth of November Gunpowder Plot. The story runs that he got a letter from a relative desiring him to absent himself from Parliament on the fifth. He took it to the authorities and he went with the Lord Chamberlain to the vault or cellars under the House and there they found Guy Fawkes, who, only after terrible torture by the order of King James, betrayed the names of the other conspirators. He was executed the following year.

For his work in revealing the plot Lord Montegle got a pension of 700 pounds a year and at that time it was much money. This same Montegle was on the Virginia Council to establish plantations along the James river in America but seems not to have had any particular influence. There is at present a Lord Montegle living in Ireland. He was married in May to an Ulster lady and the wedding picture was in the Belfast paper, a nice looking couple and may they live happily ever after.

I have spoken much of the beauty of Ireland but nowhere there can one see anything so beautiful as Montegle Valley in the County of Hastings, especially in its full October splendor.

* * *

Those of you who have seen Henry V. in the movies may have wondered what became of the lovely French girl, Catherine, fourteen years old at the time of the Battle of Agincourt but tall for her years and very beautiful, the daughter of a mad king and a very wicked queen.

Henry, in asking for her hand in marriage, demanded a dowry of two million crowns and a considerable slice of France. For years negotiations went on and the treaty was not signed until five years later and he had been beaten down in his demands. They were then married and a year after their son, who became Henry VI, was born. The next year her husband died at the age of thirty-four while she was only twenty-one. Their son was proclaimed King of France and England, that having been decided on during the negotiations.

In her household was a young squire of the name of Owen Tudor, a tall, handsome and charming man. They fell in love and were married, which caused considerable talk as she was also the daughter of a king and widow of another king, so he was not of royal blood, though of an ancient Welsh family, and a noted one. By the way it was one of his family who founded the Carmelite friary in the Bangor of Wales.

The Abbey near Bangor, Ulster, was founded by the Canons Regular, and after which Bangor our township was named, is not yet known to me. Let us say it was after both.

They had five children and her first son by Henry V looked after them well. When she died in her early thirties Owen Tudor returned to Wales. He seemed to have the faculty of getting into scrapes and was in and out of gaol and his last gaol was set up in Hereford Market Place. It was a battle noted for "the massacre of the common folk and beheading of the captive gentlemen". And thus ended Owen Tudor but his name lives on.

Of his children there were three sons. The son of the eldest became Henry VII and with him the two roses, the red and the white, were combined in an emblem we now call the Tudor Rose, certainly the most beautiful and the most meaningful of all national emblems.

There was a younger brother, Jasper, who escaped from the battle of Mortimer's Cross and led a most stirring life succeeding to the old annals. The third son became a monk, and the story does not tell what happened to the daughters.

Thus began that Tudor period, most noted of the Houses of England, from the true love of Henry's young widow for her handsome squire, Owen Tudor.

Art of the Stone-Mason

If ever anything would seem to be dead it is stone, but like many things we past by with cold indifference throughout our little time, stone, from the common wayside variety to the most beautiful marbles, is alive with interest. The beautiful lustre of polished stone is alive with "the light that enters for a short distance into the rock and then suffering reflection at the surfaces of the deeper lying crystals" gives us one more form of beauty.

Just as we can work with nothing, or with anything, unless we have a feeling of sympathy and understanding so the workers in stone must have a knowledge of the various sorts he must handle and especially of the kind found in his own vicinity. It is natural that a person interested in sketching bits of cathedrals, abbeys, and all types of churches should end up by feeling that a stone-mason is one of the most important of the craftsmen and especially should he be encouraged to ply all his work with intelligent strength.

We read with pleasure the story of the life of Nicholas Stone 1586-1647 who was the son of a quarryman living near Exeter. At seventeen, after having learned his trade from a London mason, he went to Holland and worked under a famous sculptor. In those days young men were set to work earlier in life and thus had a better chance to accomplish something.

Now we keep our boys at book-learning until the hands become too clumsy to be trained to skilful work but then it was different. At his three sons two were sculptors and the third a painter. One must also remember that the quarryman lived near the remarkable Exeter Cathedral; the architectural details are of unsurpassed beauty, so that it may have had the vision and the enthusiasm to inspire his son Nicholas.

* * *

In New York we have a monument in Central Park brought from Egypt, and like Cleopatra's Needle in London, it had stood for hundreds of years in its native air. But there seemed no way to stand on foreign soil and within a few years began to show signs of decay, so, in order to save them they have had to be covered with protective preparations, thus teaching us the lesson that it is best to use the stone in one's own vicinity for building purposes.

The more one learns about it the more amazing are its revealed mysteries. Who could realize that when stone, even granite, is fresh quarried it contains what might be called sap and for a few months is comparatively soft and workable. So then is the time to cut it to the required shapes for the "quarry sap" on drying out leaves a hard and protective skin. Connected with this fact it has been noted that the stones for St. Paul's Cathedral were "seasoned" for three years on the sea beach, under the direction of Sir Christopher Wren.

When a convert takes on a new religion he is notoriously tiresome in praise of his new activities, and can give you quantities of information that you were born knowing so this writer had better stop right here and go on to the township of "Marmora" which started the train of thought. Perhaps we'll actually started. It began really in a lovely drawing-room in England where I nearly spilled my tea listening to the owner talk of the numbers of tons of stone on the roof of the house. After that, stone roofs, stone steeples and on to stone quarries were of increasingly deep interest. All of this is merely an introduction to the little I have to say about Marmora, like the chairman who introduces you to your audience with many words and leaves you practically speechless.

* * *

In the list of the Hastings townships there are several that appeal especially to the feminine reader. In the first place, in the coat of arms of the Hastings family there is the extraordinary sleeve used to decorate the shield for it was the custom of the knights to wear their Lady's (detachable) sleeves as pledge in their tournaments. I finally ran down a monument in Westminster Abbey showing the sleeve and the absurdity of the fashion it commemorates gives one a pleasant feeling of union with the young women of olden times. Not like them are at all absurd in our present fashions—just dull.

The first Lady Elgin was Lady Caroline, Countess of Huntingdon; of Caroline Herschel, the astronomer; of Harriet Sidney Wellington Grimbroke, to whose two sons the first Folio of Shakespeare was inscribed, and finally a big jump over to the island and sea of Marmora, between Europe and Asia, a purely imaginary jump for the present arrangements for travelling visas and passports are highly unsatisfactory. Otherwise it would be interesting to visit those quarries in the island of Marmora whence came the most renowned marbles of ancient times and for one of the seven wonders of the world, the mausoleum of Artemisia in memory of her Persian husband, Mausolus. From his name has come our word mausoleum.

There is a statue of him in the British Museum. But it is the forceful lady Artemisia, who made herself famous in the Battle of Salamis, that I should like to see portrayed in marble. (Wasn't that the place Paul and Barnabas visited?) And one should also like to know what she had to do to bring her husband raise the unimportant town of Halicarnassus to the highest prosperity. But her military genius, though impressive, fails. But the monument for this superb monument she raised, made chiefly from the marble brought from Marmora. Antiquarians have drawn reconstructions of this great marvel but we who live in the days of the commonplace can hardly imagine the original. The whole building, or rather collection of buildings, was topped by a statue of Mausolus . . . "the hair rising from the forehead falls in three rows of curls each side of the face and descends nearly to the shoulder; the beard is short and pointed, the mouth well formed with settled calm about the lips; the drapery is grandly composed."

A more familiar association with the wife of the charmi name is found in the botani name of a plant of the sage bro order. A form of it is found Alberta and Saskatchewan, Ar mists Canadensis, and a mo southern form is found as t State flower of Nevada.

EASTER

Easter returns after the winter and the penitential period of Lent. With joyousness the Christian world greets the returning festival which brings messages of hope and faith in the triumph of good. Millions upon millions gather in worship of the Risen Lord at this holy time and join in the joyous services which mark the dawning of Easter.

No event in all history has been so studied, no event is so well substantiated and so celebrated as the Resurrection. For nearly two thousand years it has been the great fact of life to myriads of the people of the earth. The greatest artists of all time have devoted, many of them, long years, and some of them the greater parts of their lives to representing that event and the figure of Christ, the centre of history, in marble and in painting as well as in literature. Countless shrines have risen to the glory of God and countless men and women take joy in adorning with everything that is beautiful, true and holy in His Name. The richest music of all the ages has been created in worship of the Man of Galilee. All forms of art have been dedicated to the adoration of Him whose life on earth brought countless blessings to mankind.

The influences which have flowed from that era when He walked the fields and ways of Palestine and when He rose from the tomb have been unending, and have transformed the whole fabric of human life. Today untold millions sing His praise and strive to walk in His ways. Despite the assaults of doubt, the supremacy of His example is unchallenged.

Wherever men and women are, whether in the contested parts of earth or in the farthest and loneliest wastes Easter is celebrated. His praises are sung in hymns and anthems throughout the length and breadth of the globe. Millions come into His temples of worship to adore His Name and praise Him. While He has moulded the lives of countless millions in His Church goes on this great anniversary of His rising from the dead, in the metropolitan city, or in hamlet the devotion of His followers endures through all life's vicissitudes. Men and women worship Him as Deity and hold as more precious than all else the words He uttered and the deeds of His life of His ministry among men. The blessed influences He shed abroad live in human hearts and grow from more to more to bless the world.

At this high season of the year with its symbols of immortality seen in the new life that is springing in the earth, not shown best in His life as He went about with His disciples doing good the Christian world observes His triumph over death.

One of the many great hymns of the church sung at Easter is this one, known to every follower of Him:

Jesus Christ is risen today, Alleluia!
Our triumphal holy day, Alleluia!
Who did once upon the Cross, Alleluia!
Suffer to redeem our loss, Alleluia!

Hymns of praise then let us sing, Alleluia!
Unto Christ, our Heavenly King, Alleluia!
Who endured the Cross and grave, Alleluia!
Sinners to redeem and save, Alleluia!

ARTISTS COME INTO THEIR OWN

Ontario has many young amateurs in art devoting their perceptive gifts to the service of art and it is a happy thing to find that appreciation of these young workers is being shown by no less a body than the Government of the province.

Ontario feels that these young amateurs should be encouraged for they are doing a patriotic thing.

Regional competitions will be set up with winning entries going into a province-wide show.

The Legislative committee on art is buying four paintings by three amateurs this year. Two civil servants and a hotel doorman are named for the excellence of their work.

It is whether professional or amateur catches the spirit of what is around him, the painting will contain lessons to know herself better and to become better known abroad.

Those who live in Ontario are proud of its people, its scenery and its landscapes. They believe it is a demi-paradise, the best on earth.

ANCIENT ART

Totem poles — the original art form created by the Haida Indians of the coastal regions of British Columbia and Alaska — are fast disappearing. These erections, usually carved from red cedar, are decaying away, so that measures be instituted and restore them are necessary, says Stratford Free Press.

Allowing our native art and irreplaceable curiosities to decay and disappear is an old story to Canadians; much too old, for we seem to have a definite and regrettable talent or tendency that way. Old landmarks of one kind or another have been allowed to drop into limbo by thousands, till we have remarkably few examples of historic objects in Canada.

The totem poles are not really ancient, as such things go in most parts of the world. The poles were mostly carved and erected about 100 years ago, when the art of carving then reached its peak. The art has not been preserved among the Indians, and it would now be impossible to have an original totem pole made.

Mr. Arthur Herity of Toronto is visiting relatives here.

In view of the scarcity of house accommodation in Belleville, it should be a good investment to transform into comfortable flats much waste space in the upper stories of business blocks.

At a banquet which was held in Christ Church Parish Hall last evening the mortgage was burned and the parish is now free of debt. The Rector, Rural Dean Swayne presided and the Rev. Dr. Biagrave of Toronto, a former rector of the parish, was the guest of honor. To him fell the honor of burning the mortgage with the flame of a candle, the mortgage being held to the flame by Mr. Alfred Hamilton, Mr. O. H. Scott and Mr. R. A. Bliss.

Belleville city councillors can gain undying glory by cutting the capital expenditure this year; let us quit spending for one year and devote our attention to paying off old debts.

40 YEARS AGO

APRIL 8th, 1910

Jack Johnson, the world's colored champion pugilist, arrived here last evening about six o'clock with his wife. He was met at the station by Pat Jennings, the local sport impressario, and other local sport fans. The I.O.O.F. band met the party at the upper bridge and played them down to the Intelligencer-street level, being crowded with people who were anxious to see the man who will battle for his title with Jefferies on July 4th next. The party received quite a warm reception and the celebrated "golden smile" of the colored champion was much in evidence. At the opera house in the evening Johnson appeared as the star attraction in an athletic entertainment. The curtain was opened the proceedings with a neat speech after which Tom Flanigan of Toronto, the well-known sporting man, took over a matter of ceremonies. At the conclusion of the entertainment a banquet was held at the Windsor Hotel at which Johnson was the guest of honor.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

FOR CRYING OUT LOUD

Of all the people I know, my Uncle Charlie is the champion when it comes to changing bosses, and as I write this I'm sorry to say to a temperament which has never permitted him to see eye-to-eye with an employer—or anybody else for that matter.

In his early years of living and loafing, the only topic on which Charlie agreed with the rest of the world was that Man o' War was a fabulous hunk of horse, and when the hangtail was retired to stud in 1921, my uncle stopped betting for keeps and quits. "If it was my horse," he once told me, "from now on he would get sour cream with his hay."

But let me get back to my uncle's employment record. Four Autumns ago, unless my Aunt Frieda is fibbing, Charlie was fired from his job at Silverman's Candy Factory for putting ketchup in Charlie Chaplin on the theory that the mixture would appeal to the Italian trade. This example of unalloyed initiative left him temporarily hard, and for weeks he moped around the house until I finally got on Frieda's nerves.

"Shouldn't you maybe find yourself some other type of employment?" she suggested.

Such treachery from within was too much for the emotional kinsman, and before you could say Jonathan Swift, Uncle Charlie was into a speech which might have been lifted straight out of "Julius Caesar". As I've said, overcome by his own eloquence, he burst into tears.

"Save please the waterworks," counseled my aunt. "With such an act, you could get a job boobooing in Herzog's Funeral Parlor."

Frieda was only kidding, but my Uncle Charlie took her reminded man. "Why not?" he said. "I got more grade-A gemu-wine emotion than anybody."

It should be explained at this point that the aforementioned parlor is still a fixture in lower East Side life, and that when relatives want to give a man a classy sendoff, they generally hire a set of by-the-hour mourners to wail, while the teams and lamentations. Eulogies are all right in their place, it is contended they tend to prolong, but the true worth of a man can be more accurately assessed by the amount of breast-beating and hair-tearing which accompany his grand exit.

My uncle got the job at Hevrard's, if I may be permitted a bum joke, made good with a splash — in fact, within a few months he had become the star performer in his field. That is, with one exception: a cadmium-throated gent named Willie Gittel who had been sobbing professionally since the age of nine. And as was inevitable, an epochal rivalry sprang up between Willie the Weeper and the new contender, Charlie Cries.

The following Spring, my uncle suffered a major setback—at the burial of an ill-tempered noodle magnate he was badly outdistanced by Willie. "He rung in on me an onion," Charlie told everybody who would listen. "What kind ethics is that?"

His point, of course, was well taken, since internal stimulants are outlawed by the Mourners' Guild. But these professional niceties didn't interest my aunt. "Onions, bunions," she said. "Next time you cry you got to show up that Gittel. On it depends the room rent."

The last test came that November at the funeral of a wealthy greeny. The hours before the event Rivington street buzzed with excited talk about the two contenders. Herzog, who acted the Crier's poor showing at the mourner's wake, had upped the ante money installed the Weeper as a 9-to-5 favorite.

Well, by all accounts it was the most ear-piercing funeral since Jenny Lind. Willie was in fine fettle and his pals imported hog-callers from Chicago. Friends of the deceased stood in the street and professionals wailed, wept and whimpered. But it was soon apparent that my uncle was in trouble. Willie, pacing himself like the pro he was, managed an occasional shriek every time Charlie paused for breath, and he seemed to have in reserve for a hurricane finish.

An hour later—when it was all over but the shouting—Uncle Frieda edged over to Charlie and told him he was the mightiest mourner she'd ever heard this side of the Waldorf-Astoria.

This brought forth a gasp of admiration from even the corpse-conscious Mr. Hevrard himself, while less inured onlookers had to be held back lest they be tempted into applause. As for Willie Gittel, the outburst unnerved him completely, and that night Frieda Delancey street to Union Square, glasses were raised to the winner and new champion.

What had Aunt Frieda shown Charlie to account for his victory? Well, I'm afraid it wasn't exactly ethical. Before the funeral there was the room rent to consider. It was a newspaper which headlined a story: "Hitler Dead, Germany Information—Man o' War was dead.

And the whole aim and purpose of this colossal and hideous enterprise was to exploit the gold of the Kolyma gold-fields, which, according to Lenin, was the root of all evil in the capitalist world and "corrupted" the enlightened Bolsheviks, were going to be used to build up the new public lavatories. Instead it has become the sole object and stay of the Soviet Empire, a police state, the great land ruled over by the M.V.D., from which we fly to France, with its new capital of Magadan and inhabited apart from a sprinkling of Eskimos like natives, solely by prisoners and their guards, with a sprinkling of highly-paid volunteer specialists and technicians.

Similar Scenes

I have never been to Magadan or seen the Kolyma River. But I have seen other and less grim parts of the Soviet Empire, and scape in other parts of North Russia. The Soviet Union, which on earth is perpetually frozen, just below the surface, so that in the short Summer months when the snow and ice cannot drain away it becomes a vast morass and swamp above which mosquitoes dance in vast clouds.

In winter the frosts can kill. And it is not hard to believe that during the first winters of the Kolyma enterprise while camps were lost, prisoners in their thousands—during the N.K.V.D. (former name of M.V.D.) commanders, and guards, were frozen to death, without a single survivor to tell the tale of disaster — disaster which the crew of the transport ship Dzhurma which started from Vladivostok for Magadan with 12,000 prisoners packed so that they could scarcely move.

The ship left too late in the season, got caught in the ice, and, after that terrible winter, arrived in Magadan without a single prisoner to unload.

Camps Typical

I have seen these prisoners, not in Kolyma, but in those other desperate landscapes of the north as they are in Siberia, Kamchatka and Russia. In those days one tried to believe that what one saw was the best available, because, to wartime conditions. Now it is clear that the cold winters, combined against were typical of thousands —the endless lines of flimsy huts guns; the brutalized guards, themselves criminals set in authority over the politicals; the prisoners themselves facing the terrible winter in rags; with broken raw-red faces and eyes that never left the ground.

I have seen prisoners fall dead with exhaustion on the march and left lying in the snow. I have seen them in convoy trains, staring blankly out of the gratings of those cattle trucks, left without food sometimes for days on sidings.

Nobody knows how many prisoners there are. But they run into millions.

Personal Health Talks

RELIEF FROM "ITCHING PILES"

A reader reports that he read my recommendation concerning toilet of the perineum. It is given in the pamphlet "It Is Stupid To Suffer. From Piles" available on written request if you name the pamphlet, not if you call it something else, refrain from sending a clipping of this item and inclose a stamped envelope bearing your address. That was years ago. The reader began following my advice.

He says he had always had "itching piles". That may mean piles as well as itching or it may mean just itching. The only way to determine whether a person who thinks he has piles, has piles is by examination by means of the proctoscope (rectoscope). This is, internal, "blind" or bleeding piles. A good many persons who think they have piles and who use all sorts of so-called pile remedies rather than have a proper examination have no piles at all.

The reader gives his opinion that the letters depended chiefly upon how much coffee he drank.

Possibly, although I think that a coffee drinking in moderation is a cause of such itching. The chief word for itching without apparent skin trouble is pruritus. Let's call it "pru" (rhymes with) roundly scolded by a fine editor once because I substituted the word pruritus in my column and his secretary, a very refined young man, was startled at that language. I never heard whether the editor or his secretary ever grew embarrassed when they looked it up in Webster.

"I use a medicated cloth, a special towel and special soap. The washing and drying twice only a minute, and ever since I began following this suggestion of yours I have been relieved in two ways. It is an easy habit to acquire. It beats anything I have been experimenting with diets and medicines."

Far be it from me to imply that Doc Brady with his unbrushed teeth and his difference to personal habits acquired at the san?

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON GETTING TOGETHER

We humans are really funny folks. We say things we don't mean, so that we are forever debating ourselves as well as our friends. Like running into a friend, accidentally, and after a brief talk, saying that we must get together sometime. Or, if we're really sincere, we say, "Let's get together some day soon and have a good talk." And that's the—such an Occasion being forgotten upon separation. Because we are too busy for our own good. What does it all amount to? Time and opportunity profit to be made in the meeting of a friend than in the making of material gain in this world. Great events have had their inception in the meeting of friendship and ends are changed!

If the high officials of a nation would meet with those of other nations, with the complete purpose in mind to understand one another, and that without malice, what a world of worries, headaches, and heartaches, could be eliminated. Nations cannot remain forever friendly if war is their chief occupation consists of getting one another mean or vicious names. The very name—together—is inspiring.

long that it is now famous. They are particular about attendance, so that if you are regularly absent, for no special reason, your name is dropped as well as you are another waiting to take your place. Think of the good times they have had getting together in a fine investment in a number of ways. Friends are met there that might not be met in months or years, otherwise.

I like the getting together of families, classes at college, and conventions of every kind for the vacation season. Every human being is a fount of knowledge. We read too few of them. The Prince and the Pauper are only on different sides, but their lives ends are changed!

If the high officials of a nation would meet with those of other nations, with the complete purpose in mind to understand one another, and that without malice, what a world of worries, headaches, and heartaches, could be eliminated. Nations cannot remain forever friendly if war is their chief occupation consists of getting one another mean or vicious names. The very name—together—is inspiring.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

It is a tragedy to see the old smoking compartment go from the Pullman cars. The new system is to allow smoking in the aisle of the coach itself. The porter comes along and sets an ash tray beside each chair.

Being a smoker, this appeals to me very enlightened. People who do not smoke must find it very annoying. But I am against the abolition of the little smoking compartment at the end of the coach is tragic lies in this: it lets the blatherskite loose upon us all. There is no way to shut up people who travelled on trains always to be confined to the smoking compartment. This is not to say that all blatherskites are smokers. But what blatherskite loved in the old days, was the captive audience they found in the smoker. Here they had from ten to twelve men, solidly packed into small space, and unable to leave. If they wanted to finish their stroke. A characteristic of travel in former days, was that external grind of male voices coming out of the smoking compartment, as you walked through the car, their corridor.

Out in the car itself, a lovely peace prevailed. But how is it now? The blatherskite has the whole car—so much of it as they can reach—for their audience to bore. In the days when I was not travelled once on a Pullman coach that some one or other with a voice like a dentist's drill has not trespassed on the lawful privacy of my ears for hours on end. If they are seated midway of the chair car, they ruin the trip for everybody aboard who can't fall asleep. Once or twice, I, myself, encountered voices that penetrated the whole car, even though the offender was seated at one end.

Can't we have just a little two-man smoking compartment back to which these people can be politely referred?

THE LURE OF GAMBLING

Why is gambling wrong? Many people have the feeling that gambling must be wrong, but they are not sure why it is wrong.

Gambling is wrong primarily because it commits one, temporarily at least, to a policy of getting something for nothing. This is dishonest and devastating to character. Judges are practically unanimous in declaring that gambling is the greatest cause of embezzlement. There are two vices which seem invariably to ruin character — drug addiction and gambling. When a person gets alcoholism, but gamblers almost never reform. Once a man becomes a gambler, he is devoted to this one thing in life—family, personal honor, and reputation mean nothing to him. No other vice seems so hard to shake off—save only drug addiction—and with this one exception no other vice more completely destroys character than does gambling.

Big gambling begins with petty gambling, and getting gambling is a sure sign of poor sportsmanship. It is a game cancelled by fear and the thrill inherent in the game itself, then that person

News of Trenton

Tax Rate for 1950 Set By Council at 44 Mills

Trenton, Apr. 8 (Special) — Trenton Town Council announced Saturday night at a special council meeting that the tax rate for 1950 would be 44 mills. After checking and rechecking the budget, council finally decided on 44 mills which is a 5-mill increase over last year's 39.

In making the announcement Mayor Kenneth Couch said that this figure was arrived at only by cutting down the budget to the barest possible minimum.

Property Turned Over

Council also unanimously agreed on a suggestion from Mayor Couch that the entire park and adjacent property from the C.N.R. subway at North Trenton to the town limits be turned over to the townships. Mayor Couch made this suggestion after conferring with the Hon. George Doucett and Hon. W. A. Goodfellow at the meeting of the Legislature in Toronto last week. It was found that three-quarters of this property is in Murray township with one-quarter in Sidney township. The wardens of both townships have been notified of the decision.

This will relieve the town of the snow plowing, building of guard rails, garbage collection and road repair which has been the responsibility of the town for quite some time.

The present town limits extend almost to Glen Miller.

Brighter Street Lighting

Trenton streets are to have brighter lighting. It was announced at the council meeting. The street lights on Dufferin Ave. and Front St. are to be changed from 200 watt to 300 watt. The 200 watt bulbs will be installed in various side streets throughout town where the present bulbs are only 60 to 100 watt.

Bus Terminal to Parks Board

Town council decided Thursday night to turn the Trenton bus terminal over to the Parks Board. The terminal was formerly controlled by the I.O.O.F.

This will give the Parks Board complete control and operation authority, but the present manager Norman Rickett, will still carry on his duties at the terminal.

Tool Shed Burns

Trenton firemen were called to extinguish a blaze which started in a tool shed at 14 Leopold St. last night about 9:10 o'clock.

Origin of the fire is unknown, but Fire Chief H. Fillon said that it may have been caused by children playing in the shed.

Although the building was completely burned, the damage is estimated at only $100.

MISSING GIRL FOUND

Windsor, Ont., April 8 (CP)— An Ottawa High School girl who left her swank Rockcliffe home over 22 because, her mother said, "she wanted to prove her independence" has been located here.

The girl, 18-year-old Elinor Halferdahl, was found Thursday working as a domestic under an assumed name in a businessman's home. Her mother, who came here in the search took her home after the reunion, police said.

The discovery ended a country-wide search. Earlier the girl has been reported in Vancouver. Three weeks ago the search turned here after a report that she was seen in this city.

25 ARRESTED IN RAID

Cairo, April 8 — (Reuters) — Cairo police arrested 25 persons including French journalist Roger Martin in a raid on a flat in Kubbeh suburb, it was disclosed today. Police said they seized 200 communist leaflets and list showing expenditure on communist propaganda in Egypt.

Picton Honors 1949 Baseball Team

Athletics Presented With Crests By Town at Testimonial Banquet

Picton Athletics, 1949 runners-up for the Ontario Intermediate "A" baseball championship, were presented with handsome crests at a testimonial banquet tendered them at the Royal Hotel, Picton, Thursday night.

The team, its management and guests were the guests of Mayor Billy Henley and his town council with His Worship being the only civic representative present.

In a brief welcoming address, the town's chief magistrate said a number of counter attractions reduced the attendance at the banquet. The crests, the gift of the town, he felt, were a "token of recognition" of the exploits of the team last season, but civic finances were being strained to the utmost by many demands. He was sure, however, that behind good clean sport and especially the baseball team, he hoped the coming season would be a good one, one that will bring a championship to Picton.

Presents Crests

The presentation of the crests was made by manager Lavergne Wright, who briefly outlined the organization of the team and spoke of prospects for the coming season. He presented the team individually and collectively, he said, and was confident it would give a splendid account of itself in the COBL this year.

Jack Corbett, sports announcer for CJBQ, Belleville, paid tribute to the Picton team for its initiative in organizing the Quinte section of the COBL. He felt it was a step in the right direction. He, with others, deplored the fact that the city of Belleville with its 24,000 population could not see its way clear to enter a team. "Picton has shown us the way," he said. He also paid tribute to the hard-working Ron Sivel, Picton sports writer, who, he said, had done a man's job in supporting the team in many ways. His efforts towards promoting sport, and his assistance always with the baseball team last year were jobs exceptionally well done.

Lieut.-Col. Allan Church, Picton baseball veteran, and member of the team executive, extended the official vote of thanks to Mayor Henley and his council for the banquet and crests. The small attendance at the banquet, he said, was no criterion of the town's support of the team, nor the calibre of the squad which it is hoped will improve Picton this season.

"They may call us Spaniards outside the county" he smiled "and we here in Prince Edward may have our own way of doing things, but when the chips are down, we always come up with something, and that goes for a baseball team this year."

Need Local Players

While he was in favor of imported players on a team, he was of the opinion that local players should be given an opportunity to play, especially the younger fellows. Welcome on any team, he said, held the interest of local fans, and of non-residents for more fan support than imported stars. He paid tribute to the Stirling team, sponsors of the Intermediate "A" title last year which defeated Picton in the semi-series, "They were fine players and good sports, but, as the great majority of them were imports, the local fans scarcely knew them."

Ron Sivel spoke briefly of the team's activities last year and of the efforts being put forth this year to get floodlights for the baseball diamond. He was confident, he said, that with full cooperation of the baseball executive would be in action this season. "Kitty" Abbott, veteran player, manager and coach of the team expressed its appreciation of the banquet and welcome given.

Geo. H. Carver, sports editor of the Ontario Intelligencer, Belleville, was chairman for the brief but capable and interesting program. He congratulated the team on its achievements, and drew on his memory for anecdotes concerning former teams of the past. He, like Mr. Devine, deplored the "apathetic and pathetic" attitude in Belleville towards the entry of a team in the Central Ontario Baseball League.

Learn-to-Swim Campaign Sponsored by Y

Parents of 147 school children have given their approval to the annual Learn-to-Swim Campaign sponsored by the Belleville Y.M.C.A. and the Board of Education, to be conducted during the Easter holidays in the Y pool.

The free lessons are available to each child in the Public and Separate Schools of Belleville and district who is 10 years of age or over and who cannot swim a distance of 20 feet. The enrollment for the campaign this year, 147 boys and girls, is an increase of 30 per cent over last year. The instructor for the campaign is the physical director at the Y, Bob Fowler, and he will be assisted by several qualified leaders.

The campaign consists of series of five lessons, one each day from Good Friday during the Easter vacation, in which the fundamentals of swimming and water safety will be taught. At the conclusion of the fifth lesson, each child will be given an opportunity to swim a distance of 60 feet. Then the standard Y.M.C.A. junior beginner's test, and every child passing it will be presented with a handsome award certificate.

Lessons for the boys will be given each morning at the following hours:

10.00 a.m. — Queen Alexandra, Queen Mary, Prince Charles.

10:30 a.m. — Queen Victoria, Prince of Wales.

11 a.m. — Hillcrest, King George.

The girls will come in the afternoons at the following times:

2.00 p.m. — King George.

2.30 p.m.—Queen Mary, Prince Charles, Queen Alexandra.

3.00 p.m. — Hillcrest, Queen Victoria, Prince of Wales.

Parents are urged to see that their children are properly clothed, that they be at the Y 15 minutes before their lesson time, and to that they bring a towel for boys, and bathing suit, cap, and towel for girls.

It is most important that as many children as possible be taught how to conduct themselves in the water, and the rules of water safety. The Y.M.C.A. has long been a pioneer in this field of swimming and lifesaving and its established slogan "Every boy a swimmer, every swimmer a lifesaver."

Toronto Speaker Gives Address To Radio Club

The monthly meeting of the Quinte Amateur Radio Club was held at the Kiwanis Centre on Wednesday evening when over sixty enthusiasts spent a most enjoyable evening. There were members present from Campbellford, Trenton, Picton, Marmora and Deloro. There were also fifteen members of the Kingston Amateur Radio Club present as special guests.

The speaker of the evening was Mr. William F. Chout of the Canadian Westinghouse Company, Toronto, who gave an interesting address on "emergency communications and the part the radio amateur can play". Mr. Chout also provided a sound film entitled, "Disaster Strikes".

Mr. Chout described the coordinated emergency setup in Toronto which could be made available in times of necessity. Steps have already been taken to duplicate this system in Belleville. Also of particular interest was the mobile transmitter installed in Mr. Chout's car and which provided reliable communication over a wide area.

The speaker was introduced by Ken Fraser and on behalf of the club expressed the thanks of the club.

Mr. E. A. Argue, Department of Transport Radio Inspector was also a visitor and gave a most helpful talk on "TVI" (television interference). The Belleville amateurs are most anxious to avoid causing any interference, whether it be to their owners or broadcast-band listeners, and the closest co-operation exists between the amateurs and the Department of Transport.

Following routine business the usual draw for prizes was conducted and a total of twelve prizes distributed. The refreshments were kindly prepared and served by the following ladies, all wives of club members: Mrs. Jack Warner, Mrs. Albert Bakyta, Mrs. Allan Smith, Mrs. Gordon Turney, Mrs. Ken Cairns and Mrs. Roy White. Mr. Ken Cooley, president of the Kingston Amateur Radio Club, expressed the visitors' appreciation for a most pleasant and informative evening.

The proceedings of the evening were under the chairmanship of the president, Roy A. White.

Calvary Means Much to All Says Speaker

A special Good Friday service was held in Grace Chapel by the Christ's Ambassadors's young peoples organization, with the guest speaker, Rev. Tom Richardson of Verona, bringing a stirring message. Also deeply appreciated by the large audience were the splendid musical numbers contributed by talented and consecrated musicians.

"Calvary means very much to me tonight" said Mr. Richardson. "I am so thankful that Christ died for me. But thank God, He not only died but He rose again.

"The world has honored many great men, like Abraham Lincoln, Napoleon and others; but more pictures have been painted of Jesus, more poems and more stories about Him than any other man. What a tremendous impact Christ has made upon this earth.

"Yet Christ was a conundrum to some people. They could not understand Him. He baffled the learned and the wise with His teaching. He walked on this earth for 33 years with the burden on His heart that He was to go to Calvary to die that sinners might be redeemed.

Used as Instrument

"The Roman soldier little realized when he plunged that spear into the Savior's side that he was used as an instrument of God to shed the precious blood for the sins of the world, for without the shedding of blood there is no remission of sins.

"The onlookers cried 'He's dead' and the disciples' hopes crumbled. Christ died as an ordinary death, for the Bible says that He gave up the ghost. Jesus thwarted the power of the devil. He conquered sin and the grave. No wonder we can sing Up from the grave He arose with a mighty triumph o'er His foes."

"Upon this great fact of the resurrection the disciples were able to go forth with power to obey their Lord's command and spread the Gospel to all nations.

Must Apply Belief

"You can believe that Christ died on Calvary for your sins, but it will do you no good unless you apply it to your own heart and accept Him as your personal Savior," pointed out Mr. Richardson.

"It is the same truth that you may know of a skilled surgeon in another city who can perform the operation that will heal you; but if you do not call on him, his skill can do you no good."

A solo "Up Calvary Hill" was sung by Rev. John Richardson of Paris, Ontario, Mrs. Laurie Price and her brother, Mr. David Stronge, contributed a fast "The Beautiful Nazarene" with the latter accompanying on the piano-accordian. Rev. Hope Smith also played his own accordian accompaniment as he sang "The Unclouded Day". Mr. John Holcroft, the C.A. president was in charge of the service.

TWO QUAKES REPORTED

Moscow, April 8 —(AP)—Two strong earthquakes were reported today by the Soviet press to have been registered during the last four days in or near Russian territory. Soviet seismological stations reported one of the quakes was recorded in the Mongolian Republic (Outer Mongolia) near Lake Kosogol, 2,509 miles east of Moscow. The other quake, said the report, was centered in the south Asian province of Ashkhabad. The reports said scientific workers had been sent to the scenes.

LOTS OF CHURCHES

The United States in 1948 had 265,583 churches with a total membership of 81,777,974.

Good Friday Spent Quietly In Province

(By The Canadian Press)

Simply, solemnly, millions of Canadians Friday observed Good Friday.

In churches from Newfoundland to Vancouver, sand services were commemorating Christ's agony on the cross nearly 2,000 years ago were well attended, crisp, clear weather in most parts of the country favoring a heavy turnout of worshippers.

Apart from the day's religious significance, Good Friday also marked the first holiday of Spring. Many took advantage of the long weekend ti leave crowded cities for a countryside showing the first signs of the green on a new growing year.

Motor traffic was reported heavy in most areas. Travel agencies reported packed trains and buses as thousands began holiday jaunts. Air lines increased the number of scheduled flights in an attempt to cope with heavy bookings.

Southern Ontario found the day sunny and mild. At noon hour thousands went to church and many golf players tried the city's greens for the first time this spring.

Pest Destruction of Spruce, Larch Not so Grim as Figures Suggest

(Written for The Canadian Press by Percy Ghent)

It has been estimated by entomologists and other forest researchers, that the spruce budworm has destroyed 350,000,000 cords of spruce and balsam pulpwood in North America, since 1909. Even more radical has been the havoc of the larch sawfly which, in destroying about 20,000,000,000 board feet of larch, or tamarack, has eliminated the species as a commercial factor throughout the entire range.

Actually, the picture is not as black as the figures would suggest. In both instances the insect pests first attacked mature and over-mature stands. A considerable percentage of the over-mature trees was beyond commercial utilization. It had not been cut mainly because of its roads.

Many of the pulp stands destroyed by the spruce budworms may well have been replaced by other, and healthy young stands before the normal course of pulp operations will have reached them.

Similarly with much larch growth. A new crop of the species is making normal, healthy growth. It is not unlikely that this crop will be susceptible to the sawfly menace for many years to come. In the meantime it is probable that at the right time the new forest growth will become economically accessible, and measures for maintaining a sustained yield down the years will have advanced enough to brighten the whole outlook.

Canada's forest policy in an increasing measure is aimed at scientific regeneration, and organization to combat fire, insects and disease of the future with weapons shaped by experiences of the past.

Springtime Fantasy

Wild flowers are always in a rush to greet the spring.

Before the winter snows have left the fields and woodlands, bloodroot is found at the roadside and in the overnight miracle of spring, hepaticas, modest and dainty, adorn the land. Mayapples, their green umbrellas-half unfolded, are ready for an April shower on the instant. Jack-in-the-Pulpit is preparing his wayside sermons. Trilliums not in woodland fringes; crane's bill, the wild geranium, will soon make a gallant show, and those daffodils of the woods, bellworts, are shaping their pendant lily-like bells.

Beside the tinkling brooks, marsh marigolds—the Mary-buds Shakespeare mentions—are radiant in the spring sunshine and Solomon's seals send up their graceful green plumes in a hurry.

There is musical accompaniment to the show, of course. Robins with their rolling tune; the bluebird, note of nature's own, Canada, Canada", of the white-throat sparrow; the bobolink's liquid call, the soft melody of bluebirds, and in favored haunts, the superb whistling of cardinals, all ring rejoicing that the long winter has ended.

And the undertone for the whole glad symphony is the low, rumbling note of nature's own bass fiddlers, the bullfrogs.

Valuable Treasures Crowd Sussex House

Rye, Sussex, England, Apr. 8 (CP)—Here a 12th-century house in a cobbled backstreet Capt. Leopold Ames Viller keeps treasure rescued from Rye museum when it was bombed during the war.

Capt. Viller, who was curator of the museum, lives alone in what is known as The Old Stone House with only his dog, Monty, for company.

The living room are exhibits the value of which has never been assessed — ancient armaments, weapons, centuries-old pottery and relics of Rye's historic prison dungeons.

The gloomy, unlit passage is the Clement's Hall, where prisoners and carved figureheads. Over the huge fireplace in the living room hangs a magnificent oil painting by is a 700-year-old vase engraved with the effigy of a seated monarch.

"There is nothing like it in Britain," Capt. Viller said modestly. "I found it while excavating in the district. Some days I hope to look after most of the exhibits."

The Old Stone House, built in 1263 by the Friars of the Sack, was destroyed by fire a few years later—and rebuilt with walls two feet thick. Viller has lived in it since 1926, when he was mayor of Rye.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

One of the best ways to feel the pulse of a big city is to drop in on the floor of its Stock Exchange. You know, building like people have faces. And of all the buildings on Bay Street in Toronto, perhaps the plain one housing the Stock Exchange is the most packed of them all. Yet, inside, the excitement is as keen, the movement as swift as a roller rink hastened to the call. The Toronto Exchange is second to the world volume only to New York. In common with additional mining and oil development, the Toronto Exchange frequently passes Wall Street in the number of shares traded in a day.

On the second floor of the Exchange, a gallery is reserved for visitors of the public. From here you can watch the New York and Toronto ticker tapes change as the actual sales are made on the floor. There look to be about 200 brokers and their agents milling about the floor, shouting, scurrying, jotting their bids and selling their stock.

While quotations and listings of stock sales are run up in the most complicated electrical mass of machinery, the human side of the selling of stocks and bonds still exists. Why, this is the biggest daily auction sale in the country. . . . Only difference between the auctioneer and the exchange is that instead of one auctioneer, each broker or agent is his own auctioneer.

Worth Visiting

When people visit a city, or even when they live in one, they go to the stores, the museums, the shows. Next time you find yourself sent by your employer to the head office of the home office, drop in at the Toronto Stock Exchange. He'll like it. So will you. For it is one of Canada's biggest shows and you can take it in without even the price of an admission. Watching ticker tape in the Exchange gives one an uneasy feeling, no end that the eyesight couldn't quite make up how Quemond and Central Canada Potash got from the D.D.P. to the D.N.D. . . . Only difference between the exchange and the D.D.P. is dungeons.

The gloomy, unlit passage is the Clement's Hall, where prisoners and carved figureheads. Over the huge fireplace in the living room hangs a magnificent oil painting by is a 700-year-old vase engraved with the effigy of a seated monarch.

SUCCESS with CHRYSANTHEMUMS

WELLOW GLOW · SILVER KING · EUGENE WANDER · BURGUNDY

YELLOW CACTUS · GRANNY SCHELL

The Chinese philosopher Confucius, in his writings nearly five hundred years B.C., mentions the Chrysanthemum. In the 18th Century it was taken to England from Japan and later was brought to this country. With the introduction of the famous Korean Chrysanthemums, gardens have been acquired a fascinating and beautiful flower which holds the spotlight when most flowers in the garden have been struck down by Autumn frosts. Most of the varieties now commonly grown have been developed in the last twenty-five years. More varieties are added each year and the numerics now list many gorgous named varieties. Outstanding in the lists are Carmen, Tepestry, Lavender Lassie, Golden Carpet, Courageous, Huntsman and Yellow Avalanche.

CULTURE

The method of growing all kinds of Chrysanthemums is essentially the same. Some protection should be given during the winter. Tall plants should be staked. By pinching off the tips, a bushy growth is induced. The plant should be set in full sunlight and in any good garden soil that is well drained. Standing in water during the growing season will kill "Mums" in a few hours. In hot weather the plants require several of water. Chrysanthemums respond well to a well cultivated, and fertile soil. Frequent cultivation and aeration and drainage in heavier soils. . It should be worked into the soil at the rate of 1 to 2 pounds in 20 square feet. In most varieties the finest flowers are produced on Chrysanthemums that are planted as rooted divisions or as rooted cuttings in May of each year.

Plants should be dug up in Spring, the original center discarded and the good, vigorous side shoots or suckers replanted. Undivided plants become dense and leggy and do not bloom well. Set plants about 15 inches apart depending on growing habit. Pompon and Spider Chrysanthemums may be planted 12 inches apart. In planting do not place the roots of unlike varieties close together. Mix the colors as they are planted. Plants from cuttings is done as follows:

1—An old plant showing new root shoots and suckers which are cut off to make cuttings; (a) freshly cut. (b) trimmed for insertion in moist sand. 2—Showing developed roots and new growth started. Center of plant discarded. 3—Cuttings planted in rows. Space 2 inches apart in the row and 6 inches in the border. Remember always, an old clump will grow into a dense mass with weak stems and flowers.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

WINIFRED E. WILSON

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The first annual northwest bridge tournament was held at Portland, Oregon, It was declared a tremendous success in every way and is now an assured annual feature for that area.

In the five afternoons and evenings of duplicate play, all known attendance records for an inaugural were broken. A total of 2500 seats were occupied by players, which is more than four inches and wears a golden crown? The male of the species is easy to find his crown, the female's is all yellow. The scientific name, "regulus satrapa" gives the idea that this is a tyrannical ruler, but there is nothing in its actions to justify that such is the case.

A first cousin, the Ruby-crowned, is just a little larger, and only the male wears a crown, which consists of some scarlet feathers that rise from the head when the bird sings, or is excited. This species is rarely king of song birds. Its voice is remarkably strong and loud for so small a bird, reminds us of a particularly tuneful song by a pet Canary.

In spite of small size, Kinglets are hardy. The Golden-crowned often winters in southern Canada. The Ruby-crowned, whose breeding ground is in the Arctic, but extending as far north as northern Alaska on the west and Nova Scotia on the east, returns from the United States to the land of its birth in late March or April.

The Kingbird, with the scientific name "tyrannus tyrannus", is the real tyrant. This songless percher will stand no interference. Anyone coming near the nest is scolded loudly and chased off; even a Crow, more than twice its size, receives no quarter. The big, black bird flies away screaming, while the Kingbird chases it, perhaps for a mile or so, pecking at its head and back.

The Kingbird, the Kingfisher, is truly a master, or king, of his realm. Like the fisherman, it must wait until ice has left open lakes; but around mid-April it may expect to hear its rattling voice as, with peculiar, uneven flight, it flies across the water. For hours the Kingfisher will sit on an overhanging branch, fishing in the water below. Suddenly, maybe from a height of fifty feet, it dives, seizes a chub or a minnow in its large beak, and returns to the perch, there to beat the fish to death against the branch before swallowing it, head first.

THREE KINGS

Birdland has no less than three kings. Although varying in size, appearance, and behaviour, each is worthy of the title.

Smallest of these (indeed one of the tiniest birds), is the Kinglet, represented by two distinct species. The more diminutive, the Golden-crowned Kinglet, comes naturally by its name. What better could be given to one that must wait until ice has left open lakes; but around mid-April it may expect to hear its rattling voice as, with peculiar, uneven flight, it flies across the water. For hours the Kingfisher will sit on an overhanging branch, fishing in the water below. Suddenly, maybe from a height of fifty feet, it dives, seizes a chub or a minnow in its large beak, and returns to the perch, there to beat the fish to death against the branch before swallowing it, head first.

It's Crazy Life But Hardy Indian Loves Her Ballet

By W. G. ROGERS

New York, Apr. 8 (AP) — A little girl who recited the first time her mother made her go to dancing school is now the premiere ballerina of the New York City Ballet Company.

Her name is Maria Tallchief, and today she'd cry if she couldn't dance. "I'm a nut," she says with a wide smile. It's a rut she doesn't ever want to get out of, though she adds, of dancers in general who work so hard and are paid so little:

"We're really just crazy."

Maybe it's the Indian blood in her. Miss Tallchief, who is five feet five inches tall, comes by her name this way: her father is Tall Chief, Osage Indian, and her grandfather was an Osage chief. . . . Her mother is one of the newer Americans.

Heavy Schedule

If her life seems crazy to her, it seems even crazier compiled in black and white, without benefit of the cheers and stamping feet which greet this attractive young dancer's stage appearances.

"I never thought of ballet as work," she says, but it looks like work to anybody but a hardy Indian. Just before her company opened a four-week stand at City Centre here, her schedule was up at 9, a cup of coffee, class from 11:30 to 1, a sandwich, a rehearsal, another bite, a rehearsal at school from 6:30 to 8 and then at the theatre until bedtime, or until she drops with fatigue.

Since September, she has worked about one week out of two on the stage, either here or as guest artist with a touring ballet theatre. The other weeks she worked, too, for a ballet dancer can't let up.

She may be indebted to her Indian blood for an instinct for rhythm, she says, but she doesn't do Indian dances, and anyway, Osage women do not dance.

Born On Reservation

Born in Fairfax, Okla., a small town on a reservation, Miss Tallchief went to dancing school there. In Beverly Hills, Calif., she continued lessons in dance and piano until she finished high school in 1942, when she joined Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo.

In 1946 she was married to George Balanchine, artistic director of New York City Ballet, and they went to Paris, where he staged three new ballets for the Paris Opera and where she was the first American guest dancer.

Since 1947 she has been with City Ballet. She and the company have accepted a coveted invitation to dance six weeks next summer at Covent Garden, London, and four to six weeks more in English cities.

Tap-Dancer at 76 Is Gymnasium Whiz

Vancouver, Apr. 8 (CP) — Mrs. Mary (Pop) Harper, sprightly and athletic at 76, still attends three gymnasium exercises sessions weekly and goes dancing every Saturday night.

She can execute a dance on the gym floor with sixty others, most of them at least forty years her junior, and shows unusual physical agility.

Born in Greenwich, England, she lived in Saskatoon for many years before coming to Vancouver in 1937.

"I have never gone in much for organized sports," she said, "but I've always loved walking and dancing. Work is the best exercise in the world. I like housework and have never thought the preparation of meals tedious."

She credits proper diet for at least part of her boundless energy —good plain food. She has never smoked and disapproves of the use of alcohol.

Now Women today spend too much time worrying about getting fat, and too little time doing something about it," she said.

Every Saturday night she goes dancing and is an ardent tap-dancing student.

Cotton Corduroy for Rain

By FRUNELLA WOOD

INTO each life some rain must drop, and but to be desired it you have a raincoat, like this in the closet handy. That's 1950's Mc-Gee, who is modelling for you, and Harper's Bazaar says, can wear the coat belted ,or flaring loose, and on a sunny day as well as a rainy one. It is cotton corduroy, water repellent.

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

Ham and lamb have always competed for the centre of attention at the Easter dinner table. Lamb seems to have a slight edge because it is served less frequently than ham and because this is the time of the year when spring lamb seems to have the sweetest and mildest flavor.

Housewives have a valid objection to serving either baked ham or roast leg of lamb for Easter because both these cuts take hours of long slow cooking. No woman can be reasonably blamed for wanting to escape such drudgery on Easter morning.

There is one cut of lamb, however, which can be roasted in an hour and a half. This is the rack of lamb, the section from which rib lamb chops are cut. When ordering a rack of lamb, ask the butcher to remove the backbone so that it can be cut in single straight slices.

Any tart jelly such as currant, grape or mint is an excellent accompaniment. Spiced peaches is another garnish which goes well with roast lamb. You can prepare spiced peaches in about 10 minutes cooking time. Make them the night before and serve them icy cold with Sunday Easter dinner.

Roast Rack of Lamb Spiced Peaches—Serves 4-6.

Order a "single" rack of lamb, weighing about 2 1-2 to 3 pounds, with the backbone removed. Bone may be used for soup stock. Wipe meat with a damp cloth.

Insert a meat thermometer in thickest part of lamb. Thermometer should not touch bone. Place meat, fat side up, on a wire rack in roasting pan. Sprinkle meat lightly with salt and pepper. Roast in oven which has been preheated to 325 degrees. Allow 35-40 minutes roasting time per pound. Meat thermometer should show a temperature of 170 degrees when lamb is done.

Let lamb rest 15-20 minutes before carving. A thin pan gravy may be made by throwing off fat from pan, adding 1 cup of canned consomme or chicken broth to drippings and simmering 3 minutes.

Prepare spiced peaches as follows: Drain the juice from a number 2 1-2 can of fancy quality peaches. Combine juice with 2-3 cup granulated sugar, 1-2 cup cider vinegar, 8 whole cloves, 3 whole allspice and two 2-inch cinnamon sticks. Simmer juice 5 minutes. Add peaches. Simmer 3 minutes more. Cool to room temperature. Place in refrigerator until used.

BEAUTY

Get your beauty sleep

There are women of strong constitutions, blessed with health and vitality, who can get to bed late, hop out early and still look like attractive human beings. They are the exceptions. Most of us, after limited sleep, look in the glass, behold an utter stranger at whom we want to make faces. Surely we have never seen her before, nor do we want to see her again. The before-breakfast face is nothing to brag about—certainly not after the fortieth birthday. Any doctor will tell you that the important thing about sleep is to get enough of it.

The amount of sleep actually needed depends somewhat upon the individual, how much energy is expended during the day, and the state of the nervous system. The average individual needs eight hours every night, and that means you if you are a night prowler. It is surprising how many things a late-hour woman can find to do when the clock gets along toward midnight. She can even take a notion to wash her hair.

Most of us behold an utter stranger in the glass.

The human body accumulates poisonous waste products during waking hours. They lower vitality. Only during sleep can these products be eliminated faster than they are being produced. It is the time when nature makes repairs, recharges and when she gets us ready for the next day's activities.

The body needs more sleep in winter than in summer, because it gets less sunshine, fresh air and exercise. The jittery, high-strung woman should make it a practice to have nine hours of restful slumber if she is to stave off a seige of nervous exhaustion ,a trouble that is all too common at the present moment when life is hectic and delirious for most of us. To rob oneself of rest is to become an easy victim to disease. It is when resistance is low that germs invade the system.

Insomnia is on the increase. The medical profession deplores the widespread use of sleeping medicines. They should be taken only upon the advice of a physician. Relaxation of body and mind will help woo the sand man. If you are worrying, you will have racing thoughts that are bound to keep awake. Try alternate stretching and relaxing of the body to normalize the circulation. Certain habits contribute to sleeplessness. Among them are late hours, badly ventilated bedrooms (either over heated or too cold); excessive tea or coffee drinking; drinking too little water; a too ample dinner or food that upsets the digestive tract.

The young people of this generation are night owls, causing their parents to fret about the health. With studies and social affairs they are often over-active. Kids think they are made of wire and fiddle strings. But they can ill afford with understandard health if they do not get to bed at a reasonable hour.

Mrs. Gordon Conant Addresses Guides

On Monday in St. Andrew's Church Hall, Commissioners, Guilders and local Association members of Quinte Area, had the pleasure of having Mrs. Gordon C. Conant, Provincial Girl Guide Commissioner as their guest. Mrs. Conant is well versed in Guiding and gave an interesting talk on World Guiding, being a delegate to the World Conference. Commissioner Mrs. J. Waters, on behalf of those present, thanked Mrs. Conant for her talk. Refreshments were served by the Belleville Guiders. Thanks also go to the St. Andrew's Church for allowing us to have this meeting in their hall. "Cookie Day" will be here on Saturday.

By nine o'clock Belleville Guides and Brownies will be out on business. It is expected that every house will be contacted by some Guide or Brownie and all know they will be received in the usual splendid manner. The cookies are in packages and each package must be purchased for at least 25 cents.

First Belleville Guides

On March 21, Betty Jane McLuskite, of the Bluebird Patrol, was enrolled as a Guide, and for the event the colors were raised for the first time in the Company. At this meeting the Guides were also very fortunate in having as their guest Mrs. R. J. McLuskie of the St. John Ambulance Brigade. Mrs. McLuskie held the interest of Guides and Guiders alike as she told what "first aid" was and how it could treat shock and bleeding. All hope to have Mrs. McLuskie back soon again to give further help with second class first aid.

All are at present collecting silk stockings for Labrador and so far have about sixty and also a few articles of clothing. Ten Guiders from the Company took part in the Salvation Army pageant on the Monday in March and enjoyed it very much. All are making great strides towards second class and during the Easter holidays hope to do some hiking, fires and stalking.

Wellington on the Lake

APRIL DAYS

Misty the greening meadow,
Shining the silver rain,
Fitful the flash of sunlight
Parting the clouds again;
Pensive the call of the bluebird
Breaking the twilight hush
Clamorous the call of the harvest,
Where the spring waters rush.

Sights and symbols of April—
Indian willows that burn,
Blossoms that deck the woodland
Heralding spring's return;
Whirring wings in the tree-tops
Where the bright wind goes through,
And haunting the cry of the Killdeer,
That tells that the earth is new.

Snow has disappeared from the streets, and robins are here seeking their summer homes. The hockey season is past, but horse and girls are now roller skating on the streets, followed by barking dogs, they make a noisy turnout.

Toronto Marlies Put Cornwall Out of Running

Toronto, Apr. 8 (CP) — Never missed at any time in the series, Toronto Marlboros shunted Cornwall Calumets out of the Allan Cup running Friday night and thus managed a berth in the Eastern Canada senior hockey finals.

Marlboros ended the four-game rout of the Eastern Canada Senior Hockey League champions with a resounding 13-1 victory. On the series, the Dukes scored 40 goals to Calumets' eight, taking the set in four straight games.

Joe Primeau, coach of the Marlies, could only repeat what he had said earlier: Friday night when he stated that the Canadian Amateur Hockey League should service the Allan Cup play-off series.

"There are only five senior "A" loops in the country and the Allan Cup should be a playoff between the winners of those leagues." He named the "senior A" leagues as Western Canada League, the O.H.A., the Quebec League and the two Maritime hops.

Three Score Three

Friday night's game was as lopsided as its three predecessors. Two Marlboro players, Dance Lewicki and Frank Eddolls, turned in three-goal performances with Lewicki's linemate, George Armstrong potting a pair of goals. Other Toronto scorers were Al Buchanan, John McLellan, Scotty Mair, Bobby Hassard and Don Rope.

The Calumets prevented Pat Boehmer, in the Marlies net, from registering a shut-out when Bert Lilly scored late in the final period.

Toronto left no doubt in the minds of the 3,087 paid customers in the first period when Sullivan sailed in for two goals and Buchanan and McLellan put them ahead 4-0.

If that wasn't enough, the Marlies roared back in the second session for eight more to lead 12-0 going into the final period. In the session, it was Don Rope's marker that took down honors for the picture-play of the game. He picked the puck up at centre ice and weaved through four Cornwall players and neatly drew goalie Gord Buckley aside and shoved the puck in behind him.

The semi-final victory puts the Marlboros into the final against the winner of the Sherbrooke Saints-Sydney Millionaires series. Sherbrooke now leads that set 3-0.

TAKE 6-POINT MARGIN

Montreal, April 8 — (CP) — St. Catharines Welland Avenue United Church Friday night defeated Montreal Buddies 72-66 to take a narrow six-point margin in a two-game total-points final series for the Eastern Canada Intermediate 'A' Church basketball championship.

The second game will be played here tonight and the trophy, emblematic of the inter-provincial title will be awarded the winning cagers at the end of the game.

Big guns for St. Catharines were Norman Hart with 18 points, Jack Boyle with 15, Ron Gibson with 14 and Tommy Payne with 13. Ulrich Brown put in a stellar performance for the Montreal all-Negro squad with 25 points, while Fred DesJeans, bagged 12 and H. Brown 11.

Can Agnew Yanks Win Another For Miracle Man?

By JACK HAND

New Orleans, April 8 — (AP) — Can Casey Stengel do it again? Can the aging New York Yankees win another for the "miracle man" manager of 1949?

On the "yes" side:

Tommy Henrich, hobbled by a knee injury, missed most of the training grind. Pitcher Jack Sanford has shown little to make up for his $100,000 he cost over a year ago. Bob Porterfield, despite a couple of fine efforts, remained a question mark because of his old arm trouble. Most important of all, the stand pat club is a year older.

As matters stand, the Yankee infield would open with Henrich on first, if he is able. If not, Jim Collins would take over. There would be Coleman on second, dependable Phil Rizzuto on short and Bobby Brown and Billy Johnson alternating at third against right and lefthanded pitching.

DiMaggio is the only outfielder sure of a regular job. Stengel may wind up alternating Gene Woodling and Johnny Lindell in left and Clipp Mapes and Hank Bauer in right.

Dick Wakefield, acquired from Detroit in the Dick Kryhoski deal, still has to prove himself. Dick hasn't done much hitting. Then he came up with a sore arm. Jackie Jensen, the local player who used to be a football star at California, must stick although he's not ready.

Johnny Mize still has trouble throwing although his bat pounds out a stream of pinch hits.

Eight Teams In East. Ontario Soccer League

Eight teams and possibly more will constitute the newly-formed Eastern Ontario Soccer League this season, it was decided at an executive meeting held in Kingston Thursday night.

President Les Digby, Belleville, announced today that the Ottawa Combined Services, Brockville Legion, Kingston United, Kingston Vimy, Belleville United, Belleville Navy and Peterborough DEW officials' teams were present at the meeting.

The executive decided to set the entry deadline for April 15 to give other teams considering entry the opportunity to join the league.

Representatives of all teams entered were present at the meeting, President Digby said. Considerable enthusiasm was apparent, it is felt the inaugural year of the new league will be a highly successful one.

The schedule will be drawn up at the expiration of the entry date. The first game of the season is expected will be played on April 29th.

Closer at home, six teams have entered the City of Quinte Soccer League. At a meeting held in the YMCA Wednesday night three Belleville teams the United, Navy and ANAF Veterans, Trenton Flyers, Sharon and Trenton Merchants filled application forms. Other teams especially one from Batawa one of the strongest teams in the league last year, are expected to enter. Entry deadline was set at April 15.

Tigers Improved But Newhouser On Ailing List

By JACK HAND

Montgomery, Ala., April 8 — (AP)—Hal Newhouser's doubtful left shoulder punctured the budding Detroit pennant boom.

Many experts impressed by occasionally smooth performances of manager Red Rolfe's Tigers, were hopping the Tiger bandwagon until Prince Hal came up with a sore arm.

Now nobody knows which way to jump. X-rays showed something wrong with the arm. Newhouser thinks he'll be all right with a little more rest.

Pitching is Rolfe's ace in the hole. His five-man starting staff of Virgil Trucks, Art Houteman, Freddie Hutchinson, Ted Gray and Newhouser is second to none. But there are no capable second-line pitchers.

Hal White, back after a year in Toledo, may be the answer to Rolfe's search for a reliefer. Dizzy Trout and Paul Calvert, acquired from Washington, are other bullpen workmen.

The Tigers are improved probably more than any other American League club. Addition of second baseman Jerry Priddy and first baseman Dick Kryhoski should help.

Priddy Will Help

Priddy, purchased from St. Louis for $100,000 and pitcher Lou Kretlow, is the "take charge guy" Rolfe has been looking for. He is a .290 hitter and a fine fielder.

Kryhoski, used only against right-handed pitchers by New York Yankees last year, still has to prove himself.

George Kell, the league batting champion, is the standout third baseman in the league. Johnny Lipon at shortstop doesn't figure up to normal calibre because of a poor arm and spotty hitting.

The outfield is another Detroit strong point. Hoot Evers in left, Johnny Groth in centre and Vic Wertz in right are bustling youngsters with good power and speed.

Catching is the Tigers' weakest spot. Aaron Robinson is the No. 1 man. Then comes Bob Swift. Myron (Joe) Ginsberg, a real comer, may have to go back to the minors because the Tigers have to keep Frank Houre, the $75,000 bonus boy.

This is the best-looking Tiger club in years, including the 1945 champions.

London, April 8 —(CP)—The Times, an august journal which rarely deals with any sport other than those traditionally British, broke its usual silence on hockey to comment on Canada's world championship victory here.

"The Canadian team," wrote the Times' skating correspondent "owed their success not only to their superiority in combination and in passing, but also to the fact their members were better skaters than the others.

"After all, this is hockey on skates and on ice, and the team which knows how to skate best starts with a great advantage."

He club the British team for "far too much exhibition of bad temper," referring to "the unseemly brawl that developed in the U.S.A. vs Great Britain match.

In that game Bill Snedden, youthful British defenceman, drew a misconduct penalty for threatening the referee. there was vigorous fist-fight and numerous minor outbreaks of ill will between the teams through the game.

"The sooner," said the Times man, "that these young athletes learn what referees are for, and a measure of self-discipline, the better for the game."

Newspaper advertisement noted recently:

"Royal and Ancient Golf Club ile, formerly cherished, for sale cheap by ex-member who will not visit St. Andrews until new rules are discarded."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Coach "Red" Townsend's Belleville Collegiate Institute's senior basketball squad, Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association champions, leave the city on Monday in quest of a titular bauble that rests at the end of a long, long trail. They're gunning for the Ontario Federation of Secondary Schools championship which will be decided in a thirteen-team tournament being staged in Toronto on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. If will be a hard, tough grind for the "Red-Hots" of Townsend, but last reports have it that they're full of the old school spirit, are in the pink of condition and while not cocky, are confident they can give the best of the ball-heaving knowledge knibbiers of the province a run for the money.

* * *

The beardless basketballers leave for the scene of conflict at 2:30 Monday afternoon by train. That night they meet the tough Jarvis Collegiate Institute quintet in the first game of the tournament. Every game must be a win; defeat means elimination and a chance to play in the consolation tournament. Bracketed in the first round are Runnymede Tech, Townsend, and Hamilton Tech; East York C. I. and Hamilton Westdale C. I.; Sudbury Tech and London Beck C. I.; Humberside C. I. and Niagara Falls, Jarvis and the Windsor C. I. Sault Ste. Marie C. I. and Ottawa Collegiate.

* * *

If the Townsend terrors get past Jarvis Collegiate they tackle the Hamilton Collegiate five on Tuesday night at 8.30. The semi-finals are scheduled for Wednesday night and the finals Thursday night. The games are being played on the gymnasia of Hart House, Ryerson Tech and Mutual Street Arena.

* * *

Fourteen players will make the trip with Coach Townsend and Manager Bill Wesley and Business Manager Don Jones. "Red" and Bill's three lads, Tony Trumpour, Gary Galbraith, Faulkner, Buchanan and Ketcheson against the shock troops of the Province's finest basketball quintets is going to be a tough assignment, but Coach Townsend's Bill Mercer, Delzotto, McBride, Muirhead, McClay, Massey, Ewaid, McMillan, Rose and Bows. This squad has defeated the best this part of Ontario and also the cream of the Niagara Falls C. I. one of the contending teams in the tourney dangling at its belt. Should the "Red-Hots" "farmers" be in the Griffies coach following their victory, will again have the chance to meet the city slickers from Runnymede, and if they do, they'll be out to avenge the sting of their sportsdom of the city joins this corner in wishing Red and his boys the best of luck. May their eyes be keen, their basket hampers, and may their shoutin' eyes be on dead centre.

* * *

And lest we forget, the boys did not lack for financial support thanks to a few goodhearted gentry and organizations. The "Red-Hots" earned themselves some nice shiny bars through the medium of the exhibition games while G. A. Freeman, Stephens Adamson Mfg. Co. Ltd., donated $50; Ben Tumas of Canadian Ordnance $25; Fred Ken Button, $10; the Kiwanis Club, $20; the teaching staff of the Collegiate Institute $30 and the Boys Athletic Society $56. While in Toronto the team will be quartered at the Seldon Court Hotel, Dundas and Jarvis Streets.

"HIGH" STICKS

According to Rex MacLeod of the Guelph Mercury, the Junior "A" Biltmores of that city will spend between four and five thousand dollars for hockey sticks this season. This sum, of course, supplies about 50 teams operating in the Guelph Minor Hockey Assbeiation. And the Toronto Maple Leafs of the Ontario Hockey Club alone, last year, spent $2,667.50 for their 1948-49 supply of shooting and swinging wands.

It appears that sticks don't last as long as they used to in the old days. But at that time a club could buy a good team for the kind of money spent on sticks today.

TONIGHT MEBBE THE NIGHT

Three up and one to go. That's the lilt in the Maple Leafs' backtwitch after Thursday night's smashing 5-1 victory over the rampaging Detroit Red Wings. Turk Broda deposited the third egg of the series in the Wings' net and all was hankey-dory in Canada. Dispy-doodle Max Bentley salted the tussle away for the Daymen on a speedy breakaway after the 5-1 lead the Wings 1-0 from the second period. The Adams clan's backs are so close to the traditional wall you would think they were countersunk and tenderly covered. I'll tell the tale. Leafs are to-de-feather the Wings and go into the finals while the Reds, born of desperation, will give all they've got to even matters. Should be quite a tilt.

* * *

Meanwhile there's a pall of gloom hanging over Montreal. Last night the Habs 3-0 before the Inspired Rangers and for the first time in years the Madison Square Gardens Bluebirds are in the Stanley Cup finals. And neighbor, 'twill take a right smart squad to bump the Rangers off in the payoff-playoffs. The boys in blue are riding high on a wave of inspired ability and they're going to throw a powerful rough touch tussle before the Stanley pewter is presented. And the way they're travelling these days, it wouldn't surprise me a bit to see Leafs go down in the ancient silverware regardless of who their opponents are.

AND WITHOUT PORTFOLIO

Ron (Bevin) Sivel, sports scrivener of the Picton Times and Minister of Labor in the Yanover-Fraser Baseball Cabinet, is strongly inclined to in an ear-bouncing powwow in Picton Thursday night that the "little Spanish town" would install Goodfellow to baseball park in this season. Said as how things are ahead'n' in the right direction, suitable estimates had been received, and some action was expectation of the good folks of the town, the kleigs appear to be a "cinch". Wouldn't go into details, just shoved out George Fermbyian grin and quoth to the Intelligencer "By the goom, we'll have the lights, ha, ha, ha." And the hardworking bloke was sincere, He's the Man Friday of the Picton baseball team. He toiled like a Trojan last season in whatever capacity was demanded of him and his loyalty was unquestioned. And he's in the sport between up to his neck, and beyond to his Adam's apple this year. It won't be the Picton sports minister of labor's fault if the lights are not installed or if the team comes back without a title. The management and players thoroughly appreciate his efforts and following in his work came thick and fast from all at the banquet tendered the team by the town of Picton on Thursday evening. He's a conscientious guy and "lets be sparsely about it". And being "spawny" in Sivel's dictionary means giving all you've got, physically and otherwise, and seeing that things are done. It means doing it yourself. Benny Sivel has proven a grand asset to Picton sports. Would that we had a few Sivels in sportdom in this neck of the woods.

The top-salaried Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox is reportedly getting $125,000 for 1950, about $45,000 more than Babe Ruth's best earnings in 1920 and 1931. But the old man with the pinkskirts will have company in the form of Ted Williams, and when the federal income tax boys get through with temporized Theodore, he'll be nearly as wealthy in his salary down to around $70,000 — pretty close to Ruth's top figure. Still, it is fair take-home pay, and the hours are good.

Boston Braves, Red Sox, Cleveland Indians and Yankees, $100,000; Ralph Kiner, Pirates, $65,000; Lou Boudreau, Indians, $65,000; Hal Newhouser, Tigers, $50,000; Stan Musial, Cardinals, $50,000; Bob Feller, Indians, $45,000; Tommy Henrich, Yankees, $43,500 George Kell, Tigers, $37,500; Jackie Robinson, Dodgers, $25,000;

Once Underdogs, Leafs Picked To Oust Detroit Red Wings From the Stanley Cup Race

Toronto, April 8 — (CP) — Detroit Red Wings, two weeks ago top-heavy favorites to win the Stanley Cup, are the underdogs today as they head into the decisive phase of their best-of-seven semi-final against Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Leafs, holding a 3-2 edge after five games, need only one more victory to enter the cup final against New York Rangers. And they have two chances to pull it off, tonight in Toronto and tomorrow night in Detroit.

To beat-down the Leafs, campaigning for their fourth successive Stanley Cup, the Red Wings have to take two in a row; and they have to beat off a jinx that has pursued them in eight of their 10 hockey playoff meetings with the Toronto sextet since 1929.

Five of the 10 series were in the final round for the cup and the Red Wings won four — — in four-game sweep in 1936. They lost in 1942, 1945, 1948 and 1949. The other five were in semi-final or other preliminary rounds and the only time the Wings were beaten in 1943. The Leafs won in 1929, 1932, 1935, 1940 and 1947.

The Leafs won the win first game of the series on opening night, the third 2-0 and the fifth, Thursday night, 2-0 — making the first time that goalie Turk Broda has scored more than two shutouts in a Stanley Cup playoff. The Red Wings won the second game 3-2 and the fourth 2-1 after 20 minutes and 22 seconds of sudden death play.

There is a possibility that the two weekend games won't wind up the series. That could come about if tonight's game in Toronto ends in a tie — possible because Toronto has won all but one the game at midnight. If that should happen, the extra game will go on at Detroit Sunday night as scheduled. Then, if necessary, the sixth game will be replayed here Tuesday night.

Odds Favor Leafs

Betting odds on the Leafs to win tonight are high as eight to five. It was the other way round before the series started — and before Thursday night's fifth game.

Detroit played one of its poorest home games before a record season crowd of 14,806 Thursday as Broda posted 21 saves for his shutout. The Wings played without their regular Gordie Howe in hospital, and Pete Babando and Jimmy Peters, also injured.

Toronto took a 1-0 lead in the first period on a 10-footer by Ted Kennedy. Then in the last period Max Bentley stole the puck, skated the length of the ice and blasted a 15-footer through goalie Harry Lumley who got poor protection at times.

Biltmores Take Stranglehold On Semi-Final Series

Guelph, Ont., April 8 — (CP) —Guelph Biltmores today hold a stranglehold on their Eastern Canada junior hockey semi-final series—thanks mainly to a first forward named Don Oberholtzer.

Oberholtzer came up with two important goals in the third period Friday night to pace Biltmores to a 5-2 victory over Porcupine Combines in the fourth game of their best-of-seven series.

That victory gave the Ontario Hockey association champions a 3-1 lead in the series. They can wrap it up with a victory in the Cataract Arena here today—for the right to meet Montreal Canadiens in the final. Biltmores won the first game 7-1, the second 2-1 and then dropped the third 3-2.

It was a scrappy game until Oberholtzer broke loose at 4:33 of the final frame to tally two goals in the space of 30 seconds and break a 2-2 deadlock that took all the edge out of the Porkies' play.

Up until then the Combines matched Biltmores goal for goal. Guelph went ahead 1-0 in the second period but it was tied 2-2 by the end of the third period.

Andy Bathgate also got two goals for Biltmores while Lorne Ashley got the other. Bill McLaughlin and Stan Mestan tallied for Combines.

Stellar Support

As in the previous three games the Combines received stellar support from 17-year-old netminder Hal Harrington. Harrington kept them in the game in the third period by a series of spectacular stormed his net. They failed to hit the score sheet until Ashley scored at 10:23.

McLaughlin tied it up early in the second stanza by a pile-up in front of the goal. Andy Bathgate had been in all along on minutes earlier only to be fooled by Harrington, pushed Guelph ahead again at 4:34 as Stan Mestan caught the upper right hand corner.

Combines turned on their best offensive of the series and Mestan got the goal at 4:41. Gerry Labelle who was lying on the ice shoved in a pass with his hand and Mestan picked an open corner.

Then Oberholtzer came through with his two goals. He got the first on a pass from Tom Giancco and his second from Steve Brklacich. Bathgate helped an insurance goal at 13:16.

Memorial Cup Survivors

Six teams still are in the running for the Memorial Cup and the Canadian Junior Amateur Hockey championship — three in the east and three in the west. The survivors:

East:

Montreal Canadiens, Guelph Biltmores, Porcupine Combines.

West:

Port Arthur Bruins, Brandon Wheat Kings, Regina Pats.

Samis and Pogue Transferred To Cleveland Barons

(By The Canadian Press)

Cleveland Barons Friday obtained two more players through a mid-season deal which sent goalie Al Rollins to Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

When the American League Barons sent Rollins to Toronto they received cash "in five figures" as well as defencemen Bobby Dawes and Bob Shropshire, a young goalie with the Junior Oshawa Generals.

Now they will also get Phil Samis, 23, a defenceman this season with Pittsburgh and Eric Pogue, 20, a right winger who played for Pittsburgh and Los Angeles this year. Both will report for practice next fall.

Pittsburgh has a working agreement with Toronto.

The International League will open its fifth consecutive season April 20 with two important changes from the last campaign.

First Hartford, Mass., has replaced Newark, N.J., and second, Toronto now plays seven games on Sundays for the first time.

Springfield takes Newark's place in the southern half of the circuit and thus will have the privilege of opening the season at home against Buffalo's defending pennant winners. Springfield won the league's post-season playoffs.

Opening day will see Buffalo at Springfield, Montreal at Jersey city, Rochester at Baltimore and Toronto at Syracuse.

The northern teams will stage their home openers May 3 when Jersey City at Montreal, Syracuse at Toronto, Springfield at Buffalo and Baltimore at Rochester.

At Montreal, University of Manitoba Bisons escaped elimination from the Canadian senior Basketball championship hunt Friday night by downing the favored Montreal Amateur A.A. team 54 in the third game of their best of five final series.

The Y. won the previous two contests 33-47 and 47-34. The fourth game will be played at Montreal Monday night.

At Los Angeles, the California Athletic Commission Thursday named Manuel Ortiz, world bantamweight champion, the green light for a title defence against Vic Towee, British Empire champion in South Africa next month.

Kelley of Boston Wins Marathon In Hamilton

Hamilton, Ont., April 8—(CP)— John Kelley of Boston, twice winner of the Boston Marathon, raced a field of 39 runners Friday to win the Hamilton Canadian Veterans' 15-mile road race here. Carrying the colors of the Second Employees' Recreation Club, Kelley covered the distance in 1:26.33, while Bill Gerard, native of St. Hyacinthe, Que., who came second and Phil Donnachie of Toronto who placed third.

Rangers May Play All Home Games At Montreal

Montreal, April 8—(CP)—New York Rangers, who ousted the Montreal Canadiens for the Stanley Cup race, now may be adopted by Montreal for the final series of the National Hockey League playoffs.

The "homeless" Rangers, having lost their Madison Square Garden to a circus, were offered the use of the Montreal Forum for their home games in the finals, either with Toronto Maple Leafs of Detroit Red Wings. Leafs lead their best-of-seven semi-final series 3-2.

The New Yorkers planned to go to Toronto for tonight's sixth game in the Toronto-Detroit series but were ordered to remain here pending a decision by Gen. John Reed Kilpatrick on the Montreal offer.

They are scheduled to hold a practice session there on Monday. If Forum ice, were they clinched their best-of-seven series against Canadiens, 4-1.

Frank Selke, Canadiens' general manager who offered Rangers the use of the Forum "any time," said Friday night he expects an answer from Gen Kilpatrick "by Sunday."

Meanwhile, Rangers' coach Lynn Patrick left for Toronto Friday night to see the game there and to discuss the Montreal offer with Clarence Campbell, N.H.L. president.

Depends On Dates

Patrick told The Canadian Press before his departure that Rangers "want to play in Montreal very much, any decision will depend on dates which are available."

Under N.H.L. rules, Rangers, as secondary finalists to Detroit and Toronto during the regular season, can choose the venue for their third, fourth, fifth and playoff games. However, the rules also stipulate that any game which could settle the series may not be played on neutral ice.

The Canadiens move to Montreal hopes of continuing in the cup game come Saturday night when the Rangers blanked the Canadiens 3-0 before a home-town crowd of 14,113 fans.

After the teams had played stiloughs two scoreless periods, little Jack Gordon, a rookie from the Rangers' Edmonton farm club, shot the visitors into a lead good enough for victory with less than a minute later defenceman Pat Egan made it 2-0 and the cup was practically in the bag. A third counter mark with Dunc Fisher scoring directly in front of the net.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

Agusta, Ga., Apr. 8—(AP)—A touching reunion at the Masters Golf Tournament was the first meeting in 15 years between Bob Jones and his old caddie, Luke Ross . . . Luke, a Cleveland boy, followed Bob around to carry his clubs when Jones was winning everything in sight . . . Bob figured Luke was the best possible bag toter because he never made a suggestion about which club to use . . . chances are they had a few words about Jone's celebrated iron shot that won the playoff against Bobby Cruickshank for the open title in 1923 . . . After Cruickshank took three strokes to reach the last green, Jones hauled out a mid-iron from his bag, hardly noticing which club he took, and fired a perfect shot six feet from the pin . . . Luke naturally, was standing near Jones and right behind him was Stewart Maiden, Bobby's mentor . . . As the ball sailed in the air, a sure winning shot, Maiden grabbed his new straw hat in both hands and smashed it down on Luke's head . . . if Ross could forget the shot, he hardly could forget that wallop.

CURB THAT IMPULSE

Hastings County is famed as being one of the best fishing spots in Ontario. In its rivers, lakes and streams abound the fighting muskie, the black bass, the pickerel and various types of trout. Verily, a fisherman's paradise.

We, as residents of this vacation-land should see that it remains a holiday paradise. We can do our bit by aiding in the conservation of the fish population. Good fishing attracts tourists. Tourists mean new friends and more dollars.

Let us demonstrate our sportsmanship by refraining from taking undersized fish from our streams, lakes and rivers. Each female fish caught, and it is illegal at this time of the year, means the loss of at least 100 fish of the future.

Be sporte, fellas. Curb that impulse to spear or net the spawning pickerel. If you do, you won't be sorry. If you don't, you may be.—G.H.C.

The Glass Rod - - Its Limitations

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Selmar Tables)

Rarely does a week pass that several letters do not show up in my mail box asking questions about glass rods. Are they as good as bamboo rods? Should I buy one of solid glass or one of tubular construction? What make should I buy? Those are the usual questions.

It is not easy to reply to these letters. Too many variable factors enter the glass-rod picture to permit anything other than general-ities in reply to questions of this sort. To clarify matters, let me tell you what we have been able to find out about glass rods.

Stands Rough Handling

First off, consider the material itself. Properly made, a glass rod section will tolerate an incredible amount of abuse. Only recently I have seen a salesman for one of the tackle companies demonstrate the durability of the tip of a glass casting rod.

He bent the rod into a circle, touching the tip guide to the end of the rod grip. He threw the rod on the floor and jumped on it, hard, with both feet. He placed his foot on the tip end and twisted the rod into a corkscrew. Then he took it out to the curb and shut the tip in the door of a Buick sedan.

When he had finished, the rod was as straight and solid as ever, showing no sign of wear and tear.

Glass, of course, does not rust, rot or corrode. But what of the binder that holds the glass fibres together? Will that last as long as the glass fibres? Frankly, we don't know about that. Some of the compounds we exactly the same process. Time alone will give us the answer on plastic binding agents in glass rods.

Tonkin Cane More Powerful

Glass rod tips, as they are now made do not perform well in comparison with good tonkin cane. Repeated tests, made by an engineer of proven ability and integrity, show that size for size and weight for weight bamboo is approximately one third more powerful and almost three times as fast in action.

This deficiency can be remedied easily in butt joints of all rods and in the lower portions of middle joints of fly rods. There the size can be increased to make up the difference in power. But tip joints of glass, either in fly rods or casting rods, cannot be made disproportionately larger than bamboo tips because to do so makes a top-heavy rod with too much air resistance. Thus a dead-lock is reached and little if anything can be done about it.

These tests were made with all of the glass rods available as of October, 1949. I was not there. All I can do is to pass his findings along to you as he gave them to me.

Continual Improvements

Manufacturing processes are closely guarded by the rod companies. Moreover, they are being improved constantly. The plastic binders that serve to hold the glass fibres together are applied variously and variously treated. Little or no exact information can be picked up about binders.

The solid rod sections, they tell us, are composed of longitudinal glass fibres held together with plastic. As I write this, I have before me a sample of this material. The maker tells me that there are nearly half a million glass fibres in this sample section.

One company has evolved a method of tapering these fibres so that a tapered rod section has the same number of fibres at each end. This same company coats each fibre with plastic binder, thus insuring perfect union in the final baking process.

Some Weaknesses

Most of the tubular sections are made by wrapping glass cloth around a tapered mandril, usually of steel, and then binding the cloth fibres together with a binding agent. Then the mandril is withdrawn, leaving a hollow core.

There are two inherent fallacies in this method of manufacture. The ends of the wrap unavoidably will overlap, resulting in a variation of wall thickness in the tubular section. Also the weave of the cloth is such that fifty per cent of the fibres are lengthwise. In bending the actual work to be done by the other fifty per cent.

From the standpoint of engineering, a flexible bar or rod is most efficient if a very small or no hollow core is allowed. In a solid bar the material nearest the core does little work when flexed, serving mainly as a fulcrum over which the outer material is bent, thus setting up unnecessary strains.

At least in theory, the tubular rod is preferable to the solid one, aside from the difference in weight.

One of the things which does not impress me with glass rods is the crudity of the finish of all that I have seen. Some of the tip sections which I have tested for uniformity, using a micrometer, are a source of joy to the heart-aches of an inch out of round.

Fleschings in the rod series as the cube of the diameter. This is the reason that fly-rod action is such an elusive and variable quality. You can readily see what such large fleschings in a glass rod tip do to the accurate performance of that rod in actual use.

What glass rod should you buy? I can't answer that. Glass rod manufacturers are springing up like mushrooms all over the country, some of them decidedly of the "mushroom" variety. Theoretically the tubular rods are preferable but the solid rods of the older, established companies are better by far than some of the tubular rods I have seen.

Buyer Must Decide

Adding it all up, I suppose that your selection of a rod is dependent upon what you want in a rod. If you wish to have a durable, almost indestructible rod that will turn out a casting job which is "good enough", probably you would be happy with a glass rod.

If you want a rod that is accurately made, that is fragile and requires care to keep it in good shape, and that will turn out top performance when in the efficient and accurate casting, then you no doubt would be more satisfied with one of top-grade tonkin cane.

You will have to pay more for a good bamboo rod than you will for a glass one. As is true of most things that you buy these days, if you deal with reputable companies, you get back your full dollar value for the dollar you spend.

Training Camp Briefs

If springtime form to date holds true for the impending major league baseball season—which it usually doesn't—it'll be Cincinnati against Detroit Tigers in the World Series.

Cincinnati, the National League's perennial power in the sunshine belt, tops the 16 major League clubs in the mythical Grapefruit League with a 15-8 record for a .652 percentage.

Red Rolfe's Tigers, regarded as the American League dark horse, lead that circuit with a .611 mark on 11 victories and seven setbacks. Figures, including games of last night, embrace only those games against major league opposition.

Here's the current exhibition standings. Figures in parenthesis denote last year's regular season finish.

Thurso Defeats Rouyon Flashes By 4-1 Score

Rouyn, Que., April 8 —(CP)— Thurso Lumber Kings Friday night came roaring back to score four last-period goals and defeat Rouyn Flashes 4-1 in the first game of the Eastern Canada intermediate A hockey semi-finals. The second game of the best-of-five series will be played here tonight.

Thurso had to make their win the hard way. After a scoreless first period, Rouyn counted the first goal in the second frame. But it was their only aggressive display. The Quebec district champions climbed all over them in the finale.

Rouyn showed a slight edge in first period play but the Thurso defence blunted their thrusts.

In the second period Rouyn scored their only goal when Norm Connelly banged in his own rebound. Thurso pressed hard the rest of the period but failed to score.

At 1:39 of the third frame Thurso tied it up on a close-in drive by Payette, S. Giroux and Fairfield drawing assists. Intervening penalty at 5:01 to S. Giroux was killed nicely and Rouyn snipers were unable to get a clear shot at goal.

Steamy clearing by the Rouyn defence gave Thurso their winning tally, Fairfield passing to Laiong for a goal at the eight-minute mark. Fairfield and Chenier provided later clinchers.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By BOB McALEER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, April 8—(CP)—Ontario's senior and Junior A hockey players may be riding for a fall after several years of playing for "swollen" salaries.

How long can the club sponsors stand what some observers term the gaff of abnormally high expenses and paper thin profits?

And with the Ontario government seriously thinking of levying the 15-per-cent amusement tax on the so-called amateur clubs, the fall could well be just around the corner.

Dan (Kitchener-Waterloo Record) Odette does some quick paper work and reasoning and comes up with some surprising figures on this year's Flying Dutchmen, runners-up this season to Toronto Marlboros in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A race.

Margin of Profit

"Prospects for another Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen team next season are dim indeed," says Dan. Reasoning on the premise that even a sport enterprise must show a reasonable margin of profit if it is to stay in business, Odette shows where the 15 per cent tax could well ruin the Dutchmen.

"For the past three years the Dutchmen's margin has been much lower than 15 per cent, therefore, if the club has to pay the 15-per-cent levy, a cut in expenses will have to be made somewhere — and that somewhere is players' salaries."

Tough on Imports

With a salary cut of 15 per cent in the offing the picture looks dark indeed of enticing promising material to the twin-city camp—or even holding the players they have.

"The answer is simple," reasons Dan, answering his own question on holding players. "They can't. Neither can the sponsors of the Owen Sound Club and that's why they are ready to pull out."

Two Former Canadians Assist In Success of Best American Play

By PAT USHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, April 8. (CP)—Choice of "The Member of the Wedding" by the drama critics circle as the best American play of the season was—at least in part—a tribute to two former Montrealers.

The award-winning drama by Carson McCullers, a young Georgia writer, was produced by Robert Whitehead, Oliver Rae and Stanley Martinez. Whitehead, who has teamed with Rae in several productions, and Martinez, a prominent sculptor, both come from the Canadian city.

The critics' top choices, "The Member of the Wedding"; "The Cocktail Party" as the best foreign play; and "The Consul" as the best musical play, speak for themselves.

Here are some of the other good things of the season, in the opinion of this column:

The performances of Sidney Blackmer and Shirley Booth as an alcoholic dreamer and his slovenly wife in "Come Back, Little Sheba"; the acting of Sir Cedric Hardwicke and Lilli Palmer as the principals in the revival of Shaw's "Caesar and Cleopatra"; "The Happy Time", for the general air of good humour displayed by the eccentric Ottawa family with which it deals; and "Touch and Go", a good example of a light revue.

All of these but "Touch and Go" are still running.

Orchard to Plantation

Helen Hayes has come back to town to score another triumph in "The Wisteria Trees", a play by Joshua Logan based on Chekhov's "The Cherry Orchard". Logan has transplanted the setting from a run-down Russian estate to a run-down plantation in Louisiana. But apart from that, it's pretty much the same slow-moving account of a decaying aristocratic family and the futility of the lives of its members. Miss Hayes is brilliant as the wayward Lucy Randell, the heroine of the drama.

Aisle Jottings

Carousel", one of the hit musicals by Richard Rodgers of Oscar Hammerstein, is due to open in London in June. Iva Withers, formerly of Rivera, Man., has been named as likely to handle the feminine lead. . . . Harvey", Mary Elien Chase's comedy about a gentle drunk, and his companion, an out-size rabbit, has just opened in Berlin, retitled "My Name is Hare."

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, April 7 (AP)—Like most young girls, Terry Moore has discovered the value of a tight sweater.

In Terry's case, the realization has brought handsome returns for her acting career. She had been doing okay as a sweet young thing in films. But having just turned 21, she knew she couldn't play the shy heroine forever. The change came when she was trying out for her last picture.

"I was wearing a simple little suit," she recalled. "Immediately they told me I was too young to co-star with Victor Mature. I protested that 16-year-old Joan Evans had just made a picture with Dana Andrews. But they answered that Joan was— well— more developed.

"I was too embarrassed to argue, but they did promise to give me a test. I made the test wearing a black negligee and got the part."

When he boss saw the test, he exclaimed: "Why didn't somebody tell me Terry Moore had grown up!" The test also helped land her the Mickey Rooney picture, "Freddie the Great," in which she wears her most revealing costumes to date.

The Sage Speaks

Larry Parks may have some salient words of advice for embattled Hollywood couples. He explains that his wife, Betty Garrett gave up her MGM contract because they felt they were missing too much of their marriage. "We, were under contract to different studios, working different hours and doing different things," he said. "We hardly had a chance to see each other.

"Now we will be able to make pictures together. When we come home in the evenings, we will have something mutual to talk about."

Capsule Review

"The Damned Don't Cry" (WB) is not by and is far, far from, in fact, its rather exciting story shines through the routine handling it is given. The plot may sound reminiscent of recent headlines, being the story of a pseudo-society girl who gets involved in a country-wide gambling syndicate. The west coast operator, gets bumped off. Joan Crawford plays the lead adroitly, but needs a change of pace from the rags to riches gal. David Brian, Steve Cochran and Kent Smith fight over her.

COUNTER PROPOSAL OFFERED

Detroit, April 8 — (AP) — Chrysler Corporation offered the United Auto Workers (C.I.O.) a counter-proposal Thursday night on the thorny pension issue in an effort to settle a strike that has dragged on for 73 days.

The U.A.W., without making direct comment, indicated it would consider the company offer.

Chrysler said its offer covered only pensions but would not comment further.

A halt was called to negotiations about 10:15 p.m. EST after the longest day of bargaining since the strike began Jan. 25. The parties agreed to meet again today.

HUGE LOOT

Property stolen in the United States in 1948 was valued at $22,000,000.

SIX UMPIRES SIGNED

Ogdensburg, N.Y., April 6 — (AP)— The Border League Wednesday announced signing of six umpires, including three of last year's staff.

The hold-overs are Fred Blandford of Toronto, Hugh J. MacDonald, Lowell, Mass., and Robert C. Schrader, Sayre, Pa

Newcomers to the class-C circuit are Harry Gardner of Chicago, George (Barney) Parnlele, Fitchburg, Mass., and Theodore Pelletier, Webster, Mass.

League play opens May 10.

STUDIES GO ON

Origin of 'Here's Looking at You'

The familiar toast "here's looking at you", has a strange history that dates back to the early 18th century.

Those were the days of the "press gangs" in England. When the supply of sailors for the Royal Navy became short, a very simple system was used to swell the ranks. Pat Wheelan writes in the Windsor Star. Gangs of men were sent out to comb the large cities, looking for men suitable for the navy.

Carried To Ship

When a likely candidate was found, he was induced to join the naval service by the simple expedient of knocking him on the head and carrying him off to the ship. When he awoke, often far out at sea, he found himself automatically a member of His Majesty's Navy.

The system, while effective, had its drawbacks. History records that in 1779 a general impressment of "all rogues and vagabonds of the City of London" was ordered. These characters failed to turn out to be as good sailors as it had been hoped. They were blamed for infecting many of their shipmates who died in the great plague which swept the ships of the fleet.

The British Army, always polite and courteous, was at the same time using a more dignified method of securing its low-priced help. The army method used recruiting sergeants, who roamed the cities and towns in search of likely candidates.

Theoretically the recruiting sergeant was a persuasive gentleman whose honeyed words would immediately convince the young man of the virtues and benefits of military service. A short talk with the sergeant, perhaps a convivial drink in the pub, a shilling changed hands, and the army had a new recruit.

Sealed Bargain

The shilling was always given to the recruit by the sergeant as a means of sealing the bargain. Once he had accepted the shilling there was no way out for the recruit.

The practice of sealing the bargain with a shilling continued up to the early years of World War I and "taking the King's shilling" came to be a synonym for joining the army.

In the early days, unfortunately, the sergeants were paid according to the number of recruits they gathered. If a young man seemed reluctant, the sergeant would use deception to make him take the fatal shilling.

The methods used were similar to the present-day tactics of grocers servers. Any kind of trick was allowed, as long as the candidate could be made to take the shilling. The most popular and effective ruse was performed in bars and taverns.

Placed In Mug

The sergeant would enter the bar and strike up an acquaintance with a tipsy young man. After two or three more pints of ale, it was an easy matter to slip a shilling into the pewter mug from which the victim was drinking.

As soon as the mug was tipped up for drinking, the shilling rolled down to the victim's mouth. As soon as his lips touched the coin, the man had accepted the King's shilling and was automatically an army man.

This recruiting practice naturally added considerably to the occupational hazards of drinking. Tradition has it that the first answer to the problem came from a London pubkeeper who invented the glass-bottomed mug.

With this new convenience, the drinker could look right through his mug to ensure that no seemingly innocent bystander had dropped a shilling into his ale.

Phrase Coined

From the invention of the glass-bottomed mug it was a short step to the coining of the phrase "here's looking at you", a welcome change from the old "to your health".

The landlord's inspiration solved the problem. Business in the pubs came back to normal. The recruiting sergeants cursed and went about inventing a new trick.

In the modern world, glass-bottomed pewter beer mugs are antiques, to be saved carefully as mementos, but the phrase which they gave birth to still persists, as modern as the H-bomb.

Try it today after work. As you lift the pre-prandial glass, say the magic words, "Here's looking at you." If you have any imagination, you may see the shade of a recruiting sergeant turn away, cursing the smiling landlord whose shade still smiles.

Science Pursues Dogged Research to Defeat Polio

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Apr. 8 (CP)—A relentless war that seldom makes newspaper headlines is being waged by science against infantile paralysis.

Only when epidemics strike, usually during the heat of summer, does this ceaseless campaign hit the front pages. But the war is constant.

Is it being won? The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, one of the principal agencies in the United States fighting the disease, says categorically in a pamphlet: "There is great hope that a way to stop polio will be found."

In Canada, the battle is being carried on by the Canadian Foundation for Poliomyelitis. The organization has just conducted a successful campaign for funds.

The enemy is a series of viruses so small that millions could be placed on a pin-head. The chief weapon is unspectacular scientific research.

Cases of infantile paralysis in the United States last year were the highest ever recorded. Preliminary figures show 42,275 persons suffered the disease, a sharp increase from 27,976 in 1948, the previous worst year.

Canada escaped relatively lightly in 1948 with preliminary figures showing 2,326 cases against 3,880 in 1937, the Dominion's worst year. The 1948 figure was 1,159.

Primary aims of research, says the National Foundation, are to wipe out the viruses which cause it; to find a cure, and to improve existing methods of treatment. The disease usually rises to a peak in the hot summer months. But there have been outbreaks at all times of the year. This winter some cases were reported from St. Augustin, a remote settlement on the Quebec-Labrador border.

John Middleton, a regional director of the foundation, says there is no way of deducing from statistics whether poliomyelitis runs in cycles. Statistics indicate the disease is increasing, even conceding that diagnosis now is more accurate than 10 to 20 years ago, when a number of polio cases were erroneously reported as "fever".

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis now has 98 research projects under way in university laboratories, two of them in the University of Toronto. The initial objective is to find out how many viruses cause the disease, says Roland H. Berg, director of research information. At least three strains of the virus are known now.

The foundation last year granted $28,990 to the University of Toronto for work on virus research at the Connaught Laboratories, under Dr. Andrew J. Rhodes. The aim is to try to develop a concentrated serum whose protective powers can be tested on monkeys. Eventually it may be tried on man.

The second Toronto project, for which $5,150 was appropriated in 1949, for work on treatment of after-effects, is at the Schools of Hygiene, under Dr. Donald Y. Soland. This project, now in its birth years, is an endeavor to study all the changes that occur in a muscle when its nerve supply is impaired and evolve treatment to restore the muscle to normal.

A country's future population is decided in the main by agriculture, says Dr. Griffith Taylor, Professor of Geography at the University of Toronto. The above map, from Dr. Taylor's book "Canada," published in 1947 by Methuen, London, indicates the various crop lines in Canada. The northern limit runs along the top of the line "Limit of Grain Where Soils Favorable." The dark areas on the map indicate the areas of likely densest population and the figures indicate density of population per square mile in future settlement.— (CP Photo.)

A Peep Into the Future

Professor Believes That Agricultural Limits Will Keep Canada's Population to 100 Million

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

Toronto, April 8 (CP)— Want to know what the population of Canada will be 50 or 100 years from now?

Well, get out your geography books. Not those you discarded at about 14 years of age, out of which you memorized the names of rivers and the exports of Madagascar or the imports of Hong Kong.

Not those, but books which will tell you the make-up of your country in terms of supporting people.

For, as Dr. Griffith Taylor, professor of geography at the University of Toronto, put it:

"Geography is a liaison subject in which the significant facts of geology, physics and so on are incorporated in the study of environment. It is not to be thought of simply as the memorizing of facts and localities, but rather as a series of exercises in deduction."

Saturation Point

Canada, a country of 3,500,000 square miles, roughly the size of Europe or the United States, is not so favorable to large population as either.

Europe now has about 300,000,000 people: it that is regarded as "saturation," then Canada on the same basis may some day have 100,000,000 people. However, from the standpoint of a higher standard of living, 40,000,000 or 50,000,000 would be better.

Dr. Taylor bases his views on the belief that nature has largely decided the future of a country before man occupies it; that it has in large part decided a country's progress; but he should not if he is a true expert from the directions indicated by natural environment.

Agriculture Main Factor

What are these "directions indicated by natural environment" in Canada?

In the first place, Dr. Taylor states, agriculture (apart from extensive coal fields) is the major factor in producing a stable close settlement. Mines help greatly to open up a pioneer region but (except for coal mines) do not in general produce permanent settlements.

In agriculture the big governing factor is the July temperature, and an average July temperature of 57 degrees may be taken as marking the northern boundary.

In Canada this northern July 57 line runs through the northern tip of Newfoundland (well north of the Maritime provinces). Across northern Quebec and Ontario, skirts James Bay, and then swoops northwest across northern Manitoba and Saskatchewan and up the Mackenzie River basin to the Arctic Circle.

In that belt, of course, there is much land unsuitable for agriculture, regardless if it were mature. Particularly, there is Canadian Shield, a source of great mineral wealth but distinctly unfavorable to agriculture. It is a vast rock formation which covers about half of Canada, sweeping down from the Northwest Territories, across northern Saskatchewan and Manitoba and over most of Northern Ontario and Quebec.

Northern Sweep

Particularly fortunate for Canada is an upward sweep of good wheat lands into the Peace River area of Alberta-British Columbia, and general agricultural possibilities along the Mackenzie River basin to the Arctic ocean.

For what may be done in the Mackenzie north, Dr. Taylor draws a lesson from Russia. Igarka on the Yenest River in Siberia was established only in 1927 but in 1939 had a population of 20,000, though it has the same situation as Aklavik.

"Ships enter in July and must leave by October. However, sawmills can work during the winter, as they will some day at Aklavik.

"There are less than 90 frost-free days in the year, but surprising results have been obtained by the use of special seed. Wheat, barley and oats are cultivated in the open, although the subsoil is frozen a short distance below the surface."

Soil in Nova Scotia, and Alberta should assist population growth in those provinces.

"In Alberta the abundant coal cannot be ignored much longer as a source of power on a large scale. There are so few little-used coalfields left that our great heritage will soon be fully exploited."

Oil in Alberta and coal in Labrador are recent factors, and Dr. Taylor seems to assert their long-term population effects largely in terms of development they bring to areas with solid agricultural possibilities.

If he puts limits on population because of factors of environment he does not mention any limits to the capacity of a people to use their resources to raise their standards of living. By implication he leaves open what a people may accomplish in adjusting themselves to their environment by proper nutrition and application of scientific knowledge to living conditions.

Many Possibilities

As to what Canada's population will be in the year 2,000 or well, 50 years is a short time in the life of a country, and many things may occur to accelerate or slow down possible development; and he prefers to make no forecast of 40,000,000 or 50,000,000 (or 100,000,000 on a "saturation basis) in terms of 100 years or more.

Dr. Taylor, a native of Australia, has been with the University of Toronto for 15 years, has published 30 books including, in 1947, "Canada," a study of the country's background and geographic makeup.

Unidentified Man Shot to Death By Policeman

Montreal, April 8 — (CP) — An unidentified man was shot to death Friday night by a Montreal policeman when he failed to heed a warning to stop.

Police said two officers were sent to investigate a noise at the rear of a garage on the midtown St. Lawrence Boulevard. From the roof, they spotted two men in the back yard. They ordered them to remain where they were but the men took to their heels. After firing a warning shot Constable Guy Goudreault fired as one of the men was climbing over a fence, the bullet striking the man in the back and killing him.

The other man got away.

Physicians Given Idea of Problem In Event A-Attack

Cleveland, April 8 — (AP) — Physicians from Canada and the United States got some idea here Friday of what they would face in the event of an atomic attack.

They met at Western Reserve University under the sponsorship of the United States Atomic Energy Commission and were told the U. S. is unprepared to cope with an atomic disaster.

Dr. Frank M. Barry, Western Reserve assistant Professor of Surgery, outlined the problem by telling of the "tremendous" quantities of blood, vaseline and gauze needed to treat casualties.

He pointed out that present methods of treating burns require the services of several nurses and four or five surgeons and assistants to treat one person with a burn covering 60 per cent of his body.

Such treatment, he continued, would be impossible for the number of persons it is predicted one atomic bomb would burn.

Nice, France, April 8—(AP)—The Aga Khan and his wife, the Begum, just aren't safe from thieves these days.

Last year a holdup gang stopped their automobile outside their villa, Yakimour, near here and took jewelry valued at thousands of dollars. Much of the loot has since been recovered.

Friday night the Aga Khan's staff reported to police that someone had entered the villa gardens and raided the clothesline.

The loot was 10 pairs of panties and six brassieres.

Suffern, N.Y., April 8—(AP)—Postmaster Frank Cacciotti stuck his hand in Dr. Thomas Jukes' mail box Friday to leave a letter and came face against a snake coiled inside the box.

He withdrew his hand quickly.

Cacciotti said teen-agers apparently put the snake in the box. It turned out to be a harmless garter snake.

Nashville, Tenn., April 8—(AP) —A former war veteran who had been expecting an army insurance check got the surprise of his life when he opened a letter from the government.

The letter said: "You owe the United States $5,680."

Arthur Covington, a hotel porter, read on.

Seems the army had been paying Washington's estranged wife $80 a month family allowance from the day of his discharge in October 1943, to Sept. 30, 1949.

The letter from the army finance centre at St. Louis added that the division had "created an indebtedness of $5,680."

Washington who said he and his wife had reconciled six years ago, took the letter in stride.

"I haven't got that money," he said.

Steelton, Pa., April 8—(AP)— Thanks to a hungry chicken, Mrs. Earl Fox has a wedding ring to wedding band again today—19 years after she lost it in the old Pennsylvania canal.

The band had slipped from her finger as she was throwing ice cubes into the waterway behind her home. A week of searching failed to find the missing ring.

Since then, the canal bed has been filled in with ashes. The missing ring was almost forgotten until Charley Volunteir, who lives on the opposite side of the old canal noticed one of his chickens wasn't eating.

Investigating, he found the gold band around the hen's neck. Initials and the memory of the local residents brought the band back to its owner.

Downs Coulter Plant Re-Opens, 90 Back at Work

Pickeiers Attempt to Use Force to Keep Doors Closed

Trenton — (Special) — Strike-bound for the past 14 weeks, the Trenton plant of Downs Coulter and Co. in Trenton was re-opened this morning as approximately 90 workers pushed through a small but determined line of pickeiers.

Police were on hand to give the returning workers protection and their protection was needed as several of the pickeiers resorted to force in a vain attempt to keep the plant doors closed.

A couple of the pickeiers were manhandled by police officers as they attempted to rough up employees returning to their jobs, while George Beckett, C. of C. organizer was placed under arrest. Chief of police Jack Taylor stated Beckett would be charged with assault. It was said by police that Beckett had taken a swing at one of the workers.

Determined Group

It was a small but determined group of pickeiers who marched up and down in front of the Downs-Coulter plant. They were on hand long before the time scheduled re-opening of the plant advertised for eight o'clock. In two's and threes they marched up and down in front of the entrance to the tramic, many of the girls singing in an effort to keep up spirits.

Two of the large trucks of the plant were boarded and searched by pickeiers who suspected in front of the employees' entrance.

Well over a thousand Trenton residents, attracted by the possibility of trouble, watched proceedings from across the street.

By-Pass Main Entrance

Plant workers chosen by the management to enter by their jobs congregated some blocks away from the factory. Then headed by police and with other officers guarding their flank and rear, they marched to the plant.

By-passing Wragge Street on which the main entrance to the plant is situated, the line of workers headed for the entrance on Dufferin Street. Instantly pickeiers made a rush for the side entrance to block the opening of the doors.

The doors were partially opened and then were jammed shut by the rush. Then a door panel was broken, the glass shattered and the workers filed in. Then the doors were closed.

Pickeiers made a vain attempt to break the ranks of the returning workers but were bundled away by police.

Workers returning to their jobs were the target of cat-calls and verbal abuse on the part of pickeiers but apparently following instructions little if any reply was made.

Taunt Police

With workers inside the plant and the doors guarded by police, pickeiers became the victims of verbal abuse from the picketers. The management of Trenton, Ontario, officer of striking a female pickeiers.

Since the start of the strike Downs Coulter plant had been picketed by union members. The picketing was withdrawn only last week when the management of the company made a public statement that the plant would be re-opened Monday morning.

With a large percentage of the workers now having returned to their jobs, police stated they expected no further violence from the pickeiers. However, police

SAY RUSSIANS WILL SUPERVISE HAINAN INVASION

Three Attempts Have Been Repulsed

Taipei, Formisa, Apr. 10 (AP)—Chinese Nationalists today predicted Russian experts would call the signals on the next invasion of Hainan Island.

Dispatches from Hainan said Russian advisers had arrived in Luichow Peninsula, 10 miles from Hainan on the Chinese mainland, some weeks ago.

Communists shattered three Chinese communist attempts to invade the island in the last two weeks. They say they killed 11,000 Reds, captured at least 2,000 and seized considerable arms and supplies.

(Reports reaching Hong Kong from red China said the communists have ordered one of their top generals, Lin Piao, to conquer Hainan and a full-scale invasion may come within a few days.

(Gen. Chu Teh, red commander in chief, gave Lin eight armies to conquer the island, the report said. Of this estimated 80,000 troops, some 10,000 already have selected about 15,000 crack troops to spearhead the red attack.)

Hainan dispatches told of a complete rout of the latest attempted invasion.

Sink 20 Vessels

Lin's 258th division troops raced toward Hainan in more than 20 motorized craft. Nationalist defenders sank more than 20 vessels and killed more than 1,000 reds. The rest turned back toward the Lui-Chow peninsula base.

The Nationalists said one of the sunken craft was a gunboat.

The Nationalists, flaunting defiance, told of the new raid on the China coast within 20 miles of Shanghai.

Several hundred Kiangsu provincials stormed ashore from junks on Dafeiya Street. Instantly more than 100 junks, they met fierce resistance. Guerrillas ashore helped them.

The provincials staged their raid from Chusan Island, basing point also of a similar raid Mar. 28. They carried off 300 rice bags, fled with some prisoners.

Then the guerrillas, the seaborne troop-laden communist junks and captured six jammed with red troops.

55 Towns Hit By Ice Storm In Midwest U.S.

Chicago, April 10 — (AP) — The ice storm which flattened communications and power lines over a wide section of the midwest crippled United States Sunday had shrunk to the northern Lake Michigan region today.

Northeastern Iowa generally, and the Mississippi River and Clinton particularly, were hardest hit by the freezing rain which began Saturday morning. It was at least 55 towns of the area But mild temperatures gave many of the stricken communities relief.

The storm area extended generally from the Dakotas and Iowa to Illinois westward through most of Iowa and northward through the Great Lakes region. The storm was moving eastward and was expected to hit Upper Michigan today.

Maritimes, Newfoundland Visited by Heavy Snowfalls, Unseasonable Temperatures

Halifax, April 10 — (CP) — Winter swept in most parts of the three Maritime provinces and Newfoundland today after a transpontinental dumpling Easter weekend snowstorm.

Scattered snowflurries and unseasonal temperatures in the 20s followed the departure of the Atlantic-bred storm. Arriving suddenly over eastern Nova Scotia Good Friday, it crept into the other provinces during the three-day stay, piling up huge snow drifts.

The weather bureau said below-freezing temperatures could be expected until at least Wednesday.

Would-be fashion paraders were frozen out and churchgoers waded through snow as cold as a deep drive during the coldest April 9 on record.

The wind-driven, record April snowfall ranged from 22 inches in New Brunswick to 10 in Prince Edward Island and 12 to 17 in Nova Scotia.

The natural gas supply, main source of fuel for Moncton, N.B., was cut off because the storm endangerously low with trouble in the gathering mains. Many of the city's 8,000 families shivered in unheated homes and ate cold Easter dinners. The distributing company said it expected service would resume today.

$250,000 Fire Loss

An early morning, $250,000 blaze destroyed four buildings and damaged two others in a Main Street business and apartment district of Moncton. Twenty-two persons escaped without injury in their night attire while a howling wind gale fanned the flames.

Six persons were left homeless and two buildings gutted in one of the worst fires to hit the farming community of Sunnyside, 20 miles southeast of New Glasgow, N.S. One of the outlying levelled housed the village post office and a basement grocery store.

A Saint John, N. B., dredge broke adrift off the southwestern tip of Nova Scotia early Saturday. Its four-man crew was rescued by a trawler and landed at Yarmouth, N.S.

Transportation was crippled because highways department workers battled with their snow-removal equipment converted for summer use.

Christian World Dedicates Easter to Prayers for Peace

(By The Canadian Press)

The worried Christian world returned today to everyday business after an Easter dedicated to prayers for peace.

Throughout the Christian countries that is a Sunday in a Sabbath risen from the dead, the faithful today knelt to please the dead and wounded of the Second World War, Everywhere they asked that the horrors of another war not be repeated.

At St. Peter's Basilica in Rome, 500,000 Holy Year pilgrims of the Roman Catholic Church heard Pope Pius plead for a return to the gospel spirit and the idea of social justice.

The Holy City of Jerusalem was jammed for services at the shrines dedicated to Christ's death and resurrection. At the Basilica of the Holy Sepulchre, more than 10,000 persons knelt in, prayer.

Bethlehem, birthplace of Christ, lie stole the show. The Queen held up the infant son of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip for the delight of a crowd gathered at Windsor Castle for an Easter concert. Cheers for Charlie drowned out the music.

In North Arctic air over most of the country froze out many fashion-paraders. But in British Columbia, where the weather was mild, and at Toronto the display of Easter wear went on as usual.

Traces of a midnight snow were seen for a while on New York's Central Park, from where the city's churches were packed.

Montreal's annual Easter parade was sobered by a surprise cold wind which through light-weight spring garments. In the bright sunlight later in the day thousands of strollers thronged into the thoroughfare, with bright colors and hats to relieve the country blues that were favored centumes.

In the midwest the weatherman was kinder. At Lawton, Okla., the cold wind gave way to a mild and calm atmosphere during which 125,000 persons of all religions took part in a colorful pageant on the granite hillsides.

LABOR LEADERS WANT PROGRAM FOR UNEMPLOYED

Ask Govt. to Start Public Works Projects

Ottawa, April 10—(CP)—The government is being asked to initiate a large-scale public works program to offset the growing army of unemployed in Canada.

Such a program would benefit not only the unemployed, but the "general economy of the country as a whole," Percy Bengough, chief of the 500,000-member Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, said Sunday.

"With so many out of work for so long a period, it causes a serious reduction in the country's buying power. There is a very serious danger of this snowballing and creating worse conditions."

Both Mr. Bengough and Pat Conroy, secretary-treasurer of the 350,000-member Canadian Congress of Labor, are renewing their demands on the government for immediate action.

Mr. Conroy said he was convinced that the present situation "is more than seasonal unemployment. A growing trend toward unemployment is setting in unless something is done by the government—and done fast—to eliminate it in the way of public works and other projects."

400,000 Out of Work

Both labor leaders, referring to a labor department announcement that unemployment figures placed the number of Canadians seeking work at about 400,000.

The labor department said the number of persons seeking jobs through National Employment Service at March 16 was 375,000—an increase of 1,100 from the week before and almost 50 per cent greater than at the same time last year.

Mr. Bengough declared the government had a "shelf of public works schemes on which to draw" but was "doing nothing about it."

Mr. Conroy urged the government to "get busy" on a public works program. In addition a public works program should be designed to concentrate on building secondary industries in areas of severe unemployment like the Maritimes.

Ocean Freighters Jockey for Race Up St. Lawrence

Montreal, April 10—(CP)—Five ocean freighters all of them Montreal-bound, were locked jockeying for position in the Gulf of St. Lawrence today for the race to open the port here began to take shape.

The ships, Pring Willem Van Orange, Beaverglen, Capo Olmo, Ocean Ranger and Ramore Head flying the flags of Holland, England, Canada and Panama respectively, are wailing in the Gulf until the ice-clogged river is free enough to allow the start of the race.

Shipping officials here said the freighters will move into the first leg of the race from Pointe Des Monts". But ice conditions between Montreal and Quebec are expected to slow them considerably. The officials estimated that the winner would not reach here before 20.

Mohr Sentenced to Prison Term For Mercy Killing of Suffering Brother

Allentown, Pa., April 10—(AP) — Harold A. Mohr today was sentenced to a prison term of three to six years for the so-called mercy killing of his crippled, ravaged brother Mohr was convicted Friday of voluntary manslaughter.

Judge James F. Henninger also imposed a fine of $500 on the 34-year-old lannery worker.

The maximum sentence for voluntary manslaughter is 12 years in and a fine of $6,000.

A jury of four men and eight women had recommended mercy in finding Mohr guilty of manslaughter. Judge Henninger said he "believed Mohr to be a brother out of sympathy."

Mohr was convicted of killing his blind, cancer-stricken brother, Ellis Mohr, 55, at his home in Lower Copley last March 8.

The defendant and three other brothers testified Walter often had asked to be "put out of his misery."

Defence counsel Harry C. Trexler based his case on a plea of temporary insanity. Judge Henninger instructed the jury that "mercy killing is not a legal defence."

Assistant attorney Kenneth H. Koch said Mohr "stepped into the shoes of God" and "will have to answer" to the jurors to convict Mohr and "bring mercy killings to a halt."

24 Seamen Dead, Missing Following Weekend Gales

Six Drowned as Tugboat Sinks in Virginia River

New York, Apr. 10 (CP) — At least 24 seamen were dead or missing today following a heavy week-end gale in the North Atlantic shipping lanes.

A tugboat skipper who clung desperately to the wheel of the floating pilot house of his sinking vessel apparently was the only survivor of a Chesapeake Bay disaster. The tugboat Lorraine sank early Sunday off Windmill Point Light, near the mouth of Rappahannock River in Virginia. Winds lashed waves washed six men of her crew overboard. One body has been recovered.

The 63-foot dragger William Lang was broken in two while awaiting help three-quarters of a mile off Pollock Rip Lightship, Nantucket, Mass., Saturday in a snow-blinding gale. Wreckage was washed ashore on the west side of Nantucket.

The United States Coast Guard reported that there has been no word from the scalloper Four Sisters since last Friday. The fishing vessel, carrying ten men, radioed Friday she was bucking a heavy storm.

Latter Found Berthed

Another vessel, the 55-foot dragger Anna C. Perry, also was overdue and feared lost Sunday, but later was found berthed at a Bedford wharf, blown 150 miles off course.

The Lorraine's skipper, Capt. O. P. Bowen, was rescued by a passing boat. He was taken ashore for treatment for shock and exposure.

Two Coast Guard vessels and a Coast Guard plane today searched the Chesapeake Bay for traces of the five men still missing.

The Lorraine was towing the barge Alex—loaded with 4,000 tons of coal—from Norfolk to Camden, N.J., when she sank. Capt. John Ward, skipper of the rescue boat said he was told this story by Brown:

Strong northerly winds filled the Lorraine with water after heavy seas washed the hatch covers off the ferry, and all the men put on life rings. Four of them were swept off the deck almost immediately.

Brown and the two surviving members of the crew stayed in the pilot house, torn off the tug deck by the waves. The men weakened and lost their grip.

DEATHS ABOUT NORMAL

Chicago, Apr. 10 (AP)—Traffic deaths in the United States during the first three months were about the normal daily rate of highway fatalities.

The total is 1772 between Friday night and midnight Sunday. The National Safety Council says an average of 175 for a similar period on the basis of past years.

The National Safety Council for the first 59 days of the year.

Deaths from other miscellaneous accidents, including drowning and fires, over the week-end totalled 54.

WALL COLLAPSES

Tokyo, April 10 — (Reuters)— At least 37 persons were critically injured today and released tons of sand over workmen eating their lunch, killing seven and injuring eight.

U.S. SUBMARINE TRAVELS 5,200 MILES UNDERSEA

Washington, April 10 — (AP — On March 15 a United States submarine dived into the Pacific off Hong Kong and didn't surface again until 21 days later at Pearl Harbora, travelling 5 200 mila.

The navy, telling Sunday about it, said this was the longest underwater run ever heard of.

The vessel, the Tusk Pearl, is one of the "Snorkel" type that has a short breathing tube that sucks air from the surface. The Germans had them during the war first, but now the U. S. and Russia have them.

The achievement, disclosed as the U. S. Submarine Service prepared to celebrate its 50th anniversary, pointed up the growing importance being attached to undersea craft.

Recent tests, showing that submarines can fire guided and launch guided missiles have made them a threat against coastal targets as well as against ships.

At Pearl Harbor, Cmdr. Paul E. Schratz of the Pickerel called the long voyage "all in the day's work, just a routine test."

Asked whether the sub could be seen on the cruise, he said: "We had indications to the contrary."

Didn't Eel Much

Schratz said the 67 men and 8 officers aboard didn't feel like eating much. Most of them grew beards or moustaches and for relaxation saw 30 movies.

The Snorkel device enables a submarine to run just below water for long periods on diesel engines.

Formerly, undersea craft when submerged had to run entirely on electric batteries which required recharge frequently. To do this, the sub had to surface.

With the Snorkel, a submarine can stay down as long as its supplies of food and fuel hold out. Batteries are still needed whenever a depth more than a distance below the water.

Work is progressing on an atomic power plant for submarines, which would give even the fuel need everyd.

American interest in submarine and anti-submarine devices has been aroused by reports that Russia is building the world's largest submarine fleet — estimated currently at 250 to 300 vessels.

Caledon, Ont., April 10 (CP) — Ron Baneburg, 5, was severely injured when he fell from his father's automobile on Saturday night. The father, Hartley Baneburg, said the boy opened the rear door and fell out while they were travelling 50 miles an hour. He is in hospital at nearby Orangeville.

Toronto, April 10 (CP) — Ken Barb, 19, started the outdoor swimming season at the Canadian's near freezing waters Sunday. He dived into the 35-degree water at Sunnyside Beach and suffered a skull fracture when he struck his head at the bottom.

EASTER PARADES CURTAILED BY ARCTIC BLASTS

(By The Canadian Press)

Arctic blasts curtailed Easter parades on Canada's long holiday weekend. Unseasonable cold gripped the country from the Rockies to Newfoundland and many also have been a factor in keeping down holiday deaths to 19 for the three days.

Winter raid conditions in romy provinces held down highway travel. But churches were thronged throughout the country. Some congregations in Ottawa, for example, opened auxiliary rooms to handle overflowing crowds of worshippers.

Ten of the holiday fatalities occurred in Ontario, seven in Quebec and two in British Columbia. Traffic accidents took eight lives, two were killed in a B.C. plane crash and a mother and her invalid son were burned to death at St. Hilaire, Que. Other deaths were ascribed to drowning, accidental strangulation and falls. An elderly Ontario man was beaten to death.

Many fashion paraders did their plitting in fur coats. But the display of Easter refinery was at its best at Vancouver, where the temperature was mild, and at Toronto, where some 175,000 witnessed the informal style show.

Near-freezing temperatures at Toronto's , west-end Sunnyside Beach failed to chill the ardor of the crowds for a gape at the latest in hats and dresses.

Contained Live Rabbit

One girl showed up with a round celluloid hat which contained a live rabbit.

On Monday's downtown Shersbrooke Street many matrons wore lighter dresses and coats.

The Maritimes, besieged by cold and snow, had little fashion parading. At Halifax a special service was held at All Saints Anglican Cathedral for the presentation of a processional cross.

The temperature at Portsmouth, England, cathedral, was made of wood from the Victory and M.S. Bluebell, side-line flagship ships.

Winnipeg's three-flushes of snow halted the Easter parade. Slushy streets made the few parades that down Jasper Avenue, Edmonton's Main Street.

TURKISH DEFENDER DIES

Istanbul, Turkey, April 10 — (AP) — Marshal Fevzi Chakmak, 74, Turkish defender of the Dardanelles in the First World War, died today. One of Turkey's greatest military heroes, he died only a few hours after the opposition nation's party listed him as a candidate in the May 14 elections.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, April 10 (CP)—Synopsis: A marked contrast in temperatures will distinguish the weather map. Over all of Canada as well as the northeastern and central United States temperatures are unseasonably cold and generally below freezing. Over the southeastern states, however, even night time temperatures are expected between 50 and 60. This sharp contrast has set up a storm centre which is now located in Nebraska. It is intensifying and moving northeastward, and will reach northern Georgian Bay early Tuesday, passing out of the province Tuesday afternoon. Snow and freezing rain will occur in advance of it in Northern Ontario, and freezing rain and rain in Southern Ontario.

Wonder Drug, Golden Aureomycin, May Help Stunted Children Grow

Philadelphia, April 10—(AP)—One of the wonder drugs developed to fight disease—golden aureomycin—has been found to be a powerful growth stimulant which may help new-born children.

The drug's newly-discovered power were the subject of one of the more than 300 scientific reports submitted to the second session of the American Chemical Society's 117th national meeting, Dr. Thomas H. Jukes said.

The report came from Dr. E. L. Richardson and Dr. H. Jukes, of the Lederle Laboratories division, American Cyanamid Company, of Pearl River, N.Y.

Up to now, aureomycin, like its sister "fungus drugs" penicillin and streptomycin, has been used as a potent weapon against pneumonia, bacterial infections, Rocky Mountain spotted fever, undulant fever, and streptococcus and staphylogoccus infections.

But the report from the Lederle scientists says tiny amounts of aureomycin mixed with feed has been found to help young pigs and hogs by as much as 50 per cent. It has also been used successfully on

Child Crushed To Death When Car Turns Over

Crushed beneath his father's car when it rolled in a ditch on Highway No. 2, Bloomfield, William Laurence Burrows, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Burrows, Bloomfield, Prince Edward County, was instantly killed shortly after four o'clock on Saturday afternoon.

Three other occupants of the car escaped injury. They were Mrs. Burrows, driver of the car, Mrs. Miss E. Sproul, Toronto and another passenger, Miss Cole, who was riding in the back seat of the car.

The Bloomfield provincial police stated, was proceeding in a cautious manner towards Shannonville when, because of the icy condition of the roads, the car skidded, turned around six miles west of Napanee, car, slid towards the side of the road, apparently went out of control, and rolled over in a six-foot ditch.

Mr. and Burrows Child was riding in the front seat of the car with its mother and was resting with his head on her lap. At the time it careened at a dangerous angle before turning over, the door on the right hand side flew open. Mrs. Burrows was thrown clear of the vehicle but the child landed directly in the path of the overturning car and was crushed to death.

Police stated that had the door of the car not been flung open the possibility that all occupants of the car would have emerged unscathed. No charges were involved in the accident.

Dr. T. H. Galbraith, coroner of Napanee, after investigating the circumstances surrounding the death of the youngster said death no inquest would be held.

Provincial Police officers Herbert Bolster and J. Sheridan of the Napanee detachment investigated.

Due to the icy conditions of the roads, Saturday afternoon many cars and other vehicles were forced into the ditch, the officers said.

SUFFERS HEART ATTACK

Toronto, April 10—(CP)—Geo. Gould, St. Catharines, collapsed and died from a heart attack Saturday after visiting his wife, confined to hospital with a broken hip. Mrs. Gould learned of her injury shortly after she arrived here to attend an Easter sunrise service.

Churches Filled With Worshippers During Easter

The thunder of mighty organs; the majesty of choirs and soloists echoed throughout the city on Sunday as an Easter-minded citizenry wended its way to church in reverent commemoration of the Resurrection of Christ.

Perhaps, never in the history of this city, has its resistants turned to Easter worship in such numbers as yesterday.

Over-Flow Congregations

Church and chapel, meeting house and mission were filled to capacity at all morning services. Early morning communicants of the Roman Catholic and Anglican faiths filled the respective churches. The eleven-o'clock services in some cases saw over-flow congregations. Seats were at a premium in most cases as early as 10:45.

The beautiful message of Easter, carrying a deeper significance in view of the troubled conditions of a strife-weary world, was brought to the thousands of worshippers in pulpit oratory from all places of worship.

Special Music

The glorious anthems, oratorios and solos that carry the musical message of Easter featured the services in all places of worship. Congregational hymns and special soloists against a background of melodic organ, are the fitting symphonic tributes to the Resurrection.

Reverent congregations knelt and answered a fervent "Amen" to prayers for world peace and a lasting brotherhood of nations.

Evening services were also well attended, while Sunday Schools of all denominations carried the Easter Story to youthful members during the afternoon and the morning services interim.

Fur-Jacketed Easter Parade

Touch of Winter Discourages Wearing of Light, Spring Outfits

Twas a cold Easter morning, and all through the flat,
The girls were complaining, "No Spring togs and hat,"
They thought, "Happy medium
we're not in the lurch."
So, bundled, Spring-hatted, they strode off to church.

The Easter Bunny and Jack Frost did a grand job of collusion yesterday. For the first time, in as far back as many elderly people can remember, Easter was heralded with a touch of Winter. Early-morning church-goers trod a light mantle of snow that enveloped the city and district Saturday night.

The chill breezes, while tempered with a brilliant sun that shone down from cloudless skies, proved a deterrent factor to many a miss and matron, not to mention the gentler sex of the species, who planned on a personal modelling of new Spring toggery.

Most Prefer Comfort

Results were that the more daring, throwing caution more or less to the winds, appeared in colorful Easter regalia, the majority placed personal comfort above vanity, choosing to remain conventional Winter garb. But a great number of the fairer members of dames settled for a 'split decision' and many a stylish Spring ensemble flaunted its colors and style atop a fur coat.

During the afternoon the temperature rose but not sufficient to warrant the usual style parading along the Front St. "boardwalk."

True, some of the more daring teen-agers paraded in pumps, in open-casing togs, but by and large seemed to huddle together for warmth. To the casual observer, last night's "Happy medium in the 1950 Spring styles of milady, cold weather or no cold weather was intent on sporting some item of Spring finery and under the existing weather conditions the chapeaux got the call. Both Small and Large

Cute little cloches, and other fancy affairing misses stated to be the popular choice, although the "wagon-wheel" hat, large circular affair in various colors was also decorations were favored by not a few. Veils, of the more dominated and many effective combinations were worn. Not a gal, as far as this observer could see, took Easter literally and wore a bonnet with the Easter bedgear.

All-in-all the Easter parade, if it can be so called, was a most incongruous affair with the beautiful little girls in their pastel colors their sisters of larger dimensions looking a little out-of-place, but without the accompanying Spring raiment, which in many instances was replaced by the not-so-Spring stylish but decidedly more comfortable fur coat.

Series of Motor Accidents Caused by Slippery Roads

Highways slippery with ice as result of Saturday's downfall of snow were responsible for a series of motor accidents in the Belleville district Saturday evening, one of which sent two persons to hospital with serious lacerations.

In hospital are Mrs. John Deacon, John Street, with facial lacerations and a broken leg, while her son David, aged ten has serious facial lacerations which required a reported 50 stitches to close.

The injuries were sustained as result of a headon collision which took place Saturday evening near the Half-Way Motors, five miles west of the city.

Britain's Plan Doubling Exports Not Difficult

London, April 10 — (CP)—Sir Cecil Weir, chairman of the Dollar Exports Board, has said that Britain's objective of doubling exports to Canada in the next 18 months is not the most difficult task traders have had to tackle.

"There is a favorable wind blowing in every Canadian province," he told a meeting of the Industrial Co-Partnership Association, "a wind which has its origin in joint interest."

The small proportion of Canadian imports of British capital and engineering goods — about 10 per cent of Canada's requirements — offered a challenge to Britain.

"It is a question of convincing the Canadians to change their source of supply," he said.

"We must promote our goods, we must sell them, we must deliver them on time. The prize in Canada is a big one."

What Britain wants from the dollar countries, he said, is a chance to compete and an assurance that access will not be compromised by pressure groups or lobbies.

Business Spotlight

Prairie Settlement Big Achievement Of Early Century

BY FORBES RHUDE

(Canadian Press Business Editor)

Being so concerned with the great Canadian expansion of the last few years, we may forget past periods of growth which built the foundation and made possible the more recent advances.

The current monthly letter of the Bank of Nova Scotia reviews the Canadian economic scene since 1900, and gives first place to the early years of the century. Says the letter:

Despite the scale of later growth the peopling of the west — the building of the wheat economy— was the outstanding development of the half century.

2,000,000 Immigrants

In the years from 1900 to 1914, nearly 3,000,000 immigrants came to Canada and more than 1,400,000 remained entitled to free land. The total population of Canada rose at the unprecedented rate of almost 50 per cent in these years. The area of the prairies more than tripled.

The effects of the settlement on the prairies can be seen in almost every economic activity. Railway building was fundamental to the expansion — a sizeable steel industry was built up — farm implements for agricultural machinery and other capital goods and consumers' goods of all sorts, and the establishment of a big flour-milling industry to process wheat, and a brought a marked general manufacturing development. Natural resources of all kinds and railway needs for coal brought a nearly three-fold increase in output — a — the young hydro-electric industry made significant advance.

In the 30 years since the end of the First World War the centre of Canadian growth has shifted from wheat to mineral and forest production, from railway building to hydro-Electric construction.

Though there was some further rounding-out of the wheat economy, the emphasis in the '20s was on the increased exploitation of the urgent need for creating facilities impaired by inadequate replacement and maintenance during the '30s and the war years and in the stimulus which the war gave to all branches of manufacturing, particularly the metal and metal-using industries.

Says Claim Polio Due to Injections Of Vaccine 'Eyewash'

Hamilton, April 10 (CP) — Dr. L. A. Clarke, civic health officer, today branded as "eyewash" the claim being advanced by an Australian doctor that infantile paralysis can be ascribed to injections of combined whooping cough and diphtheria serum.

Dr. Clarke defended the practice of immunizing against diphtheria and commented: "I know of no reason why this idea regarding polio should be true, and there are reasons why I think it is not true.

"In spite of this, diphtheria and whooping cough are still each more significant public health problems than infantile paralysis.

"Even if the Australian claim should be proved, which it certainly has not so far, it is still more important to immunize against diphtheria and whooping cough."

Toronto (CP) — Dr. Alan Brown, medical superintendent of the Hospital for Sick Children, today discounted a suggestion that some infantile paralysis may be caused by a combined vaccine for diphtheria and whooping cough.

(The London County Council has banned the vaccine in clinics where the paralysis is prevalent.)

"There's nothing to it," said Dr. Brown. "We've been using the vaccine for years and have done many thousands of such treatments. We never had any cases of polio."

He hinted that the trouble may lie in the British vaccine.

"The English people have been having trouble right along. It's something to do with their stuff."

Other doctors discounted the British theory.

chickens and turkeys. The report, to be read tomorrow indicated that clinical investigation is under way to determine if the antibiotic can spur the growth of malnourished and undersdeveloped children.

Drs. Stokstad and Jukes pointed out that even if the antibiotic is the answer, the quantity available to the lower animals it could endanger the benefit the humans get in a world of dwindling resources and expanding population. Making animal grow faster on the same amount of food will conserve the world's food supply.

The product, they said, would cost but 30 to 40 cents a pound. Five pounds to a ton of feed is sufficient.

How aureomycin makes animals grow faster is not yet understood. The two scientists said, however, it is suspected it may kill off germs in the intestines which inhibit growth.

Canadian Oil Stocks Gain in NY

New York, April 10 (CP)—Canadian oil issues traded on the New York curb exchange today continued a strong upward advance started last week.

Imperial Oil was the leader last week, gaining 5¾ to close Saturday at 25. In today's early trading it added another 5/8. Imperial Oil (registered) had a net gain of 1¼ last week and 1/8 today and was up 1¾ today.

Brokers attributed the advance to a belief that the earning potential of the Canadian oil industry is on the threshold of expansion in the stock market up to now.

Royalite, for example, was up 1¼ or 12% on last week's curb trading and today gained 1/8. Activity in Canadian Pacific was attributed to the company's oil interests.

Canadian markets were closed Friday, Saturday and today because of the Easter holiday, but on the Toronto Exchange Thursday imperial advanced $1.50 to $25.50 for a net advance of $3 for the week's four-day trading.

NATIONAL WILDLIFE WEEK

Canada's Parliament has thought it so important that it has set aside this present week as National Wildlife Week and there is no suggestion that the people of the broad expanses of Canada with its rich hinterlands and its wildlife should concern itself only once a year with this great problem and asset, this vital part of the Dominion. Planning one week serves the purpose of making this week an annual occasion for directing the education of the people of Canada more emphatically towards something that should be sticking in their minds — the conservation and management of wildlife resources.

"We should never allow ourselves to forget the importance of this valuable asset to Canada. We have an enormous area of northern wilderness which is suitable for wildlife management and throughout the rest of the Dominion the land is capable of producing a wildlife crop which could be made the basis of some of the finest recreation for our own people and one of the keystones of the tourist industry."

One hundred thousand square miles of the four hundred thousand square miles of Canada are at present chiefly valuable for wildlife management. In the rest of the Province where forestry, recreation, and agriculture are the basic forms of land use, the areas developed to these could also produce a rich harvest of fish and game.

It is pointed out by the Department of Lands and Forests that "we should never ignore the fact that the forms of life which are exploited in hunting and fishing are only a small part of wildlife heritage. Marsh fields and woods are full of a host of interesting and often very useful wild forms which deserve our interest and our protection.

Canadians all recall the great lesson taught by the late Jack Miner who in his lifetime summed up the development of conservation in the country at large. He was brought through his own observations to a consciousness of the urgency of conservation and became one of its most famous exponents.

This country which in early days had a supply of wild life which defied depletion has grown until today the processes which were at one time unlimited are undoubtedly wildlife became dangerous to the survival of these resources.

When awakening came it was too late to save some of the species, such as the passenger pigeon. This awakening was only possible through the example of individuals who had grown up with the country and knew what was happening.

Wildlife Week should remind everyone of his obligations and responsibility to preserve this natural heritage of wildlife which was so characteristic of Canada. This nation cannot run the risk of losing through excessive depletion the wildlife which is still thriving here. They must be perpetuated and wide use made of such resources. If depletion comes there is grave danger of disappearance of species and all the rich store of knowledge in the world cannot restore a species which has once been lost. Species were the development of countless aeons of time in an age when conditions were favorable to their development.

The finger of history points the way of preservation of our wildlife that now exists and enriches our heritage.

COMMUNISM SHOWS ITSELF

Reports in recent weeks of convictions of churchmen in Eastern Europe indicate how bitterly Communism is opposed to anything and any institution which stands independent against the evils on which Communism is built. Stories from Eastern Europe all have the same pattern, so much like those associated with the trial of Cardinal Mindszenty, that signs all point to deliberate persecution of everything that stands in the evils inherent in Communism. How powerful the grip of tyranny of Communism is is seen in this concentrated drive against Christianity which is the very essence of freedom.

"Spring is at hand and secession talk is in the air again at the Lakehead," says the Sault Ste. Marie Star. "There is more poetry than has been the rule, in the brainchild of Humbert Lafferty, formerly of William Aberhart, who is urging the establishment in Northwestern Ontario of a new province, to be called 'Aurora.' The name he says would be symbolic of the 'golden dawn of a new day bringing a new light to the people of Northern Ontario'."

RARE DISTINCTION

Though merit ought to be desired,
In easy ways 'tis oft acquired.
And grandpas learn that fame may dwell
In memories they have to tell,
Today my worth is being spread
Abroad because I merely said
That many a time I smashed my hat
To see Ty Cobb come up to bat.

With eyes aglow he looked at me,
"Tell me about Ty Cobb," said he,
"Was he as great as people say?
Was it a thrill to watch him

And is it true that this occurred?
He often went from first to third
On just an easy infield out?"
"That's true," said I, "beyond a doubt."

I heard him shout: "Say Dick! Say Bob!
My grandpa used to see Ty Cobb,
A baseball fan he used to be,
And, something more he told to me
It's true, because I have his word:
Cobb made that run from first to third.
I'm telling you my grandpa's swell,
He met Ty Cobb and knows

"I don't know whether we've had burglars or if my husband has been looking for something!"

PITCHING HORSESHOES

SECOND FLOOR, FRONT

We men of Manhatten are an unsentimental lot, but sentimental, at least think we are—and so short stories with men slated a good of a chance in this town. The other night, however, a real estate man introduced me to a client of his and told me a chiller about a deserted house in the Flushing section of Queens, and on the offchance that you really are a gal or a gigolo or two, I'd like to pass it along. . . .

So this night or the big snow three winters ago, a doctor in Queens answered his doorbell and found a smallish man in a faded mackinaw standing on the stoop. "My wife is very sick," he said. "I hate to ask you to come out in this blizzard, but it's only a few blocks."

The doctor followed him to a large wooden house near the intersection of Vine Street and Broadway, and when the man unlocked the door the physician could see by the glare of his umbrella drooglight that the lower floor was empty except for a few kitchen chairs and a length of carpet.

"This is no place for a sick woman," he said. "You ought to have her right into bed."

The man led him up a creaky flight to the top floor front room and in the front room an emaciated woman was lying in an old four-poster bed. She kept coughing into a blood-flecked handkerchief, and the doctor went through the motions of an examination. He told her that she had an advanced case of tuberculosis.

"I can give her something to relieve the congestion," he told her husband, "but she'll have to be moved to a hospital first thing in the morning."

He then wrote out a prescription. "I'll get it filled right away," said the man, and showed the doctor to the door.

Descending, wondering how the woman was getting along, the physician stopped by the wooden house, but there was no answer when he rang the bell. Moreover, there were no tracks in the snow in front of the house. Standing on any other vehicle had pulled up in front of the place.

Puzzled, he went to the office of a real estate agent on the next street and asked if he could get some information about the residents of the house.

"Thats al funny sort of question," said the agent. "There aren't any residents and there aren't likely to be any. The house hasn't been occupied in 15 years; and though it's always been on my list, nobody's ever wanted it."

"Do you think squatters might be living in it on account of the housing shortage?" asked the doctor.

"Could be, but I doubt it," said the agent. There's been a lot of queer talk about that house, and the last family that moved in during the depression could only stand it for a few weeks. The husband and wife slept in the front room on the second floor, so hear them tell it they were kept awake "getting every half an hour" by a woman coughing. It finally got so bad they packed up and left, without a sound aboard," said the doctor, "but I examined a sick woman there last night. She's sworn I saw some chairs and a length of carpet there but there was no furniture in the house."

"Maybe you've got this mixed up with another one," the agent suggested.

"I still think it's the same place. Let's look upstairs."

They found the door they went into the front room. It was also empty. Empty, that is, except for a few chairs and, on the window sill—the prescription the doctor had written the night before.

France Against Acceptance

The main issue, from the western standpoint, is whether Britain will throw her full weight into the Atlantic Pact rather than the counter-balancing German memorandum. Unless Britain does so, France isn't likely to accept Germany.

The French are said to take the position that a union of Western Europe without included themselves and Germany, but lacked full British support, would soon become dominated in Germany's favor.

Assuming all these difficulties have been overcome, there still remains a problem which is a potential source of embarrassment, the question of Russia and the western powers reaching a settlement of the German Germany. Present indications are that the hopes for a settlement are small indeed. Moscow appears to be aiming at consolidating the Russian Zone of Germany and then persuading the three western zones to form a single German federal government.

Such an arrangement would give Communism a big political position, economically and militarily, in Central Europe.

So the best the western allies can do at this juncture is to hold on to West Germany, on the basis that half a loaf is better than no bread, and to face with the likelihood of another upheaval which will split the whole of the remembrance of Germany and the determination of her people to reunite.

Germany's Future Is Vital Issue Of West Powers

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Daily it becomes increasingly apparent that the reconstruction and peace and prosperity in Europe cannot be achieved until the problem of Germany's future has been disposed of.

The United States high commissioner in Germany, John J. McCloy, says "the fact is we cannot solve the German problem without fitting it into the larger context of a unified Europe."

State Secretary Dean Acheson declares that the Western powers have favorable steps to fit Germany into the organization of Western Europe. He wants Germany to join the council of Europe, created by North Atlantic countries, including the United States.

Germany already has been offered associate membership in the organization, but has not responded. The council meets in London today and will be in session for many months. The merchants, happy and busy in their overalls shops, will do nothing to help solve the problem. In fact, many of them will be quite content to keep leaving their own cars parked in front of their shops all day Saturday. But the voluntary trend towards avoiding the congestion of vehicles is advanced. Is it merely the love of the country or the desire for a few additional tens of thousands of us to get the heck out of the city for the week-end during the time forward until October. The fact that the rise city people which ingly insufferable on Saturdays may have more to do with the behavior than we suppose. On top of this, increasing number of housewives are getting into the habit of doing their weekend shopping on Friday. They can perceive this any Friday. Saturday is becoming a day to avoid in all mercantile communities.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE LOCK OF PRIDE

We are all familiar with that saying "Pride goeth before a fall". Pride is a lock that shuts out the best that is to be found in life.

In that inspiring book "The Mighty Dispersion," author Alfred W. Sockman, jus recently published, I came across this interesting bit of news. Of advance lies in those who are intelligent enough to be aware of their ignorance." As he quotes Charles Kettering, the noted scientific inventor, who stated that he attributed his progress to what Kettering called "divine discontent." What Kettering meant was that by being intelligent he could face ignorance and learn to conquer it.

People who are too proud to recognize their ignorance, get nowhere. Pride is a lock that shuts out new ideas and all progress. Their pride makes them impatient and a refusal to recognize all outside of station, in which a man may munication with those who might broaden and enrich his life.

I once received a letter from a man who said he and his family had had a misunderstanding, and separated after a vacation together. He felt quite convinced about it for he loved his brother, but all efforts toward a reconciliation had failed. So he wanted me to write something that might touch the heart of his brother, for he said he read this column. I did so, and that other brother also locked his pride and went to his friends again. Pride—false pride—can cost us much happiness!

In achievement of happiness for others there is a just pride when it is attained through humility. Selfish pride locks a man up with himself, and shuts out God and his fellowman. That good Samaritan, as told in the Bible, had a pride that would not let him but that he could stop his horse, lean down, lift up a wounded stranger by the

REMOVING TONSIL TISSUE AFTER REMOVAL OF TONSILS

For many years I have been trying to get you to publish Yvonne Wiseacres and your "specialists" the undoubtable truth about "tonsillectomy"—namely, that the operation usually fails to get all of the tonsil. despite the brave lie of hokum the ever ready opinion gives the simple prospect before the operation. If any member of the medical profession questions the accuracy of my statement the testimony of numerous recognized authorities in my files is available to him or her. If the tonsils are greatly enlarged and obviously obstruct breathing, tonsilotomy is the preferable treatment, in my opinion. Tonsillotomy means cutting or slicing off a portion of the tonsil, enough to relieve the obstruction to breathing.

"Tonsillectomy means cutting or dissecting out the tonsils—tonsillectomy are the fast-talking "specialists" expresses it before the patient is getting every bit of the tonsil." It is a formidable procedure. Compared with this major operation with all its hazards, tonsilotomy is a minor operation with no greater risk than is involved in extracting a tooth.

The reason why many ever ready operators dwell so perversely on the importance of "getting all of the tonsil"—as though tonsil tissue left behind will have in one's throat!—is that it furnishes the only excuse they can offer for their meritless failures. Besides, in fact the method of choice in removing the tonsil is "part of the tonsil." I refer to the diathermy method of removing the tonsil tissue, the object of which is to sterilize, dissitect, destroy, pasteurize, cauterize, etc., the tonsil tissue or ares or infection without disturbing the surrounding tonsil tissue more than is necessary.

Another specious argument which the masters of the old Spanish custom have used to the deadly effect is that "scar tissue" following diathermy (electric coagulation) treatment or infected tonsils, is likely to prove a potential source of infection and the hidden focal infection in such event would contribute to a level of general toxemia. A pretty theory, if you have no reliable evidence to the contrary, but the fact is that scar tissue in the tonsils (a great many physicians have undergone tonsillectomy once or twice still have tonsil tissue left behind) does not need the patient to undergo tonsillectomy to remove the scar tissue. I have had many cases of tonsilitis of infection and, when that infection subsided, the scar tissue was cleared up, the patient's osteomen.

However, the patient sought the advise of another nose and throat specialist. This would let him it would be foolish to undergo the operation, the there was no indication of infection under the scar tissue or in the tonsil tissue remnants remaining in the throat.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

IS THE NATION SICK?

Dr. Arnold, the famous headmaster at Rugby, once said of moral conditions among boys, "What I want to see in the school, and what I cannot find, is an abhorrence of evil. I always think of the psalm, 'And neither doth he abhor that which is evil.'"

The more one examines the records of the past and compares them with the present and the present, the more apparent it becomes that history frequently repeats itself. There are some good factors in the world which keep reappearing in each generation, and certain evil factors also. Most of us would say that right now which is alarming. Books are accepted today and read by the most people which a generation ago which fifty years ago would have been everywhere denounced and probably suppressed. We laugh raucously at a humor on the stage which a few decades ago would have been considered unmentionably obscene. Many excellent people see no harm whatsoever in occasional intoxication. There are large arguments today between very sincere people as to whether there are in any standard of right and wrong or whether morals are relative and simply a matter of taste.

What we get to the place where we have no abhorence of evil, we

WEDDINGS

CRONKRIGHT — RADFORD

Pink and white streamers adorned the Dutch Mill Inn, Trenton, Ontario, on Wednesday, April 5th, at 4.3 p.m., for the marriage of Barbara Jean Radford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Radford, R.R.5, Belleville, to Ronald Malcolm Cronkright, of Plainfield, Ontario, son of Mr and Mrs. Malcolm Cronkright. The Reverend C. A. McCaffrey, minister of Bayside charge, officiated before a background of banked ferns, pussy-willows and daffodils, in the double ring ceremony.

The bride was becomingly gowned in a dove grey gabardine suit with navy accessories, and corsage of Talisman roses.

Miss Velma Radford, sister of the bride, wearing a powder blue gabardine suit with navy accessories, and corsage of pink roses, was the bride's only attendant.

Mr. William Garrison, of Parkwood Heights, was groomsman.

The bride's table was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake, and was beautifully decorated with wedding bells and pink and white streamers. Thirty guests were present.

The bride's mother, wearing a mulberry dress with grey accessories and yellow rose corsage, was assisted by the bridegroom's mother in receiving the guests, wearing a navy blue dress with wine accessories and corsage of yellow roses.

For travelling to Niagara Falls Hamilton and points west, the bride chose a navy blue dress with grey accessories, and navy blue shuttle coat. Upon their return they will reside in Belleville.

GUAY — BUTTON

Christ Church, Belleville, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, April 8th, at 3.30 p.m., when Gene Clare Button, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice B. Sutton, Everett Street, Belleville, became the bride of Joseph Rodolphe Guay, Belleville, son of Mr. Ernest Guay of Cornwall, and the late Mrs. Guay. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Reverend J. Grant Spalding, rector of Christ Church, before a background of Easter lilies and spring flowers.

Dan Cook, organist of the church, provided the wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her bridal gown of white satin duchess, fashioned on princess lines, with bodice having wide revers. The sleeves were long and tight fitting, ending in petal points over the hands, while a full gathered panel at the back extended in a short train. Her full length veil of Paris net, over 40 years old, and loaned by a family friend, was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a cascade bouquet of roses.

Miss June Munns, of Belleville, was bridesmaid, wearing a floor-length gown of mauve taffeta, fashioned with a tight fitting bodice with off-the-shoulder bertha collar, and bouffant skirt. Her shoulder length matching veil was caught by a wreath of yellow flowers, and she carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses and fern.

The gowns of the bride and bridesmaid were made by the bride's mother.

Mr. Bernard Boyer, of Cornwall, Ontario, was groomsman, and the ushers were: Mr. Stewart Button, of Toronto, and Mr. Lawrence Button, of Belleville, brothers of the bride.

The reception was held at the tastefully decorated home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother, gowned in grey flowered crepe, with black accessories, and corsage of red roses received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's aunt, Mrs. Bernard Boyer, who wore grey crepe with navy accessories and corsage of red roses.

The bride's table was charmingly arranged with a beautifully hand crocheted lace cloth, Spring flowers, and centred by a three-tiered wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom, and silver horse shoe, which had been sent from England, and which had been part of the decoration on the birthday cake of the bride's grandmother on the occasion of her 80th anniversary.

The toast to the bride was proposed by the Reverend J. Grant Spalding, and responded to by the bridegroom.

For the wedding trip to Montreal, Ottawa, and Cornwall, the bride chose a Churchill blue suit with pink accessories, and corsage of roses. Upon their return they will reside at 159 Lingham Street, Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto and Cornwall.

Club Activities

MERRY MAKERS CLUB

For the last few weeks the girls have been preparing for achievement day on the 13th of April. Two last important meetings were held at Miss Sylvia Motley's and Miss Betty Barber. At these meetings tea biscuits and table setting were topics for discussion.

The last meeting was a prepared supper by the girls under directions of Mildred Hall, Dorcas Motley and Mrs. Clifford Barber. The supper was held in the home of Miss Marilyn Barber.

Miss Irvine, home economist, Mrs. M. Hall president of Mountain View Institute, mother of the club members were guests for the supper.

In appreciation to their leaders Marion Conklin and Marilyn Barber presented a red rose to each leader. Mrs. Annie Barber on behalf of the mothers expressed an appreciation to the girls and leaders. This motion was seconded by Mrs. M. Hall and responded to by Miss Marion Conklin.

After a social evening of cards and games the meeting came to a close.

Seven Co-Eds On Spinach Diet And Like it

Ithaca, N.Y., Apr. 10 (AP) — Seven Cornell University co-eds are on a spinach diet—and they say they "love it".

Frances Johnston, associate professor of food and nutrition in the college of home economics, said the girls have become guinea pigs in an effort to answer two questions:

How well does the spinach affect the amount of iron the body gets from it? Will eating beef with spinach affect the amount of iron the body gets from the spinach?

The tests began Feb. 6 and will end May 1.

Right now the girls are eating spinach for breakfast. Dinner is mostly of spinach and beef, with potatoes and pudding and a drink thrown in. Lunch is limited to egg dishes or vegetables and salad and puddings.

The girls cannot eat between meals, Miss Johnston said.

Housewife Wants To Feed M.P.'s In Commons

Birmingham, England, Apr. 10 (Reuter)—Mrs. Nora Hinks, 46-year-old housewife and cafe owner, wants to keep members of parliament from getting tired and listless by giving them a taste of her home cooking.

She says she can also offer them personal meals.

Her main criticism of catering in the House of Commons is that it is run by a committee. It needs a woman, not a committee, to look after a kitchen successfully, she said.

After Easter, she will tell her solicitors to send her references to the Secretary of the House of Commons, Westminster. She will offer $3,100 a year rent for use of the commons kitchen and staff.

Mrs. Hinks proposes to offer M.P.'s mainly traditional English dishes, and do away with sweets —"men don't want trifles and jellies".

The only sweet from Mrs. Hinks' kitchen would be apple pie with cheese. She said: "You know the old saying—apple pie without cheese is like a kiss without a squeeze."

Mrs. Hinks was defeated as Liberal candidate for Pezry Barr, Birmingham in the Feb. 23 general election.

She began in the catering trade at 11, making doughnuts in a Birmingham bakery. Since then she has done every job in the trade, run several industrial canteens and managed Birmingham's only vegetarian restaurant.

Catering losses at the House of Commons were 12,014 pounds in 1947.

Mrs. Hinks said: "It is just rubbish that 625 members of parliament cannot be fed without losing all that money. I can and will do it, because I know the job inside out."

Mrs. Hinks still cooks for her husband, a theatre electrician.

What does he think of her plan? "My old man never grumbles, anyway," she said.

LARGE HAUL MADE

Toronto, April 10—(CP)—Burglars stole $3,500 and two $250 rings from the home of Irving Rosen Sunday night while Mr. and Mrs. Korn were absent, They gained entry through a cellar window.

Keen Age Club Entertains Tabernacle Evening Auxiliary

On Wednesday evening last, the Keen Age Club entertained the Evening Auxiliary at a special Easter meeting in the ladies' parlor of Tabernacle United Church.

Dorothy Lockyer, the president, presided a hearty welcome to the members of the Evening Auxiliary who provided the program.

The Keen Age Club would serve tea at the commemoration of the 25th anniversary of Church union, at the end of next month.

Mrs. Ray Lockyer gave a fine paper on "Temperance", and Mrs. May a fine report of the 25th annual meeting of Belleville Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada which met last week in Trinity United Church, Napanee. Two teens sang a duet, and Dorothy Lockyer favoured with a piano solo.

At the close of the devotional service the spirit of good fellowship was shown in a social time, followed by refreshments served by the Keen Age Club. Mrs. F. Horback poured tea.

Kiwanis Ladies Auxiliary Holds Interesting Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Kiwanis Ladies Auxiliary was held in the Kiwanis Centre on Thursday evening with the president, Mrs. E. S. Fairman, presiding. The minutes were read and approved and the treasurer's report given.

Mrs. A. Robb, chairman of the Ways and Means committee of the Kiwanis Club, gave a brief outline of the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta "Iolanthe", which will be presented in the very near future by the T. Eaton Co. Operatic Society. This production will have a cast of 55 and also a 20 piece orchestra.

More plans were made for the mixed bridge and euchre which the Auxiliary will hold at the Kiwanis Centre the latter part of April.

Mrs. Angus Duffy, who has been conducting a Red Cross sewing class gave a most interesting report on the work accomplished by the class during the year and displayed several samples of their finished products. She also gave thanks to those who had helped with this work and especially to Mrs. W. Adams, who had been such a faithful assistant.

Following the business part of the meeting, the program was in charge of Mrs. Charles Hyde and Mrs. Russ Wotten. Mrs. Hyde then introduced Miss Jessie Tulk, C.A.C.M., who gave an interesting account of her trip through the Maritimes last summer. Miss Tulk said that, "this country is a land of interest, charm, beauty and kindly folk."

The thanks of the club was expressed by Mrs. Wotten.

A contest on well known stores, places, people and streets in Belleville brought the evening's entertainment to a close.

The winners of the first prize were Mrs. Hall and Mrs. W. Anderson and the consolation winners were Mrs. Black, and Mrs. E. Vermilyea. Delicious refreshments served by Mrs. W. Stovin's committee.

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

Yes, bananas are sometimes kept in a refrigerator.

It isn't a very cold icebox, somewhere between 50 and 60 degrees. When green bananas are shipped from Central America, the crowded fruit in the hold of the vessel gives off gases which would cause spoilage unless checked by a cold temperature.

In your home you should follow Chiquita's advice and keep bananas out of the refrigerator. But there isn't the slightest objection to putting bananas in a hot oven or under a broiler flame.

Baked, fried or broiled bananas are a mellow, light fruit garnish or dessert. The flavor of cooked bananas seems even more fruity than the raw fruit itself.

Baked bananas with a coconut cream sauce are an easily prepared dessert and a novel change from the usual puddings and gelatines.

Both fruit and sauce should be warm, not hot. They may be prepared beforehand and kept in a double boiler until served. If the sauce becomes thin after standing, it should be thinned with a small amount of milk or light cream.

Baked Bananas, Coconut Cream Sauce Serves 4

In a small mixing bowl combine ½ tablespoon starch, ½ cup granulated sugar and ⅛ teaspoon salt. Add 1 cup of hot milk, stirring until free of lumps.

Beat 1 egg slightly. Add a few tablespoons of hot sauce to egg and then add egg to the double boiler. Cook 2 minutes more, stirring constantly.

Peel 4 large bananas. Cut in half. Place in a greased shallow pan. Sprinkle bananas with sugar and cinnamon. Place in a moderate oven 375 degrees. Bake until soft when pierced with fork. Bananas may also be cooked under a medium broiler flame until tender. If broiled, turn once during cooking.

Place bananas in dessert dishes. Pour hot coconut sauce over bananas just before serving.

Fresh coconut may be used instead of canned, if available.

Bridge St. YPU Meets

Bridge Street Young People's Union commenced its Monday, April 3rd meeting with a series of Bible quizes conducted by Miss Helen Macdonald. Two teams competed for prizes. In pantomime form some Bible stories were acted out for all to enjoy.

During the business discussion, plans were made whereby the group might travel to Napanee, April 14th to see a Tabernacle Church play.

At the conclusion of the evening refreshments were served and taps sung.

Women's Activities

HOLLOWAY ST. W.M.S.

The April meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Holloway Street United Church was held Tuesday last in the Church parlor.

The meeting was opened by words of welcome by the president, Mrs. F. Wilson. Fifty-two members were present. Reports were given by Mrs. Holmes, Mrs. Van Orten of the Belleville Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society which met in Napanee recently. Thanks were expressed to the delegates by Mrs G. Coulter.

An Easter worship service was led by Mrs. Perkins, Mrs. C. Ketcheson, Miss Donnan, with Mrs. Wilson assisting. Vocal duet by Mrs. Scrivens and Mrs. Dinsley accompanied by Mrs. Hubbs.

Mrs. G. E. Dobbs introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. (Judge) Gage, who spoke of experiences of her work to which she was appointed during the war overseas, and referred to the contribution the church made.

A vote of thanks was expressed by Mrs. C. Ketcheson to Mrs. Gage and the soloists.

The Body in the Ravine

By Lloyd Carr

There was a thin coating of October frost on the pines surrounding Pokema Lodge and a cold grayness damped the grass and gleamed like burnished silver under the dawning rays of the early morning sun. A thin furl of fragrant, bluish wood smoke rose from the broad stone chimney and drifted lazily out over the cold, turquoise waters of Lake Pokema. Inside, the neatly uniformed waitresses cleared breakfast dishes from the tables, and in the spacious lounge, relaxing in apparent comfort before the roaring fire, were three of the less ambitious guests. The others had already gone down to the boathouse to start their day of fishing.

Tim Donovan hunched forward elbows resting on his nondescript knees, and dug at the bowl of his pipe with a jackknife. His blue eyes, set deep beneath thick brows and a wide, intelligent forehead seemed intent upon what he was doing. But Greg Laswell and his extremely beautiful young wife, Diane, were clearly waiting for him to speak. And in due time he did.

"The old lady doesn't look the type to get easily upset" Tim Donovan said. "But she certainly was burned up plenty about something that long ago, it's been here?" He glanced up at Diane, impersonally taking in the full provocative curve of her brown eyes olive skin and braided black hair. He didn't seem surprised to find her beautiful in slouchy corduroy slacks and jacket; he'd never seen her anything but beautiful in any kind of clothes.

"Oh, they were here before we came—that's 10 days ago. When do they usually come up, dear?" Her eyes swung to Greg, darkened imperceptibly at the expression of bored aloofness on her husband's hard-cut face.

Greg said, considerably older than Diane and he had a look of the world and of distant places about him in the muscles in his lean jaws always seemed trying to come through the coppery brown skin; his sandy hair and close-clipped mustache looked perfect except for a pith helmet. He looked what he was, a man at home all around. Barnstorming flier in the early days after the war, transport pilot later, account executive in an advertising agency in '38 and '39, then retirement—but before the crash. Living on his pile now, using everything from architecture to treasure hunting in the Caribbean; never going for long, always coming out ahead.

"It's either too deep for outsiders to ever figure out," Greg said succinctly, in characteristically hard flat tones "or just too trivial it wouldn't be worth while anyway."

Tim threw his head back and laughed, but not loudly. "You're a cynical dog, Greg," he said. "Why not assume it's a great intrigue and try to discover the devious and mysterious cause of it all?"

Diane laughed and slid down comfortably in her chair. She smiled as she waited for Greg's reply. The contrast between Greg and Tim Donovan always amused her.

"You lawyers," Greg said contemptuously, flicking his cigaret into the fireplace. "You're like a lot of old maids, always looking under the bed, pretending logical caution and hoping for the worst." He talked right on Tim's and Diane's laughter. Later, "Mrs. Enright and her doctor husband think of themselves as God's appointed guardians over Pokema Lodge Little Jeannie Radcliffe probably as'd 'gee whillkers' in old lady Enright's presence and promptly got herself blacklisted for all time."

"Jean Radcliffe?" Diane said in evident surprise. She turned to Tim. "Did you think that remark was intended for Jean?"

"I wasn't sure," Tim replied. "It seemed to be all right. But thinking it over since then, it could just as well have been directed at the other three and not Jean—excluding her, in fact."

Greg yawned. "In that case let's go fishing," he said.

Tim reached into the pocket of his leather jacket ans brought out a stub of pencil and a crumpled envelope. He spread the paper on his knee and looked up at Diane.

"Jean turned to Mrs. Enright and said 'Gee whillkers! I'm glad when we're gone.' Is that right?"

"Yes," Diane said "and Mrs. Enright resented it, too, when you go.' And she emphasized the word.

"Exactly—" Tim began.

"And by saying that, of course, she didn't have anything at all opposite," Greg said sarcastically.

Tim met Diane's glance and nodded. Sounds silly, but it's true," he said. "It's a feeling that she meant she wasn't considered worth a good damn left, but she would be glad when the rest of her crowd left."

"Certainly an awkward way of saying it," Greg said.

"That was it," Tim replied. "But it's pretty obvious that Mrs Enright isn't in the habit of telling people off because she was shaking like a leaf after the incident—and I don't think it's the set of her words carefully, that's all. Jean Radcliffe doesn't look like the kind of girl—"

"Ah!" Greg interrupted. "Now I'm beginning to see the pitch. No one could pick a flaw in the character of Jean Radcliffe." He grinned and an even row of white teeth flashed. "Timothy, Timothy!"

"I suppose you didn't even notice that she was pretty?"

"Certainly not," Greg replied. "Ah—"

"Yes," said Tim, "she is."

He stood up then and put his pencil and paper back in his pocket, "I doubt that we'd get much further out with your facetious husband hanging around, Di." he said. "Let's take him up on the fishing suggestion."

It was nearly noon when they left the deep-water basin at the north end of the lake and started back toward the lodge. No more was said during the morning about Mrs. Enright or the breakfast conversation, but it was evident that Tim hadn't forgotten about it. He'd been kind of pre-occupied most of the time and on several occasions Diane, at least had thought he was about to say something. But each time he had apparently changed his mind.

They had rounded the little peninsula that jutted out into the lake just north of the lodge when Tim said "didn't you say something one time Greg, about the Thurmans having a very swell home up here?"

"Yes. It's right up there on the point. Don't know whether it can be seen from here or not."

Greg was in the rear of the boat running the motor; Tim was in the centre seat and Diane was up in the bow facing the rear. Greg cut the motor down to low speed and headed in toward the shore. He was trying to see through the thick pine woods that covered the high ground of the point and after a moment he found a spot where a glimpse of the house could be gotten. He pointed and Tim followed his direction.

Set on the very top of the hill surrounded by thick woods that seemed to come to within 20 feet of the walls, stood a magnificent brown frame house. With wide eaves, broad windows with white trim, a great, wide screened porch, handsome stone chimneys rising from the ground up the two full stories and well above the broad-angled roof, the Thurman house was indeed magnificent. But the grass grew tall around the porch stairs and the entire building gave the appearance of being uninhabited.

"Doesn't look like they use it," Tim remarked.

"They don't," Diane said. "Mr. Thurman was drowned last summer, just after the place was completed, and Grace doesn't like to live there now. She and Bruce live in their old place, that little log cabin in the woods back of the lodge."

Greg had turned the boat around and was heading again toward the boat house. The glancing look at him, though that he saw a slight frown crease his forehead; thought without speech that Greg had been disturbed by Diane's remarks. He couldn't help but wonder why.

Mrs. Enright wasn't in the dining room when they were eating their lunch but Tim got the first glimpse of Bruce Thurman. The Thurmans were the operators of the resort and, until Diane told him about Mr. Thurman's recent death, Jim had assumed that Grace Thurman and her son had been united in that capacity. Grace was an extremely efficient little woman, perhaps 50 years of age. She dressed simply but with good taste; she was unobtrusive about her guests' comfort; her eyes even during meals, darting from one table to another, smiling here, signaling a waitress to give attention to someone there, and she was obviously very much liked by the guests.

Bruce, however, was in distinct contrast to his mother. He was about 30 Tim thought, dark skinned and heavily built. His sports clothes looked expensive and were most out of place in the rough, rustic atmosphere of Pokema Lodge. He seemed amiable enough in the fairly steady conversation that kept up between himself and his mother at their little table for two along the wall.

Observing him as closely as possible without being rude, Tim was surprised when Bruce lifted his coffee cup to see how badly his hand trembled. He appeared to be in rugged good health, but there was something obviously wrong with the man's nerves.

Tim and Greg and Diane were nearly through their meal when Jean Radcliffe and her crowd came in. One of the men asked how the fishing had been and Greg replied that they'd caught two fair-sized pike. The others laughed and Jean said "hundred percent better than we did."

They sat down then and Tim saw them, one by one, nod pleasantly to Grace Thurman. But Bruce openly and deliberately ignored them, He kept his head down until they were settled; then after a moment self-consciously resumed his conversation with his mother.

Tim looked questioningly at Diane and she grinned and winked, but said nothing. Not until they were leaving the dining room did she whisper, so that Greg wouldn't hear "they haven't spoken to Bruce since his father was drowned. There was an awful fuss at the time. I don't know why."

The Coat With the Decollete

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THIS IS A handsome example of the new cut for spring suits, highly appropriate for tomorrow's parade. The jacket has a deep, wide decollete, softened and filled with a blouse, also plunging and the whole as dandy as any cavalier's lace ruffles and jeweled vest. The suit is made of worsted, and the blouse is checked silk taffeta.

Ignore Family Tips Young Mothers Told

Burnley, Lancashire, England, Apr. 8 (CP)—Young mothers with their first babies should reject all the advice showered on them by other women in the family.

That's the advice of Dr. R. F. Robinson, a divisional health officer. He says grandmothers, aunts and great-aunts who all want to tell the young, inexperienced mother how to bring up the baby should be discouraged.

"Ignore them and their pet home treatments," Dr. Robinson advised. "Take baby to the clinic."

The health officer said too many women have the idea they are "bothering" doctors when they take children to clinics with minor ills.

"It is good for a doctor to be able to examine healthy babies as well as sick ones," he said.

GOOD MANNERS

Open House for Silver Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My husband and I are to celebrate our Twenty-fifth Wedding Anniversary soon. We'd like to have a friendly, informal, enjoyable party. . . Open House on a Sunday afternoon. What kind of invitations do you suggest we send? (Please name hours most appropriate.)

2. What to serve, please?

M. A.

1. I suggest you send cordial little notes, somewhat like this (written on your informals, or on double-sheet note-paper):

Dear Miriam,

On Sunday, May 7th, Bob and I will be married twenty-five years . . we're having Open House from three to seven o'clock and we hope you and Bill will come to help us celebrate. Please say you'll come, for we can't have a party on this important day without you two dear friends!

Love to you from both of us.

Affectionately,

(The hours chosen usually are 4-to-7; or, if more convenient 3-to-6 or 3-to-7.)

2. For these afternoon hours, serve: coffee and/or tea; small, slim sandwiches, with simple fillings, perhaps made of different kinds of bread—white, wholewheat, rye, raisin pumpernickel, brown bread—perhaps some accessories, such as heated potato chips, popcorn, olives, nuts, mints or other candies.

Buy silver dragees (small silver candies, delicious) if possible. . . they'd be a shining symbol of your Silver Wedding.

Correct: Either "Jr." or "junior"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My little son, two months old, is a "junior". When I write his name, should .I write "junior" or "Jr."? I've never been sure about this anyway, and now it concerns me very closely, of course! Please explain fully.

Mother

You may correctly use either "junior" (not capitalized), or "Jr." (capitalized). In other words, when "junior" is used, it is not capitalized. But when the abreviation is used . . . "Jr." . . the capital must be used. (There's fore "jr." as you wrote in your question, is not correct.) -

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

He has no self-confidence

Dear Miss Fairfax:

How can I go about making friends and asking girls out when I don't know anybody and have no confidence in myself either in my relationships with other people or in my work?

If I should find a girl and ask her out, where do you think I should take her?

H.

Dear H.: .

There are plenty of ways to go about making friends, and one of the best is to go places where people are.

Obviously, you suffer from extreme shyness and self-consciousness, but you will never get over it if you mope around by yourself and avoid people.

You live near the largest city in this country, and it's full of interesting places you can go and things you can do. The best way to start is to take up a hobby if you haven't got one already, and then seek out others who are interested in the same thing.

For example, if you're interested in photography, there are numerous camera clubs in your city, where you can go and would be glad to have a new member. Even if you aren't interested in photography, you soon would get so if you decided to take it up. That's one of the many possibilities that you could find if you would start looking.

There is an excellent school of hobbies easily accesible to you, where you could meet others in any one of several dozen different hobbies, and interested in the young men and women doing the same thing. If you would like to know more about this, send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and I will be glad to give you the information. Once you become interested and active in something other people are already doing, you won't find it hard to talk to them, and the first thing you know there will be plenty of girls you'll be asking out and having fun with. You won't have any trouble thinking of places to take her, either.

Dear Miss-Fairfax:

We are two young girls of 16 and we have been associating with men much older than ourselves. One of these men is in his late thirties, and the other is about 45.

Although we firmly believe that we are not doing anything wrong, people are beginning to talk, and we would like your honest advice about whether or not we should continue to see these men. It is almost impossible for us now to get accustomed to the juvenile manners of boys our own age.

A.B. and C. H.

Dear A.B. and C.H.:

My honest advice to you is that you break off this very unsuitable relationship at once and start getting accustomed to boys your own age. The trouble with you two is that you have been flattered to think you could interest older men, and so you feel yourselves too sophisticated to enjoy the normal companionship of boys in your own age group.

I can assure you, however, that these men do not by any means consider you their equals intellectually when they did, they would not be likely to bother with you at all. No decent men of the age you mention are going to make companions of 16-year-old girls. And the best way to get over the attraction you feel for them is to stop seeing them altogether, and when you do meet them, be coldly polite but distant.

Oil makes a country strong

Try to imagine life without oil! Oil supplies one-quarter of all the heat and power we use . . . in home and factory, on farm and highway. It helps us live better.

For years Canadians have had to depend on foreign countries for almost all the oil they used. Now, after a long and costly search, big new fields have been found in Alberta.

The more oil we produce right here in Canada the stronger we will be. Already the new discoveries have made thousands of new jobs. Millions of U.S. dollars once needed for imported oil are now being saved by the new oil fields, and the prairie economy is now saving money too.

In order that Canadians may reap further benefits, Alberta oil must reach new markets. It must be moved to eastern Canada—2,000 miles away—where it must compete with oil from other areas. That means holding transport costs down to a minimum.

To bring Alberta oil east a tube of steel will span one-third of the continent—from Edmonton to Lake Superior. It is taking shape now. To carry the oil on to Ontario refineries, the largest inland tankers ever built are being constructed in Canadian yards.

There's a big job still to be done before the full benefits of the new oil discoveries reach all Canadians. But the job is being carried on with increasing benefit to all of us. Oil is strengthening the nation.

Bringing you oil is a big job . . . and a costly one

About Canada's Oil—Last year Canadians used an average of 300 gallons of oil each. This is more, per capita, than any nation except the United States.

By replacing imports, Canadian oil production is expected to save 100 million scarce U.S. dollars in 1950; and yet, $145 million.

Imperial is building a new refinery at Winnipeg at a cost of $10 millions to process Alberta Oil.

The 1,150-mile pipe line from Edmonton to Lake Superior is being built by Interprovincial Pipe Line Co., which was sponsored by Imperial and in which Imperial holds a minority interest.

Seek to Discover Fenland Folk Victims of Poison

Peterborough, Northampton-shire, England, April 10.—(Reu-ter) — Police sought to discover whether several fenland villagers who died "from natural causes" during the last 12 years were victims of a poison fiend.

They have exhumed the bodies of Ernest Thrower, and Henry Searle, 73, who died within a few weeks of each other at the village of Maxey near here.

Top pathologists from the Home Office are studying chemical reactions on organs from these men to decide whether they were poisoned.

If they were, at least three more bodies will be lifted from their graves, and possibly more.

The police investigations have been going on in great secrecy for several months.

They concern, in addition to Thrower and Searle, the deaths of Mrs. Ivy Gladys Sootney, 38, in 1945; Harry Brookbanks, 68, in 1946; and Thomas Powell, 56, in 1947.

The bodies of Brookbanks and Sootney are in the churchyard at Farcet, village of 1,243 people near here.

A mile away, in Yaxley village churchyard, lies Powell's body.

Anonymous letters have asked: "How long are these mystery deaths to continue?"

First results of the post-mortems on Thrower and Searle are expected next week.

Says Italy Will Not Yield Claim To Trieste

Milan, Italy, April 10 (AP)—Foreign Minister Count Carlo Sforza warned the western powers that Italy would not give up her claim to Trieste.

In a speech reflecting widespread Italian fears of an allied about-face on the free territory issue, renewed his country's pledges to settle all differences with Yugoslavia—which controls part of the Trieste territory—by direct negotiation.

But he emphasized the starting point for any accord must be the return of Trieste to Italy. Trieste was established as a free territory by the Italian Peace Treaty. Russia has consistently blocked its return.

Watch 'Red Ball Of Fire Like Sun' Bear it 'Whoosh'

Sault Ste. Marie, April 10 — (CP) — Two steelworkers told RCAF weathermen a red ball of fire, like the sun" flash through the sky for a period of 20 seconds just past midnight.

The phenomenon was first reported by Fireman Flim who said he saw it while working his night shift at Algoma Steel Corporation.

It travelled almost directly north and south, looked to be going about the height of regular airline flights, and "looked very much like the sun," he said. It seemed to be "throwing off sparks."

His report was corroborated by Michael Aho, who was working nearby.

"It didn't make any more noise than slight whooshing sound," he said.

Authorities at the Michigan weather bureau were inclined to think the object was a meteor, though that is rather rarely at this time of year.

The phenomenon was also reported on the Michigan side of the Sault by James Gregg. He said "it was no flying saucer." It trailed a tail of flame and disappeared in a southerly direction, he added.

Hectic Session Of Legislature Closes in Sask.

Regina, Apr. 10 (CP)—The Saskatchewan legislature prorogued during the weekend after a hectic session that saw 101 bills passed and a whopping $55,000,00 budget brought down.

The C.C.F. government spent most of the 38-day sitting defending its estimates. The 21-member opposition attacked them after item as departmental figures were presented, criticizing the government for spending more than the people could afford.

The government countered with the argument that money spent on social welfare projects was more useful than funds lying in surpluses.

The budget was a record, topping last year's expenditure figure by about $2,000,000.

Possibly the most contentious measure to hit the floor was the new three-per-cent education and hospital services tax. The measure replaced a two-per-cent sales tax on many purchases. It estimated $8,800,000 revenue will be used for education and to bolster the ailing compulsory hospitalization plan.

New Legislation

Other approved legislation:

1. A new Corrections Act to set up juvenile courts and provide for rehabilitation of juvenile delinquents.

2. A Housing Act authorizing the government to share with the Federal government on building projects. The Dominion would bear 75 per cent of the cost; the province would split the rest with municipalities.

3. An act making Saskatchewan first province to step into the control field. Domestic rents were frozen at the March 31 level; a provincial government mediation board must pass on any changes.

4. A last-minute measure allowing the province to move into the natural-gas sales and marketing field if there is any "material gas development" in the province.

5. Approved changes in the Trade Union Act giving the provincial Labor Relations Board power to order reinstatement of employee who it deemed had been the victim of unfair labor practice.

Traces of Poison Found in Bodies

Nottingham, England, April 10 (Reuters) — Traces of poison have been found in the bodies of two old men exhumed last week at the village of Whaplode Drove, near Spalding, Lincolnshire, it was reported today.

This was the latest development in what may become one of the most sensational poisoning mysteries of the century.

Scientists working through the Easter weekend at the Forensic Laboratories here found a narcotic drug, the report said.

Whether there was enough of the drug to cause death was not known.

The two men, 79-year-old Ernest Thrower and 78-year-old Henry Searle were farm workers who lived in neighboring bungalows and spent their retirement in their gardens. They died a year ago.

LEARNING THE HARD WAY

Jacques Henri Istel, 21, took off April 1 from Vancouver bound for New York in a war-surplus training plane. He left Vancouver two weeks after getting a pilot's license. Flying the plane he bought for $400. He said he knew little about map-reading and proved it within 48 hours, when, aiming for Portland, Ore., he landed off course, first in Tacoma, Wash., and later in Salem, Ore.—(CP Photo.)

E.B. Jolliffe Re-Elected Head Of C.C.F. Party

Toronto, Apr. 10—(CP)—Ontario's C.C.F. party believes the British North America Act—Canada's constitution — should be amended along broad, national lines.

A resolution passed at Saturday's closing session said the B.N.A. Act should be made flexible so that the constitution may be adapted continuously to changing conditions.

The resolution demanded that the Ontario government exert every effort toward an immediate recovering of the Dominion-Provincial conference in reconstitution "to deal with the urgent social needs of our people. . . ."

Delegates also approved a resolution calling for the socialization of forestry. It said a crown company should be established to harvest and market timber resources of the Province.

To prevent a recurrence of unemployment at the lakehead, the provincial government should put in operation a major road building program, the resolution said.

E. B. Jolliffe, who was re-elected provincial party leader, advocated special educational programs for new Canadians.

Chief Constable 'Put on Spot' By Magistrate

Mitchell, April, 10 (CP)—Chief constable Bert Croome said Sunday night he had been put on the spot" by magistrate A. F. Cook's charge in a Stratford court Saturdy that "there must be something wrong with the police in Mitchell."

The magistrate made the charge after dismissing a drunk driving case against Leonard Connelly, R.R. 1, Bornholm, in which chief Croome and constable Ray Davidson of Mitchell had submitted differing evidence.

Chief Cropme who investigated the accident out of which the charge arose, stated the man was drunk because he staggered, smelled of liquor and his speech was thick.

Constable Davidson, in answering questions on the man's condition said, "all I saw was that he was nervous."

In dismissing the charge magistrate Cook said the evidence of the two Mitchell officers left doubt as to the condition of the accused. He added he did not know whether the two officers were "working against each other."

"Either one, or the other is not a policeman," the magistrate said. One of them he said, should be fired."

Chief Croome at his home Sunday night said he is going to ask for a special meeting of the Mitchell council to consider the matter and decide who is at fault.

Mayor H. A. Cook of Mitchell said Sunday night he is waiting to hear from the chief. He said both officers were "satisfactory" and unless the Stratford magistrate something serious against them he saw no reason for either of them being fired.

Two Hospital Guards Face Manslaughter

Quebec, April 10—(CP)—Two guards at St. Michel Archange Hospital have been charged with manslaughter in the mysterious death of a 45-year-old patient at the mental institution.

Conrad Asselin, 31, of St. Damien, Que., and Emmanuel Audet, 34, of suburban Giffard, were arrested Saturday and arraigned before Judge Laetare Roy. They were released on $1,500 bonds pending preliminary hearing next Thursday.

Both were arrested following a quiet investigation by Provincial police and a privately-held coroner's inquest into the death last Wednesday of Arthur Pare of St. Fabien de Panet, Que. Pare was said to have died of multiple fractures of the ribs and crushing of the breast-bone.

Coroner Paul V. Marceau presided at a private inquest early Saturday in the huge gray-stone institution on the city's outskirts The two guards were held criminally responsible for the patient's death.

Trial before a jury is automatic in a case of manslaughter and the two guards were committed for preliminary hearing without being asked to plead.

Defence counsel for the guards, Yves Prevost, pleaded for their release on bail, claiming that the guards at the time were exercising their "delicate and difficult functions." He argued that there have been cases where guards had been "victims" of mental patients.

C.C.F. Deletes Reference to Toronto Star

Toronto, Apr. 10 (CP) — The annual convention of the Ontario C.C.F. Party Saturday deleted a reference to the Toronto Daily Star from a resolution endorsing the stand taken by the party against the Provincial Charitable Gifts Act.

A further resolution sought to have the convention instruct the C.C.F. members of the legislature to "take no further steps to oppose this act insofar as the star is concerned". This resolution was withdrawn in view of the deletion made in the first resolution.

The section deleted read: "The Charitable Gifts Act is a highly discriminatory attack upon the only non-Conservative newspaper in Toronto, and its only effect is to force the sale of that newspaper."

(The act, passed last year, requires charitable foundations such as the Atkinson Foundation, owners of the Toronto Daily Star and the Star Weekly, to dispose of all but 10 per cent of their interest in any business.)

DIES OF INJURIES

Sault Ste. Marie, April 8 (CP) — Struck down when she walked into the path of a bus Friday, Mrs. Margaret Shotton, 69, died in hospital five hours later. It was the city's first fatal traffic accident in 1950.

Driver Cliff Wyant said he swerved the bus sharply in an effort to avoid the woman.

Dr. J. E. Gimby, coroner, said an inquest will be held.

Germany Using Diesel Engines In Automobiles

By DON DOANE

Stuttgart, Germany, April 10 (AP) — Germany, which originated the diesel engine, now is using it in automobiles. A German company, Daimler-Benz, is producing what it claims to be the only diesel-powered passenger car being made in the world today. It is called the Mercedes-Benz, type 170-D.

The Mercedes diesel looks and runs just like an ordinary automobile. But instead or burning gasoline, it burns fuel oil.

That's why its makers claim it is the most economical car on the market to operate. They hope it may prove the answer to the shortage and high price of gasoline in Europe.

It hasn't been on the market long enough yet for the buyers to give a decisive verdict, but here is what the manufacturer claims for the revolutionary auto:

Its four-cylinder, 36-horsepower engine will run 34 to 36 miles on a gallon of oil and produce a cruising speed of 62 miles an hour.

In speed, pick-up and power, it is claimed to match in every way its gasoline-burning twin, the Mercedes-Benz type 170-V, which is supposed to average 30 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Cost Reduced

In Germany, that would mean the diesel car would cost only 65 per cent as much for fuel as its gasoline-burning twin. Gasoline in Germany costs 40 per cent more than fuel oil.

The initial cost of the diesel car is higher than that of its gasoline equivalent, however. Daimler-Benz sells its diesel-burning 170-D for $1,970. its gasoline-burning 170-V sells for $1,670. They have the same body.

Diesel engines, invented by the German, Rudolf Diesel, have been used for years on railroad trains, ships and trucks.

This is not the first attempt, either, to convert them to passenger cars. As early as 1936, Daimler-Benz was making a diesel-powered automobile. But the war interrupted that experiment and today the diesel passenger car is still considered revolutionary.

LOBSTERS RAMBLE

Victoria, B.C. (CP) — Lobsters imported from the Maritimes several years ago and planted on the east coast of Vancouver Island are mighty hard to keep track of. Leslie Eyres, minister of fisheries, told the legislature they have developed successfully "but they have been constantly on the move and their present location is Carpenters regular meeting, Kenyon Centre, Friday night, April 7th, 8 p.m. Ad-21 doubtful."

Posed as Man, 'Married' Girl, Is Imprisoned

Vienna, Apr. 10 (Reuters)— A slim, short-haired woman of 35, known as "Ferdinand," went to jail at Graz today after living undiscovered as a "married man" for five years.

A Graz court sentenced her to seven months imprisonment for having posed as a man, "married" an 18-year-old girl and forged documents by changing the sex from female to male.

The judge told Margarette Hoefler—her real name—that she was "a disgrace to womanhood."

BONUS FOR 18TH CHILD

Montreal, April 10 (CP)—Joseph Simard, school janitor, got a big hand and $500 bonus from the Montreal Catholic School Commission yesterday after the birth of his 18th child.

The commission interrupted proceedings to offer congratulations and vote the bonus to the janitor who has been in the commission's employ for 23 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Simard's oldest child is 21-year-old Albert. The youngest, Pierrette, arrived two weeks ago.

Strands of Hair Found on Truck At Orillia

, Toronto, April 10 — (CP) — Two strands of hair found on a truck at Orillia, 90 miles north of here, may provide an important lead in the wide search for a truck driver who killed two suburban North York girls March 31.

Police said the hair was removed from the under part of the fenders of a green stake truck. The truck that struck and killed 13-year-old Lorine Watson and her five-year-old niece, Barbara Jones, was first identified as a green stake truck.

Rewards totalling $2,000 have been offered for information leading to the arrest of the driver, who continued without stopping after hitting the girls.

Two unidentified Orillia men were questioned by North York police Saturday and told to remain at their homes while the pairs were brought to Toronto for medico-legal examination.

STILL SECRET PRICE TAG

Detroit, April 10 (AP) — Nash Motors' new Rambler automobile will be publicly introduced by the company dealers next Friday.

Still secret is the price tag to go on the vehicle. Only price hint is the company's statement that the car will be "in the lowest price field."

First models will be convertibles and station wagons.

Increasing post-war interest in smaller automobiles has started a lot of speculation in automotive trade quarters. Some sources believe they will establish an entirely new segment of the car industry.

Yeah! Nickel's tough!

Tough job, trucking—and it takes tough equipment to stand up. That's why Nickel alloys are used for the greater part of those important parts of trucks subject to severe shock and constant hard wear.

Exhaust pipes and mufflers are up against the problem of hot corrosive gases. These parts are being made of Nickel alloys to reduce costs in the long run.

The gleaming grille and other parts of trucks and cars are Nickel-plated. Nickel has lasting beauty.

Forty-three years of research have uncovered hundreds of uses for Nickel in the United States and other countries. Now Nickel exports bring in millions of U.S. dollars yearly. BELLEVILLE LEADS AGAIN!

The main stock-in-trade of those wishing to promote anything which they claim will be of "inestimable value to the community" is the yelp and yak of "lookit the advertising it will bring."

Perhaps they're right. The Biltmore Hat Company of Guelph, won't suffer any, from an advertising point of view because of the fact their "Biltmores" won the Ontario Junior "A" hockey championship. A native of Lisbomb, Nova Scotia, dobbling his codfish and jacketed spuds, will think of Toronto and wonder what sort of a village it is whenever he hears about a Maple Leaf.

Cheddar cheese is synonymous with the name "Belleville" because it is manufactured here. Is of quality par excellence and the advertising it has brought the city, nationally and internationally, cannot be measured in dollars and cents.

Belleville and the County of Hastings enjoy a fine reputation of being one of the best vacation spots in the province. It is advertised far and wide, and rightly so because it is true. It has been proven, because the ingredients for a fine vacation are here.

Industries have been attracted here because of the city's ideal location on main arterial highway, and attractive land and water freight facilities. Yup, we've done right well from an advertising standpoint.

But we're going to do better.

From this point on, at least this year, we're going to be known as "The Only City Between Toronto and Montreal Without a Baseball Team".

Brother, what in influx of tourists that slogan will bring.

It should be flaunted beneath the Fallwellian sign that graces the signboards placed at all approaches to the city, and which reads "The Friendliest City."

Think of the thousands of summer tourists, especially those from the United States who will clamor at our gates because they will not be bothered by the inevitable cry of "Play Ball", the hideous sight of uniform-clad players cavorting on a baseball diamond, or the ever-rewarding sound of the crack of wood on horsehide, the clop-clop of spiked shoes on base-paths, the thud of ball into leather, and the unspeakable curses of the baseball fan.

Thrly offspring won't be polluted by the company of Juvenile "baseballers" who wear misleading garments which once served as baseball shirts, tote cracked baseball bats beneath grimy arms, throw balls willy-nilly on any corner lot available and are ready to bet their last popsicle that the Red Sox will beat the Yankees out in the American League pennant race.

The general home life of the city will undergo marked change. The "Gordon" bloke who, after a hard day's work in factory or shop, liked to go home, read the newspaper, listen to the radio, remove the grime of toil from neck, ears and hands and then go down to the local hostelry to enjoy a couple of hours of his favorite sport, will now be able to relax on his verandah or lawn, have some home brew of voice through too much tonsilar exertion. He won't indulge in over-the-fence arguments with the next door neighbor as to the merits of a certain baseball player who won't be bothered with Junior putting the "bee" on him for two-bits to buy a ball-game.

Yup, now that we're rid of this detestable game of baseball we're well on the way to a communal Utopia.

True, there may be such a thing as the Belleville and District Baseball League starting operations again this year, but the executive should make application to change the name of the loop. We want no adverse publicity that will aid in turning away from our sport-free gates, the thousands of baseball-hating tourists who yearly throng the highways. God forbid. Even at that, the dollar-lined visitors shouldn't be bothered too much. If the attendance at the district league games is no greater this year than last there won't be too many complaints from those who prefer the peace and quietness of a muscle-bruising game of croquet, brain-wracking endurance contests of checkers on the lawn, or the nerve-tingling experience of a lusty bout of canasta.

At least we're original. It will never be said that this city has stolen another community's advertising thunder. Other cities, towns and villages have committed acts of downright plagiarism, or at least did a job of paraphrasing, when it comes to adopting a civic slogan. But not us. The slogan "The Only City Between Toronto and Montreal without a Baseball Team" is as original as sin.

We intend to be in Niagara Falls, Ont., on Friday and Saturday this week where the annual convention of the Ontario Baseball Association is being held in the General Brock Hotel, imagine the surprised stares and muttered remarks from the veteran baseball men of the province when the Belleville representative, pardon — a Belleville resident —strides into convention hall wearing a halo instead of a hat.

SOFTBALL EXPANDS

Canada now has a country wide softball organization.

At a special meeting on Saturday following the 28th Annual Convention of the Ontario Softball Association held in Owen Sound, the Canada Softball Association was founded.

The meeting was attended by the executive committee and officers of the O.A.S.A. as well as Ken Yost, President of the Canada Softball Association.

George H. Campbell of Oshawa, previously re-elected president of the O.A.S.A., also was elected president of the newly-formed Canadian body. Yost was elected western first vice-president, Eastern vice-presidents are Doug Smith of Toronto and Lloyd Algeire of St. Catharines. Algaire is also treasurer of the O.A.SPA. Frank Feaver of Hamilton, secretary of the O. A. S. A. was elected secretary-treasurer of the C.S.A.

Feaver said that the adoption of the constitution of the Canadian Softball Association will bring about the first Canadian championship tournaments. These tournaments, he said, will be held at the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto during Labor Day week.

Marlboros Will Meet Sherbrooke In Eastern Final

Sherbrooke, Que., April 10 — (CP) — The Eastern Canada senior hockey championship will be at stake Wednesday when Sherbrooke Saints and Toronto Marlboros clash in the first game of the best-of-seven series.

The Quebec and Ontario champions, both of whom set a torrid pace in winning their provincial crowns in four straight games, are expected to wage a close battle for the Eastern title and the right to meet the Western Canada champions in the Allan Cup play-offs.

Saints made it four in a row over Sydney Millionaires Saturday when they blanked the Maritime title-holders 5-0 here after downing them three times at Sydney, N.S., Marlboros advanced to the finals by claiming four straight victories over Cornwall, Ont., Calumets.

The Sydney squad put up a tough fight Saturday during the hard-checking game that saw eight minor and four major penalties dished out by both teams.

Reg Sinclair put the game on ice for Sherbrooke when he staged a third-period outburst and sank three goals.

Manitoba Back In Race With Win Over Blues

Montreal, April 10 — (CP) — After a weekend of gruelling shot practice, the fighting Irishmen of Manitoba Bisons tonight resume their best-of-five final series with Montreal Navy Blues for the Canadian senior basketball championship.

Trailing 2-1 in the series, Bisons have been putting the accent on phasis on shooting and their coach, Acey Olson, wheels his team has a "reasonable attitude" toward the company games, both of the quartet if necessary, will be played to-morrow night. Bisons dropped the first game 54-34 and 34-37, and then fought to a narrow 60-54 decision over the Montreal squad.

Wray Yeomans, Bisons manager, maintains his team is accustomed to a pattern type of ball not the "fireworks" style. But he said Saturday that Bisons are adjusting themselves to the Blues' style.

On the other side of the fence, H.M.H.S. coach Joey Richman admitted Saturday that the loss to Manitoba last Thursday was a setback.

"We deserved that one," he said, "My boys were too complacent. I told them the Bisons were a fighting club. Now they know."

New York Rovers Wallop Spokane

Spokane, Wash., April 10 (AP) — New York Rovers walloped Spokane Flyers 4-1 Sunday night in the second game of the best-of-seven elimination round of the United States Senior Amateur Hockey championships. The series now is tied 1-1.

The fine goal-tending of Lorne Worsley was the Flyers' chief headache. The cat-like rookie stopped the Spokane's toughest time and again with magnificent saves.

The Rovers, who lost 3-2 Saturday night, hogged the scoring until 15-48 of the last period, when Spokane's Doug Carrigan poked one past the net.

Toby Brown scored the Rovers' first goal late in the first period. George Murphy and Stan McClellan added single goals in the second, and Brown netted another in the final period.

St. Louis Cards Much the Best On Hurling Heap

By JACK HAND

Houston, Tex., April 10 (AP) — This St. Louis Cardinal Club with its gilt-edged pitching can finish anywhere from first to fourth in the National League. It all depends on how the veteran regulars stand the gaff.

Manager Eddie Dyer has a handful of problems in all departments except pitching. If the Red Birds are to challenge Brooklyn for the pennant, its six-deep starting staff must carry most of the load.

Howie Pollet, Harry Brecheen, Al Brazle and Max Lanier are the southpaws. Gerry Staley and Red Munger are the righthanders. Add Ted Wilks and Al Macinnis for relief plus a couple of newcomers and Dyer and Billy Defendorf think it's a tough gang.

Pollet, Brecheen and Staley are ready to start with a rush. Staley, 10-10 last year, has been most impressive in spring camp.

For the first time in his career Brazle reported with a wire arm. The 35-year-old veteran doesn't think it's serious but he has seen little action. Lanier, troubled by a cold in his back, has been ineffective.

Riddle of Infield

Steve Bilko, first-base rookie, is the riddle of the infield. Big Steve came to camp weighing 268, 18 pounds overweight. So far his hitting has been weak and his fielding is far below big-league standards.

Yet Dyer and the Powers-that-be on the club think Bilko can come. Bilko since he is a righthanded hitter, just what the team needs to switch between Stan Musial and Enos Slaughter in the batting order.

Batting around camp is that Dyer finally has a real powerful Musial in from right field to play first like he did in 1946.

Musial has been a great supporter the Cards' one-two punch. They are the finest threat the Cards again will see a steady diet of southpaw pitching. Bilko has a big long trial to that situation.

Infield Fixtures

Red Schoendienst at second and Marty Marion at short are infield fixtures. Each is in the 1949 rookie who hit .304 until he broke his ankle, went to the third base in hand. Far from the best fielding third sacker, Eddie adds zip to the attack as a righthanded batter.

Slaughter is left, Musial in right and Chuck Diering alternating in centre with Harry Lanning in the outfield picture. Catching is a problem. Del Rice and Joe Garagiola have the first string authority with John Buchta, .299, at Rochester, the third man.

Two years out in the grandstand Mrs. Pearce will follow every move the arbiter makes. If she disagrees with any of his decisions, she'll tell him after the game. She always does.

Henry, 43, acknowledges the merit of his wife's soccer advice. She's been studying the game since girlhood and knows more about it than most male fans.

Pearce, a big-time referee for 12 years, will officiate his third Cup Final. "It's a life-time ambition realized," he told reporters.

Belleville Golf Wins 4th Major A Bowling Title

The Belleville Golf team of the Major "A" Bowling League won its fourth straight loop championship at the Sir-A-Do-Lot Alleys Thursday night when they defeated Central Cigar 4 up on 6 scores. The victory not only gave the Golfers the second half schedule title but the 1949-50 championship as well. They won the first half championship for good measure.

The final session of the league last night produced the finest bowling efforts of the season. All eight clubs aggregated scores over 3,000 with Moore's Chiselers topping the field with 3454. Eleven players turned in individual scores of over 700 while the greater number had counts of better than 650.

The final standing:

Guelph Biltmores Play Canadiens In Eastern Final

Toronto, April 10—(CP) — The hopes for an Eastern Memorial Cup team from Ontario ride into Montreal tomorrow night on the skates of Guelph Biltmores, a spunky hockey club that finished off Porcupine Combines 3-1 Saturday to take a best-of-seven Eastern Memorial Cup semi-final series in five games.

The Bilts, who played the role of giant killers earlier this season in topping Windsor Spitfires for the Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" crown, will be led against Montreal Canadiens Juniors by the Bathgate brothers, Frank and Andy, who played a big part in Saturday's victory.

Andy's third-period goal, on a brilliant passing play with brother Frank and Vic Dimarco, ended the Combines' cup hopes.

Guelph had a large measure of help in the game as Porcupine unable to crack a 1-1 first period deadlock until Bathgate came at 3:10 of the final period. Ten minutes later Dimarco added an insurance marker.

Up to the third period the rugged Porkies, displaying a vicious checking style of hockey, had been able to halt Guelph's counters gauging attacks. When the defence wilted, Porkies' goalie Bill Harrington was on hand to balk the Bilts.

But at no time did the Northern Ontario Hockey Association winners show an organized attack. Sporadic rushes by Guelph territory were led by Darrel McLaughlin, one of the fastest men on the ice.

Porkies' Jennie Donovan did the scoring at the 8:37 mark of the first period with Walter Clune of Bilts tying the count shortly before the end of the period. The game produced 15 penalties, all minor, with nine going to the Combines.

The Eastern Cup final will also be a best-of-seven series with the date and place of the second game as yet undecided.

Leo Reise Emerges as Hero Of NHL Playoffs as Detroit Enters Finals Against Rangers

Detroit, April 10 — (AP) — A six-foot defenceman wrote a story-book finish to Toronto Maple Leafs' three-year reign as Stanley Cup champions Sunday night.

Blonde Leo Reise, who wasn't even a regular until late season, fired only two goals for Detroit Red Wings in their bitterly-fought semi-final series. But both those goals, scored in overtime, won games for the Detroiters that they just couldn't afford to lose.

Leo sewed up the seven-game series Sunday night when he took a pass from centre George Gee at 8:39 in the first overtime period and whistled a 10-foot drive past Walter (Turk) Broda in the Toronto net for the only goal of the game. That gave the Wings a 4-3 edge in games and sent them against New York Rangers in the final round.

It was virtually a repeat of what happened in Toronto last Tuesday. The Red Wings, trailing 2-1 in games, went into overtime with the score tied 1-1. Again Gee started the play that ended as Reise fired home a 15-footer to end the game after 20 minutes and 39 seconds of extra play.

Starter This Year

The 27-year-old Hamilton player only hit the starting lineup when Detroit traded all-star defenceman Bill Quackenbush to Boston last summer in an effort to bolster their offence. Ironically, Jimmy Peters and Pete Babando, the two forwards who came to the Wings in the deal, were out with injuries for most of the Toronto-Detroit series.

But Reise was in there. The storm-centre of a few stick-swinging episodes in the first two games, he settled down to solid defensive play and fired those two tallies that broke the hearts of the battling Leafs.

Look Good and Bad

Sunday night's results put the Red Wings out in front for the first time in the series. Toronto's 5-0 victory in the first game started a turnabout pattern in which the teams looked good and bad in alternate order, ending with a ringing 4-0 victory for Detroit Saturday night.

But there was little to choose between the teams in the climactic seventh game. The Red Wings had the edge in the first period, the Leafs took over in the second, and both clubs kept the 14,724 fans in an uproar the rest of the way as they raced up and down the ice to test Detroit's Harry Lumley and Toronto's Broda in the nets.

The end came in the overtime session as Leafs suddenly couldn't get the puck out of their zone. Broda blocked five shots in a row before Reise blasted the puck home.

Saturday's game in Toronto, by contrast, saw the National Hockey League champions in command all the way, Winger Marty Pavelich put the Wings in front in the first period while Toronto defencemen Bill Barilko sat out a charging penalty. Gee, Gerry Couture and Jack Stewart added to their margin.

To some of the Detroiters who sweated out the semi-finals, the Detroit-New York final seems almost an anti-climax. Rangers, forced out of Madison Square Garden by a circus, will open at Detroit Tuesday night, then play two "home" games at Toronto Thursday and Saturday before finishing the best-of-seven series at Detroit.

Mal Whitfield Sets New Mark For 880 Yards

(By the Canadian Press)

At Greenock, British Guiana, Mal Whitfield, United States Olympic 800-metres champion, set a British Guiana record for the 880-yard run Saturday at the opening of a three-day international Track Field and Cycling Meet though he wasn't pressed.

A crowd of 4,000 watched Whitfield streak the distance in 1:54.6 to clip four seconds off the mark set by Roscoe Browne of the United States.

Andrew Stanfield of the United States equalled the British Guiana record of 2.4 for the 100-yards dash, set in 1945. Three British Guiana cycling records were eclipsed and three British Guiana track marks were equalled, all by Guianese artists.

Bill Tobin, president and manager of Chicago Black Hawks, said Saturday night that Charlie Conacher will decide in a couple of days whether he will coach the Hawks in the National Hockey League again next season.

"Charlie wants a day or two to make up his mind whether to continue in hockey or to devote all his time to his oil interests in Western Canada," said Tobin, who was at Toronto for the Stanley Cup semi-final between Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs.

Tobin mentioned a report that Conacher might become coach of Boston Bruins and said "Charlie told me he was not interested in the Boston job."

St. Catharines St. Paul's United won the senior title of the Ontario Church Basketball Association at London Saturday when they defeated Windsor Lincoln Road 39-33 to take the deciding game of the best-in-three series.

Each team had previously won their home game. It is the second consecutive senior church championship for the St. Catharines St. Paul's quintet.

Hal Wagner, 34, former Major League catcher, has been acquired by Dallas Eagles of the Texas League, the club announced Sunday at Dallas, Tex. Wagner played last year for Toronto of the International League, batting .260 in 90 games.

Windsor's Lincoln Road United Church basketball took two straight games from Montreal's St. James United Church squad during the weekend at Windsor to win the Eastern Canada Basketball title.

Vancouver Elites, Western Canada champions, came from behind in the second half at Toronto Saturday night to trim Toronto Montgomery Maids 60-53 in the opening game of their best-of-five

UNEMPLOYMENT INCREASES

Ottawa, April 8 (CP)— Despite the spring pick-up in jobs, unemployment in Canada is still increasing slowly and is almost 50 percent over what it was this time last year.

The labor department announced Thursday that the number of persons seeking jobs through national employment service—the rough barometer of unemployment—was 375,900 at March 16, which was 1,100 up from a week before.

At mid-March of last year, the service had 255,356 job hunters.

Capitals Win Six Straight In Playoffs

Indianapolis, April 10 — (AP) —Indianapolis Capitals were only one game away from an all-time record in American Hockey League play-offs after nipping Cleveland Barons Sunday night 4-3 for their seventh straight victory.

If the young Caps can finish off the Calder Cup series against Cleveland here Thursday night, they will be the first team ever to make a clean sweep of the A.H.L. playoffs.

Cleveland lost only one game of nine in winning the 1947-48 playoffs and Buffalo did as well in the 1943-44 series.

Indianapolis started the current playoffs by defeating St. Louis in two straight and Providence's Calder Cup holders in the same style.

Cleveland went down for the third time Sunday night in the best-of-seven series after leading twice at 1-0 and 2-1. Nelson Podolsky, knocked cold in a riotous second period, scored unassisted in the final period to break a 2-2 tie and Gordon Haidy added the insurance at 19:22 on a cross-rink pass from Enio Sclaizzi.

BIG COUNTING JOB

New Delhi (CP) — Plans for India's first census in 1951 are being discussed here. The Indian census will involve visits by more than 1,000,000 enumerators to 64,000,000 homes inhabited by about 350,000,000 citizens.

Lumber Kings Battle Rouyn To 4-4 Draw

Rouyn, Que., April 10—(CP)—Thurso Lumber Kings came from behind twice Saturday night to battle Rouyn Flashes to a 4-4 tie in the second game of a best-of-five series for the Eastern Canada intermediate A hockey championship. Thurso now lead the series with a win and a tie.

Trailing 4-2 with less than three minutes remaining in the third period the Lumbermen began to click and counted two markers to force a scoreless 10-minute overtime session.

The first period opened at a fast clip and at 4:02 Norm Guimond bounced the puck off a Thurso defender's leg to put the Kings up, 1-0. Thurso evened the count four minutes later when Morris Gaugeon whipped the disc home and took the lead on Fairfield's marker at 10:15. Reg Baril took over for Rouyn and evened it up at 2-2 with six minutes remaining in the first frame.

The middle session was all for the homesters. Guy Baril tallied an unassisted counter near the midway mark and Noel Guimond added another minute later.

At 17:43 of the third period Sylvio Giroux clicked for the third Thurso goal and at 19:34 Gerry Gaumond deadlocked the contest.

Only six penalties were handed out in the contest, witnessed by almost 4,000 fans. The series now goes to Ottawa for the third and fourth games Monday and Tuesday with a fifth at Smith's Falls if necessary.

SEVERELY BURNED

Kingston, April 8 (CP)—Cleary Nicholson was severely burned about the legs early Friday when the studio couch on which he was sleeping caught fire. The injured man was taken to hospital where his condition is reported to be serious.

He is a brother of Rt. Rev. Monsignor J. P. Nicholson, Belleville, who is a patient in the same hospital.

Brother Arrested On Charge of Drunk Driving

Fergus, April 10 — (CP) — Reported jarred out of the truck his brother allegedly was driving, Victor Braniff, 45, of nearby Kitchener, died in hospital Saturday night. A little later 37-year-old Thomas Braniff was arrested in Kitchener on a charge of driving while drunk.

Sons of Gerald Braniff, owner of the Braniff Transport Company, the two drove to Fergus early Saturday to have a load of turpaulin repaired. The accident happened on the return trip. Details are lacking but police said they believe Victor suffered fatal injuries when bounced out of the truck on a rough road.

The younger brother went to a nearby home and asked that a doctor be called. Dr. J. H. O. O'Brien of Elora, who responded, ordered that the injured man be brought here.

Hospital officials said death was due to internal haemorrhage and shock. Kitchener police said Thomas Braniff was driving the truck in an erratic manner when arrested in that city.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, April 10 — (AP)—Movieland's public relations, in the opinion of many observers here, are at their lowest point since the black years of the early '20s.

Back in those days, the movie industry was also threatened with federal regulation. The narcotics death of a star, a murder involving two actresses and a manslaughter charge against a comedian brought down a torrent of public criticism. The scandals, plus a cycle of loose-moraled films, were denounced on the floor of the United States Senate.

Now it is 1950 and another Senator — Edwin Johnson of Colorado — is blasting Hollywood.

Back in the '20s, the movie industry solved its problem by hiring Postmaster General Will Hays from President Harding's cabinet to police the movies. Hollywood Worries

Hollywood is worried. The town is concerned not only about the scandals, but about the attitude of people towards the movie industry as a whole. The reason for the concern is simple enough — theatre business is not good.

Hollywood believes its pictures are as good as ever. Then what is the reason for the falling - off box-office?

"Hollywood has never made an attempt to sell itself to the public," a distinguished star told me. "It has always been to concerned with selling its Jane Russells.

"And it doesn't even know how to sell stars and pictures any more. It is still using the same hoopla methods it used a quarter of a century ago."

The movie industry knows amazingly little about itself. But it is finding out — the hard way.

A saying as old as Hollywood goes: "Any publicity is good publicity." People are beginning to doubt this proverb.

For instance, "Stromboli" is the most publicized picture of all time, having been splashed on front pages for almost a year. All Hollywood expected the film to show a lusty profit.

But "Stromboli" appears destined to show a deficit. The curious flooded the theatres on the first day of his showing. The people stayed away in large crowds thereafter.

AT THE McCARTHY — Marjorie Main takes a complete glamor treatment in Universal-International's new comedy, "Ma and Pa Kettle Go to Town," but Percy Kilbride still seems content with his laugh-getting long underwear. The comedy team takes a rest after a frenzied visit of New York's landmarks in the new comedy release. The comedy opens today at Odeon's McCarthy Theatre.
